The picture, just received from England, shows Captain Malcolm Campbell, Great Britain's greatest living automobile speed racer, sitting in the "Bluebird II," the gigantic mystery Napier-Campbell car with which he hopes to defend the world's speed record of 231 miles an hour which the late Sir Henry Segrave established in 1929.

PLAY IS NOT COMING

Maurice Colbourne Sorry "The Apple Cart in Peterboro" Is Not Coming.

"Until three weeks ago we had looked forward confidently and with great pleasure to presenting for the first time anywhere in the British Empire outside Britain, The Apple Cart—in Peterborough," states Maurice Colbourne in the course of an interesting communication to a resident of this city.

"We have been unable to make arrangements with the Famous Players Canadian Corporation," continues Mr. Colbourne, "so we cannot come to Peterborough. Believe me we are especially sorry, because we had looked forward so, to acknowledging the warmhearted receptions that Peterborough has given us for two years, making it the scene of The Apple Cart's Canadian 'premiere.'"

In stressing the fact that Mr. Stewart, manager of the theatre has nothing to do whatsoever, so far as their inability to get a booking is concerned, he suggests that it would be a remarkable thing if Peterborough migrated to the Royal Alexandria, Toronto en bloc for one of the performances. "My mind," he said, "leaps ahead to Peterborough occupying the entire orchestra stalls.... special buses.....special train!"

Canada's Fur Industry

Canada's Pulp and Paper Industry

The pulp and paper industry is the most important manufacturing industry in Canada heading the lists in 1929 for gross and net values of manufactured products, as well as for distribution of wages and salaries.

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION.

The Examiner is in receipt of samples of advertising, booklets, blotters, cards and calendars that are being issued by the Ontario Temperance Association in its campaign of education against intemperance in this Province.

The matter has been prepared with intelligence and judgment and should therefore prove decidedly helpful in this effort to promote sobriety in the only sure way it can be brought about—that is, by education and persuasion.

In undertaking this work the association is working on a more sound basis than was the Ontario Prohibition Union in its recent request that local option votes under the Ontario Liquor Control Act should be taken on a county basis rather than according to municipalities as at present.

In other words, the Union suggested that where a liquor store existed in a county, town or city it could be voted out by the electors of the whole county, the argument being that rural districts in which the sentiment was distinctly dry should not have the menace of a liquor store within easy distance.

That proposal is not likely to appeal as being reasonable, the general view being that if the majority of the people in a city or town want a liquor store those living outside its borders should not have the opportunity of taking it away from them.

USING THE PRUNING KNIFE.

It is reported from Ottawa that in a drive to cut down expenditures Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has given orders that Cabinet Ministers, their deputies and other dignitaries are no longer to drive round in costly automobiles at the public expense.

If transportation is necessary in the public interest, the Ministers, etc., will have to get along in taxicabs.

Rumor also has it that the private railway cars hitherto considered as essential when heads of departments were moving round the country are to be scrapped.

This new move may not be popular with those immediately affected by it, but it undoubtedly will be throughout the country where the majority of people have long felt that there was needless extravagance in this matter of transportation for Government heads.

In seizing upon Government automobiles as the first step in a campaign of economy, Premier Bennett has made a start that will be applauded; it should not be difficult for him to find other opportunities of slashing off expenditures on what most Canadians feel are extravagant services.

When large undertakings are in sight and revenues are declining, it is essential that there should be vigorous and effective use of the pruning knife, and there is no better place to begin than that chosen by the Premier.

CARELESS DRIVING.

Peterborough motorists have a place in the latest list published by the Board of Railway Commissioners and dealing with dangerous practices of motorists, drivers of other vehicles, and of pedestrians at protected railway crossings.

Thus we find such local incidents as these in the records:

Charlotte street, Peterborough, Aug. 2, 1930, 4.45 p.m.—Trying to cross when gates were being lowered.

King street, Peterborough, Aug. 23, 1930, 6.35 p.m.—North arm of east gate broken. Driver claims brakes did not hold very good. Ran into gate when down, breaking off two points.

Charlotte street, Peterborough, Sept. 6, 1930, 7.15 p.m.—Approaching crossing too fast to stop when gates were lowered. Not watching to see gates were being lowered.

Charlotte street, Peterborough, Sept. 29, 3.50 p.m. —Approached crossing too fast.

King street, Peterborough, Nov. 15, 1930, 5.35 p.m. —Approaching crossing too fast.

Park street, Peterborough, May 26, 1930, 8 p.m. —Drove auto upon crossing as train approached.

The above examples, selected from a long list which includes 76 cases on C.N.R. lines from August 1 until December 31 of last year and 80 cases on the C.P.R., throw a light upon the all too prevalent carelessness on the part of many motorists.

As the Board of Railway Commissioners point out, "notwithstanding safety devices and cautionary signals, people take chances and disregard safety."

The six local cases show that Peterborough has its share of such drivers who at crossings protected by gates have shown themselves so careless as to put their lives into jeopardy despite the protection provided for their safety.

THE REAL TEST.

A correspondent to "The Voice of the People" takes exception to a recent editorial in these columns supporting the effort of station CKGW to secure a new wavelength.

His argument is that there are several high-class radios on the market capable of sharp enough tuning to prevent interference with the Toronto station.

That is doubtless true but it must be remembered that the benefit of radio broadcasting should not be confined to those able to buy the most costly receiving sets, and that the experience of the average set owner should be the test.

The Examiner has no brief for Canada's Cheerio station or any other broadcasting unit, and is thoroughly in accord with our correspondent when he complains of the advertising that is crammed into certain hours of the former's programs.

That series of short advertisements that is a nightly feature is a nuisance and a bore.

Nevertheless the fact remains that to the majority of radio enthusiasts in this district station CKGW is a reliable, never-failing source of radio entertainment, and its removal from the broadcasting field would be a distinct loss.

The fame of such features as Amos n' Andy, which only came into general popularity here when CKGW began to present them, is evidence of the usefulness of that station to most set owners.

WORRYING ABOUT RIDEAU HALL.

The National Council of the Native Sons of Canada, an organization of doubtful size and still more doubtful influence, has been sending telegrams to Ottawa demanding that no person not a Canadian citizen be appointed Governor-General of Canada.

Anyone has a right, providing he wants to pay the cost, to send telegrams to the Government. It is a great pity, nevertheless, that some way doesn't exist to prevent busybodies pestering the Government about things regarding which they know very little and in which the public as a whole has very little interest.

There is really no demand in Canada for a Canadian Governor-General. The fact of the matter is that the people are too busy with their work or with their business, trying to get somewhere, to be bothering their heads about whether the next Governor-General comes from the British Isles or from somewhere between Sydney and Vancouver. They are perfectly satisfied in the knowledge that the post will not go to anyone not acceptable to the Canadian Government or people. More than that, they know that he will in no way interfere with the government of this country, or with its complete freedom.

Some day, perhaps, the Canadian Government, backed by the Canadian people, will demand a Canadian-born Governor-General. When it does, the thing will be done, just as it has been done in Australia. For the moment, however, the thing is not an issue at all, and the Native Sons of Canada might easily find more useful scope for its activities than in pestering Mr. Bennett and his colleagues with a lot of foolish telegrams.—Ottawa Journal.

CAN INDIA DO IT?

It would be too great a thing to claim that affairs in India had been settled at the conference in London. There has been a satisfactory conclusion to a gathering that must have been a tremendous strain upon those entrusted with its ultimate destinies.

There has been a form of responsible government worked out for India, but it now remains for the people of India to show that they are capable of assuming the responsibilities of that form of government.

There are places where one can read into the policy of the British Government a fair amount of tact and diplomacy. The onus of putting the new form of government in successful operation is placed upon the people of India. The British have no desire to interfere, and the cross-currents between races in that country regarding their participation in home rule become a matter for adjudication in India, not in London.

That may have a sobering influence. There can be no mistake regarding what Premier MacDonald had in mind when he said the newly-formed governments, provincial and federal, should go ahead and run their business. He told them plainly that it was not the intention that there should be too great dependence placed upon the office of governor-general, because it was intended that India's problems should be attended to by her own representatives.

* * * *

Mahatma Gandhi will find himself in a position where he will have to make up his own mind about what he intends to do. If it is his intention to continue his present policy of stubborn nonsense, then it follows that he will be standing in the way of self-government, the very thing for which so many of the Indian people have been asking. Gandhi, it appears, will have to make his decision quickly, and it may be that in future he will be considered a rebel by the Indian Government rather than a martyr.

One of the outstanding items in the negotiations has been the expressed willingness on the part of Britain to liberate political prisoners, provided they behave themselves. That little proviso may mean much or little depending entirely on the course of the future events in India. There are 50,000 of these prisoners. Many of them are prisoners on account of their allegiance with the Gandhi movement. If Gandhi retains his present outlook, and prefers raiding salt wells to working for the building up of a nation in India, then liberty for the 50,000 prisoners will mean little.

Britain has been for centuries the greatest colonizing and nation-building force in the world. Her policy has been to give to any land within the Empire the utmost in home rule as soon as that spot was ready to demonstrate its ability for self-government. That is the treatment which is now applied to India. Britain cannot make that effort a success. India alone can offer the solution, and for that reason that great land, unknown, home of millions whose state in life is unspeakably low, land where racial hatred runs strong and where traditions cut deep, stands to-day with her face turned to the greatest experiment in nation building that has ever been attempted.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The British Government may be down, but it is not out, despite an unfavorable vote in the House.

Peterborough people always have the satisfaction of knowing that no matter how cold it gets here, it is always colder somewhere else in Ontario.

The feud of Mayor Johnston of Orillia against the press seems to be developing into the best comedy of the season.

The West Hamilton by-election promises to warm up into a real war before the "Cease Fire" sounds.

Vancouver jobless seem to be determined to see that the police in that city have no reason to complain of unemployment.

Reginald McKenna, chairman of the Midland Bank, advises the British people to exhibit less thrift and to spend more, which is unusual advice surely from a banker.

President Hoover's strong prohibition note may be regarded as an offset to the report of his commission on law observance and enforcement.

Cutting off clearances of liquor for the United States may not have helped to make that country dry, but it is cutting down the Dominion revenue to the tune of $14,000,000 a year.

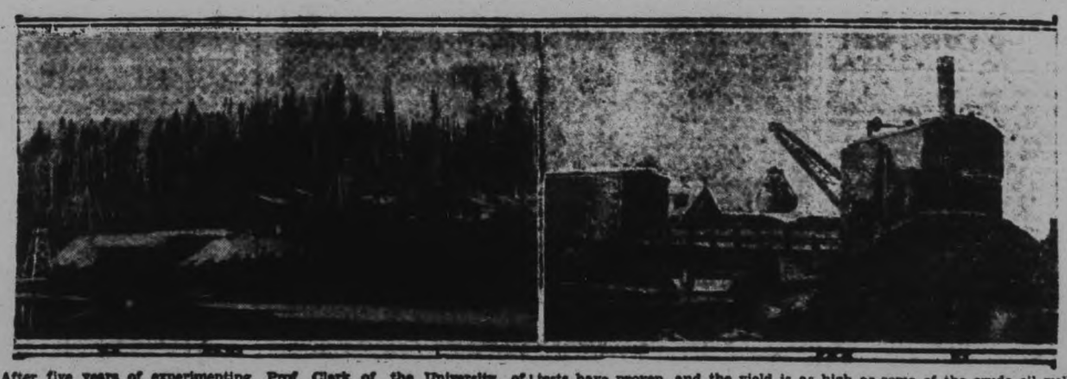
There Is Gas In These Hills



After five years of experimenting, Prof. Clark of the University of Alberta has at last evolved a plan whereby it is now possible to extract gasoline from the bituminous sands of McMurray, Alberta. Plans are now being prepared to establish a mill in which 600 tons of this sand can be treated daily. The gasoline extracted from the sand is of a high quality, tests have proven, and the yield is as high as some of the crude oil wells of the south. Above, on the left, is shown the present mill at McMurray, and on the right is shown a part of the large amount of tar sands unloaded at Edmonton. This tar product is of great value in paving streets and has many other commercial uses.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

He went on with Virginia. Marty did not follow them. She stood quite still in the middle of the room, looking after them. Tony's head was bent above the bright head of the girl beside him. Things were going rather fast in that direction. And Jane seemed unable to stop it. Marty wondered what she could do to help Jane.

She crossed the room and stood in front of the painting, staring at it with unseeing eyes. She wore straight frock of pale gray crepe, absolutely unrelieved by any color. There were only the silver buckles on her gray shoes and the silver band tied about her silvery hair. The sunshine which poured down through the glass roof lighted her so that she shimmered and shone. To Rickey coming in, she seemed like a white birch in the spring. He told her so, at once, and added, "You're a silver witch, and I'm going to put you in a book."

"Suppose I refuse to be in a book," she told him, smiling.

"I shall do it anyhow. I knew when I saw you at Annapolis that I had you for a heroine. That's why I followed you up here. I've never seen any one like you. There's an unreal quality, like a wood nymph or a mountain sprite There was that witch in The Sunken Bell."

"Wasn't she rather—horrid?"

"She was beautiful!"

"Is beauty enough?"

"There were the old Florentines. They had no consciences, but Heavens, how men loved them."

"Do you think I haven't a conscience?"

"How do I know—yet?"

She was attracted by his audacity. Here was a mere stripling, yet he was analyzing her mercilessly. She sat down on the velvet seat and motioned to him to sit beside her. "Tell me aboutyour book," she said.

She looked at him with appraising eyes as he flung forth his ideas in a torrent of vehement phrases. He was vivid as a flame, and extraordinarily handsome with his russet, ruffled-up hair and dark brows and lashes. And his ideas were most amusing.

"In my book," he said, "you won't love anybody. You'll let yourself be loved. I think you are like that. You break men's hearts. Yet some day some one will break yours."

"That's all very well in a book," Marty's voice was scornful, "but I haven't any heart—so how can anyone break it."

He laughed with his head thrown back, his white throat showing. "The man who breaks yours will be a boy, like me. Someone you'll think you can rule—and can't—"

She was aware of a challenge, and of a certain unexpected thrill in response. "Nobody can make me do anything I don't want to do," she told him. "And I am going to marry Tony Bleecker."

She wondered afterwards why she had been so crude about it. Surely there had been no need at the moment to lay her cards on the table. But he had seemed utterly unimpressed. "You are not going to marry him."

"Why not."

"He's in love with my sister."

She stiffened. "How do you know?"

"Oh, he's told her so a dozen times. And she wouldn't have him. She didn't want to come to Derekdale. But I made her."

"Why did you make her?" Marty was not laughing now, and there was no sign of her usual indolence.

But Rickey was calm. "I made her come because I wanted to see you. I'm in love with you. I knew it the moment I looked down on you from the dormer window."

Marty dared not show him her feelings. "You make me feel like a lady in a play," she told him, smiling.

Tea was being served when at last they went downstairs. A crowd of people had come in and Marty was immediately surrounded. Rickey sat in a corner and looked at her. Everywhere she went she was aware of his eyes. At last she spoke to Mrs. Bleecker, who was pouring. "Jane," she said, "I wish you'd put that Oliphant boy next to me at dinner."

"The Oliphant boy? Why?"

"He amuses me. All the rest of the men bore me."

She moved on and came quite suddenly upon the master of the house. "Anthony," she ejaculated, "when did you get here?"

"Five minutes ago." He held out his hand and smiled at her. He was big and fair like his son but with a sort of twany fairness like a lion. Indeed he made one think of a lion as he lifted his massive head and gazed about. "Who's the girl talking with Tony?" he asked.

Marty looked. Virginia Oliphant sat in a high-backed chair of green brocade, which showed gold carving above her shining head. Tony stood beside her, bending down and laughing.

"That," said Marty, drily, "is the future Mrs. Bleecker."

Old Anthony surveyed the two young people with level gaze. "Just what do you mean by that, Marty?"

"Oh, Tony's mad about her, and Jane's frantic."

Marty told him, and finished with: "She has had practically no social experience, but she's completely at her ease."

"She would be. Back of such women is a long line of belles and beauties. I know the type. I had a Maryland grandmother. She would have met the king of England as easily as she met one of her own neighbors."

"Come on over and let me present you," Marty suggested. "I am really generous to pass you on to her. You may side with Tony instead of Jane, and with the two of you against me that would be my last chance at Tony as a matrimonial possibility."

He laughed: "You're a great bluffer, Marty; you haven't the least idea of marrying anybody."

She meditated on that. "I'm not so sure. I'm not in love if that's what you mean. But Tony plays up to me so splendidly, I'd hate to lose him. It isn't that I want him so much myself, but I don't want anyone else to have him."

Chapter Fourteen

Behind the Screen.

Virginia, safely alone in one of the huge guest rooms at Derekdale, put on the gold lace gown and surveyed herself in the long mirror which showed her from the top of her gleaming head to the toes of her shining slippers.

She had a feeling almost of awe at the vision she saw reflected. Never until now had she been aware of her own loveliness; against the background of Bleecker magnificence, the jade and ivory of the beautiful room, she seemed to glow and sparkle. She drew a quick breath. In a moment Michael would see her,—Michael!

As she descended the great stairs a few moments later, a hush came upon the dinner guests assembled in the hall. She was alone on the stairway, and back of her on the landing hung a rug of deep purple bordered with gold. Nothing could have been more royal in its suggestion, and Anthony Bleecker looking up, said in his heart, "She is a great lady. More of a great lady than my mother or any of these women. Jove, but blood tells."

But Michael McMillan, seeing her, said, "She is my love."

It was to Mrs. Bleecker, however, that the fact of Virginia's beauty came with the force of a blow. People were talking about Tony's infatuation. But not until she saw Virginia on the stairs had Jane Bleecker known the danger of her attractions. The girl might be poor, but if Tony made her his wife, he would have reason to be proud of her.

It was Marty Van Duyne who voiced what Mrs. Bleecker was thinking. "Tony's mad about her, Jane. What made you have her here?"

"He said he wouldn't come if I didn't ask her."

"I see. Your hope is in the fact that she isn't in the least in love with him."

Mrs. Bleecker turned and looked at her. "Not in love with him? What difference does that make? She'll marry him for his money."

But Marty was shrewd. "She won't. That kind of woman marries for love or not at all."

Virginia came down the stairs. And she saw neither Tony who loved her, nor Jane Bleecker who hated her, nor Marty Van Duyne who was playing a game and meant to win it. She saw only Michael—Michael with his deep blue eyes laughing up into hers as he stood at the foot of the stairs waiting, and who carried her off through the crowd before Tony could get near her. "I'm to sit with you at dinner," Michael said, "did you ever know such luck?"

"I've a thousand things to tell you," she was laughing softly, oblivious of everything about her.

"We have ten minutes before dinner. Where's a quiet spot?"

She took him to the library, where a low divan was set in front of the fire, one end of it back edby a high screen. Michael and Virginia as they sat together, were hidden by the screen.

"Are you glad to see me, Virginia?"

"Glad!"

He opened his arms to her and she came within their circle. He laid his lips against her cheeks, softly. No more than that. Not yet.

She drew away, breathless. "Let me tell you about Rickey. He is writing a new book—he is calling it The Silver Witch because of Marty Van Duyne. He began it yesterday and sat up half the night."

But he would not listen. "What do I care about Rickey?"

"Michael! We mustn't stay here. It's time for dinner."

He laughed, holding her close. "Say 'Michael, dear, it's time for dinner.'"

So she said it, "Michael, dear!—"

When they returned to the great hall, they found Tony looking for them. "You're to sit by me," he said to Virginia. "Mother had a dowager on one side and a flapper on the other. She thought they'd balance. Midget is a bit tricky at times. But I told her if I couldn't have you, I'd have a headache and stay upstairs."

There was a smouldering fire inyoung Anthony's eyes. He had just had it out with his mother. He had told her a few things and had frightened her. "You've done everything you could since she came to get her away from me," he had said, "if you keep it up, I'll marry her before you know it!"

So he had his way, and Virginia and Michael were separated. But they had had their moment, and Tony, blind as a bat, secure in the ultimate success of his wooing, did not know that the light in Virginia's eyes was not for him nor was the radiance of her smile. He could not know that her heart was singing, "Michael Michael," as a bird sings to its mate.

But Michael knew, and his heart answered. His doubts were dead. What did he care now for all of Tony's glitter and shine? And at the moment Tony was saying, "Marry me to-morrow."

"Silly."

NO NEED OF WAVE LENGTH CHANGE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

Regarding your article in the editorial of the 20th instant, about changing CKGW's wavelength on account of being close to WLW, there are several radios in the market with tuning so sharp that no interference whatsoever is noticed by either station.

If the wavelength is altered, I doubt very much if it would benefit some of the radios in use. Squealing old battery sets are the biggest interference—makes one wonder if he has picked up C.P.C. or the Chicago Stock Market.

What with the coal man, milk minute, Welland Hotel, etc., no wonder the Government wants to step in and do away with five-minute programs and ten minutes' advertising.

Yours truly,

NO SQUEALS.

COMING EVENTS

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

Coming events are said to cast their shadows before. It is now stated at Ottawa that there will be no revision of the tariff next session and none until after the meeting of the Empire Conference at Ottawa in July.

This is as it should be. For Canada to settle her own tariff without reference to the rest of the Empire is to declare independence there and then. Yet that was what was proposed by Mr. Bennett in London and in his July campaign campaign following it. Mr. Bennett's "Canada's First" policy regardless of the feelings and interests of the rest of the Empire was on the face of it a "Canada only" policy which might do very well for Canadians, who had lost their imperial sense and that old loyalty to King and Empire which used to characteristic them, but it could not continue unless it at least justified itself in its selfishness and disloyalty by producing results in Canada itself. The only results produced have been disastrous. It is not only likely to break up the Empire, but Canada also. The Bennett policy has proved the most immediate and complete failure in Canadian history—twenty-five thousand unemployed in Montreal alone and the number increasing every day?

We are losing our foreign trade and our home trade is shrinking. That policy was impossible but no thanks to Mr. Bennett and his followers. The threatened disruption of the Empire in order to make way for a selfish and disloyal "Canada First" and the Empire nowhere policy has failed.

The next session may be noisy but it will be merely an echo of a departing fizzle. What are we going to do about it? The idea now being mooted of taking Canadian capital out of this country and loaning it to China and Argentina would surely be the last straw and yet I am told several hundred millions have gone already. On top of it all comes the report of a scandal in connection with the Civil Service Commission and its examinations? This will be good news to the students who have been working faithfully for government positions. By and by it fill strike people that no nation can be made either honest or respectable by laws.

A Thought

A NARROW WINDOW

A narrow window may let in the light.
A tiny star dispel the gloom of night.
A little deed a mighty wrong set right.

A rose, abloom, may make a desert fair.
A single cloud may darken all the air.
A spark may kindle ruin and despair.
A smile, and there may be an end to strife;
A look of love, and Hate may sheathe the knife;
A word—ah, it may be a word of life!

What To-day Means To You

"AQUARIUS"

If January 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 11 a. m., and from 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p.m. and from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Literary, artistic or musical workers will find that the astrological influences favor their efforts on this date. A business associate, or member of the family, may "let you down" on some cherished plan. The evening hours bring disturbing influences, which will breed difficulties in all relationships which have an emotional element.

Children born on this January 23rd will have flexible characters, and because of thier versatility, they will succeed in almost any sphere. They will be lovers of sports, generous and forgiving, but sometimes rather fickle.

If born on a January 23rd, you are found very attractive by a great many people of varying temperaments and abilities, who are captured by your spirit and by your intellect. You are a person one feels one can depend upon, and you inspire trust by your equable disposition. You are always kind and humane, and you delight in giving pleasure to others. You seem to take peace, harmony and sunshine with you—you are a dispeller of gloom. Like most Aquarian individuals you are a born character-reader, and you are seldom mistaken in your judgement. You make constructive, not destructive criticisms, and you neither mimic nor ride on other's faults. You are most tolerant, and very broad-minded. You, yourself, incline toward the unconventional.

You have more mental vitality than physical, and you are advised to take plenty of outdoor excerise. Defective circulation is something against which you should guard.

The reactions and co-ordination of mind and muscle are swift, in your case, and your fingers are not less stupid than your head. You have an inventive streak, and although you may never bring out anything startling, you will always display originality in your work, and will have individual means and ways of doing things. You know how to study and you like to probe deeply into many subjects, which are of interest to you. You like to clear up mysteries. You are not destined to a life of mediocrity.

WALL STREET SHARES CONTINUE TO RECOVER IN BRISK TRADING

Bethlehem Steel Rises 2 Points Following Annoucement Will Declare Dividend.

CREDIT RATES EASY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (CP)—The revolt against pessimism made further gains in the financial markets to-day. Shares continued to recover in brisker trading, and bonds again reflected the salutry influence of a favorable credit position.

A news ticker report that Bethlehm Steel directors are likely to declare the regular dividend when they meet next week, carried that issue up 2 points. Speculation for the rise appeared in some of the utilities, and Electric Power and Light gained 2. North American rose as much. Other shares advancing 2 or more included several of the chemicals Dupont, Air Reduction, and U.S. Industrial Alcohol. American Can, American Smelting, Atchison also gained 2 Eastman, Allied Chemical and Norfolk and Western were volatile issues rising about 4 to 5.

More than two score issues advanced a point or more, including U.S. Steel, General Motor, Radio and Standard of N.J.

Credit Rates Easy.

Credit rates remained extremely easy. Bankers acceptance rates were cut another 1-8 of one per cent, making the bid rate for 30 to 90 days. 1½ per cent. While there had been some expectation of another cut in the New York Federal Reserve rate of 2 per cent, it was felt in some quarters that money is already so cheap that a cut could have had little influence.

A better one in Sterling Exchange was regarded favorably as it lessened the prospect of a movement of gold from London, the Bank of England's reserves are already $63,000,000 under the holding at the resumption of gold pay ments in 1925.

Dr. Clarke Describes Effect of Glacial Period on Great Lake Region.

NIAGARA NON-EXISTENT.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23— A story to the time when the levels of the great Lakes were 50 feet higher than todayand when the northern part ofNorth America was covered with ice a mile deep,was told members of the Over-Seas Club b Dr. Thomas H. Clark, professor of paleontology at McGill University.

Before the last glacial period, the Great Lakes did not exist, said Dr. Clark. Niagara Falls was non-existent and where Lake Ontario lies now was a river, called by geologists the Laurentian river, which followed the present course of the St. Lawrence river but was longer. The country then had a milder climate than today, he said

The glaciers left three lakes, one near the lower end of Lake Michigan, one near Lake Superior and one near the lower end of Lake Erie. Later changes filled out the outlines of the lake system as we know it today, but at a higher lavel, said Dr. Clark.

The position of Niagara Falls is changing rapidly, said Dr. Clark, moving southward up the Niagara River at the rate of five feet a year, as the water breaks down the limestone at its edge

After the melting of the glacier, the sea flowed in and covered the St. Lawrence valley, said Dr. Calrk, Proof of this is found on Mount Royal, 600 feet above the present sea level, the finding of the skeleton of an Artic whale at Smith's Falls and the finding of marine fossils all throughout the area

TORONTO LIST IS FIRMER; FOLLOWS WALL STREET LEAD

Oils in Better For First Time in Several Days Trading.

NICKEL ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 23. (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange market was firm this morning, inter-listed issues rising fractionally as Wall Street strengthened.

The oils were in better demand and for the first time in several days, Imperial oil sold above 18. B.A. Oil was above 15 and International Petroleum just under that figure.

Photo Engravers shaded lower while Massey Harris, Walkers held unchanged. Distillers was firm at 12½. De Forest gained ¼ point to 13¾.

CHEAPER GOLDS HOLD INTEREST

Bidgood Sells Up Point Around Noon at 5½ in Active Demand.

DOME GAINS 10.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 23. (CP)—Though the gold section, as a whole, continued strong, cheaper golds drew the major part of attention in To-day's forenoon session on the mining market. Turnover was fairly brisk and tone of the board firm.

Bidgood was particularly active around noon, selling up a cent at 5½, and Barry Hollinger gained a couple of 15.

Sylvanite, Kirkland Lake Gold and Premier were up a point each. San Antonio and Macassa showed small recessions from last night's close.

Dome gained another 10 to $10.55, Wright-Hargreaves and Hollinger were up 5 apiece to $2.35 and $8.25, respectively, and balance of the higher-priced golds were holding. Big Missouri continued in demand and advanced another 3 to 49.

Both Nickel and Noranda were higher, former gaining a half to $15.50 and the latter 55 to $16.80. Lindsleys were practically unchanged. Cheaper oils were quiet.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. (Special to Examiner.)—Showing little noticeable hesitancy gold stocks continued the advance on the mining market to-day will be cheaper issues again sharing in the brisk demand. A canvass of the street disclosed the fact that while some good buying in the higher priced issues is coming from across the border, the major part of interest in the lower priced issues is originating locally,some houses reporting enquiries and orders from clients who passed out of the mining market picture a year or more ago. Some circles are attempting to explain individual moves by developments at the mines themselves but to most market followers the present interest is thought to be more or less the result of an accumulation of favorable development/ which went by the board with little recognition during the past year or so of uncertainty, supported by promising prospects in many instances. The manner in which the gold section has moved, with those outstripping their fellows apparently waiting for the rest to catch up and then starting forward again, would appear to give foundation to this. It cannot be said that speculators are not well kept informed of operations by the majority of gold producers. Production figures being available quarterly for each mine and earnings." Statements being issued by most all, though 1931 is only three weeks advanced. Approximate 1930 earnings already have been announced for Hollinger Dome McIntyre, Porcupine and Vipond, and Lake Shore's report is expected any time. In addition Teck Hughes' quarterly report will be out around February 1, and Wright Hargreaves' annual, about the middle of that month.

Diamond drilling is reported to have been resumed under ground at the Flin Flon mine of the Hudson Bay Mining and ... lting Co. with both Smelter and Mill operating regular shipments of blister copper and zinc concentrates are now being made to eastern points. As soon as the new refinery at Montreal East is completed, Hudson Bay blister will then be treated at that plant. Mining operations at the Flin Flon are chiefly concentrated on surface where the big copper-since deposit is being opened up by the open pit method.

The annual meeting of shareholders of Ajax Oil and Gas Co., Ltd., will be held in Toronto on Monday February 2, at 2.30 p.m. According to advices from Oklahoma city operators in that field have voted to ask the state corporation commission to increase the allowable oil flow of the field to 10 per cent from 1.5 per cent and it is possible Ajax oil officials will have favorable developments in this direction to report when the meeting convenes.

McCREA MAY LEAVE CABINET

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 23 (C.P.) — Acceptance by Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, of a directorship in a local trust corporation, is taken in many circles as foreshadowing his retirement from the Provincial Cabinet, says The Mail and Empire to-day.

While Hon. G. H. Ferguson was Premier, continued the paper, the holding of executive positions, particularly in financial corporations by members of the Cabinet was not encouraged.

Russian Steamer Is Adrift On Atlantic

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (C.P.).—The Radio Marine Corporation received a message early to-day from the steamer President Harding, via its station at Chatham, Mass., saying the Russian vessel Iakovsverslov was in distress about 250 miles west of the British Isles and required immediate assistance.

"Drifting ashore with engines helpless," the message said, "request immediate help from ships in vicinity. Position 57° north and 7° 40 west. Time, 3.45 Greenwich." The time of the message indicated it was sent out about nine o'clock last night.

DANES DOING WELL.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 22.—Immigrants to this province are fast becoming a valuable asset to Nova Scotia, During the last two years, 165 Danish settlers, comprising forty families, have bought farms, twenty-five of these families making their purchase this year. A large proportion of the farms, situated in Hants County and throughout the Annapolic Valley, were vacant and non producing, while some were barely habitable.

The industrious Dane's tax support in maintaining schools and other municipal and community institutions is just beginning to make itself felt. They have brought $50,000 new capital into Nova Scotia, and confidence in their ability to derive a living from the soil is well established.

CONGREGATIONS ARE UNDER BAN

Presbytery Claims Lochwinnock and Stewartville Violated Church Laws.

COMMISSION FLOUTED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 25. (CP) Because the congregations of Lochwinnoch and Stewartville, in Lanark County, have "persistently violated the established laws of the Presbyterian Church, thereby placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the church and presbytery" the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew has temporarily suspended them and also notified the W.M.S. Presbyterial that delegates from the two congregations are ineligible to send delegates to its meetings.

Some weeks ago the presbytery appointed a commission composed of Rev. Dr. B. McLeod and John F. Ferrier, Perth, Rev. K. McCaskill, McDonald's Corners, and Rev. Dr. Davies, Smith's Falls, to hold a joint meeting of the session of Lochwinnoch, Stewartville and Dewars to consider whether the congregations desired to remain a part of the Presbyterian Church or whether they preferred to become "independent congregations." It is alleged that when the commissioners proceeded to Lochwinnoch to hold this joint meeting, they found the doors bolted and, with the delegations from Dewars were obliged to hold their deliberations in a nearby outbuilding.

ALBERT DARLING RE-ELECTED HEAD

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Albert Darling was re-elected president of the Lakefield Agricultural Society at the annual meeting held on Tuesday afternoon in the Town Hall. John Blakely was elected first vice-president and Hugh Kidd second vice-president, and after a spirited contest with twenty-six nominees the following were elected to the board of directions: G. G. Connell, N. W. Kyle, Miss Blanche Graham, J. W. Ridpath, George Mullen, A. E. Higgins, R. Darling, R. H. Alford, S. Harrison, W. Tedford, S. Slater, A. Graham, H. D. Coones, J. E. Galvin, C. L. Harrison, W. Anderson, H. Mullen, J. A. Porter and W. H. Peacock. Auditors, A. H. Clark and G. H. Spence.

The president in his address referred to the extension repairs done at the grounds and buildings last year. The fair last year was the best it has ever been and while the receipts were not greatly in advance of other years the expenses had been heavier, a larger amount of prize money was paid out than in other years and the classes were exceptionally well filled.

The report of the secretary-treasurer showed a deficit of $147.68 The amount of prize money paid was $642.55, the largest amount since 1924. Total receipts were $1,460.01 and the expenditures $1,610.01, the amount spent in repairs was $120, which was expensive but most of which is a permanent job. The receipts of 1929 were $1,452, which included a balance of $147, and in 1930 the receipts were $1,460 including a balance of $73.

It was decided to enter the Field Crop competition again as there were 14 entries last year. It was also decided to employ government judges, three men and a lady as in previous years. The secretary reported the government grant for 1930 at $164 which will be increased this year. A delegate will be sent to the Fall Fairs' Association.

J. W. Ridpath urged the appointment of more business men on the Board as a stimulus to greater co-operation and consequently an improved fair. Mr. Clark, the fire chief, asked for co-operation in locking up the buildings more securely and boarding up the space under the grand stand to prevent fire danger. The Society promised co-operation in the mutual interest of the village and the Agricultural Society.

At a brief director's meeting held after the meeting, H. W. Beavis was re-elected secretary-treasurer for 1931.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Staggered by estimates that Argentina would be able to export corn in record-breaking volume this season, corn fell almost 2c a bushel yesterday. Buenos Aires despatches said that an Argentine corn crop was assured which would furnish 390,000,000 bushels for export, compared with a five-year average of 250,000,000. Stop-loss selling here resulted, and subsequent rallies lacked force.

Corn closed nervous, 7-8c to 1¼c below Wednesday's finish, wheat ½c off to 1-8c up, oats ¼c to ⅝c down, and provisions unchanged to 10c decline.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, January 23. — There were no fresh receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday, and only a few odds and ends of stale cattle were offered. Not enough sales were made to provide a basis for price quotations. Nor were there any fresh arrivals of small meats or hogs.

Cattle prices at Wednesdays close were a shade easier for the week on butcher steers and baby beef went down $1.00 for the week. Bulls closed weak and lower, while butcher cows held steady in the week's trading. Receipts for the week were some 1,700 lighter than in the previous week.

Calves in a light supply for the week gained 50 cents a cwt. on Monday and closed steady at the week's advance. Sheep and lamb prices were unchanged.

The hog market opened steady on Monday, but prices were off 25c a cwt. on Tuesday and as much more on Wednesday's trading. Bacon closed at $9.00, f.o.b., and $9.75 to $10.00 w.o.c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 23. — Unfavorable harvesting weather in the Argentine and a good export trade injected a bullish feeling into the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday Advances of ¼c to ½c were added to Wednesday's fractional gains in an active session.

All three futures were strong at the close. May was quoted at 57c bid, July 57⅞c to 58c, and October 59⅛c asked. Rains in the Argentine were reported here to have hindered harvesting operations. This, coupled with an estimated export trade of 1,000,000 bushels, strengthened the market greatly.

The firm feeling failed to extend to the cash wheat and coarse grain trade, a dull and uninteresting session prevailing on these markets.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Local poultry dealers' prices were reduced yesterday on nearly all grades and weights. Spring chickens dropped 1c to 2c per pound and hens were 2c lower. Old roosters were down 1c to 2c per pound also, but duckling were bringing 2c a pound more for live weight, while the prices for dressed birds were steady. Muscovie ducks were added to the list, with prices about 4c below those quoted on ducklings. Geese and turkeys were listed but were quoted, "market prices," which meant that dealers would pay the prices in effect on day of arrival.

Eggs

The cold weather had a beneficial effect on the egg market and prices held steady with the recent decreases to both country shippers and retailers. Wholesalers seemed to be in a happier frame of mind and most were of the opinion that a great many storage eggs had moved during the recent price "slaughter." For the past few weeks storage eggs have been quoted at about 10c less than cost and yesterday wholesalers were offering candled out of storage extras at 23c, firsts 20c and seconds 18c. Prices to shippers were steady at 22c for extras, 19c for firsts and 15c for seconds, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies at 31c to 32c for extras in cartons, 29c to 30c for extras loose, 27c for firsts loose, 22c for pullet extras, and seconds 20c loose. Brokers found a better demand for fresh eggs and were able to make sales at 27c to 28c for extras and 23c to 24c for firsts, graded and in free cases.

Butter

There was some trading done on the local butter market, but the general tone was quiet. Small lots were moved at current prices, but buyers were not ready to talk large commitments, though many were of the opinion that the first of the week would see a change in the situation; supplies of some of the larger buyers will not be too large by then.

Brokers were asking 31c to 31¼c for No. 1, creamery solids and 30c to 30¼c for No. 2, with special makes at ¼c higher, and they did not show any signs of lowering these quotations in any way.

Cream

Cream prices were firm at 29c to 30c for special, 28c to 29c for No. 1, and 25c to 26c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

Cheese was in fair demand at 14c for new large, 14¼c for twins and 14½c for triplets, to shippers.

District Churches

ROSENEATH UNITED CHURCH

ROSENEATH, January 22. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The sacrament of the Lord's supper took place in the United Church on Sunday morning and the Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., gave a very earnest and interesting address on communion saying: "There are two sacraments in the protestant church. Baptism and the Lord's supper, but the sacramental principle is not confined to These two branches of the church.

It is older than christianity, it goes beyond all historic records.

The sacramental principle is simple the generalization of the truth that things inward and spiritual may be symbolized by things outward and earthly, and these symbols may be so employed as to quicken faith in the Unseen. The soul is aided in its entrance into the spiritual world by the use of the things we can see and handle.

We are particularly interested in the object of this sacrament of the Lord's supper. Why did our Lord institute it, before the completed His ministry?

In the first place when we observe this sacrament, we proclaim our Lord's sacrificial death. Jesus said "As often as ye eat this Bread and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till He come."

When we sit at the Lord's table, we take the backward look at the Redemption achieved by the death of Christ. We remember our Lord's death, the supreme sacrifice that was made by Him who became the worlds Saviour and Redeemer.

Second, this sacrament was to be a memorial feast. Jesus said "This do in remembrance of Me." Our Lord realized He was soon to be separated from His disciples and He longed for a place in their memory, thus revealing the human side of His nature. Jesus also realized the need of being remembered for He was to become the Saviour of the Human race.

There is another object for the observance of this sacrament. It is a time of communion. In a very real sense we realize the presence of Jesus, at whose table we take our places. This sacrament is the consummating rite of the Christian church, the highest note of fellowship is then reached.

Jesus said "The Holy spirit the Comforter will come and when He is come, He will guide you in all the truth," At the Lord's table, we realize the presence of our Lord, and it is thus a time of rich communion and fellowship.

This sacrament was also to be an observance of anticipation Jesus said, "Ye do shew the Lord's death, till He come." We take the backward look to His death but we take the forward look to His coming again.

Special music was rendered by the choir.

SLAUGHTER YEAR IN THE BAY STATE

795 PERSONS KILLED.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 23.—Another "slaughter year" —the worst in the history of Massachusetts—during which 795 persons were killed by automobiles while drunken and hit-and-run drivers ran rioton the high ways of the state, will be described in a report being prepared by statisticians attached to the office of George A. Parker, registrat of moto vehicles.

Thr report, although still incomplete, reveals an increase of more than two per cent in the number of automobile fatalities during the fiscal year ending November 30, 1930, as compared with the number of deaths during the previous year, when 777 persons were killed on the highways. Many persons struck by cars during the year are still in danger of death, and the present toll of fatalities may be increased.

Figures now being compiled also disclose a startling increase in the number of hit-and-run drivers. The report will show that the average number of drunken-driving cases reached 100 a week and totalled more than 5,000 for the year. Many of the fatalities were caused by hit-and-run and intoxicated drivers. Several deaths resulted from drivers falling asleep.

Despite the fact that the total number of fatalities was higher in 1930 than any year since the advent of the automobile, the number of pedestrians killed was lower than in 1929. During the fiscal year of 1929, 441 pedestrians were killed by motor cars, while last year the number decreased to 430. The number of motorists killed in accidents during the past year, 322, was higher than that for 1929. Forty-three others who died were riding bicycles or other types of vehicles.

More children between the ages of 5 and 6 were killed than any other class. The number of elderly victims between the ages of 55 and 70 was the next highest on the list.

The most unfortunate month last year was November, with 98 deaths, three more than the previous record total of 95 during August, 1929.

February had the lowest number of fatalities, 41. The lowest figure for 1929, also occuring in February, was 29.

Siberian Tribes Get Drunk On Mushrooms

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—Intoxication produced in a novel manner was described by Prof. Reginald Buller of the University of Manitoba recently in a lecture at McGill University

Certain tribes of eastern Siberia chew a species of mushroom from which is obtained an alkiloid known as muscorino. The resulting intoxication is so effective that those natives see visions, move as though in a trance and finally end the "binge" with a period of deep slumber, waking with seemingly no ill effects.

Sex life of mushrooms was shown by a series of slides by Prof. Buller. A million spores a minute are thrown out from a mushroom or toadstool, stated the lecturer. Literally pushed from the gills of the fungus in such numbers, the apparently inactive plant is really teaming with moving spores, the orderly nature of their propulsion into the world to be carried by the wind or fly to some seed plot being shown very clearly.

"A sexual re-action," he stated, "takes place only between certain individual sporings in some kinds of toadstools. Fifty per cent of the little plants are plus insects and the other 50 per cent minus insects. Two plusses will not mate; two minuses will not mate; but a plus will always mate with a minus mate

"Until 1917, nothing was known experimentally of sex in mushrooms, but now it is known that like other plants and animals, they all display it," concluded Prof. Buller.

CANADIAN INDIANS A DYING RACE

CIVILIZATION SWALLOWS UP ONCE PROUD RACE.

When Harry S. Hall, the artist who drew the above scene for the Examiner, travelled through Western Canada, he investigated the conditions amongst the Indians there. Instead of finding a picturesque race garbed in quaint barbaric costumes, he found a fast dying race whose customs and living methods have greatly deteriorated in past years. Mr. Hall, however, was impressed by the young Indians attending school. They are becoming highly civilized, but retain many of the characteristics for which their ancestors were noted.

INDIANS OF WESTERN CANADA A FAST DISAPPEARING RACE

SWALLOWED UP BY WHITES

(By Harry S. Hall. Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1931)

The Canadian Indian, once proud owner of this fair Dominion, is fast fading into extinction by the ever-increasing encroachment of civilization. No more does this once picturesque race roam the plains of Western Canada, or haunt the forests of the East; gone is the war-paint, the bow and arrow and the wild camp-fire dances.

In my boyhood days, I read thrilling stories of the Indians; long have I been obsessed with an idea to see for myself how these Indians lived. And, finding myself in Western Canada with a few spare days on my hands, I determined to find out.

On the banks of the beautiful Qu'Appelle, which winds majestically through Saskatchewan and Manitoba, I discovered my Indian camp—a small reserve of only three tepees, near the city of Brandon. Stumbling down the slopes toward the camp, I was not prepared for the welcome received as two huge hounds bounded up from their afternoon nap in the sun and made for me in no uncertain manner. I was just getting set for a hurried exit when from one of the tepees, a squaw emerged, carrying in her hands a frying pan. Speaking sharply in her native language, she managed to quieten the dogs enough to allow me to speak.

"Is the boss around?" I queries.

"No, no," she replied, "boss he gone to Brandon Fair." I must confess my first impression was a great disappointment to me. Where I had pictured in my mind the kind of beautiful Indian maid that one so often sees in illustrations, I saw before me a squaw of the most uncouth type. She wore, or appeared to wear, about four skirts, each one of a different hue. The rest of her garb was in keeping with the skirts—colored blouse of questionable cleanliness, sweater and trinkets which did anything but enhance her appearance. She was an elderly woman of uncertain age, though she must have been old, for she carried a lighted pipe in her mouth. (Isn't it only old and wrinkled Indian squaws who smoke?).

I tried to make known to her the object of my visit, but the only satisfaction I received was a grin, with an occasional "Yis" thrown in. Just as I was about to give up in despair, a pony loped up to the tent bearing Indian brave riding bareback. Here, I thought, was the man to give me the information I had come for. He slid gracefully from the back of the pony, and I noticed that he was wearing overalls, shirt and mocassins. (Nearly all these Indians, I discovered, wore mocassins in preference to boots or shoes).

"Good morning," I said, hoping he would reply in understandable English.

"Good morning," he replied with perfect accent.

"I want to get some information regarding the life and habits of this Indian reserve," I said.

"But this is not a reserve," he informed me. "We are a wandering band who make a living by making beaded bags and mocassins.

"Is it true that the Canadian Indian is fast fading out of existence," I asked.

"Dunno," he replied tersely, "guess so. They are spread all over the country and no one seems to be able to find them. Civilization has taken away our natural means of living and the only thing left for us to live by is the little bit of hunting that we can get. Some Indians have gone in for farming and a few have made a go of it, but most of them have failed.

"The older Indians," he continued, "are handicapped by not having any education. When they go to the city, they cannot get jobs. But now the government has established schools for the Indians, and the boys and girls of many tribes are getting a good education. Perhaps you would like to see our school?"

"I certainly would," I replied, pleased at the idea of seeing the younger members of this nomadic group.

If I was astonished at the living methods of these Indians, I was astounded at the progress made by the Indian boys at the school in Brandon. Never in a city school have I seen such well behaved pupils. The way they went about their studies was a treat to watch. Hardly one of them would smile during the whole lesson, sitting back in their seats with that same poker-like expression which characterized their ancestors.

On the sport field they acted like perfect gentlemen, and while they played hard, there was little evidence of ill-feeling between any of them. They play all the Canadian games including soccer, rugby, baseball, and others, but they excel mostly at athletics. I don't believe I have ever watched such graceful, speedy and tireless runners as these Indian boys.

"What would happen if these boys were taken out into the plains with nothing but the weapons and tools of their ancestors?" I asked my companion. "Would they be able to exist by instinct?"

"No good," he replied a little sadly. "They are not trained. They would starve to death. Even if they could hunt, what good? There is nothing left to kill. Motor cars can carry white men far into the forest and plain now, and gradually the game is being killed off."

"Is it true," I persisted, "that the Indians are dying off with tuberculosis?"

"No! No! No!" he replied emphatically. "At least not in this section. There are very few Indians in the Fort San Sanitarium."

He said, however, that most Indian children born were male.

On the way back to camp, he told me of the remarkable way in which they cook a fowl. First they pack the fowl, feathers and all, in mud, and cook it in a wood fire for two or three hours. After it is cooked, the mud pack peels off and the feathers come with it leaving the chicken as clean as a whistle. The dish is claimed to be very delicious.

During my short experience amongst these Indians, I did not see one under the influence of liquor, though they are able to procure all the strong drink they want, when they want it. My guide told me that stories of Indians running amok, crazed with liquor, were as a rule gross exaggerations, and most of them have been handed down from the days of the old Hudson's Bay Co.

The only reminder left of the once picturesque race are the few times when they put on their ancestral garments for the benefit of tourists travelling through Western Canada. Then, and then only, do they return to the life of their forefathers and dance their wild careenings about the glowing fire, and dress again in the fine feathers that once rested on the handsome head of the brave chief. Slowly and quietly this stoical silent race is fast dying out. They seldom complain, and seem to look forward to the day when they will reach the happy hunting ground, to join once more their proud ancestors. Those that are left are being slowly drawn to in the caulron of modern civilization.

NEWS OF THE MOTORING WORLD

Helpfull Hints of interest to all Canadian Motorists

by FRANK CHAMBERLAIN

(By Roly Young)

STARTING OUT in rather sensational language, a despatch from Boston, Mass., refers to 1930 as "another 'slaughter' year." The dainty little epistle then proceeds—"the worst in the history of Massachusetts— during which 795 persons were killed by automobiles while drunken and hit-and-run drivers ran riot on the highways of the State, will be described in a report by George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles.

With a start like that it sounds like the date-line should read, "Boston, Mess."

However, in justification of the report it may be added that the figure 795 compares with 777 for the previous year. Drunken-driving cases reached an average of 100 a week or more than 5,000 for the year. There is one consolation, there was an increase in the number of motorists killing each other. 441 Pedestrians were killed (a decrease) and 322 motorists (an increase).

BIG BUSINESS was reported from the New York Motor Show. Chev. sales were said to be sensational, eclipsing in one day the sales for the entire duration of the 1931 show. Oldsmobile sales were twice as heavy as the previous year, Chrysler gained 100 per cent, and Stutz hit a new high record for one-day sales. Practically all makes found orders more than satisfactory in volume.

FROM ATLANTA, GA., comes the tale of a truck driver who had a hot time. O. E. Hutchinson drove into a fire signal box and turned in a general alarm by accident. Fire department units came from all directions. So did the police. The charge was reckless driving.

RENO, Besides being famous for separating husbands from their wives, is now becoming famous for the alleged sport of separating coyotes from their lives. The new "sport" for motorists is coyote hunting with a car instead of a gun. The Great Black Rock Desert of Nevada is level, flat as a table and without any form of vegetation. It would be possible to drive for hours blind-folded. The game is to get the coyote out into the desert and then run him down. Sometimes the coyote gives out first and sometimes the car does.

THE SPEED COPS must be unconscious in Nevada. A report tells that Andy Drum, road builder, is the states undisputed king of speed, having travelled the distance from Tonopah to Las Vegas—318 miles—in three hours and 23 minutes, thus lowering the previous record by 25 minutes.

AS A SOURCE of revenue the motorists just can't be beat! Automobile owners in U.S.A. paid a tax bill of $1,060,000,000 in 1930 according to a statement of the American Automobile Association.

I CAME ACROSS a rather astonishing statement from Detroit the other day which said that only three motorists were punished in that city during 1930 for the 366 deaths resulting from motor accidents. Two are serving prison sentences and one paid a fine of $100 for reckless driving.

Leslie J. Younghusband, winter visitor from Canada at St. Petersburg, Florida, has what is believed to be the only combination garage, boat house and seaplane hangar erected at his waterfront home there.

THE RECENT AUTOMOBILE show in New York did much to silence wide-spread rumors about new departures by some manufacturers, notably those about a new Ford. The Ford company took occasion to point out that the displays did not produce anything radically new in their line. This was taken to answer persistent rumors that Ford is preparing to introduce a light eight-cylinder car.

Eight cylinder models can be found in the company's laboratories but that is one place where you can find almost anything in the line of automotive engineering.

South Africans Now Unlike Old Timers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Jan. 23.—(By the Canadian Press.)—South Africans for some time have been departing from the old days of numerous "national" societies in the Union, which strikingly indicated the changing character of the population. The Caledonians, the Cambrian Society, the Cornish Association, the Lancashire and Yorkshire Association, and the Irish Association were once prominent in the social life of Johannesburg. Quite recently the home of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Association was sold and its membership dissolved. Little is heard of the rest.

The explanation lies in the fact that few British immigrants have come to South Africa in recent years, while the South African-born population has been steadily increasing. Persons born in the Union outnumber those born outside by six to one.

The strongest patriotic society in the country is still the Sons of England. In the Transvaal alone it has 34 lodges, all active. "There is no sign of weakness in its organization, although some explain this on the grounds that this society has, in the past few years, acquired a certain political complexion that has helped to keep it together.

The purely social of the national organizations find an outlet for their patriotism in forming clubs; and in Johannesburg, there are the French Club, the German Club, the Irish Club, and the Chinese Club. These are all well supported.

STUDENTS UPHOLD ACTION OF PROFESSORS

1,799 UNDERGRADUATES VOTE IN FREE SPEECH POOL TAKEN

GOVERNORS MEET.

TORONTO, Ont., January 23 (C.P.). — By a five-to-one vote the students of Toronto University have upheld the recent action of 68 members of the University Faculty in issuing a public protest against the stand of the Toronto Police Commission in the matter of "free speech." Undergraduates to the number of 1,799 signed ballots in the pool taken by Varsity, the undergraduate newspaper, on the question. The professors' protest was supported by 1,491 students, while 308 voted disapproval.

Majority in All Colleges

Detailed synopsis of the results indicate University College, and every one of the affiliated colleges in divinity medicine, dentistry and science gave a majority in favor of the protest. "Varsity" says "The polling proceeded without excitment and with a seriousness that is considered remarkable in view of the general levity amid which last year's 'beer poll' was conducted."

No statement was issued last night by the board of governors of the university after their meeting when the action of the professors was discussed. It has been pointed out the professors signed the letter of protest as "private citizens" and not as members of the university faculty.

The present "free speech" agitation opened as the result of the police refusal to grant permits for public meetings to various organizations. Yesterday the board of police commissioners met and discussed the situation. Mayor Stewart, who is chairman, announced the board was unanimous for "free speech within the law." The commission will meet again to-day.

WORK OF RESEARCH FOUNDATION TOLD ENGINEERING INSTITUTE

O. W. Ellis, of Toronto, is Guest Speaker at Engineers' Meeting.

RAPIDLY EXPANDING

Research Problems in General, and with particular reference to the work of the Ontario Research Foundation, Toronto, of which he is director of Metallurgical Research Department, was the subject of an intensly interesting address given before the members of the local branch Engineering Institute of Canada by O. W. Ellis last evening in Paragon Hall.

Mr. Ellis, whose second visit this is to the city of Peterborough, was introduced to his professional colleagues by W. E. Ross president, who explained that Mr. Ellis has spent some years with the Ontario Research Foundation. He received his early training with one of the largest railroads in England—the G.W.R. He is a graduate of Birmingham University and came to this country in the year 1910. Returning home after a short period here, he later returned and was for some time a Professor of Engineering at the University of Toronto. He was subsequently with the research department of the Westinghouse Company, was also prominently identified with the Mellon Institute and finally received his present appointment.

Before calling upon Mr. Ellis to address the meeting, the President extended a welcome to Mr. Shirley, "a member we all respect a great deal and who is back again amongst us after a long absence."

An interesting insight into the relationship between the Ontario Research Foundation and the leading industries of the Province were outlined by Mr. Ellis, who said, "We have been carrying on research of a trouble-shooting type, rather than fundamental research. The Metallurgical division is composed of a group of manufacturerers known as the Metal Research Association, and as the reports are available to members of the Association only, I am thus not permitted to speak so openly as I otherwise may have done."

Recent Creation

The Ontario Research Foundation was created some two or three years ago, Dr. Speakman being the first director. A house facing Queen's Park, Toronto, was acquired and a room was used as a Fellowship laboratory. The foundation is composed of several different fellowships, and there is one department specially to consider packing house problems, the results of which are available only to Packers in the Association, who provide the money for that work.

The Metallurgical Division was commenced at a later date and also had a room in the old building. Some time later the question arose as to whether the research work of the H.E.P.C. should be carried on by us or not. A larger building was provided to take care of the eventuality, and is now so crowded as to warrant further premises. It is not likely that they will be provided, just at present, remarked the speaker.

In 1929 a Chemical research division was started, since that time the Ontario Woolen Industry has started a textile division to deal with the problems peculiar to that industry, while the Department of Agriculture decided they would support research work in connection with contagious abortion in cattle.

There is furthermore a department working on economic problems in connection with the University of Toronto. The Consumers Gas Company have a fellowship in the Foundation, and the Department of Mines is also conducting research into geo-physical methods of prospecting, to determine where deposits of lignite are, without the necessity of diamond drilling. It seems, he stated, that geo-physical prospecting can be used instead of the more expensive method of drilling.

Diversified Work

The work being done at the Foundation is very extensive and diversified, he added and during the past year the Metallurgical Division has handled 44 different problems, many of which have been capable of solution to the material benefit of the manufacturers.

One of the major problems of research, he explained, is the investigation concerning the effect of nickel on bronze. Does nickle improve bronze? We have found that nickel does increase yield point in bronze containing 11 to 12 per cent of tin. I would not say however, that it increases in tensile strength. We have not yet arrived at a definite conclusion.

With the aid of graphs, diagrams and lantern slides, the speaker continued to enlarge upon the more technical aspects of his metallurgical research work, and at the conclusion was the recipient of a hearty vote of thanks.

BABY SHOES COST TWO DOLLARS; CALF SKIN SELLS FOR 85 CENTS

Living Expenses High in West —Farmers Hold Indignation Meetings.

SEEK GOVERNMENT AID

By Wilfrid Eggleton
(Special to The Examiner—Copyright, 1931)

ASSINIBOIA, Jan. 23—"Succession talk" doesn't out much figure along this line, even though it is one of the hardest hit sections of the west. Not a single advocate of extreme measures did I encounter or hear about during the past week spent meeting farmers, community leaders and tradesmen in the "dried out" area. "You'll hear that sort of talk up north," several predicted, "but you'll find little or none of it here."

There are, however, hundreds of disappointed and disgruntled grain-growers. The hardships and privation of the past months, the dark propects for the future, are proving fertile soil for indignation which so far has expended itself in rebellious conversation or strongly worded epistles to the newspapers.

"Listening in" at some of these private indignation meetings, I made note of two or three particularly sore points.

Most prominent is the disparity between the price of things the farmer sells and the things he buys. Nearly all these farmers are shrewd enough to see if manufactured goods and foodstuffs had fallen at the same rate as wheat they would be prosperous as ever. But some of them shout 'Highway Robbery!' when they see their farm products sinking close to absolute zero while most of the things they have to buy remain on the old high perch.

In passing here are to-day's grain prices to the farmer at the local elevator: No. 1 wheat, 35 cents a bushel; No. 2 wheat, 32 cents; No. 3, 28 cents, oats, highest grade, 15 cents a bushel; barley, highest grade, 9 cents; rye, highest grade, 12 cents; flax, 76 cents. Through the pool the farmer is given as first payment: wheat 32½ cents, oats 14½ cents, barley 5 cents, rye 8½ cents, flax 50 cents. These are not exceptionally low prices. They are typical of hundreds of points in Saskatchewan, and are similar to the prices obtained for some weeks. At one stage prices dipped two to four cents below these prices.

Dairy butter to-day is quoted at 10 cents a pound to the farmer here. Fresh eggs 15 to 20 cents a dozen.

Now for some of the things the farmer buys. Low test gasoline at the local filling station is 35 cents a gallon; high test is 38 cents. The best flour is $2.85 a hundred, though made from 35 cent wheat within a hundred miles from here. (Three bushels of wheat make a sack of flour). A harvester combine without attachments still costs $2,200. An eight-foot binder costs $280. A two-furrow riding plow costs $149, a power lift drill of the kind most commonly used $274, a ten-foot disc-harrow $154.

A grain buyer at one of the elevators told me he had gone to the store to get a pair of shoes for their baby. When he returned and told his wife he had paid $2.25 for them she scolded him for going so high when times were so hard. "Cheapest they had, I explained to her," he remarked.

"Now here's the other side of that story," he continued. "Last Tuesday a farmer (he named him) came to my elevator with a lovely calf skin. 'What are you going to do with that!' I asked him. 'I'm going to ship it in to Moose Jaw,' the farmer replied. 'Up at Gravelburg the best the dealer would offer me was a dollar. I'd rather burn it.'

"So the farmer shipped the hide into Moose Jaw. He showed me the cheque he got back. It was for 85 cents.

The elevator man threw further light on this grievance. "My wife had been buying package bran at the grocery at a quarter a throw. Last time she was out I said 'Here, give me the quarter: I'll go down and buy it.' I went to the grist mill, and I said: 'Mac, here's a quarter, give me some bran.' Mac weighed me out 25 pounds. You know how fluffy that stuff is, it filled a big sack. I took it home and set it down on the kitchen table. 'Here you are, that's what I get for my quarter,' I said to the wife." The elevator man chuckled in recollection. "She's been giving it to all her neighbors and there's still stacks of it around the house."

Relief measures by provincial and federal governments are appreciated. But even to them it appears, there's a catch. They constitute further obligations at a time when the pile of debt is already mounting sky-high. Each farmer obtaining relief signs a note reading in part: "On demand I promise to pay .... dollars, with interest at seven per cent. before and after maturity—In consideration of the advance—I hereby charge all my estate and interest in all lands in Saskatchewan in favor of the said municipality with payment of the sums of principal and interest.

Blank refusal of credit by certain Canadian bank branches and loan companies even to farmers with clear title to large tracts of land in this area constitutes another grievance. Specific cases of such refusal were given me. A Woodrow man with 480 acres clear and a $10,000 house could not borrow enough to pay running expenses for the winter. A Roumanian farmer with 320 acres clear and other 160 only mortgaged to the extent of $1,100, wanted to borrow $150 for living expenses for wife and children this winter and couldn't get it. A farmer at Lafleche with 320 acres clear of debt and another 320 with obligations against it of $3,500 could not borrow a couple of hundred dollars for groceries for his wife and ten children.

Miss Adrienne Allen, popular young British screen star, and the wife of Raymond Massey, the well-known Canadian actor and producer on the London stage, and the brother of the Hon. Vincent Massey, the former Canadian minister to Washington, who with her husband, is visiting Canada. Miss Allen won over-night fame in her performance in "Loose Ends" and is shortly to appear in other productions. Her husband also is said to be turning to the screen.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR ELECTS OFFICERS HEARS REPORTS

SMALL BALANCE ON HAND.

The marked progress in organization and training and the program for the coming year were the two items of importance brought to the attention of St. John's choir at its annual meeting last evening in the Parish Hall. The meeting was preceded by a dinner given by the ladies of the Church Women's Association to the members of the choir. Following the supper, the adult members of the choir adjourned to the sitting-room. William W. Gray took the presidential chair. In his introduction, the president noted that 1930 had been a busy year with the choir—special events included the trip of the boy choristers to Stratford, the musical festival in Peterborough, and the radio program of the boys last Tuesday evening. The choir's receipts for the year amounted to $344.09, and expenditures $290.93, leaving a balance of $53.16.

The choirmaster's review was given by Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus. He stated that a few years ago there were a small number of boys in the choir, because they "looked nice," and there was nothing in Mr. Mann's opinion that would do more to giving a boy a swelled head. The boys should be led and trained, although at present they could not be expected to sing parts in only two practices a week. At present there are 25 boys and 16 men in the choir; the lowest attendance at services was 80 per cent. and the highest 91 per cent.

Mr. Mann had a valuable suggestion to make in connection with the annual choir picnic, which had been started some 30 years ago. It was proposed that the choir be taken to the Toronto Exhibition in August, and entered in contest as a 25,000-population-city choir. The church would be asked to finance the trip to the extent of 50 per cent which would be much lower than the amount generally allowed for the choir picnic. The choirmaster pointed out that it was the hope of the executive that the choir be endowed in the near future, in order to obtain revenue for the occasional expenses. For the time being an auxiliary would have to take the place of an endowment fund. Mr. Mann was able to finance the boys' broadcast from Toronto on Tuesday through gratuitous donations, and had about $7.00 to put in the bank for the boy choristers, thus bringing their balance up to $11.26.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave expressed his appreciation and thanks to the choirmaster for his work during the past year. He noted that the impossible had been made a fact—that a first-rate boys' choir had been raised to a high level of importance.

The election of officers in the choir resulted as follows: Hon. presidents, Rev. Dr. Blagrave and H. W. Morphet; president, W. W. Gray; vice-presidents, S. Roberts and A. Bacon; Social Committee, Mrs. D. J. Eldred; secretary-treasurer and Vestment Committee, Miss R. Quartermaine; Choir Mother, Mrs. J. J. Howden; Visiting Committee, Miss L. Bacon and Mr. Rush; librarian and assistant, R. Selby and B. Pitchford; press, E. Brakefield-Moore.

Mrs. W. Blackwell is in receipt of the following interesting letter from Mr. Barry Jones, a member of the "Maurice Colbourne and Barry Jones" company: "Dear Mrs. Blackwell—You, and I may say all Peterborough, were so encouraging to Mr. Colbourne and me last year, in our rather up-hill fight to keep the drama alive as far as we are able, that we determined to give Peterborough the distinction of being the first place in the entire Empire, outside England, to see "The Apple Cart," when we open our new Canadian season this month, and therefore we were very disappointed to find that (through no fault of your excellent Mr. Stewart, who has always been most helpful to us), we were not able to use the theatre.

"The opening will now take place in Hamilton, as the enclosed Herald will show, after which short engagement we shall play in Toronto for two weeks, and then in Montreal for two weeks. We are not crossing the continent this year— there are no theatres left to go to, and even if there are any to be found (and I don't know where!) the long railway jumps would make it impossible to contemplate. You have probably read the play by now, and know how amusing, moving and thoughtful it is, and I can only tell you how proud we are to have discussed it with Shaw in England this year, and to have got the rights.

"We have also made our greatest splash over the Company, and are awfully sorry that we are not able to come to you with it. However, we hope that we shall see many of our kind Peterborough supporters in Toronto and elsewhere!

"With kind regards, in which Maurice Colbourne asks to join. Yors sincerely—Barry Jones."

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

When you were on your vacation a few weeks ago, at Christmas time, did you make some new friends which you would like very much to keep?

• • • • • • •

During the Christmas festivities very often one finds that the threads of friendship are gathered together through the interchange of cards, gifts, etc.

• • • • • • •

And unless one can hold onto those threads, they gradually grow thin with time until they become too thin to hold together the coming year.

• • • • • • •

They must be made stronger with occasional letters, calls or invitations to tea or some not too formal festivity.

• • • • • • •

The time is now here when such ties should be strengthened if you desire to keep them during the coming years.

• • • • • • •

And although itmes are hard just at present, you can entertain your friends without very much expense.

• • • • • • •

I don't know whether you have ever noticed it or not—the fact that heart warms to heart over the teacups, and tea is a very simple dish indeed, to serve.

• • • • • • •

And then nothing is nicer to serve with it than hot buttered toast with a few small homemade cakes or rich cookies. Or if one has cinnamon toast it is enough in itself with the tea.

• • • • • • •

Such simple things are easily prepared and so cost and trouble need not hinder anyone from the pleasures of entertaining ones friends.

• • • • • • •

It is more often thought that those friendships at a distance are the ones that are lost, rather than those close at hand; so it takes an interchange of letters between Christmas seasons to make the strands of affection bind closer.

• • • • • • •

A stamp, a sheet of letter paper and an envelope, together with a pen and a few moments to pen a little note, are all that is required to strengthen friendships.

• • • • • • •

Here is a suggestion: See that your desk is always supplied with writing materials, including correspondence cards and notepaper, etc. And do Then don't, by all means, forget to mail it!

• • • • • • •

When you are tired from being on your feet, rest them, if only for a few minutes while you pen a missive which will bind a friendship closer. They don't, by all means, forget to mail it!

Send it off just as quickly as you have the opportunity.

CANADIAN ART WINS PRAISE

SCULPTORS EXHIBIT WORK.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 23 (C.P.). — New impetus was given Canadian Art last night when the most impressive exhibition in the history of the National Gallery was held. Scattered among old world masterpieces and fine examples of French prints were representative examples of contemporary Canadian art and sculpture that held the attention of the distinguished gathering. Premier R. B. Bennett and Miss Mildred Bennett presided.

Pictures had been gathered from throughout the Dominion, typifying the work of all classes and schools. Landscapes predominated with their bold, colorful expression of the Canadian outdoors. Portraits of high quality were on view as well as a group of watercolors, sketches and drawings of real significance.

Sculpture Exhibited.

The Sculptors' Society of Canada held its second exhibition in conjunction with the opening. Although the collection of forty-one works is not large, it is of high standard. Florence Wyle, of Toronto, contributes the largest number, ten in all, among which are the torso of a woman and the torso of a man, the former being the most important piece of plastic art yet shown by this sculptress. Elisabeth Wyn Wood shows several competitions, notably the portrait bust "Narcisse Pelletier" and "Dead Tree." Emanuel Hahn, president of the society, exhibits five works, among which is a beautiful simplified sketch model for the "memorial to Sir Adam Beck." Other exhibitors are Henri Hebert, A. Laliberte, Frances Loring and Alfred Howell.

Another feature of the opening of the National Gallery is an exhibition by modern French artists. This collection is scheduled to later tour several Canadian cities.

Some of the outstanding work in this group are six etchings by Felix Bracquemont, dry-points by Rodin, lithographs by Degas, Frantin-Latour, Carriers, Willette, Steinlen and Toulouse-Lautrec. The engraver Lepere is also represented by several of his best known prints, and so are the modern artists, Laboureur, Marie Laurencin, Derain and De Vlaminck.

CHILDREN ACTED PARTS OF PIONEERS

Colonel Wilfred Bovey Reviews Dangers of Settlers Among Indians.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23—Heroic days of old, when Canadian boys and girls worked and fought as men and women, were decribed by Col. Wilfred Bovey, director of the extra-mural department of McGill University, in an address on the topic "The Story of Canadian Children."

In those days there were always Indians. He told the story of Madeline de Vercheres who, at the age of 14 years, defended her house against Indians for a week, while two soldiers hid in the cellar, afraid for their lives. Two years later Indians attacked an attractive young man beside a river, and she drove off the Indians and afterwards married the young man, to become Mde. de Lanaudiere. Nor were her troubles over then. One day two braves and four squaws attacked her and her husband. They were driven off, however, when their 12-year-old son came on the scene and, having driven off the squaws who were attacking his mother, helped Mde. de Lanaudiere to drive off the two braves who were man-handling her husband.

Col. Bovey went on to talk about Mary Cadillac, a girl in the Eastern Townships, who, when she let the fire go out one afternoon, clambered over one of the two single remaining beams of a broken bridge, carrying the baby and a bucket, to fetch live coals from her grandfather's house.

Then there were Charlotte and Cornelia de Grace, who lived near Toronto, and went out with their father, mounted on their ponies while he rode his horse, to take their part in the Liberal and Tory factions. They saved their father's life when he was ambushed, and later served as very effective spies.

Farmer Wants $5,025 Was Thought Insane

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 23.—(C.P.) —Two farmers of the Notre Dame De Lourdes district of Manitoba are the central figures in a $5,025 damage action because one of them considered the other insane when he used a pitchfork a little roughly in an argument.

August Duran, according to Casimir Prejet, attacked him with a pitchfork. Prejet thought Durant insane and informed the authorities. Magistrate Couch considered Durant quite sane so now Durand wants $5,025 from Prejet for alleged false arrest and malicious prosecution.

Farmers' Organization Opposes Beer Parlors

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 23 (C.P.).— Immediate action to abolish Alberta's beer parlors, either by legislation or by plebiscite was urged last night in a resolution passed at the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta. Both the U.F.A. and women's section of the organization had previously condemned beer parlors and sought a plebiscite.

The stand of the convention endorsed the request of the Alberta Prohibition Association for abolition of beer parlors, and labelled beer-halls as a menace to the social and economic life of the Province.

172 YEARS AGO ROBERT BURNS WAS BORN IN AYR

Scotsmen the World Over Will Celebrate the Great Anniversary.

HIS STAR STILL SHINES

He Was a Poet of Simple Things —Owed Nothing to Ancestry.

On the 25th day of this month another Burns' anniversary will be reached and Scotsmen the world over will meet as near that date as possible to recite his praises, sing his songs, and drink a toast to the "Immortal Memory" of Robert Burns. The star that rose on that stormy night of January 25, 1759, and illumined an auld clay biggin' in Ayr has not yet reached its setting. "It shines by night, it shines by day, and ne'er grows dim with time." The literature of Burns is not for an age but for all time. So long as there are wrongs to be righted, so long as man's inhumanity to man exists, so long as want and care are found in the world, and human hearts respond to the impulse of love, the songs of this beloved peasant poet will be sung and his memory remain fresh and green in the affection of mankind.

He was the poet of simple things. Most of his exquisite lyrics—the ones which have lived longest and are oftenest quoted — have to do with every-day objects and incidents, such as might and do happen any day to anyone. The "wee, timorous beastie," disturbed in the furrow by the plough; the daisy, its poor, wee head cut off by the scythe; sunrise and sunset; happy love, and firesides of home. On these simple but universal themes Burns turned the full glow of his magic pen, so that they were hallowed and illumined for all time.

Owed Nothing To Ancestry.

Robert Burns owed nothing to ancestry, wealth, position or any great culture. Nevertheless, if he had not been born in Scotland, if he had not had an intelligent father, if he had never come into contact with Scottish ballads and traditions and the poetry of Ramsay, Thompson, and Ferguson; if he had not been brought up in a country environment, that "spark o' nature's fire" might have died.

Burns loved nature as he saw it in Scotland, and patriotically undertook to make Scottish scenes famous. He wrote:

"That I for puir auld Scotland's sake,
Some useful plan or book could make,
Or sing a sang at least."

So he sang of the "Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon" and "Yon hills where Lugar flows," and nearly all his songs have particular settings or refer to natural objects which he has observed.

Intensely Human.

He was intensely human. He was no highbrow, and none knew his faults better than himself. There is no sense in trying to shut out the faults and failings of Burns, nor even in trying to minimize them. They were there, and partly helped his untimely end. But, though he broke the moral laws so often, we must remember the rude, lawless times in which he lived; the drinking habits, and the little comfort which peasantry in Scotland at that period enjoyed. If he sang of the doubtful pleasures associated with strong drink, he also painted the most exquisite picture in writing of a Christian home as the foundation of a nation's greatness. Against "Willie Brewed a Peck o' Maut" and "The Jolly Beggars" must be set "The Cottar's Saturday Night," "To Mary in Heaven," and his "Advice to a Young Friend."

"Nae treasures, nor pleasures,
Could mak us happy lang;
The heart aye's the part aye
That maks us richt or wrang."

and:

"Tho' losses and crosses,
Be lessons right severe,
There's wit there, ye'll get there,
Ye'll find nae ither where."

Burns did not look to any earthly tribunal for judgment. "Who made the heart," he wrote, "'tis He alone, decidedly, can try us." It is not by his faults, but by his virtues that we remember him to-day, and through the imperishable gift of song that he has bequeathed to mankind.

Perhaps no nation deserves more than one such poet. Scotland has truly been blessed in her "Immortal Rabbie Burns."

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HARD PULL

"Why are you running home in such a hurry?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one afternoon, as she saw Uncle Wiggily hopping across the snowy fields to his bungalow as fast as anything.

"I am going to save a poor little pussy cat out of a tree," answered the rabbit gentleman.

"That is very kind of you," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "But if you are going to save a poor pussy cat out of a tree why are you running away from her?"

"I am running home to save the pussy by my pulley line and basket telephone," Uncle Wiggily explained. "I had to come here to reach up to the pulley line as, back at the tree where the pussy cat is, the line is so high up I can't reach it.

The basket is on the line here at my bungalow and as I want to give the pussy some warm milk, after I save her, I thought I had better come home."

"Yes, I guess you had," agreed Nurse Jane. "Well, is everything all ready, now, to rescue the pussy?"

"I think so," answered the rabbit gentleman as he hopped up on the back stoop where there was fastened one pulley wheel around which ran the endless rope with a basket tied to it. The other pulley wheel was at the Hollow Stump School and in stormy weather the rabbit children studied their lessons by having Uncle Wiggily pull the basket on the rope to and from the desk of the Lady Mouse Teacher with questions and answers.

It was when he was hopping around looking for an adventure, after some stormy weather, that Mr. Longears saw the pussy in the tree. As he could not climb up to get the little cat, and as she was afraid to jump or crawl down, the bunny gentleman said he would hurry to his bungalow, pull the basket to the tree so pussy could get in and then pull her to him by the endless rope.

"Now to rescue the pussy!" exclaimed Mr. Longears as he began to pull on the pulley rope which was like a back yard clothes line. "Here goes the basket and I hope, when it gets to the tree, my little cat will know enough to climb in it.'

"Oh, she ought to know epough for that!"fsqueaked Nurse Jane.

"She may know enough but she may be afraid," said Uncle Wiggily as he pulled more and more on the sliding rope. At last the basket was out of sight of the rabbit gentleman, for just then it began to snow again. If it had not been for the snowflakes he could easily have seen the basket riding on the rope all the way to the Hollow Stump School and back.

"Dear me!" cried Nurse Jane, picking up the end of her tail off the stoop. "There's going to be another storm!"

"Then I must hurry the basket to the tree so the pussy can get in and let me pull her to my bungalow where it is cosy and warm!" said Mr. Longears.

"Get in the basket, Pussy!" called the rabbit gentleman, for he could no longer see either the basket or the tree because of the swirl of snowflakes.

"All right, I will!" mewed the pussy cat, for though the rabbit uncle could neither see the tree nor the basket, he could hear the pussy's voice. "Here comes the basket now," went on the little cat. 'It is just high enough so I can crawl from the branch, where I have been clinging with my claws, and get in. Wait a minute now and then you can begin to pull me."

Holding the rope, near the pulley wheel on his porch, Uncle Wiggily could feel the line jiggle and shake as at the distant tree, the pussy climbed into the basket. Then out of the mist of white, swirling snowflakes a voice called:

"All right! Pull me home!"

Uncle Wiggily began to pull hard. The line sagged as a clothes line does when there is a heavy wash hanging out on it.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Longears, "I didn't know this little pussy was so fat! She weighs almost as much as a dog. But I'll haul her in!"

Harder and harder Uncle Wiggily pulled until he knew the basket must be almost at the porch. And he was getting ready to lift the poor, cold pussy from the basket when, all of a sudden, he looked through the cloud of flakes and saw why the basket was so hard to pull.

Clinging to the bottom of it was Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit child. She had hold of the bottom of the basket with her front paws and she had folded up her hind paws so they wouldn't drag on the ground. Baby Bunty was getting a ride outside the basket as the little pussy was getting a ride inside the basket.

"Why, Baby Bunty!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he saw the little orphan rabbit come sliding along on the pulley rope. "How did you come to do that?"

"Well, I saw the basket sliding along," Bunty answered, "and I was tired of hopping so I jumped up and caught hold and I had a nice ride. Are there any school lessons in the basket now, Unkie Wig?"

"No," replied Mr. Longears, but there is a cute little pussy!"

Wasn't Bunty surprised when she saw the little cat in the basket! I'll say she was!

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

AIR SWALLOWING.

I have spoken before about a professional hockey player who was greatly troubled with air in his stomach. Before a game and during the rest periods he would be in considerable distress, but once out on the ice he forgot all about it.

Now there are a great many people who swallow air when eating or at other times, and the pressure of this air in the stomach and intestines is often so severe that they consult their physicians as to the possibility of heart disease, obstruction of the bowel, and other conditions.

Dr. Asher Winkelstein, New York, tells us that at least 60 per cent of patients with real organic ailments, or ailments due simply to nervousness, swallow air. With almost every swallow of food or the saliva— the mouth digestive juice—some air enters the tube going downto the to mach. Sometimes this is immediately belched up and at other times it enters the stomach. When it enters the stomach it immediately goes to the top left side of the stomach. From here, when it begins to make pressure, it is usually belched up again by the individual bringing it up by movements of the body or by deep breathing. This is considered a normal condition and not a symptom of any real trouble.

Hurrying or gulping the food, and swallowing while breathing air with the lungs, is frequently a cause of air swallowing.

To get rid of this air, forced expiration is made with the opening into the lungs held tightly closed.

Dr. M. Heyer says that these air swallowers are usually nervous individuals, excitable, irritable, tense and anxious.

Now this swallowed air cannot for the most part be absorbed by the blood and body tissues and must be removed.

Bending the body from side to side, attempting to put head downward between knees, the use of peppermint, all have proven helpful where the individual was unable to expel it by forcing out his breath.

Now although most of these cases are due to nervousness and not to organic disease, nevertheless this air in stomach or intestine may actually be a symptom of real organic trouble of liver, gall bladder, heart, or intestine.

The point then is that air swallowing is usually just a habit which should be broken.

If it persists it would be well to consult your family physicians.

Welsh Co-eds Stir Hearts Of McGill Men

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—Men students at McGill University have a new distraction thrust upon them, being requested by letter to correspond with seven comely maids now completing their education in North Wales Training College.

The letter created keen competition among male students at the university to see who would be the lucky seven men to correspond with their fair cousins overseas. It was signed by one of the girls desiring to correspond and addressed to a central student organization on the campus, as follows:

"I beg to bring to your notice a letter sent from this college on May 26, which was answered June 26 saying that you would write again giving me the names of seven men students who wish to correspond with seven students here. This second letter has not yet appeared and I should be glad if you would tell whether it is possible or not."

Ink is now flowing freely at the university, seven students having eagerly volunteered to act as correspondents much to the chagrin of fair co-eds at McGill who think it scarcely fair that men students here should make possible attachments overseas when there are plenty of bona fide Canadian girls on whom they might more profitably spend their spare time.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF DOING GOOD WORK

Rapid Advance Made By Canadians in Care of Training of Deaf Children.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 23.—The Ontario School for the deaf, located here, stands as a monument to the rapid advance made by Canada and Canadians in the care and treatment of deaf children. No sign of sadness, no sense of handicap or futility is to be found among those attending the young peoples' section. Despite the fact 90 per cent of them cannot hear a word, they carry on animated conversation, play games, sing and dance. This was borne out at a special entertainment which marked Christmas week at the school.

In the Yuletide pantomime the so pitifully handicapped children acted, danced, sang and told stories with the versatility of trained stage-folk. They carried out a two hour entertainment marked by thoroughness and perfection of execution, and through it all they did not hear a single word.

It was a night of strange romance which friends of the school attended as spectators and left with amazement in their minds over the accomplishments of the deaf students.

An outstanding marvel of the performance was that the children neither heard each other's voices nor the sounds of the music to which they danced. This wonder work was explained by the use to which lip reading is put, eliminating the sign language methods which marks off deaf scholars from all others. Their precision of movement in rhythm was explained by their observation of vibrations received from the floor on which the piano rested. Dancing within a few feet of the piano, they caught these vibrations perfectly. Instructors pointed out that with proper training the deaf pupils develop almost superhuman powers of observation and concentration.

The case of a little Polish-born girl pupil provides a vivid illustration of what is being done for many others. This child, who took a leading part in the Christmas festival, is deaf and came to the Belleville school three years ago. She could not speak one word of English and was totally deaf. Sh ebecame deaf at eight years. Before that she could speak Polish. To-day she has mastered English, speaking it without trace of an accent. She recently won a first prize at the school for drama and English composition.

Old Shoes Discarded In Montreal Taxis

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—I you lose an article in a taxicab, you have three out of four chances of having it returned to you, according to an official of one of the large taxicab companies in Montreal. If you find an article left in a taxi by a previous patron, you will probably be asked about it, although the average in this matter is not so easily arrived at. Day by day throughout the year from eight to twelve articles are reported lost by taxi patrons. Others that are not reported are deliberately left behind. For the most part these are shoes.

Umbrellas, the easiest thing to forget anywhere else, keep their distinction among articles turned in by drivers or reported lost. Next in number are purses or handbags, and parcels of all kinds, shapes and sizes.

Among the unusual articles left behind are shoes, often of an age which must have endeared them to their owners. The apparent explanation, said the official, is that people suddenly deciding that they need new "kicks," buy them and change into them forthwith in the comparative privacy of a cab. Sometimes patrons, temporarily financially embarrassed and unable to pay their fares, give watches of other pieces of jewellry as pledges.

Reposing on a shelf in the official's office is an interesting exhibit, a bottle of brandy and an envelope containing over $7. The unknown owner called a cab, gave the driver $10 to buy him some brandy and then failed to appear at the appointed meeting place.

Canada's Coal Output

Canada's coal output of 17,409,507 tons in 1929 was only exceeded by the record production of 1928 and was nearly 12 per cent higher than the average of the past five years.

REPORT SHOWS MADOC UNITED CHURCH IN SOUND CONDITION

FAVORABLE REPORTS

MADOC, Jan. 23. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church held on Tuesday evening last, was one of the most successful ever held there. There was a good attendance and a hearty interest taken in all the proceedings After devotional exercises had been conducted by the minister, Rev. G. W. Rivers, the meeting was organized by the appointment of the minister as Chairman, and Percy Holland as Secretary. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. Mr. Rivers then reported that during 1930 he had baptised one adult and twelve children, had performed five marriage ceremonies and had fourteen burials.

Jas. A. Caskey reported for the session, that there has been a gain in membership of eight during the year; seven were received on profession of faith, and thirteen by certificate, while eight were removed by certificate and four by death.

In the absence of Jas. Keene, Superintendent of the Sunday School, Mrs. Huffman reported showing that the school had done well in 1930, both from the standpoint of attendance and financial support. The boys had been organized into Trail Rangers and Tuxis Square for week-day activities, and show a fine attendance both at Sunday School and Church Worship.

The Young People's League also reported a good year with C. R. Johnston as president. The meetings have been well maintained in spite of interruptions and about $200.00 has been raised, over $170 being given to the support of Missionaries in China and Canada.

The Young Worshippers' League has also a very good report to give so far as attendance upon Morning Worship is concerned.

The president of the W.M.S., Mrs. S. S. Ashley, stated that the allocation of $325.00 had been raised, and $45.00 contributed to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the Church, while two large bales valued at $70.00 and $100.00 respectively had been sent to the needy. The meetings of the Society are full of interest and education, as well as spiritual inspiration.

Mission Band.

The Mission Band was represented by Master Douglas Hough, who spoke well of the work of the band which has raised over $56 this year. But the money contributed is only a part of the value of the Band; the training of the boys and girls to take part in meetings and to take an interest in boys and girls in other lands where the gospel is not yet preached means a great deal to them. Mrs. W. H. Bailey and Mrs. J. Rutherford, with other helpers superintend the Mission Band.

Mrs. F. E. Brown, President of the Ladies' Aid, reported that the Society had raised about $325, during the year, part of which had been expended on parsonage furnishings; one hundred dollars has been contributed to the M. & M. Fund, leaving a nice balance to begin the year with. The Ladies' Aid is very active organization meeting weekly.

Treasurer's Report.

The treasurer of the Church, W. H. McBain, had a splendid report to give of the financial year just closed. A larger amount was raised this year than for many years and that in spite of the difficult conditions of this period. Emphasis was placed upon the need of a more general and regular use of the weekly-offering envelope.

This thought was dwelt upon by T. E. Burnside, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, and by several of the officials who engaged in the discussion. Hearty appreciation of the work of Mr. McBain was expressed, and he was re-elected as Church Treasurer, and Messrs. Geo. White and W. E. Connore as auditors. On motion of William McMechan and T. E. Burnside a hearty vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Rivers for their untiring efforts on behalf of the congregation. The motion was carried enthusiastically by all present standing and applauding. Mr. and Mrs. Rivers each spoke feelingly in appreciation of the kindness and co-operation of the people in the work of the church.

A motion of appreciation of the work of Miss Ramsay and the Choirs was proposed by Colin Ross, chairman of the Music Committee, who made special reference to the Junior Choir which is adding interest to the service.s

Mrs. J. W. Hulin, envelope steward, reported that up-to-date about $875 has been contributed to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. This is somewhat less than last year, but is an encouraging contribution for this year.

Stewards Elected.

The Stewards elected for 1931, as reported by the elders who acted as tellers, are: Messrs. T. E. Burnside, R. F. Bristol, S. Fox, J. Rutherford, W. A. Wyper, C. I. Ross, J. B. Hough, J. Trotter, G. H. Maybee, G. S. White, P. Holland, and J. W. Hulin.

Splendid contributions to the evening's enjoyment were made by Miss L. M. Ramsay and Mrs. J. W. Hulin, who rendered vocal solos in their usual pleasing way, and the Misses Helen and Kathleen Ludbrook, and Mr. Harry Darley, who delighted the assembly with their instrumental numbers.

After a social half-hour, during which refreshments were served, the Doxology and Benediction brought this successful congregational meeting to a close.

LONDON LIFE HAS GOOD YEAR

Company Presents One of Best Statements in its 56 Years of Operation.

ANNUAL MEETING

Despite the present unfavorable business conditions generally the London Life had one of the best statements in its 56 years of operation, submitted at its annual meeting which was held this week.

The surplus earnings were the largest in the Company's history. After deducting the funds necessary to meet all Government requirements and providing in addition for all profits due and accruing to policyholders and accumulated surplus amounts to $7,830,000, an increase of $1,312,121. The policy reserves (i.e. the money necessary to meet all obligations under its policies) are maintained on the highest standard in use on the North American continent for similar classes of business and on a standard which calls for $3,893,790 more than required by the Dominion Insurance Act. A large portion of the Industrial business has been placed on a 3 per cent. basis, making 80.8 per cent. of the Company's business on this standard.

The new business amounted to $107,189,000 for the year, or slightly more than $2,000,000 of insurance each week. Several new records were set up, notably the greatest month in the Company's history, namely, $14,000,000 in March; the largest single application ever written by a member of its field force; the largest single premiums ever submitted to it. The last month in the year also witnessed the larges: December's business yet recorded.

The assets of the Company, which do not contain speculative securities, but consist chiefly of first mortgages on improved real estate, Government and municipal bonds, showed a gain of $7,538,000, and now stand at $68,346,491. The rate of interest earned on the invested assets was 6.46 per cent., a slight increase over 1929.

The income of the Company has now decreased to $17,500,000, there being 11 per cent gain in premium income and interest on investments.

The payments to policyholders and beneficiaries amounted to $5,800,000 a year. Of this amount $4,000,000 was paid to living policyholders and $1,800,000 to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders.

An intimate picture of developments for the year was given by Edward H. Reid, Managing Director. He concluded his remarks with an expression of confidence in Canada's future and declared that as for man power and financial stability the London Life had never entered upon a new year better equipped to render service to its policyholders and the public generally.

MISSION BANDS IN PRESBYTERIAL HAVE GOOD YEAR

Norwood W. M. S. Had Charge of Devotional Services at Final Presbyterial Session.

TO MEET IN KNOX CHURCH.

The final session of the Peterborough Presbyterial was held on Wednesday afternoon, the opening devotional service being in charge of Norwood W.M.S. with Mrs. B. W. Squires and Mrs. Buck taking part.

At a round table conference several topics were brought before the members and profitable discussions ensued. It was thought that the music used at the meeting shoud, if possible, have some bearing on the principal topic of the meeting. Bible reading immediately before prayer was believed to inspire and assist the member offering it. Prayer verses selected from the Bible are found by some auxiliaries to be helpful in encouraging members to offer prayer in the meetings. Other societies use selected verses from hymns for the same purpose.

Reports Submitted.

The secretary of Mission Bands and Baby Bands, Mrs. A. I. Brown, in her report said that never has there been so much optimism on the part of the leaders or assurance of the enthusiastic interest of the children. Particularly gratifying are the expressions of appreciation of the Band Magazine, "World Friends."

The "Star Band" of Hastings held a Mite Box Tea, when a large Mite Box decorated in Band colors was in the centre of the table.

Havelock Band adopted the Ribbon Badge as a membership receipt and with this incentive had nearly all members paying fees on the one day.

Norwood Band reports an increase in membership and in raising of money.

Although having a change in leadership, Knox Church Band has done good work. The study of the book, "Friendship Trails" was completed and the book sent in a bale to the Supply Secretary.

St. James' Church Band increased attendance by the giving of stars. A thermometer was used to record the attendance of the two competing teams.

The Fidelis Band of George Street United Church reports the best year in its history.

St. Andrew's Willing Workers Band had a happy and successful years work. Introducing an innovation the membership was divided into groups each group bearing the name of a Mission Field.

Knox Band, Lakefield, showed the usual lively interest. Though having a small membership they reached the high water mark in progress.

Regent Street Band, Lakefield, is another band with its leader's name on the Financial Efficiency Honor Roll. It stood highest in emorizing of scripture.

The Light House Band of South Monaghan is well named for its fine work done in a rural community. With a membership of eight it sent $40 to the Presbyterial Treasurer.

Mark Street Band, Peterborough, had a change in leadership but has sustained its interest in the work.

A total of $587.60 was sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer from the Mission Bands and the three Baby Bands of the Presbytery.

An efficiency test was applied to the different Bands, a banner being presented to the Fidelis Band of George Street for highest efficiency. The Fidelis Band was present at the afternoon session of the Persbyterial when the members assembled before the meeting to receive the banner award.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, secretary for Young Women's Auxiliaries and Circles reported seven Y.W.A.'s in the Presbyterial with a membership of 190 and contributing $1,632.61 to the Presbyterial funds. St. Andrew's Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary and Trinity Y.W.A. each averaged $12.90 per member, while George Street Y.W.A. averaged $11.70. There is in each case an increase over last year in membership and in raising of moneys.

There are six circles in the Presbyterial with a total membership of 111. The sum of $395.78 was contributed. One new circle at St. Andrew's Church was organized during the year. Trinity Circle just one year old, has an increase in membership of 12 and contributed $40 over last year, the membership now being 48 and the sum contributed $145.56.

Norwood Y.W.A. also is worthy of note with an increase in membership from 13 to 35 and in givings from $110 to $162 over last year.

The Y.W.A.'s and Circles held a very successdul rally in September over 200 being present.

In presenting the report of the C.G.I.T. the secretary, Mrs. Roy Laing, stated that the number of groups affiliated with the W.M.S. had dwindled to two. All groups, it was learned, have definite missionary study on their programs.

St. Andrew's Group, with Mrs. J. A. McKone as leader is one of the affiliated groups, with a membership of 27 and an average of 23. The other affiliated group "Trinity Ever Ready Group" with Miss Edith Preston as leader, reported 15 members on the roll with an average attendance of 12.

Other groups in the Presbyterial, not affiliated, are George Street, and Knox Churches, of Peterborough, and Regent Street, Lakefield.

The report of the Business Committee was as follows: A conference on Temperance secretaries held during the annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the United Church of Canada, January 21, 1931, made the following recommendations:

That the Presbyterial in session petition the Prohibition Union to urge the Minister of Education of the Province to place the teaching of scientific temperance as a compulsory subject on the curriculum of the Public and of the High Schools, that a vote be taken on the Temperance issue alone entirely disassociated from party politics; that each auxiliary send a petition to the Prohibition Union to this effect.

The resolutions was sustained by the business committee and adopted by the convention.

The Third Annual Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada closed with the singing of the hymn, "Lead On, O King Eternal," a few well chosen remarks by Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge, of Fairmount, and a closing prayer offered by the president, Mrs. Moyer.

ICE HARVEST BEGINS.

The ice-harvest for the season of 1931 began this week, cutting taking place on Attwooll and Sheppard's pond, with H. Lord and W. Budd in charge of the marking off of the area for operations, and the manipulation of the saws.

The ice-cutting is somewhat later in beginning this year, January 16, being the date when the men were at work for the first time last season. The ice is of the finest quality, quite free from shale, and the blocks from fourteen to sixteen inches in thickness. Between three and four thousand blocks are taken out each season to supply the local demand, and farmers team what they require for dairy and other purposes to their respective farm homes, one of two being noticed already busy at this task by the middle of the present week.

SALMON CANNING CARRIED OUT BY MODERN METHODS

Clover Leaf Packers Operate 48 Canneries on B. C. Coast.

COOK AFTER CANNING

Filling Machines Handle Seventy-five Cans of Salmon Per Minute.

TORONTO, Jan. 23—By far the greatest proportion of the salmon caught on the west coast is canned. While methods vary somewhat at different packing establishments, the plan ordinarily followed is essentially the same throughout the industry.

The following is the process being used at present by the Clover Leaf Packers, world's largest fishing company, which operates 45 canneries in British Columbia, as explained by Richard Gosse, managing director of the company, in an interview here to-day.

"On arrival at the plant the salmon are moved by elevators from the boats to the floor of the cannery. From the temporary storage bins the fish are passed to the 'iron chink,' a marvellous machine which performs most of the work of cleaning the fish. The name 'iron chink' has been adopted for the reason that the machine does the work formerly done by Chinese labor. The iron chink can handle 50 or more salmon per minute. By an ingenious arrangement of knives, scrapers, brushes and jets of water, the head, fins, and tail are cut off and the viscera removed in a single rotary operation. From the 'iron chink' the salmon pass to washing tanks and then to tables, where workers inspect each fish and add finishing touches that may be necessary to completely dress it in readiness for canning.

Canning Methods

"The cutting machine, with its endless belt conveyor and rotary knives, cuts the salmon into pieces about three or four inches in length, or of convenient size for the cans. The pieces of salmon then pass through gravity chutes to the filling machine, where a plunger fills each can with meat. The cans are fed into the machine from the loft above. One-quarter of an ounce of salt has been automatically measured into each can before the plunger fills it with salmon. The filling machines handle 75 cans per minute.

"The cans are then conveyed," Mr. Gosse continued, "to the weighing machine where, if any are slightly underweight, they are automatically thrown out on a table, where additional filling takes place by hand to bring the can up to required weight. Comparatively few, however, are thus treated, as the filling machines generally function perfectly.

"The cans then pass to a machine which puts on the tops but does not seal them tightly. They are then taken to the vacuum machine, where the air is exhausted from the cans and the tops are hermetically sealed. Nearly all salmon canneries now use this vacuum process.

Cooking After Canning

"After emerging from the vacuum machines the cans are placed in iron trays and then moved on small hand trucks to the retorts for cooking. The retort is of steel, cylindrical in shape, about 10 feet in length and approximately 5 feet in diameter, with a heavy door at one end, which can be closed tightly and bolted when the retort is filled with salmon. Each retort holds several thousand cans of salmon. After the door is closed live steam is admitted and the salmon cooked for an hour and 20 minutes at a temperature of 240 degrees Fahrenheit and under a steam pressure of 10 pounds. This thoroughly cooks the flesh of the fish, softens all the bones, and completely sterilizes the contents of the can.

"Thereafter the cans pass through washing tanks and are placed in flat trays to cool. Careful examination is then made to see if any of the cans are defective. Because of the excellence of modern canning machinery and methods, every can is perfect.

"In some plants the cans are put through a lacquering machine but this has largely been discontinued, as the tops and bottoms of the cans are lacquered previously," concluded Mr. Gosse. "The labelling machine puts the label around the body of the can, which prevents rust and avoids the necessity of lacquering the entire body of the can. The cans are then put in wooden cases, in most instances 48 1-pound cans to the case. A fair proportion of half-pound cans are also packed."

Smith Is President Of Millbrook Board

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The inaugural meeting of the Millbrook School Board was held, according to statute, on Wednesday at 8 p.m., when organization for the current year was effected as follows:

"The 1931 Pontiac ...Isn't it a Beauty?"

General Motors announces the new, 1931 Pontiac.

Notwithstanding its new beauty, its refinements and its larger size, the 1931 Pontiac sells at lower prices. On seeing this car you will be cheered by the value which General Motors has made possible.

You will find a larger car—longer, roomier and more restful. This added size makes possible more pleasing lines. Beauty is carried out to the smallest details—and Pontiac's beauty is highly distinctive. A new V-shaped radiator with an inbuilt chromium-plated screen presents an unusually attractive front view in keeping with the modern manner. New, graceful one-piece fenders carry useful parking lights.

In consideration of the owner's comfort and pleasure, General Motors has included many mechanical refinements in the 1931 Pontiac so that it will be known for its riding ease, smoothness and quietness. For instance, spring shackles are mounted in "Inlox" rubber bushings so that the body really rides on rubber. These bushings cannot squeak and they eliminate 12 points of bothersome chassis lubrication.

In making the new Pontiac an unusually quiet automobile, General Motors has deadened noise and lessened vibration by setting the engine in a new 4-point, live rubber mounting. Besides, the engine is rubber insulated from the drive shaft. Another silence feature is the new air silencer, which eliminates the usual carburetor hissing. There are many other mechanical features that add to efficiency. Pistons are electroplated, assuring a closer fit and a longer engine life. The frame has been greatly strengthened. Lovejoy shock absorbers assure smoother riding. Five wire wheels are standard equipment at no extra cost on all regular models.

General Motors presents the 1931 Pontiac for your approval. We invite you to see it and drive it. Find out for yourself just how much this new car will add to your pleasure, comfort and pride.

The 1931 Pontiac may be purchased out of income, through GMAC, General Motors own time payment plan. The General Motors Owner Service Policy assures your complete and continued satisfaction.

H. C. JUNIORS OVERWHELM LAKEFIELD 11-1

VERNE DALLIN SETS RECORD FOR SEASON

Figures in Nine of Eleven Goals Scored Against Lakefield.

FOLEY STARS IN NET.

Petes' Advantage Over Losers on Forward Line Accounts For Win.

The Peterborough Hockey Club pulled up a notch closer to the pace-setting St. John's squad in the district Junior O.H.A. sweepstakes at the Brock Street arena last night by gaining a 11 to 1 victory over the Lakefield youngsters. St. John's occupy the top rung merely by reason of having played two more games than Jimmy McMartin's team.

With Verne Dallin and Tommy Foley in action the Petes had Lakefield beat coming and going. Both were outstanding stars for the blue shirts. Dallin went out and scored the goals while Foley stood between the posts and completely mastered the Lakefield sharp-shooters. The Petes' redhead left-winger set up the scoring record for the season. He figured in nine of the eleven goals, giving passes for five and taking passes to plug the twine for four scores.

Without trying to be-little the courageous exhibition of net-guarding turned in by Pearson, who was substituting for Stewart, Lakefield's regular goalie; had the net-tenders been exchanged for the fracas the result might have been much different. Lakefield had plenty of hard close-in shots at the Petes' cage but Foley, playing his usual cool game, turned them aside. At stages in the fracas the Petes found great difficulty in clearing inside their blue line and it was at these stages that Lakefield particularly swarmed about in front of Foley, peppering him with well-aimed heaves. Too, Lakefield at times swung into combination attacks that carried them in for great scoring opportunities; which all goes to say that the score does not give a fair impression of the share Lakefield had in the play.

Accounts for Win.

For the most part the Petes had them topped in speed at every position, and it was the fact that they were able to out-foot the Lakefield forwards that gave them the big advantage. Lakefield showed every bit as much teamwork as did the winners. At that the Petes gave visible indications that several of their stars are suffering from too much hockey.

All but two of the Petes' goals came directly as a result of combination. Practically every member of the squad aided Dallin in amassing his scoring record. Epps had two assists and one goal, and Jones steered in two of Dallin's passes. Tuck also received two passes from Dallin and sailed them behind Pearson. Thirnbeck scored twice, once on a solo effort and the other on a pass from Epps. Wood did a great deal of rushing but although he repeatedly split the defence he failed to score.

Kennedy, White, Emsley and Northey were best for Lakefield. Kennedy in particular turned in a smart game and White was his mate on many rushes. Emsley, the Grove school youngster who subbed at centre, shone around the nets and forced Foley to flourish his whole bag of tricks. Northey did considerable puck-carrying but lowered his effectiveness by failing to pass the rubber.

The Teams

Lakefield—Goal, Pearson; defence, Northey and Jewell; centre, White; wings, Kennedy and Stenner; alternates, Wannamaker, Emsley and Matthews.

Peterborough Hockey Club—Goal, Foley; defence, Wood and Scollard; centre, Epps; wings, Dallin and Jones; alternates, Tuck, Thirnbeck and Begley.

Referee—W. Jackson.

Hit Stride From First

Northey opened the game with a hard shot at Foley. The Petes lost no time in hitting their stride and less than two minutes from the start Dallin and Epps combined to go in on Pearson, Epps plugging the twine. A minute and a half later Dallin gave Jones a pass to score. Lakefield found difficulty in holding the Petes out, and thirty seconds later the third counter was rung up when Dallin took Epps' pass to give Pearson no chance to save. Lakefield began to take an active part in the game and they hemmed the Petes in several sizzlers at Foley. White and Stenner combined to go right in on Foley and tally Lakefield's lone goal. There was a pile up in front of the Petes' nets as Foley did a dive to keep Northey and Kennedy out. To end the period, Dallin slipped Jones the disc at the defence and Jones picked the corner.

Lakefield again pounded in shots as they made it difficult for the Petes to clear, but three minutes after the start Dallin went down the left boards alone and boosted the score to five. Lakefield perked up and Northey and White combined only to have Foley save. White returned and Foley rolled out of the cage to beat him. Both outfits hit up a fast clip and the best hockey of the night developed here. Tuck boosted the count again when he took a pass and fired the puck in. Again the Petes had a big edge on the play with their combination attacks. It remained for Thirnbeck to breeze down alone and score the other goal of the period.

Lakefield's attempt to stage a four-man offensive proved an error in the final canter. Their attack was weaker than in either of the other periods and the Petes had a big edge. Midway through, Dallin took Tuck's pass and scored and forty-five seconds later he again countered, this time on a pass from Epps. Thirnbeck made it ten on a combination play with Epps, and Tuck took Dallin's pass for the final goal. During the last five minutes of play Emsley repeatedly got in on Foley, only to be balked by the Petes' goalie.

THE MAN FROM DOWN UNDER

In the past many have contended that Gene Tunney didn't have a punch. The record of Tom Heeney before and after his battle with Tunney seems to discredit this belief. In the year and a half before he met Tunney "Honest Tom" boxed draws with Paulin and Sharkey, outpointed Delaney and Risko and K.O'd. Maloney in one round. These men represented the best in the heavyweight division. After his meeting with the marine, Heeney in nine starts was stopped twice by Victorio Campolo and Tuffy Griffiths; has lost to Emmet Rocco and Frank Cawley also Maloney whom he had previously defeated. He outpointed George Hoffman and George Panka and won from Elizear Rioux on a foul. "Honest Tom" still commands the respect of all who know him but Tunney seems to have left his mark on the man from down under.

Hard Ice and Clever Combination Makes Game One of Fastest Played This Season.

NEAT FORWARD WORK.

Home Towners Sink Opening Counters on Pretty Team Work and Perfect Passing.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 23 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Fast ice and a licking to the tune of 3—1 greeted the Norwood Combines when they visited Campbellford last evening to stage the scheduled fixture with the Maroons in the Junior O.H.A. series. Following the lead of their big brothers, the Campbellford squad came out of the losing class and romped home to victory in a game that was fast and clean, giving the visitors a surprise that sent their forward line working at full pressure.

The Combines have a fast team, and one that handles a good line of team play, but the Maroons came up and surpassed their form handing out some real fast and neat hockey with splendid combination. In the first period especially was this noticeable. Passing the visitors' forward line and defence, the Home Towners counted their three tallies, two of which came after pretty team play and perfect assists.

The Combines, however, made a count in the second, but apart from this, were unable to score. Getting warm in the last session, both teams pressed forward to score, but no count was made. Heavy checking was the order of play, both defence lines coming in for much of the work. The Campbellford aggregation had the edge on the play throughout the game, their forward line being exceptionally good, the Combines falling down somewhat in their defence.

Eight Penalties

"Buster" Whitton of Campbellford refereed the game and made a good job of it. There were eight penalties in all, all however for minor offences.

The first period opened with the Combines attacking which was soon returned when Lambert got possession of the puck and drove forward, being checked, however, by Shannon. Up and down went the play until seven minutes after play the Maroons carried the rubber to the Combines' blue line, when Stokes made a pretty pass to Lambert, who drove home a counter. Up from the face-off Hendy did his best to follow up with another ringer, but McLaughlin, for the Combines, proved a hard man to pass.

The Combines now pressed and did some pretty stick handling. Voyer and Kempt trying in succession to break through the Maroons defence. What shots did go into the Millers nets were stopped by the big boy of the bars. Heponstall, who plays a splendid game between the posts. Busch for Campbellford was fenced at middle play for tripping, but on returning to the play sunk another counter from an assist by Hendy. Almost from the face off Lambert again scored, putting up a lead that the Combines were unable to pass. Stokes was penalised toward the end of the session, Hendy and Shannon following soon after for getting into a mix up.

Score In Second

The second period proved the only fruitful one for the visitors, Thompson netting the puck from an assist by Voyer after two minutes of play. The whole of this session was given over to heavy checking and determined rushes forward by the Combines, who tried their best to even up and pass the Maroons count. Shannon did some lone rushing which did not get him anywhere, except to be heavily checked by Wilks and Lambert, who seemed to be on to his fast play and were giving away no change. Hendy played a dashing game in this period, with Stokes and Busch, breaking through and handing Beavis some tough nuts to crack. Shannon was boxed in the first part of the session for tripping which gave the entertainers the advantage for two minutes, but they were not able to count with Thompson falling back to defence and working well with McLaughlin, Rathwell and Shearer did some heavy playing, the latter making shots at the Maroons nets, and in some cases having tough breaks.

Heavy Checking

The last period was one of check and double check, the Combines taking the offensive at the beginning of the session. They played to stage a comeback, but were not in the form to do so, although they showed some fast hockey and kept the ice warm. Kempt and Voyer flashed out in the period, playing good combination, but as ever, the Campbellford defence held, while Holmes and Runnions, with some pretty play by Cubitt fenced after half the session had been played, followed soon after by Shannon, who seemed determined to play heavy and came under the notice of the referee. Lambert was the next to enter the box, which was the signal for the Combines to crowd the Campbellford area, but "Hep", with the assistance of the Maroons defense, was too much for the visitors and their efforts were in vain.

The teams:

Combines—Goal, Beavis; defence, McLaughlin and Shannon; center, Thompson; wings, Kempt and Voyer; subs, Rathwell, Campion and Shearer.

Referee: "Buster" Whitton, Campbellford.

LEAFS BEAT MAROONS 4—2 TO BREAK STANDINGS TIE

Jackson and Primeau Feature of "Kid" Forward Line, Former Gets Two Goals and Latter Three Assists—Conacher and Cotton Also Score.

SPEEDY CANUCKS BLANK SENATORS; 3RD PERIOD RALLY GIVES HAWKS A WIN

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 23 (C.P.) — New York Americans and Toronto Maple Leafs improved their status in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League last night. In the United States division Chicago Blackhawks crept to within a point of the leading Boston Bruins by defeating the last place Philadelphia Quakers, 5 to 2.

The Leafs beat their Maroon-clad rivals for second place by a 4 to 2 margin and now hold possession of the second rung by themselves. It was their third victory in five games with Munromen and gives the winners a big edge in the drive down the stretch, for the Montrealers have played two more games.

Hal Cotton started the Blue and and White team on the road to victory by combining to work through the Maroon defence with "Ace" Bailey and sinking the latter's perfect pass into the cage behind the clever Davy Kerr late in the first period. The shifty "Busher" Jackson handed the Maroons another jolt by tallying on a pass from the brainy, playmaking Joe Primeau just after the halfway mark in the middle stanza.

Almost before the fans had seated themselves for the start of the final frame, the same "Busher" dashed down left wing to take Primeau's pass and put the Leafs three up.

This score seemed to finally awaken the men of Munro and after some 10 minutes' hard effort "Babe" Seibert broke the Maroon goose-egg by scoring on a rocketing shot. Nels Stewart gave him the pass. Hooney Smith then cut the Toronto lead to one by beating Lorne Chabot following a three-ply thrust with Jimmy Ward and "Baldy" Northcott.

The Leafs' somewhat easy victory was not anticipated any more than the surprising triumph of the Amazing Amerks over Boston by 2 to 1. It places the Americans within two points of the Maroons, who have also played two more games than the "A's".

Billy Burch figured prominently in the second win in three starts of the Star-spangled hockeyists over the American group leaders. He gave "Hap" Ems a perfect pass-out for the opening goal less than a minute after the start. Then when "Dutch" Gainor had knotted the count following a passing bout with Eddie Shore and "Red" Beattie in the second 20 minutes, Burch notched the winning marker in the third. It was a long shot but travelled toward Tiny Thompson at a terrific velocity and the Bruin net-minder misjudged it.

Canadiens maintained their four point lead over Toronto by defeating Ottawa, 3 to 0, and retaining their unblemished record with the Senators this season.

The scoring summary remained the same until the last frame when Leduc carried the disc from end to end for a pretty goal. Gagnon put the result beyond doubt eight minutes later by taking Leduc's pass to hammer the puck past Billy Beveridge from a few feet out.

Canadiens were still without their starry center and leading marksman, Howie Morenz, while the Senators took the ice without Hal Starr, defence bulwark.

The victory over the Quakers gave the Chicago Blackhawks their ninth straight triumph and places them within easy reach of first place. The Bruins who are leading them by one point have played an extra game.

For two periods, exceptional goal-keeping by Wilf Cude, enabled the Quakers to furnish the Hawks with strong opposition. Wally Kilrea gave them the lead after 15 minutes had elapsed in the first frame and the Hawks were unable to get the equalizer until late in the middle session, Johnny Gottselig scoring unassisted.

In the last period the Philadelphians collapsed and the Chicagoans rammed in three tallies within six minutes to clinch the verdict. Hib Milks got the second Quaker goal soon after and Wentworth concluded the scoring late in the period.

Public School Beats Lakefield High 5-3

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The hockey match scheduled for Wednesday afternoon between the Chaplin Combination High and Public school team and The Grove was called off and instead the Public school played the High school in a fast game which ended 5-3 in favor of the Public school. Dominick White, athletic champion of the High school was referee and two Public school boys were goal umpires. The audience was largely made up of young people under sixteen who made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in years. Stuart Loyst, the P. S. goalie, was the star player of both teams, and although he had a regular bombardment of shots, few passed his vigilant eye and ready stick. As a goal getter Joe Blewett shone, notching four of the five scored by his team, Sherman Hill getting the last one. Of team play there was very little, as each player apparently aimed at the stellar role. A better combination would have tightened up the weak spots in both teams and made both hard to beat. The season is young and there has been little chance to practice but there are prospects of good teams in both schools.

The first period was a solo for the Public school as the High school scored no goals and Joe Blewett imitated his dad in the ease with which he planted four behind Hughie Morrison's net. The second period belonged entirely to the senior team as Robert Nicholls and Gray Kemp caught the vigilant Loyst unawares and landed their counters.

Sherman Hill and Ronald Kemp in turn scored one for each team in the third where honors were divided evenly. The game was played in the customary there twenty minute periods with no rest between and though the pace was fast the boys kept it up, showing good condition. Th line-up was as follows:

LONDON TEAM REGISTERS 7TH STRAIGHT WIN

First Time Tecumsehs Have Won Game in Detroit Since Can-pro Days.

DEFEAT OLYMPICS 4-1.

Doc Romnes, Leo Quennville, Tully Moore, Clem Loughlin Successful Marksmen.

TORONTO, Ont., January 23 (C.P.). — Riding on the crest of a victory wave, London Tecumsehs, the mystery team of the International Hockey League, last night registered their seventh consecutive triumph. They defeated the Detroit Olympics, 4 to 0. It was the first win for a London team in the Motor City since the old Can-Pro branched out to include the Motor City.

Earlier in the season the Londoners moved up near the top threateningly, and just when they appeared ready to overtake the league leading Buffalo Bisons, the team slumped and continued to drop until less than a month ago they were within a few points of the cellar. To-day they are just a game and a half behind the Bisons.

A counter by Doc. Romnes in the first frame, two more from the sticks of Leo Quennville and Tubby Moore, in the second, and another by Clem Loughlin in the final 20 minutes, constituted the complete rout of the Olympics, who were outplayed even more decisively than the score indicates. Emmet Venne's goalkeeping, which bordered on the sensational, kept the London tallies from running into the double figure mark.

To-night the Tecumsehs move over to Windsor in a quest for their eighth victory. If attained, it will not be so easily secured as that against Detroit, for the Bulldogs are prepared to battle vigorously for the honors which will place them on an equal footing with the Londoners in the standing.

Cobourg Hockey Squad Blanks Millbrook 8-0

MILLBROOK, January 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — The local squad had a friendly tilt with Cobourg on the Cosmos Rink on Tuesday evening, and though shortness of notice prevented adequate advertising of the game, a fair number of spectators gathered and enjoyed some good hockey with the visitors going home victors by a score of 8 to 0.

The one-sidedness of the score does not mean that the home team failed to put up a vigorous opposition, and in spite of an entire lack of practice or coaching this season, succeeded in keeping the puck in the vicinity of the Cobourg goal a good part of the time play was in progress.

The local team expects to go to Omemee on Friday evening for the return game after the contest on the Cosmos rink here last Saturday.

BAILEY BROTHERS COMBINE TO SINK TIE COUNT FOR CORSAIRS IN SOUTH END LEAGUE FIXTURE

LESURF STARS.

Stars Take 5-1 Decision From Electrics in Final Schedule.

All was not quiet on the Southern front last night when the Junior section of the South End City League swung into action at the Sacred Heart rink and ran off three fast games to wind up the first half of their schedule. The boys, taking advantage of a great sheet of ice, travelled at a lightning-like pace. While the first game was no "petting" party, the hockey as a whole was clean. Zero weather did not prevent a fair crowd of rooters from being on hand.

Pirates and Stars began at seven, and when they skated off an hour later, were deadlocked at 2-all. This game was fast all the way and as close as the score indicates. The players were checking hard, and at times got a little rough. No scoring was done until the seond period when Maudsley lifted one into the Pirates' net. Right away, the Corsairs started swarming up the ice in two and three man rushes, and Watman tapped in the equalizer when Sanderson left the goal in an attempt to save. In the third, Young again put Stars ahead on an assist from Jay. Both teams were moving fast in this frame, and toward the end, "Moose" Bailey took the rubber down the ice and slipped it over to his brother, who didn't miss, and the game was sewed up.

Back Checking Counts

The second fracas saw Canucks getting the bulge on Choate's 4—2, after a classy exhibition of hockey. The Hardware boys are a husky outfit, but they couldn't get going right most of the game, and the back-checking of the winners kept them from using their superior weight. In the opening period, LeSurf, after several rushes, found the corner of the cage and put the Canucks one up. The second go found Choate's trying hard, and finally counting from Dinesen's stick. The winners came right back for three big ones. Hatton took one through alone, to be followed a few minutes later by Post, who had to slam his own rebound twice before getting it past Anthony. Heffernan got the last marker on a long easy shot which fooled the goalie. It would be impossible to pick out an outstanding player in this game, both teams working hard through the final frame, with Dinesen finding the net once more before the gong.

Stars Win 5-1

The final battle of the evening between Stars and Electrics went to the former 5-1, but it was not a true indicator of the play. Stars, playing their second game of the night, started slow but managed to keep the Electrics from counting in the first stanza. The game was fast and surprisingly few penalties were handed out. Tranter for the winners did some fancy stick-handling in the first, and Jay whistled one in from a pass out behind the goal just before the bell. In the second, Stars got going right and ran in a pair, Frost and Jay getting them on individual efforts. Toward the close, Mowry drew a major sentence for roughing it, and was still doing time at the opening of the last period. Prete got another early in this frame, and soon after Jay counted again for the winners. Craig saved the Electrics from a shut-out by netting the rubber in the dying minutes of the game. Jay was the high scorer of the game, but the whole winning team looked good. Electrics played nice hockey, but didn't seem to team up very well.

Electrics: Goal, Jones; right defense, Wiley; left defense, Earle; centre, Craig; right wing, R. Payne, left wing, Gray; alternates, Payne, Driscol and Masters.

Former Havelock Youth Playing With Newmarket

HAVELOCK, Jan. 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Dugald Wright of the Bank of Toronto staff at Newmarket, formerly of town, is playing defence on the Newmarket Junior O.H.A team. He is one of the strongest and best players on the team, and has put more than a few shots into the net. Newmarket is said to have a good chance for the junior championship this season.

CLOSE SCORES ARE FEATURE CHURCH LOOP

SAINTS BEAT KNOX 3-2.

St. Paul's Takes 4-3 Decision From George Street in Juvenile Fixture.

In marked contrast to their games of last week, the boys of the Church Hockey League stepped out and exhibited four snappy contests last night at All Saints' Rink. Only the opening game was at all one-sided, and it was a shut-out. The other three ended in one-goal margins for the winners. The ice was fast and so was the play for the entire evening, while penalties drawn were negligible.

Mark Street blanked Trinity Midgets, 6—0, in the curtain-raiser, and they deserved the victory. The losers looking dangerous at times, but their shooting was not so hot, and, when they did get a line on the net, they were robbed by Hunter, who was unbeatable. The winners had most of the play through the three periods and scored most of the goals on combination plays. The teams:

SAINTS BEAT KNOX 3—2

The second Midget game saw All Saints beat Knox 3—2 and what a battle it was! Fast, even and clean; it was anyone's game right up till the end. The boys played individually for the most part, refusing to pass the puck, but some of the stick-handling displayed was well worth seeing. Alternating often, kept the play at top speed, and the goals that got by the net guardians were no flukes. It was late in the final frame when All Saints slapped in the winning counter.

St. Paul's Win Out 4—3

In the juvenile fixture between George Street and St. Paul's, the latter won out 4-3. It was a hammer-and-tongs affair with the play being first at one end of the rink and then at the other. The winners had a little more punch at the last, scoring in the final few minutes of the game. St. Paul's netted two, early in the first period, and George Street got one. In the second, the Saints slipped in another, but George Street tied the count with two smart goals. The play was fast and furious in the final frame, and with only a couple of minutes to go, the winners fooled Reynolds for the prize-winner. It was the best game of the evening.

The teams:

St. Paul's: Goal, McIntyre; right defense, Marsh; left defense, Rowan; centre, Clark; right wing, G. Morrow; left wing, Sharp; alternates, Wiley, McKay and C Morrow.

Referee, H. Rehill.

The fourth game was a junior one with All Saints nosing out George Street 2—1. It was tight all the way, and there was very little to choose between the opposing picksters. The players broke fast, but persistent back-checking by the forwards kept the scoring down. The winners netted the first one in the initial period, but George Street soon knotted it up. They were well into the third chapter before All Saints bulged the hemp for the big one. Defensive play in the final stages kept their citadel intact.

BOUNDLESS FAITH IN CANADA INSPIRES INVINCIBLE WEST

No Whining in Evidence Despite Far-Reaching Effect of Depression,

EAST MUST ASSIST

By Peter Bryce

(S. special to Examiner Copyright 1931.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—I have just returned from one week in Western Canada, with my fellow-traveller in that period we interviewed the premier of Manitoba: the premier of Saskatchewan: the chief justice of Saskatchewan: the mayor of a great western city: the minister of Labor in one of the prairie governments, and the head of one of the outstanding business concerns of the west. In Winnipeg we preached to several of the greatest congregations in Canada and addressed in the same city a luncheon meeting of more than 200 people.

In Regina we addressed a banquet of more than 400 people and there also for two days we conferred with fifty representatives lay and clerical from the three prairie provinces, including a number from the dried-out areas of southern Saskatchewan. It is doubtful if any group of men could be gathered together, possessing a more intimate knowledge of the religious, social and economic conditions of western Canada. Later in Winnipeg, we met representatives from the rural areas of Manitoba.

My deliberate conclusion is that the spirit of the west is invincible. It is magnificent. The situation in all its complexities and uncertainties present and future, was clearly stated and undoubtedly it is fully apprehended but there was no whining, no discouraging note in the west, and in themselves. The dominion of Canada has no greater asset than the human asset represented in the men and women of the far-flung frontier, the wind-swept prairies and the great cities of the west. They merit from the federal government the utmost consideration and from their more fortunate fellow-citizens of the east the fullest measure of moral support.

Successive Failures.

Two sets of conditions prevail in the prairie provinces, one in the dried-out areas of southern Saskatchewan which have suffered crop failures in 1929 and in 1930, and the other in those parts of the prairies where crops have been good but harvesting conditions bad, and prices the lowest in forty years. A section of southern Saskatchewan, covering about forty municipalities in 1929 and sixty in 1930, about one-fifth of the inhabited area of the province has suffered from crop failure in these years that a large measure of relief has been necessary.

In the remaining portions of the prairies with the exception of certain small areas the crops have been good, but much rain during harvest and a severe blizzard in October caused a lowering of the grades of the wheat which has aggravated the serious situation caused by low prices.

In Manitoba the value of the field crop is less than half of what it was two years ago. The value of the field crops in the prairie provinces has decreased in the past two years by four hundred million dollars. The reflection of this great drop in values upon the business and social life of the west has been far-reaching and tragic. Men who have lived practically all their lives in the prairies state that they have never known such distress and such "a terrible lack of money."

Use Barter System.

The low low prices have reduced the purchasing power of the farmers to the vanishing point, making it almost impossible for them to buy clothing and pay taxes and interest. So scarce is money in many of the rural areas that a system of barter has developed and the commercial and industrial activities of the towns and villages have suffered a corresponding depression. Reports were given indicating that merchants who have been in business for years have been obliged to close their stores.

A concrete report from one small town gave a comparative statement of business done in 1928 and in 1930.

Garage, 1928 1930. Garage repairs, $1928, $40,000; 1930, $11,000: New cars sold, 1928, 30; 1930, 3: Second-hand cars sold, 1928, 35: 1930, 7. Hardware store, 1928, $31,000; 1930, $12,000. General store, 1928, $43,572; 1930, $23,448. Pool room (over) 1928, $3,000; 1930, (less than) $1,000.

Lumber yard, (one yard closed) — In the other lumber yard more lumber was sold in September, 1928 than in all 1930.

In a radius of 130 miles there was a moving picture theatre in every town and sometimes two. Now there is only one theatre in the whole area.

In 1930 there was sold scarcely one-eighth of the amount of liquor that was sold in 1928.

Illustrating the inability of the farmers to get cash, it was stated that one farmer threshed 7,000 bushels of oats, and when he had paid threshers' had $175 left wherewith to pay taxes on his half-section of land, gas accounts, store bills, and to provide for his family. In many cases the grain did not bring sufficient to pay even the thresher's bill. One farmer shipped a carload of wheat and when his returns came he had not enough to pay the freight. It was stated that within a radius of ten miles of a prairie town not one farmer had made enough to pay his threshing bill and taxes.

Relief measures on a generous scale have been undertaken by the governments, municipalities and by private agencies. These are worthy of high praise. It was stated on excellent authority that the relief and unemployment measures of the Manitoba government, for one year will cost Manitoba $150,000 per annum for fifty years.

In Southern Saskatchewan to the end of 1930 relief in food, and fodder has been provided by the municipalities with a provincial guarantee to the extent of over $2,200,000, such relief being a charge against the land of those receiving relief.

Mixed Farming Impossible.

In answer to those who urge that mixed farming is the solution, it is pointed out that this is not possible in many parts of the west. Moreover, if butter were produced beyond Canada's need they could not compete with New Zealand. If hogs were raised beyond Canada's need they could not compete with Ireland, and they cannot compete with Argentine in frozen beef. Heavy freight charges form a continuous handicap. These are questions the expert must take up in all their bearings.

It should not be forgotten that the west is now no longer altogether dependent upon wheat. The great new north is a land of infinite possibilities in mineral wealth. There are 500 industries, I am told, in Winnipeg alone. The establishing of a General Motors plant in Regina is a significant development. The west pins its faith in the Hudson Bay route, Liverpool via Churchill will bring the markets to Europe nearer by one thousand miles.

One thing is clear, the problems of the west are Canadian problems, and the west must be assured that they are so considered. We are a nation. We stand or fall together. The spirit of unity and of unselfishness in the hour of need will bind the nation together.

The world crisis, of which Canadian problems are but a part is primarily a spiritual crisis. The Christian church everywhere may be purified in this day of adversity and through study and prayer and self-discipline help to lead the way to a more adequate and Christian economic and social order.

In the meantime, the west asked us to say to the east that they are taking their difficulties and disappointments 'standing up.' They are brave and gallant people.

King Clancy himself, of hockey fame, and Billy Townsend one of the "Knockout Kings" of the fistic racket, who are pulling for each other in their respective coming encounters. Townsend is scheduled to meet Jackie Pilkington for the title early in February, and the "King" will have a ringside seat pulling for him.

Rifle Shoot Results.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS' RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

A marked improvement was noted in last night's shoot, especially among the weaker shots. A keen competitive spirit was prevalent throughout the evening. The prize went to T. Lackie. This makes another member entitled to a handicap. At the close of the match a standing off-hand shoot was carried out. This was captured by Grant Rightmeyer, with Gordon Eason as a close runner-up.

A challenge was received from the South Central Cadets which will be shot off during the coming week.

Big Week-End Bill For Local Ski Club

A week-end crammed with zest and pep, is keenly anticipated by members of the Peterborough Ski Club, who have arranged another program which bids fair to outrival that of last week.

Members are asked to meet on Saturday afternoon from 1.30 to 2.00 at Park Hill Road and Water street, and also on Sunday at the same place at eleven o'clock in the morning, for a ski run to Nassau.

Last week-end approximately 150 members of the club made the journey out to Nassau, where a club house has been erected, on an ideal site, and where this great outdoor winter pastime can be indulged in under ideal conditions.

District Rinks Will Participate In Play

J. W. Maynsord who is to umpire the District 13 play-offs here on Tuesday next for the District Cup, announces that in addition to two rinks from the local club, two rinks from each of the following clubs will be present: Hastings, Keene, Lakefield, Millbrook, Norwood. The draw will take place at nine o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Peterborough Club's rinks will be skipped by Messrs. J. Sedgewick and I. Moore.

The District Cup winners will compete at a later date in Toronto, with the winners of the other District competitions, for the coveted Governor-General's Trophy.

Basketball Finalists Clash Saturday Night

A double-header cage bill in which the finalists of the City Basketball League (first half of the schedule) will clash in order to determine the question of supremacy, is staged for Saturday night at 7.30 in the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium.

The floor will be occupied by the C.G.E. and De Laval teams and by the Y.W.C.A. Seniors and Westcox Ladies. It is anticipated that these games, which will doubtless result in hard fought contests, will be witnessed by a large number of interested spectators.

Similarly in the afternoon six teams, representative of the business men of the city, will engage in a volleyball tussle.

Hockey-Loop Draw.

The lucky number draw, under the auspices of the South-End City Hockey League, took place last night in the Raybestos and the winning tickets were announced.

Ticket number 693, for a half-ton of coal, is held by F. E. Campbell of 243 Park Street. The second prize, a hundred of flour, goes to G. W. Brown, 43 Park Street, who held ticket number 819. The smoked ham, which was the third prize, was won by A. C. Gray, of 614 Walker-field Avenue, with ticket number 80. The winners are requested to get in touch as soon as possible with the executive of the South-End City League.

MILLBROOK W. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

Satisfactory Reports Presented of the Work Accomplished in 1930.

MEETING WELL ATTENDED

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. J. E. Allen was hostess for the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' Anglican church, the well-attended gathering being held at her home, King street east, on Monday evening, with Mrs. L. J. Morton taking the chair, in the absence of the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott.

Satisfactory reports were presented on the work accomplished during 1930 by the W.A., the Women's Guild, the Dorcas Committee, the Junior W.A., and the Little Helpers.

Nomination of the new slate of officers was made at the last regular meeting in November, and the following were returned for the current year:

Honorary president, Mrs. (Rev.) William Cartwright Allen; honorary vice-president, Mrs. E. J. Whyte; president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott; vice-president, Mrs. Louis J. Morton; secretary, Miss Rose Mamamara; treasurer of the W.A. and the Women's Guild, Mrs. J. E. Allen; secretary of Dorcas Work, Miss Annie Armstrong; secretary for the Living Message, Mrs. George Howson; superintendent Junior W.A., Mrs. Howard Jordan; superintendent of Little Helpers, Mrs. G. At the conclusion of the election Mrs. Jordan covered in an interesting and comprehensive manner the third and fourth chapters of the study book on "Japan," and the closing prayers brought an important and helpful meeting to its completion.

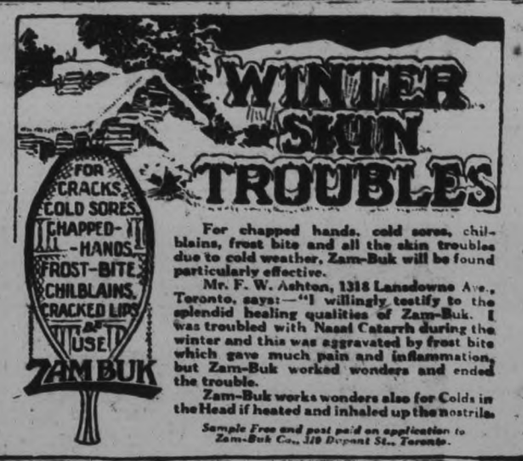
During the social hour the hostess served dainty refreshments, and a most enjoyable time was spent by the goodly number of ladies present.



For chapped hands, cold sores, chilblains, frost bite and all the skin troubles due to cold weather, Zam-Buk will be found particularly effective.
Mr. F. W. Ashton, 1318 Lansdowne Ave., Toronto, says:—"I willingly testify to the splendid healing qualities of Zam-Buk. I was troubled with Nasal Catarrh during the winter and this was aggravated by frost bite which gave much pain and inflammation, but Zam-Buk worked wonders and ended the trouble.
Zam-Buk works wonders also for Colds in the Head if heated and inhaled up the nostrils.

MYSTERIOUS NIGHT MARAUDER EMULATES CREEPING FELINE

Toronto's Cat Burglar Has Been at Large for More Than Five Weeks.

NEVER BEEN SEEN

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1931)

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — They are looking for a man with the temperament of cat. That is practically everything the police have to work on in the search for the night marauder who has worked steadily among the houses of the East End, leaving no clues to his size, his appearance or his identity.

Only his tastes and his tact does he make evident. From the manner of his movements he has earned the soubriquet, "The Cat Thief." And only one person has been known to see anything of him.

Late one night a woman in the East End was closing up her house for the night. She had extinguished the kitchen light and started towards the stairs when she heard the window in the kitchen slowly raised. Turning, she observed an arm was causing the movement.

"Who's that?" she demand.

A cool voice answered immediately, with another question, "Is this the home of Mr. Dean?"

"Sorry" the voice apologized, and she heard steps receding down the alley. When she had summoned assistance there was no sign of her would-be caller. That is the only occasion on which footfalls or a voice which probably belong to the "Cat" have been heard.

Almost every morning for five weeks some outraged citizen has telephoned police headquarters and announced that "The Cat Thief called and collected his bounty." But he does not work every night. Like his feline namesake there are times when inclement weather or perhaps some more urgent business postpones his operations.

On very cold nights it has been observed, the silent prowler of the night has he been known to work on wet has not been reported abroad. Nor nights? Isn't that just like a cat?

When he visits a home he is quite lacking in consideration for such things as he does not care to take away with him. He leaves drawers in disorder and clothing strewn about. He leaves windows open, too.

Jewellry, silver or "objects d'art" do not appeal to his simple tastes. It's money he is after. And that's not all. On one occasion he left a shabby suit of clothes and an overcoat lying in a corner and a check revealed that he had replenished his wardrobe from the excellent tailoring of his host. He took an extra suit along.

Since then he has repeated the performance several times. He changes his shoes, his clothes or anything he happens to run across that is an improvement over his own. He must have a large supply of old clothes because he always leaves a well-worn article in exchange. Hats are included in the eligible class too, if they fit.

Another of the peculiarities of Le hat is his discriminating taste in cigars and liquors, because he does not draw the line at luxuries. Several commodities at the expense of an East Ender. Someone reported that he missed a quantity of Christmas cigars along with a few other articles and little money. "Thank him for me," he suggested. Well, perhaps the Cat is doing some good after all.

It's hard to say just what is the cause for this sudden series of raids by the Cat. Probably, like so many other things right now, the blame could be laid to the general prevalence of unemployment. There are any number of occupations which would have fitted him for an efficient Cat job.

He might have been a school teacher with pussyfooting tendencies. You may readily imagine that old buzzard that used to slide up be hind you when you were reading a forbidden novel in class as a thief of the first water. Didn't he take your book from you? Even at that time you thought far worse things of him than theft and, even in a time of plenty when employment was not a problem, you felt that he should be fired.

One can readily imagine the Cat as a soft-shoe dancer, forced to turn his silent stepping abilities to theft for lack of a legitimate occupation. Or mayhap he is simply the father of a large family turning his long-practised ability to tread the boards softly with a baby in his arms to the task of providing for the kiddies who are directly responsible for that ability.

Of course he may be, and probably is, a bona fide second-storey man. His ability to evade detection and his cool handling of the window-opening episode indicates a certain amount of familiarity with his business. He enters usually through a window but with equal ease picks the occasional lock. Usually an unlocked window stage was efectively arranged with a makes his preliminaries quite simple.

NO INQUEST IN SHOOTING AFFAIR

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 23.—Dr. E. J. F. Williams, coroner, has decided that an inquest is unnecessary in the case of Ernest J. Hanna, Kitley Township farmer, whose frozen body was discovered in a swamp in that township by Provincial Police after Hanna had taken to the woods with a shotgun following an assault upon his wife and children. Hanna shot himself. He had quarrelled with his wife over which should collect money owing him for wood sold in Smith's Falls.

CLAIM COASTGUARD LOOTED MOTORSHIP

Captain of Alleged Nova Scotia Rum-Runner Says Articles Stolen From Ship.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 23.—Coastguardsmen of the patrol boat Active stole cigars, a fountain pen and half a dozen souvenir pencils from the Shelburne, N. S., motor cruiser Radio II and other property was "missing" following the recent seizure of the ship, 35 miles off the Boston Lightship, declared Captain Fenton Shenkle, of the alleged rum-runner, in the office of the United States marshall here. Captain Shenkle and eight members of his crew were held for hearing January 19 on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle liquor into the United States

No official charge was made against anyone on the Active but Attorney Matthew L. McGrath, counsel for the Nova Scotians, promised a thorough investigation into the matter.

The Radio II was chased for an hour and 25 shots were fired at it, according to Captain Shenkle.

"One of my men missed a pair of rubber boots," he said, "and I reported this to Boatswain Gordon Hammond, who was in charge. He returned with them a short time later. They took a box of cigars, a pen and the souvenir pencils. Two sextants were missing and a barometer was missing too. I don't know if they will be given back to us."

No mention of the alleged thefts was made when the men were arraigned, but the hearing was confined to unanimous pleas of not guilty. When federal officials boarded the Active in the lower harbor, Captain Shenkle is reported to have agreed that he "had no fault to find" with the treatment accorded by Hammond, in charge of the coastguard boat. Some doubt was later expressed by federal officials that any property had been stolen from the Radio II They thought that when Captain Shenkle had a chance to search among his belongings the missing articles would be found.

Captain Shenkle said "there was plenty to eat' 'aboard the patrol boat, but the men were given no water with which to wash and had no place to lie down. "Whenever we walked about, there was a fellow after us with a gun," he asserted.

Big Power Generator Is Set In Operation

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 23.—(C.P.)—The largest Hydro Electric Power generator unit the world has seen in operation, was set in motion yesterday at the power plant of the Alco Power Company at Arvida, Quebec, on the Saguenay river.

The gigantic piece of machinery, exceeding by 10 per cent. the largest machine at Niagara Falls, is the product of Canadian engineering and machine shop skil. It develops 77,000 horse power.

The generator was built at Hamilton to designs by Canadian engineers. The water wheel of the unit was built in Toronto.

A Great Waterway

Among the natural assets of North America none is more important than the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes chain, forming collectively the world's largest body of fresh water.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

The old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure has no truer application than in the case of fire.

Carefulness costs nothing, yet thousands of dollars are saved every day, for instance, by the matches that are not thrown away while burning.

Every child should be taught to recognize and appreciate the dangers that lie in all exposed flames.

Of the ten thousand annual deaths by fire in the United States, one-third are children under ten years of age.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 53 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When Tarzan of the Apes realized that he was in the grip of the great jaws of a crocodile, he did not give up all hope and resign himself to his fate. Instead he filled his lungs with air before the huge reptile dragged him beneath the surface, and then, with all the might of his great muscles, fought bitterly for freedom. The monster dragged its prey swiftly through the water.

Soon the ape-man's lungs were bursting for air. He knew that he could survive but a moment more, and in the last paroxysm of his suffering he did what he could to avenge his own death. His body trailed out beside the slimy carcass of his captor, and in the tough armor Tarzan attempted to plunge his stone knife as he was borne to the creatures horrid den. His efforts merely accelerated the crocodile's progress.

Just as Tarzan realized he had reached the limit of his endurance he felt his body dragged to a muddy bed and his nostrils rise above the water's surface. All about him was the blackness of the pit. For a moment Tarzan lay gasping for breath upon the slimy, evil-smelling bed to which the animal had borne him. Close beside him he felt the cold hard plate's of the creature's hide.

Its chest was rising and falling as though with spasmodic efforts to breathe. For several moments the two lay thus, and then a sudden convulsion of the giant carcass at the man's side, a tremor, and a stiffening brought Tarzan to his knees beside the crocodile. To his utter amazement, he found that the beast was dead. The slim knife had found a vulnerable spot in the scaly armor.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then held with the following results:

President, T. Sargent; Vice-president, Dr. J. E. Middleton; 2nd Vice-president, Mrs. E. S. Martin; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Chandler; Hon. solicitor, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; assistant secretary, Mrs. Young; inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston. Executive recommended: Mesdames G. H. Nelson, R. H. Parsons, W. F. McWilliams, R. Ross, R. M. Stuart, Misses Bessie Latimer, Vida Foote, Adeline Hall, Wyatt, Helen Brown; Messrs. Dr. J. J. Craig, Major F. Hills, E. J. Graham, James Juby, James Skinner, Dr. A. M. Johnson, H. R. Roberts, F. A. Wallwork.

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. W. R. Morris, chairman of Board of Education who said she pinned her faith to the young in this work and that she thought that no opportunity should be lost to bring before the young the unhumanity of trapping wild animals. She mentioned the interest she had always taken in the work, particularly in the early stages of its history and she felt it was now on a substantial footing. She was intensely interested in the use of more humane methods in regard to the question of methods in catching animals for fur traffic. She referred to the laws recently passed in United States abolishing the steel jawed trap.

At this point Mrs. Chandler gave a summary of cases Dr. Johnston had dealt with as follows:

Horses examined, 75; horses humanely destroyed, 5; dogs brought to shelter, 143; dogs humanely destroyed, 88; dogs placed in homes, 36; dogs claimed by owners, 21; cats brought to shelter, 228; cats humanely destroyed, 163; cats given out to homes, 11; summons issued, 4; number of convictions, 3; dismissals, 1; complaints investigated, 134; warnings issued, 53; emergency calls, 37; street inspections, 14; market inspections, 25.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray street Baptist church gave a very fine address.

He said he had learned many things concerning the work from the reports and approved of the work being done to help the animals.

"I want to congratulate this society on being engaged in the greatest thing of all—"Life." Life is a trust and we are responsible for what we do with life. Live and let live, is an epigram worth while. We apply it to humans but often think it does not apply to animals."

Dr. T. Johnston's Report

"We have had a very interesting year and I have covered a lot of ground and accomplished a lot of work. Only three cases were brought to court; one for not properly taking care of chickens; the other case in the city was for a man beating a horse unmercifully. He put up a defence but lost and was fined $10.00.

"In my opinion the fines are not sufficient for the severity of the crime. The other case I took to court was when two boys tied a dog to their auto and dragged him on the pavement half a mile, then threw him into the ditch. They thought he was dead, but after a while he recovered and went home. They were fined $50 and costs, amounting to $103. This case was tried before Magistrate Floyd and prosecuted by the late Crown Attorney Kerr of Cobourg. I am sure you all join with me in extending to F. D. Kerr and his sister, Mrs. McDonald of Cobourg, our sincere sympathy in the loss of their dear brother. The Humane Society has lost a true friend and superior gentleman.

"I condemned and had a cow suffering from tuberculosis in the village of Omemee destroyed; her condition justified such action.

"I can assure you the majority of the citizens and people in the surrounding country appreciate the service the Humane Society is giving them for so little in the way of costs. I think 9 out of 10 cats are homeless that we are called upon to get. Most of them are destroyed. It is surprising how many stray dogs are turned over. I think I have placed more dogs in good homes this year than last. The secretary will likely give you the figures. I have an average of 8 to 10 dogs on hand. If I cannot get homes for them, they are destroyed. Sometimes I sell them for $1 or $2. I secure for their food stale cakes and buns from the Nut-Krust, and all the stale bread from Menzies Bread Co. for which we pay 5c a loaf and 25c a bag for cakes and buns. I also get scraps and bones from different butcher shops. Attend to all this work myself.

"I have made special inspection of all the race-tracks in this district. Two race drivers caused me quite a lot of trouble. A decided change has taken place in the care of horses on the market and streets. I had some cases at Pontypool, Cavan and Millbrook. On request of the Provincial Police at Hastings I made a visit and examined an aged horse and ordered it destroyed. Same police officer sought my advice a few days ago about dogs being poisoned in Hastings.

"A number of cases of cruelty have been delat with in the city. Some where the offenders had no idea they were cruel. One man was digging out a cellar. Had one small horse hitched to a team scraped and was scraping out white, hard-pan which had never been ploughed or loosened. A boy about 14 years of age did the driving and whipping. It was the hottest day last summer. I caught him right in the very act and made him unhitch the horse. This man insisted he was not cruel and had never been accused of cruelty before. He insisted that it was a baulky horse and if I would watch he would explain. By this time he had a fist under my nose, which I soon disposed of and told him to get the horse in the stable and care for him. I returned next day. He was using the plough and no abuse. Horse cool and all right, and so was the man."

Window Shattered

Police and transportation investigators of Toronto have been unable to locate the party who fired the rifle bullets that shattered the vestibule window of a College street car as it pulled up at St. George street, recently. The shots just missed Motorman Burns' head. The police have been unable to determine whence the bullets came, except that a northerly direction is indicated, as the glass in the right hand vestibule window was shattered, as shown in above photograph.

JURY IS LOCKED ON DE BOE CASE

Judge Orders Jurors Back Twice After Reports of Disagreement.

NEW TRIAL FORESEEN.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23. (CP)—A tired, deadlocked jury went to work to-day with only faint hopes of reaching a verdict on whether Daisy de Boe stole $15 870 from Clara Bow, film "It" girl, her former employer.

Twice yesterday the jurors reported to Superior Judge William C. Doran that prospects for an agreement were nil, but each time the court ordered them back to work.

They were locked up again last night after having deliberated about 30 hours. Just before they retired, a part of Daisy's alleged confession to a prosecuting attorney was re-read to them.

When the jurors expressed the opinion that they would never agree any better than Daisy and Clara did, Judge Doran announced he would not keep them squabbling later than Saturday.

Deputy District Attorney David Clerk, said he would begin preparations for a new trial in the eve the jury was discharged in disagreement

Work is now proceeding on the dismantling of the premises on Charlotte street, devastated by fire on the morning of January 15. Ottawa Sportsmen To Offer $125,000 For The Senator National League Club

OTTAWA, Ont., January 23 (C.P.). — Plans are under way for the purchase of the Ottawa Senator Club of the National Hockey League by a group of local sportsmen, the Ottawa Journal says to-day. Interested in the announcement that the Senator team may be shifted to another city, and desirous of putting forth an effort to keep it in the Capital, The Journal declares a number of well-known Ottawa sportsmen, as well as members of various local service clubs, have discussed the matter and tentative plans have been made to put the idea into concrete form.

Harold Code, barrister and prominent service club man is said by The Journal to have in hand the matter of forming a purchasing syndicate. "It is intended to make an offer for the Ottawa Hockey Club on the basis of a sum of approximately $125,000," The Journal goes on. That figure represents the amount turned over to Frank Ahearn, M.P., when the Auditorium Company, which controls the ice arena here, took the team over some time ago.

T. P. Gorman is mentioned by The Journal as the likely managing director of the Senator Club if the reported deal goes through. Gorman piloted the Senators for many years, during which they won the world's championship several times. At present he is assistant manager of the Agua Caliente, Mexico Jockey Club.

Arsenal Eliminated in English Cup

CHELSEA BEATS CUP FAVORITES BY 2-1 COUNT

Scoring Takes Place in the First Half of Association Game.

IN FOURTH ROUND.

Everton Blanks Crystal Palace 6-0 While Southport Subdues Blackpool 2-1.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (C.P. Cable). — Arsenal and Sheffield Wednesday were the highlights of the fourth round of the English Football Association Cup competition to-day. Arsenal, who are the Cup holders, were eliminated by their fellow Londoners, Chelsea, by two goals to one at Stamford Bridge. The Wednesday, who are the English League champions, went down to defeat at Barnsley by the same margin.

The biggest score of the day was put on by Everton, who downed Crystal Palace by six goals to nil. Exeter City, the plucky little third division club, who trounced Derby County in the third round, succeeded at Bury; while another minor team, Southport, wiped out Blackpool. A surprise was Watford's win over Brighton and Hove Albion, who have been doing so well in league games. Portsmouth, who were semi-finalists two years ago, just scraped by at Brentford. Sheffield will be represented in the next round by the United team, who to-day crushed Notts County.

Two noted first division club, Leeds United and Blackburn Rovers, came through all right, the former beating Newcastle United and the latter trouncing Bristol Rovers. Ground advantage enabled West Bromwich Albion to beat Tottenham Hotspurs, who won from them in a league match last week.

Seventy-five thousand people got into the Stamford Bridge grounds for the Chelsea-Arsenal encounter Troops as well as mounted and foot police kept the crowd in order outside and inside the grounds. The ame had a sensational start. Harper turned a fine shot from Cheyne for a corner, which Alec Jackson took. From the kick Wilson passed to Bishop, who scored for Chelsea in the fourth minute of play. Hulme then hindered Lambert when an equalizer appeared imminent In the nineteenth minute another corner was forced and Mills headed in Jackson's kick amid uproarious enthusiasm. Arsenal pressed and Bastin netted for a goal in the forty-first minute.

Assisted by the wind the Arsenal were a revitalized side in the second half. Chelsea's defence was of the sturdy variety, and they nipped all threats in the bud. After

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Women members of the Government bloc in parliament, who hitherto have voted along strict party lines, broke into open mutiny yesterday when the Government introduced a Bill which would relax the week-end prohibition of liquor, inaugurated ten years ago, on the motion of a woman deputy.

The present law prohibits sale of liquor from Saturday noon to Monday noon, but it is widely violated

The eleven women in the Government bloc were frantic. They made speeches, then they stormed up and down the chamber, joining forces with women deputies in the opposing parties and disrupting the discussion.

A vote on the Bill was postponed.

$30,000 LOSS.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 24. — (C.P.).—The large frame flour mill of Messrs. Parker and Wilson at Shelburne was completely destroyed at an early hour on Saturday morning, the loss being estimated at $30,000.

The mill caught fire on Friday afternoon on the third floor, but the blaze was confined to that floor at the time, and but comparatively small damage was done.

Two watchmen were left in charge, but shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday morning it broke out afresh, and this time the whole mass was destroyed, along with its equipment and stock of grain.

The fire was one of the most spectacular in years. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

SERIOUS TROUBLE LOOMS FOR GOV'T ON DISPUTES BILL

Predict Dissolution of Parliament Be Asked For if Gov't Defeated.

SIMON HOLDS KEY.

Lloyd George Doubtful of Ability to Assure Liberal "Safety."

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 24. (By Geo. Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—The Macdonald Labor Government is facing two-way trouble. The division on second reading of the Trades Disputes Bill, now scheduled for eleven o'clock Wednesday night, will be critical. The prediction is common that if the Government is defeated it will ask for dissolution of Parliament.

The majority of Liberals have indicated their intention to abstain from voting on the division, thus allowing the bill to go to committee. But their abstention from the division lobbies is accompanied by a demand for so many amendments to the bill, that many Labor members are wondering if the bill be worth the trouble after the hurly-burly is done. And there is a Liberal group of about a dozen, led by Sir John Simon, who intend to oppose the bill.

Simon Key to Situation

If Sir John Simon can take sufficient Liberals with him into the opposition Lobby, the scales against the Government may be turned despite the majority of Liberal abstentions.

Within its own ranks too the Government is finding dificulties. The group led by Sir Oswald Mosley continues to press for a conference on unemployment. A special meeting of the parliamentary Labor party has been called for Tuesday to discuss it.

Tongues are wagging over the private meeting of Premier Macdonald and Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal Leader, yesterday, when the latter is reported to have confessed to the Prime minister his inability to guarantee complete Liberal "safety" in connection with the Trades Disputes Bill, owing to the defections to the banner of Sir John Somon, who has promised open hostility to the bill.

MONTREAL REDS LAND IN PRISON

Eighteen Arrested When Meeting Winds Up in Denunciation of Police Force.

HONORING LENIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 24 (C.P.) —Breaking up a meeting which opened quietly but developed into a denunciation of the police force, police last night placed six women and twelve men under arrest. Two of the prisoners, Leslie Morris and Philip Halperin, were booked on charges of seditious utterance and the remainder will be charged with refusing to move when ordered to do so by police.....

The meeting, held in the Prince Arthur Hall, was attended by over 1,000 workless. Police stated that several of those arrested were found to be carrying copies of Soviet pamphlets with articles of a revolutionary and seditious nature.

Twenty-six detectives and 125 constables were assigned to the meeting.

Miss Bella Gordon, Secretary of the Canadian Labor Defense League, said the league would defend those arrested. The meeting, she said, had been called to commemorate the death of Lenin, the Russian revolutionary leader.

U. F. OF ALBERTA HIGHLY PLEASED OVER CONVENTION

Increase of Membership From 5,000 to 18,000 Inside Years Augurs Well.

200 MATTERS DISCUSSED.

Agrarians Favor 100 Per Cent. Pool Under Saskatchewan Plan.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 24.—(CP)—Farmers of Alberta today homeward plodded their weary way after a four-day annual convention ranked by officials with the most important in the 22-year history of the organization. Settled in the records were highly contentious questions, and United Farmers of Alberta delegates found satisfaction in an increase of Membership by 5,000 to 18,000 within a year.

Under the guidance of Robert Gardiner, U. F. A. member of the House of Commons for Acadia, the farm body steps into 1931 after 15 consecutive years as followers of Henry Wise Wood, retired from the presidency. The organization ruled the opinion on close to 200 matters, prominent among which were so-called compulsory pooling, price-fixing and secession.

The Alberta agrarians favored the 100-per-cent pool under the Saskatchewan plan, standing alongside wheat-pool members in Alberta who have asked a growers ballot on the "perfect pool."

Premier J. E. Brownlee has not yet stated whether the Government will support legislation to enable a vote on the matter. In Saskatchewan, the ballot is practised prior to Manitoba, for the time at least, it is refused.

On price-fixing, the Alberta unit stood back of the Prairie Premiers' request for a set valuation on wheat of 70 cents per bushel for number one northern, Fort William, Saskatchewan farmers, as well, favored a "pegged" price but the Manitoba branch of United Farmers characertized the stabilized quotations as mere drop in the existing economic crisis.

Opposition to proposed economic secession of the west from the rest of Canada was recorded by the U. F. A. However, the organization reaffirmed its approval of free-trade policies.

Mexican Cat Grasps Playmate By Throat—Owner Kills Animal With Hammer.

CHARGE IS LAID.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 24.—A captive Mexican lion slew Viola Friesen, 2 years old, at her home here last night, betraying confidence built up in hours of play. He was killed for the treachery.

The child chose to visit the lion, staked out in the yard at her home, while her sister, Sarah, 15, and a brother, Harry, 16, took clothes from a line.

The animal, owned by C. Coley, operator of a jungle show, in winter quarters here, sprang as she approached. The other children were unable to beat him from her throat. Coley, attracted by their screams, slew the lion with a hammer.

Viola, her juglar vein severed, died in a hospital. Coley was booked on a charge of negligent homicide.

Cops Play "Kitchy Kitchy" With Baby, Then "Kitch" Papa for Wheeling Booze

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 24.—The policemen were just crazy to see the baby and that's why Mack Ambroski is in the lockup.

Bent on raiding the Ambroski home because somebody charged Mr. Ambroski was selling wishey, the officers rushed to the home, but they stopped short at the door when they saw Mack carefully moving a baby carriage back and forth.

Mack whistled low.

The officers gingerly gathered around.

One could not restrain himself. "Kitchy, Kitchy," he giggled as he gently pulled the cover down.

CROWDS GATHER TO SEE MAHATMA FREED IN POONA

If Action Taken Gandhi Likely Be Spirited Away to Avoid Outbreak.

NO FINAL DECISION.

Nationalist Leader May Refuse Release Unless All Political Prisoners Are Freed.

POONA, British India, Jan. 24. — Great crowds of Indian Nationalists were gathered here to-day in anticipation of release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi, an event which seems assured though the government has maintained secrecy regarding the date and hour.

Assembly near the prison has been forbidden and there was a belief that if Gandhi is liberated the authorities would try to spirit him away by night as a precaution against manifestations by his followers. It was not known whether the Mahatma would be permitted to go where he pleased or would be obliged to follow instructions of the British government.

There was still a possibility that Gandhi might decline an offer of freedom unless the tens of thousands of other political prisoners also were liberated. The Viceroy and his Council were studying that question to-day and a formal declaration regarding general political amnesty is expected within a day or so.

CONVICTS APPEAL TO BE ALLOWED

TELL AMAZING STORIES.

LONDON, January 24 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).One of the most amazing cases ever to come before Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council—and there have been many—is the appeal of three convicts who escaped in open boats from Devil's Island, the famous French penal colony.

The Judicial Committee to-day granted the three special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Trinidad, which had dismissed their application for a writ of habeas corpus. The three have been kept in custody in Trinidad since they reached that colony.

The applicants, one Russian another Polish, and the third French, have no money for the appeal to the Privy Council, but Their Lordships nevertheless granted them leave to appeal. They tell almost unbelievable stories of hardship.

Eleven convicts in all managed to escape from Devil's Island in two small boats. They had very little food and water. In a heavy squall one of the boats overturned and two of the convicts were drowned. When the refugees were finally picked up four of them were unable to speak through starvation and illness.

BRIAND OFFERED CHANCE TO FORM FRENCH CABINET

SUCCEED STEEG.

Veteran Statesman Has Refused Office Three Times Before—May Refuse Again.

PARIS, January 24 (C.P.). — President Doumergue to-day telegraphed to Aristide Briand at Geneva offering him the Premiership of France.

Political experts had expected this development since the fall of the Steeg Cabinet on Thursday, but there was a general belief that Briand would decline the task of forming a new Cabinet if he were asked to do so.

He has refused the post three times in the past eighteen months in the belief that he is more valuable to the nation as Foreign Minister continuing his job of building a permanent peace for Europe.

MILD SETBACK AT NEW YORK

SOME PROFIT TAKING.

A vigorous effort to extend the rally by bidding up the automobile shares was less successful than similar efforts have been in the rail issues of late, whatever may be the efforts of motor competition in the field transportation.

The market reflected week-end profit taking at the start but in the middle the session stiffened with a rise of 1 to 4 points in motor and accessory issues. The upturn was only used to liquidate industrials and utilities, however, and the list closed irregularly lower, with much of the advance in the motors lost. Rails were quiet and steady.

It was notable that trading failed to show much vitality on the decline. Total sales for the two-hour session were only about 1,150,000 shares. The continued maintenance of the improvet tone of the bond market was regarded as distinctly favorable.

Tobaccosw ere selling targets in the final transactions. It appeared that bears selected these issues for an attack, on the basis of retail cigarette price-cutting, although manufacturers' prices have not been changed, and their profits may be increased by the stimulus to consumption.

Youngstown Company To Appeal Decision

YOUNGSTOWN, O., January 24 (C.P.). — Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company officials announced at a directors' meeting to-day that they would appeal the recent court decision enjoining the company's proposed merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Announcement of the decision was made by Walter Meub, secretary-treasurer of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, who emerged from the meeting long enough to say:

"We're going to appeal. That's all we are giving out."

Meub at once returned to the meeting, without answering reporters questions.

250,000 Spinners Likely to be Jobless As a Direct Result

Ballot Among Lancashire Cotton Industry Workers Resulted in Vote of 90,770 to 44,900 Against 'More Looms Per Weaver' System.

WEAVERS CONTEND MORE WOULD BE WORKLESS THOUGH SYSTEM MEANS $10 EXTRA WEEKLY PER MAN

Prospect of Long Tie-up Looms As All Peace Parleys So Far Have Been Futile—Gov't Intervention Expected But No Indication of Trend is Apparent.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 24.—Weavers in the Lancashire cotton industry voted heavily against authorizing their leaders to resume so-called more looms per weaver system.

A ballot among union members stood 90,770 against 44,900, it was announced this afternoon.

Mill owners locked out 250,000 weavers on this issue and the adverse vote probably means that an equal number of spinners will be thrown into idleness and the textile industry will be tied up until the difficulty is solved.

The objectionable system required that each weaver now operating four looms take over twice that many. The owners offered a $10.00 a week wage increase but the weavers contended that the system would throw many out of work.

Peace parley were futile even after the government stepped in and the lockout came a week ago. Now there is a prospect of a long tie-up.

Government Expected To Act

Government intervention is expected but no one could predict what form it would take.

Shortly after the vote result was announced three conciliation officers of the Ministry of Labor arrived here presumably for immediate conferences with the union officials and the employers.

HEPBURN RAKES PRICE FOR STAND IN BROKER CASES

PEOPLE WANT PROBE.

Price's Political Head Demanded For Millions People Were Fleeced of.

SPENCERVILLE, January 24 (C.P.). — Renewing his attack on the administration of Hon. W. H. Price as Provincial Attorney-General, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, last night charged him with an attitude of "benevolent neutrality" in connection with the broker situation. This had resulted, Mr. Hepburn said, in "thousands of men and women in Ontario being fleeced out of millions of dollars," and on their behalf he demanded the Attorney-General's political head.

The people of Ontario, the Liberal Leader declared, would never rest content "until either Mr. Price goes or he is freed of all blame by a Royal Commission."

Noting that there had been rumors of an injunction being taken out restraining him from commenting on the broker situation while cases were before the Courts, Mr. Hepburn said: "It is not the Stimson Company that is on trial; it is Mr. Price. He provoked the argument."

Duffus Addresses Friday Supper Club

With alterations and extensions to the Y.M.C.A. building advancing at a rapid pace, members of the Friday Night Supper Club were last evening enabled to re-occupy their former quarters on the second floor dining room, where approximately 50 members assembled to hear a splendid and inspiring address on "Citizenship," which was delivered with great force and eloquence by J. J. Duffus.

Under the chairmanship of C. A. Salmonsen, the meeting lacked nothing in zest, while during the course of the evening Arthur Waddell was appointed secretary-treasurer in place of A. Pagett, who relinquished that position which he has filled with great satisfaction to all concerned, on account of his removal to Ottawa. Gordon Dobbin was also appointed to the executive committee.

BROWN SUPREMACY OVER WORLD PREDICTED BY PHILIPPINO ROXAS

AT SANTA CRUZ.

MANILA. Jan. 24 (C.P.). — The Philippine Herald, Nationalistic newspaper, to-day quoted Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the House, as saying in a speech yesterday the Philippines were "writhing in hell," and as predicting some day the white man would fall and the brown race would rule the world.

The newspaper said Roxas threw his audience at Santa Cruz, Lacuna Province, into commotion when he bitterly declared:

"The Philippines are now writhing in the throes of hell, a hell of slavery and foreign domination. Our country, the greatest mother of us all, because she made us what we are and gave us what we have, is weeping, pleading, crying to us, her children, to come to her aid and save her from eternal damnation."

Predicting world supremacy of the brown race, Roxas said:

"All things have their rise and fall. The black man had his day of supreme power and glory. Black generals from Egypt, Cathage and Babylon once swept the plains of Europe and conquered the white peoples inhabiting the continent. The white man succeeded the black and to-day he still rules supreme; he still dominates and tyranizes; he still looks down on all other races as inferior. But the day will come when the whites will also bite the dust and taste the bitter fruit of tyranny. Then will come the brown man's turn. He will hold the world in his hands and rule supreme over all other races."

IMMORTAL MEMORY OF BURNS HONORED BY CALEDONIAN CLUB

Judge Huycke the Guest Speaker Pays Tribute to Scotland's Heroes.

172ND ANNIVERSARY.

Scotsmen and women, members of the Peterborough Caledonian Club, in common with their compatriots the world over, met last evening on the occasion of the 172nd anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, to drink a toast to his "Immortal Memory," and to honor him in recitation and song so dear to Gaelic hearts.

The celebrations, held in Paragon Hall, under the chairmanship of President William Petrie, viewed from all angles, was a remarkable success. About 120 persons sat down to a sumptuous repast, replete with numerous tasty dishes—including haggis—peculiar to the cuisine of their native country, while following the repast a splendid address, touching on matters dear and near to the heart of all Scotsmen was given by His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

Decorated in keeping with the occasion, and with a large print of "Bobbie" Burns occupying a prominent place, the brightness and gaiety of the scene was further enhanced by the appearance of several executive members in the national Scotch costume.

Following grace—"the grace" which Burns composed, the haggis was brought in with due ceremony, to the accompaniment of the bagpipes played by Piper Alex Milne. The haggis bearers, Bandsmen R. Henry

CHELSEA BEATS CUP FAVORITES BY 2-1 COUNT

Scoring Takes Place in the First Half of Association Game.

IN FOURTH ROUND.

Everton Blanks Crystal Palace 6-0 While Southport Subdues Blackpool 2-1.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (C.P. Cable). — Arsenal and Sheffield Wednesday were the highlights of the fourth round of the English Football Association Cup competition to-day. Arsenal, who are the Cup holders, were eliminated by their fellow Londoners, Chelsea, by two goals to one at Stamford Bridge. The Wednesday, who are the English League champions, went down to defeat at Barnsley by the same margin.

The biggest score of the day was put on by Everton, who downed Crystal Palace by six goals to nil. Exeter City, the plucky little third division club, who trounced Derby County in the third round, succeeded at Bury; while another minor team, Southport, wiped out Blackpool. A surprise was Watford's win over Brighton and Hove Albion, who have been doing so well in league games. Portsmouth, who were semi-finalists two years ago, just scraped by at Brentford. Sheffield will be represented in the next round by the United team, who to-day crushed Notts County.

Two noted first division club, Leeds United and Blackburn Rovers, came through all right, the former beating Newcastle United and the latter trouncing Bristol Rovers. Ground advantage enabled West Bromwich Albion to beat Tottenham Hotspurs, who won from them in a league match last week.

Seventy-five thousand people got into the Stamford Bridge grounds for the Chelsea-Arsenal encounter Troops as well as mounted and foot police kept the crowd in order outside and inside the grounds. The ame had a sensational start. Harper turned a fine shot from Cheyne for a corner, which Alec Jackson took. From the kick Wilson passed to Bishop, who scored for Chelsea in the fourth minute of play. Hulme then hindered Lambert when an equalizer appeared imminent In the nineteenth minute another corner was forced and Mills headed in Jackson's kick amid uproarious enthusiasm. Arsenal pressed and Bastin netted for a goal in the forty-first minute.

Assisted by the wind the Arsenal were a revitalized side in the second half. Chelsea's defence was of the sturdy variety, and they nipped all threats in the bud. After

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Women members of the Government bloc in parliament, who hitherto have voted along strict party lines, broke into open mutiny yesterday when the Government introduced a Bill which would relax the week-end prohibition of liquor, inaugurated ten years ago, on the motion of a woman deputy.

The present law prohibits sale of liquor from Saturday noon to Monday noon, but it is widely violated

The eleven women in the Government bloc were frantic. They made speeches, then they stormed up and down the chamber, joining forces with women deputies in the opposing parties and disrupting the discussion.

A vote on the Bill was postponed.

LONDON, January 24 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).One of the most amazing cases ever to come before Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council—and there have been many—is the appeal of three convicts who escaped in open boats from Devil's Island, the famous French penal colony.

The Judicial Committee to-day granted the three special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Trinidad, which had dismissed their application for a writ of habeas corpus. The three have been kept in custody in Trinidad since they reached that colony.

The applicants, one Russian another Polish, and the third French, have no money for the appeal to the Privy Council, but Their Lordships nevertheless granted them leave to appeal. They tell almost unbelievable stories of hardship.

Eleven convicts in all managed to escape from Devil's Island in two small boats. They had very little food and water. In a heavy squall one of the boats overturned and two of the convicts were drowned. When the refugees were finally picked up four of them were unable to speak through starvation and illness.

BRIAND OFFERED CHANCE TO FORM FRENCH CABINET

SUCCEED STEEG.

Veteran Statesman Has Refused Office Three Times Before—May Refuse Again.

PARIS, January 24 (C.P.). — President Doumergue to-day telegraphed to Aristide Briand at Geneva offering him the Premiership of France.

Political experts had expected this development since the fall of the Steeg Cabinet on Thursday, but there was a general belief that Briand would decline the task of forming a new Cabinet if he were asked to do so.

He has refused the post three times in the past eighteen months in the belief that he is more valuable to the nation as Foreign Minister continuing his job of building a permanent peace for Europe.

MILD SETBACK AT NEW YORK

SOME PROFIT TAKING.

A vigorous effort to extend the rally by bidding up the automobile shares was less successful than similar efforts have been in the rail issues of late, whatever may be the efforts of motor competition in the field transportation.

The market reflected week-end profit taking at the start but in the middle the session stiffened with a rise of 1 to 4 points in motor and accessory issues. The upturn was only used to liquidate industrials and utilities, however, and the list closed irregularly lower, with much of the advance in the motors lost. Rails were quiet and steady.

It was notable that trading failed to show much vitality on the decline. Total sales for the two-hour session were only about 1,150,000 shares. The continued maintenance of the improvet tone of the bond market was regarded as distinctly favorable.

Tobaccosw ere selling targets in the final transactions. It appeared that bears selected these issues for an attack, on the basis of retail cigarette price-cutting, although manufacturers' prices have not been changed, and their profits may be increased by the stimulus to consumption.

Youngstown Company To Appeal Decision

YOUNGSTOWN, O., January 24 (C.P.). — Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company officials announced at a directors' meeting to-day that they would appeal the recent court decision enjoining the company's proposed merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Announcement of the decision was made by Walter Meub, secretary-treasurer of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, who emerged from the meeting long enough to say:

"We're going to appeal. That's all we are giving out."

Meub at once returned to the meeting, without answering reporters questions.

250,000 Spinners Likely to be Jobless As a Direct Result

Ballot Among Lancashire Cotton Industry Workers Resulted in Vote of 90,770 to 44,900 Against 'More Looms Per Weaver' System.

WEAVERS CONTEND MORE WOULD BE WORKLESS THOUGH SYSTEM MEANS $10 EXTRA WEEKLY PER MAN

Prospect of Long Tie-up Looms As All Peace Parleys So Far Have Been Futile—Gov't Intervention Expected But No Indication of Trend is Apparent.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 24.—Weavers in the Lancashire cotton industry voted heavily against authotizing their leaders to resume so-called more looms per weaver system.

A ballot among union members stood 90,770 against 44,900, it was announced this afternoon.

Mill owners locked out 250,000 weavers on this issue and the adverse vote probably means that an equal number of spinners will be thrown into idleness and the textile industry will be tied up until the difficulty is solved.

The objectionable system required that each weaver now operating four looms take over twice that many. The owners offered a $10.00 a week wage increase but the weavers contended that the system would throw many out of work.

Peace parley were futile even after the government stepped in and the lockout came a week ago. Now there is a prospect of a long tie-up.

Government Expected To Act

Government intervention is expected but no one could predict what form it would take.

Shortly after the vote result was announced three conciliation officers of the Ministry of Labor arrived here presumably for immediate conferences with the union officials and the employers.

HEPBURN RAKES PRICE FOR STAND IN BROKER CASES

PEOPLE WANT PROBE.

Price's Political Head Demanded For Millions People Were Fleeced of.

SPENCERVILLE, January 24 (C. P.). — Renewing his attack on the administration of Hon. W. H. Price as Provincial Attorney-General, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, last night charged him with an attitude of "benevolent neutrality" in connection with the broker situation. This had resulted, Mr. Hepburn said, in "thousands of men and women in Ontario being fleeced out of millions of dollars," and on their behalf he demanded the Attorney-General's political head.

The people of Ontario, the Liberal Leader declared, would never rest content "until either Mr. Price goes or he is freed of all blame by a Royal Commission."

Noting that there had been rumors of an injunction being taken out restraining him from commenting on the broker situation while cases were before the Courts, Mr. Hepburn said: "It is not the Stimson Company that is on trial; it is Mr. Price. He provoked the argument."

Duffus Addresses Friday Supper Club

With alterations and extensions to the Y.M.C.A. building advancing at a rapid pace, members of the Friday Night Supper Club were last evening enabled to re-occupy their former quarters on the second floor dining room, where approximately 50 members assembled to hear a splendid and inspiring address on "Citizenship," which was delivered with great force and eloquence by J. J. Duffus.

Under the chairmanship of O. A. Salmonsen, the meeting lacked nothing in zest, while during the course of the evening Arthur Waddell was appointed secretary-treasurer in place of A. Pagett, who relinquished that position which he has filled with great satisfaction to all concerned, on account of his removal to Ottawa. Gordon Dobbin was also appointed to the executive committee.

AT SANTA CRUZ.

MANILA, Jan. 24 (C.P.). — The Philippine Herald, Nationalistic newspaper, to-day quoted Manlel Roxas, Speaker of the House, as saying in a speech yesterday the Philippines were "writhing in hell," and as predicting some day the white man would fall and the brown race would rule the world.

The newspaper said Roxas threw his audience at Santa Cruz, Lacuna Province, into commotion when he bitterly declared:

"The Philippines are now writhing in the throes of hell, a hell of slavery and foreign domination. Our country, the greatest mother of us all, because she made us what we are and gave us what we have, is weeping, pleading, crying to us, her children, to come to her aid and save her from eternal damnation."

Predicting world supremacy of the brown race, Roxas said:

"All things have their rise and fall. The black man had his day of supreme power and glory. Black generals from Egypt, Cathage and Babylon once swept the plains of Europe and conquered the white peoples inhabiting the continent. The white man succeeded the black and to-day he still rules supreme; he still dominates and tyranizes; he still looks down on all other races as inferior. But the day will come when the whites will also bite the dust and taste the bitter fruit of tyranny. Then will come the brown man's turn. He will hold the world in his hands and rule supreme over all other races."

IMMORTAL MEMORY OF BURNS HONORED BY CALEDONIAN CLUB

172ND ANNIVERSARY.

Scotsmen and women, members of the Peterborough Caledonian Club, in common with their compatriots the world over, met last evening on the occasion of the 172nd anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, to drink a toast to his "Immortal Memory," and to honor him in recitation and song so dear to Gaelic hearts.

The celebrations, held in Paragon Hall, under the chairmanship of President William Petrie, viewed from all angles, was a remarkable success. About 120 persons sat down to a sumptuous repast, replete with numerous tasty dishes—including haggis—peculiar to the cuisine of their native country, while following the repast a splendid address, touching on matters dear and near to the heart of all Scotsmen was given by His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

Decorated in keeping with the occasion, and with a large print of "Bobbie" Burns occupying a prominent place, the brightness and gaiety of the scene was further enhanced by the appearance of several executive members in the national Scotch costume.

Following grace—"the grace" which Burns composed, the haggis was brought in with due ceremony, to the accompaniment of the bagpipes played by Piper Alex Milne. The haggis bearers, Bandsmen R. Henry

TWO PER CENT. TURNOVER TAX HELD AS BEST SOLUTION FOR WIPING OUT DEFICIT OF $50,000,000 FOR YEAR

Would Place Levy on Wholesale Dealers and Manufacturers Only.

NO INCOME TAX BOOST.

Abolition of a Number of Exemptions Under Sales Tax Quite Probable.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—A 2 per cent. turnover tax to be imposed on manufacturers and wholesale dealers only, no increase in the income tax, abolition of a number of exemptions under the sales tax, and relatively few tariff changes, are the principal fiscal proposals likely to be submitted to Parliament by Premier R. B. Bennett.

While obviously no one in an official capacity will venture an opinion as to these proposals, yet, from the intimations gleaned by business and financial men in the past few weeks, the program indicated is considered as close a guess as can be made at this time.

To Avoid Heavy Borrowing

It has been known for some time that, unless the Government decided to engage in heavy borrowing, the Treasury, with declining revenues and mounting expenditures, would have no escape from onerous taxation increases; but the policy of the Government is understood to be that, with drastic economy and with a carefully imposed tax on business turnover, the need of borrowing will not be great.

It has been computed that a 2 per cent. turnover would not fall far short of wiping out the deficit of more than $50,000,000 for the year.

Benefited Under Tariff

In defense of the suggestion of a turnover tax confined to manufacturers and wholesale dealers, it is pointed out that very substantial benefits accrued to these interests from the extensive tariff increases enacted at the special September session.

EGG CIRCLE HAS ANNUAL SESSION

E. J. Bonney Elected 1931 President—80,000 Mark is Aim For Ensuing Year.

Cheaper Production Needed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The annual meeting of the English Line Egg Circle was held in the Ferris Block, Campbellford, on Thursday when the report of the year was presented to the members, officers elected and guest speakers heard. E. J. Monny, the president of the association occupied the chair, while T. H. Rowe, in the absence of the secretary, Lindsay Anderson, acted in that capacity.

The slate of officers elected for 1931 were as follows: President, E. J. Bonney; vice-president, W. Wynn; secretary, E. J. Anderson; directors, Mrs. A. Barnum, Mrs. M. Longmore, Mrs. F. Peake, Mrs. W. McDonald, Mrs. W. Todd.

In opening the meeting the president spoke a few words relative to the past year's work. He drew attention to the fact that although the volume of business had decreased some during the past season, the quality had increased. There had been more extra grades in the past year than the year previous, which he thought was a good sign. The decrease in volume he placed as the result of more local opposition.

Manager's Report

T. H. Rowe, the manager, gave his report for the year, which was as follows:

Number of members shipping, 189.
Cash paid in advance $20 243.87
Manager's commission 1,107.47
Dividends to members 965 69
Total received from sales ..$22,317.03
Average selling price per doz. 28½cts.

Grading

No. doz. extras .....35,403—04
No. doz. firsts .....31,723—11
No. doz. seconds & c.....10,856—10
No. doz. bad ..... 282—11
Total dozen shipped .....78,256—00
Expenses $42.61

Equipment

360 large cases, valued at $175.00
250 small cases, valued at 75.00

Speaking on this report Mr. Rowe drew attention to the fact that the averag selling price of eggs was a little down from the previous year, the 1929 figures being 29.1. Of his commission the speaker said that about $250.00 he had not collected, but was willing to forgo this amount owing to the state of the market and conditions generally. He was glad however to say that 1930 was the smallest year for expenses that the Circle had known. The itemized amount of $42 61 was as shown.

Rent, $3; advrtising, $1.50; envelopes, $1.80; stamps, $2; books. 40c; pads (case), $4.15; 30 small cases, $11.51; fillers and flats, $9.60; insurance, $6; telephone, $4.10. This was all paid out of membership fees that amounted to $47.25, the balance being applied to the manager's commission.

At the conclusion of this report a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Rowe for his liberality in connection with the commission.

Speaking on the subject of next season's work, the president pointed out that Mr. Rowe had agreed to handle the eggs for 1½ cents a dozen providing the output could be brought up to the 80,000 mark. The figure at present was 78 000.

Marketing Problems

R. H. Ashton of Belleville addressed the meeting on marketing problems of the egg industry. Although a buyer, he said that he was a farmer and therefore was more interested with the problems of the producer and not the trade.

Of the egg situation he said that ten years ago there were twenty seven million birds in the country

HATCHET BURIED AT CONFERENCE ON FREE SPEECH

Toronto Mayor Claims Police Commission Will Form Own Policy.

SPIRITED ARGUMENTS.

Dr. Salem Bland Leading Delegation of Objectors Denies He is Communist.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24.—(CP)—Free speech within the law is held by the Toronto Board of Police Commissioners to be the right of every citizen but free speech which contravenes the law is liable to prosecution. These principles were laid down yesterday by Mayor Stewart, Chairman of the Board, after a heated debate with representatives of a delegation protesting against police methods in declining to issue permits for certain public meetings in the halls of the City. The discussion ended with conciliatory statements on both sides and an apparent accord in the matter.

Form Own Policy

Mayor Stewart intimated the present Police Commission would formulate its own policy in administrating the laws in regard to free speech regardless of the actions of previous boards.

Twenty members of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, headed by Rev. Dr. Salem Bland and Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath attended the meeting of the commission to make the protest. Judge Emerson Coatsworth and Judge F. N. Morson, in addition to the Mayor, comprise the Commission. The meeting was open to the public and the press for the first time in the history of the Commission.

There were some warm passages between the Commissioners and members of the delegation during the early part of the proceedings. Judge Morson asked Dr. Bland if he was a Communist. After objecting to this cross-examination as "intolerable, irrelevant and inapplicable," Dr. Bland declared he was not a Communist.

In regard to the matter before the Commission, Dr. Bland said the Commission was assuming to be "the court and the judge and the jury." The Fellowship did not criticize police action against those who break the law, but it did protest against policemen of any rank "taking the law unto themselves and deciding in advance whether a meeting is going to be lawful or not."

Fellowship Refused Hall

Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath, President of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, read a statement setting forth the organization had been refused the rental of a hall because of the orders of the police to the manager of the building.

In concluding the conference Judge Coatsworth remarked, "Now we are agreed on two things—what free speech is and what are the limits of the law. Let us bury the hatchet and go on." The judge suggested a "round table conference" if at any time the delegation thought the Commission or the Police administration was "going a little out of the way."

The speakers said there were no Communists in the Fellowship of Conciliation, so far as they were aware.

WEST INDIES ARE ABLY DESCRIBED

Mrs. L. A. Potvin Addresses Members of Lyceum Women's Art Association.

SHOWS SERIES OF SLIDES.

"Holidyaing in the West Indies," illustrated by a series of fine plain and colored slides shown by L. A. Potvin, was the title of a very interesting talk given by Mrs. Potvin in the studio of the Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon, to members of the Lyceum Women's Art Association. The pictures were taken by Mr. Potvin's moving picture camera during their recent trip to those pleasant isles of the southern waters, and they proved very attractive to their watchers, while Mrs. Potvin's talk described entertainingly the many points of interest visited.

Mrs. W. Blackwell, president of the society, introduced the speaker and also voiced the vote of thanks at the conclusion of the program.

These are islands where motors are unknown in many places and where hazards of traffic have to do with bicycles and the bearers of those awkward-looking bundles which the women bear so easily on their heads.

They showed Porto Rico, with its Spanish fortifications and the groves of pineapple and fields of sugar cane, and the French island of Martinique with Mount Pelee in the background and the painted houses in soft shades. Here champagne is obtained at 75 cents and a dollar a bottle, while other things, like perfume, are very cheap in so many of these open ports.

There was Barbadoes, with its flying fish and its crowded population, and the white sails of boats in the harbor at Georgetown; Venezuela and the beautiful mountain driveway to Caracas; a cocoanut market and a bull ring; Curacos, of Dutch governing, famous for its liquer distilled from orange skins; Panama and the port of Cristobal, the Gatun Locks and the Culebra Cut; Colon and the famous Rose Walk, cactus fences, high and thorny, and gorgeous bougainvillea blossoms; Trinidad, with its asphalt lake and its orchids growing from trees and selling, four for a quarter; Haiti, the negro republic, with its primitive homes built on stilts, and its dark-skinned natives, and then Havana, with its wonderful Prado and the looming facade of the church where for many generations slumbered in peace the remains of Christopher Columbus. There were flamingoes here, tall bamboo trees and royal palms, and then came Nassau, with hollyhocks and hibiscus blooming in Feburay.

The afternoon concluded with the service of tea and a pleasant half hour of talk.

REGINA, Sask., Jan. 24 (C.P.).—The Government emerged victorious in an early morning division to-day in the Saskatchewan Legislature. Ulrich, a member of the former Liberal administration. When the House divided at 1.30 a.m., the Government was upheld by 33 votes to 26. The vote was on strict party lines.

DAISY DE BOE FOUND GUILTY ON ONE COUNT

Verdict Against Film Star's Secretary Comes After 49 Hours Debating.

SENTENCE SET FOR JAN. 26.

Jurors Recommend Clemency and Render Acquittal on 34 Charges.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24.—Daisy De Boe, former secretary to Clara Bow, screen actress, was convicted of one count of grand theft by a jury in Superior Judge Doran's court yesterday.

The verdict came at the end of nearly forty-nine hours of deliberation after a compromise was reached by the jurors, eight of whom had been balloting for an acquittal and four for conviction.

The compromise was recalled after the jurors twice had told Judge Doran they were unable to agree, and the state and defense counsel virtually had abandoned hope of a verdict. A provision of the compromise recommended that clemency be exercised in the passing of sentence, which was set for next Monday, Jan. 26.

On all the thirty-four remaining counts, alleging Miss De Boe stole from the bank account of the actress, the jury returned an acquietal.

A few days ago I visited the Workshop of John Plane and found him engrossed in a message which he had just received from his friend, George T. B. Davis.

Mr. Davis was associated with the late Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman in his world-wide evangelistic campaign. He had charge of that department known as "Personal Work." It was his business to organize those who would be willing to do this work, and to train them with a view to the largest possible efficiency. He has enjoyed a varied experience in spiritual matters: consequently, anything he has to say along such lines carries more than the usual amount of authority.

In his message to John Plane he was endeavouring to show that the great need of our time is a real revival of spiritual life and interest; and he went on to show that the great instrument for bringing about such a revival is prayer!

I asked John Plane if he would give me permission to make my own use of this message, and he readily consented. He said: "If I know Davis at all, I am sure that he will be most happy to have you use it in any way you see fit! The more people we can get interested in the subject of 'Revival' the better for the church and for the world."

BORN AND CRADLED.

Every student of church history knows that every revival, from the day of Pentecost down to the present moment, has been born and cradled in an atmosphere of prayer and an attitude of expectancy. Ten days of earnest, eager, expectant waiting upon God in prayer preceded the Day of Pentecost. One might say, without fear of contradiction:

"It seems to be an unalterable divine law that prayer is the only power that will open the windows of Heaven, and send forth a gracious outpouring of the Spirit of God."

What would you think of a prayer-meeting that continued for one hundred years? Well, in 1727, such a meeting started at the village of Herrnhut among the Moravians in Germany. It let loose a tidal wave of spiritual power and missionary enthusiasm which continued without any signs of an ebb for more than a hundred years.

The most superficial knowledge of the history of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries will reveal the fact that those centuries were characterized by gracious visitations of God's Spirit and grace, which were a powerful factor in moulding the destiny of the nations of the Reformation. Without a doubt, prayer was the unseen force back of each of these spiritual awakenings.

A BISHOP SPEAKS.

Bishop Hasse says: "Was there ever in the whole of Church history such an astonishing prayer-meeting as that which, beginning at Herrnhut in 1727, went on one hundred years? It is something absolutely unique. It was known as the 'Hourly Intercession,' and it meant that by relays of brethren and sisters prayer without ceasing was made to God for all the works and wants of His Church. Prayer of that kind always leads to action. In this case it kindled a burning desire to make Christ's salvation known to the heathen. It led to the beginning of foreign missions. From that one small village community more than one hundred missionaries went out in twenty-five years. We will look in vain elsewhere for anything to match it in anything like the same extent."

AVERTING REVOLUTION.

Those best qualified to judge are all agreed that it was the religious awakening that swept over England under the leadership of John and Charles Wesley and George Whitefield that changed the life of the nation, and saved it from a revolution like that which engulfed France in ruin and carnage.

It cannot be denied that prayer was the vital breath of these speakers for God as they swept over Great Britain and parts of America like some rushing mighty wind from Heaven.

In his Journal, Wesley records: "I resolved by God's help to devote an hour morning and evening to private prayer, no pretense, no excuse whatsoever; and to converse face to face with God."

Whitefield said: "Sometimes whole nights were spent in prayer." And it is very important to note that it was on one of these nights of prayer that the Holy Spirit came upon Wesley and others, and sent them forth as flaming messengers.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

Of one of these meetings Wesley says: "On the first night of the new year Messrs. Hall, Kinchin, Ingham, Whitefield, Hutchins and my brother Charles were present at our love-feast, with about sixty of our brethren. About three in the morning, as we were continuing instant in prayer, the power of God came mightily upon us, insomuch that many cried out for exceeding joy, and many fell to the ground. As soon as we were recovered a little from that awe and amazement at the presence of His majesty, we broke out with one voice, 'We praise Thee, O God; we acknowledge Thee to be the Lord.'

"In America, as in Great Britain, revivals that have quickened the churches and swept multitudes into the kingdom have been among the chief forces in saving the nation from infidelity and atheism."

THE GREAT AWAKENING.

About the year 1740 the Church in America experienced such a quickening that it was known as the "Great Awakening." It continued for a score of years. George Whitefield was greatly used in fanning the revival flame. Wherever he went great crowds gathered to hear him. So great were the throngs that he had to go to the open air. In Boston it is said that he preached to an open air audience of 30,000 people.

The awakening produced a marked improvement in moral conditions in the colonies. Frank G. Beardsley in his "History of American Revivals" tells of some changes wrought by the revival.

"Young people had been led to forego their frolics, night walking, impure language and lewd songs. Both old and young alike had abandoned drinking habits, tavern haunting, profane language, and extravagance in dress. The vicious had been reformed, and the fashionable, great beaus and fine ladies, had forsaken their vanities. The Bible and books of devotion had come into greater esteem, the Lord's Day was observed more religiously, old grudges and differences had been put away, and there was a general disposition to confess sins and make restitution for wrongs that had been committed."

As I read of these things there came into my heart a great longing to see them repeated in Canada. Why can't we unite in prayer for another period of genuine revival. It would help the churches, commerce and the masses.

AT PRINCETON, TOO!

Something very interesting in connection with one of these revivals happened at Princeton. It seems that "for a period of forty years Nassau Hall had been without a revival. Young Baker with three pious companions, thinking that something ought to be done for their unconverted fellow-students, established a weekly prayer-meeting to offer up special prayer for a revival of religion in the college. This was kept up for some time without results. Finally, upon a fast day, Baker proposed to his room-mate that they go from room to room and endeavour to "break the bands of wickedness," which at length was agreed upon. That very day some six or eight of the students thus visited were converted and a revival of religion was inaugurated, which in the course of a few weeks resulted in the conversion of nearly half of the students then at Princeton. When the report of this quickening was noised abroad, it gave a powerful impulse to revivals elsewhere."

THINGS LOOKED BLACK.

In an attempt to estimate the influence of this religious awakening on the life of the youthful American republic, Mr. Beardsley says: "It was a time of beginnings in the life of the nation, a time moreover when the religious character of our country was suspended in the balances and the destinies thereof were to be decided for generations to come. For a while the overthrow of Christianity seemed to be complete. Churches were declining. Revivals were few. The educated and influential almost universally regarded Christianity with indifference, if not with open contempt. Infidelity was rife and was increasing alarmingly on every hand. In fact, all indications seemed to point to a decline in that faith which had animated the Pilgrim Fathers and inspired the hopes of the early settlers of our country."

Mr. Beardsley thinks that the inception of this revival at such a time could not but be regarded as one of the signal manifestations of God's providential dealings of which the national history of the United States affords so many examples. By means of its gracious influences the weak churches grew strong and all the Christian activities of the land throbbed with the pulsations of a new life. Every condition of society was reached from the cultured classes of staid New England to the untutored settlers on the frontier of what then constituted the remote West. Infidelity became a vanishing force, while the religious character of the United States seemed assured for generations to come.

PRAYER AND REVIVAL.

I have heard it said that the history of revivals is the history of religion, and that no one can study their history and fail to be impressed with their mighty influence upon the destiny of the race.

Those who will take time to look back over the progress of the Divine Kingdom upon earth will discover that they are reviewing periods of revival which have come like refreshing showers upon dry and thirsty ground, making the desert to blossom as the rose, and bringing new eras of spiritual life and activity just when the Church had fallen under the influence of the apathy of the times, and needed to be aroused to a new sense of her duty and responsibility.

"All revivals are dependent upon God, but in revivals, as in other things, He invites and requires the assistance of man, and the full result is obtained when there is co-operation between the Divine and the human. In other words, to employ a familiar phrase, God alone can save the world, but God cannot save the world alone. God and man unite for the task, the response of the Divine being invariably in proportion to the desire and the effort of the human."

If we would have revival we must give ourselves to prayer! When Wesley prayed England was revived; when John Knox prayed, Scotland was refreshed; when the Sunday School teachers of Tannybrook prayed, 11,000 young people were added to the Church in a year. Those who know anything about Church history know that whole nights of prayer have always been succeeded by whole days of soul-winning!

With a sincere desire for more prayer, more power, and more of the presence of God in all our churches,

Yours in anticipation of a real revival,

Allan Fairbairn.

The Hour Of Prayer

I lift up my sightless eyes, O Lord, to Thee, for I must compensate the world for what it cannot find in me. My ears are stopped, and I would seek new virtues and new grace lest my defect be all for which I am known. I am walled within the sick-room, I am prisoned in my bed, and they who seek me out must be surprised to see my radiant face. I am wrestling with the angel in the darkness by the ford, and though he make me halt and lame, I will not let him go till he grant the blessing of my burden, the fruit of my affliction, the grace that is the right of my misfortune. Hear my prayer and hasten to my help, in the name of my Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

IT is better to endure all the frowns and anger of the greatest on earth, than to have an uneasy conscience within our breast. O, let the bird in the soul be always kept singing whatsoever one may suffer.

GEMS FROM SPURGEON

"THE FIRST LESSON."

THE doorstep to the temple of wisdom is a knowledge of our own ignorance. He cannot learn aright who has not first been taught that he knows nothing. It is a good thing for a man to feel that he is only beginning to learn, and to be willing to submit his heart to the teachings of God's spirit, that he may be guided in everything by Him. The prayer of the quickened soul is, "Teach Thou me." We become as little children when God begins to deal with us.

SELF.

FAITH will never be weak if self be weak, but when self is strong, faith cannot be strong; for "self" is very much like what the gardener calls the "sucker," at the bottom of the tree, which never bears fruit, but only draws away the nourishment from the tree itself. Now self is that sucker which diverts the nourishment from faith, and you must cut it up, or else your faith will always be "little faith," and you will have difficulty in maintaining any comfort in your soul.

Serbian Proverbs

The Proverbs of a nation are not only an epitome of its wisdom, but crystallise for us much of its national temperament and popular habits of thought.

Like Birds On a Wing

NATURE inspires us with a love of life, but can never teach us how to die. God would win us into death as the sun wins buds into blossoms. I often hear Christians speaking of a desire to die, that they may be free from the troubles of life; and they seem to me like birds that fly out of the tree frightedly, on account of noises which they hear beneath. But true Christians, it seems to me, should be like birds upon the sun-set top, stooping with half-opened wings, as if they heard the call of other birds in distant forests, and flew on purpose, and joyfully, to find their mates.

The Gospel allows no such term as "stranger." It makes every man my neighbor.

Work

THE necessity of working is the true school of charcter, the mother of great achievements. The more Nature does for us, the less we do for ourselves, and the less of effective manhood do we possess. Witness the men of New England in America contrasted with the men of the South, and the Scots as contrasted with the English. Bred in a hard school, more work may always be expected from the rough Scot than from his soft Southern neighbour.

SUFFERING AND SINNING.

IN suffering, there is an infringement of man's liberty; in sinning, there is a denial of God's authority. The evil of suffering is transient; but the evil of sin is permanent. In suffering we lose the favor of men; but in sinning, we hazard the favor of God.

A HAPPY FUNERAL.

WHEN godly sorrow takes possession of the house, it will quickly shut sin out of doors. There must be a falling out with our lusts, before there can be a genuine falling off from our lusts; a loathing of sin in our affections, before a true leaving of sin in our actions. It is a hearty mourning for our transgressions which makes way for a happy funeral of our corruptions.

Consider Your Ways

IT was a just saying of one "That is the best reformed churches, there were the most deformed professors." Look to this, reader, that all will be pulled down without you, if there be nothing set up within you. As trees without fruit are unprofitable, so knowledge without good works is abominable. Leah and Rachel are fit emblems of knowledge and obedience: knowledge, like Rachel, is beautiful; but obedience, like Leah, is fruitful. He that dislikes to do what he knows will one day not know what to do.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

A feature of the work of the local Humane Society that undoubtedly impressed those who read the report of the annual meeting is the fact that while hundreds of investigations were held during the year, it was only found necessary to bring three cases into court.

In other words, the activities of the organization are educative, rather than coercive, and that while the society is anxious to protect dumb animals from cruel treatment, there is no desire on the part of the officers to get people into trouble.

The society is to be congratulated upon the good showing made during the year, as revealed in the annual reports, which prove that the officers of the organization have been enthusiastic in their activities, that a large amount of useful work in the interest of animals has been carried on, and that the society's efforts have been financed on a very economical budget, which is able to show a balance on the right side.

The Humane Society is an organization that deserves the support of the community; in fact, has earned that support because it has gone ahead and unmistakably demonstrated its ability to do good work.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT.

The annual report of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, always an interesting barometer of business conditions in Peterborough, must give the shareholders of the company a great deal of satisfaction.

This old established and capably managed financial organization, which has been in operation here for forty-six years, is able after a year marked by general industrial and business depression to show in its profit and loss account a net profit for the year, after deducting charges of management, interest on deposits, debentures, etc., of $212,256.00, which is a most conclusive proof of the soundness of the institution and the manner in which its affairs are managed.

The Toronto Savings and Loan Company has succeeded, after paying quarterly dividends of $140,000 and a bonus of 6 per cent. for the year, in reserving a balance of $71,282.37 to carry forward, which is a substantial advance on the balance at the credit of the profit and loss account a year ago.

An interesting feature of the report is the fact that deposits in the company's savings department have reached the large total of $1,434,256.68.

Altogether the showing made during the past year can be said to have been exceptionally satisfactory.

THE RADIO SITUATION.

Premier Bennett has informed a delegation from the Trades and Labor Congress, which waited upon him to ask among other things that the Government should establish a national broadcasting system, that a bill will be introduced at the coming session to deal with the radio situation in this country.

Nothing was said that would serve as a guide to what action the Federal Government intends to take in this matter.

Some organizations, notably the Trades and Labor Congress and many individuals, have expressed themselves in favor of Government ownership of Canadian broadcasting facilities; on the other hand, there are thousands of Canadian set owners who are as strongly opposed to the suggestion.

Leaving out of the discussion both the merits and the disadvantages of the scheme, it strikes The Examiner that having regard to the present state of Dominion finances, this is a decidedly inopportune time to launch out into a program of Government broadcasting.

There is no question of the heavy cost involved in such a scheme, and its introduction would mean either that the general public would have to be taxed for the benefit of radio enthusiasts or that set owners would be called upon to pay a much higher license fee than at present imposed—and there is nothing particularly attractive in either of those alternatives.

RELIEF FOR THE PROVINCE.

Hon. Mr. Dunlop, Ontario's Provincial Treasurer, must have read Premier Bennett's reply to the Trades and Labor delegation with a good deal of satisfaction, for in two particulars at least substantial relief for the provincial administration was indicated.

In the first place, the Federal Premier assured the delegation that at the coming session of Parliament legislation will be introduced by which the expense of old age pensions will be assumed by the Dominion Government, thus relieving the Ontario Government and that of other Provinces operating under the present scheme of an expenditure of millions of dollars, and giving the aged poor of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces the benefit of old age pensions.

Secondly, the Labor representatives were told that the Federal Government proposes to restore Dominion grants toward technical education, and here again the Ontario treasury will benefit.

It will be remembered that the Meighen Government first introduced federal assistance for vocational training, the grants to continue over a ten-year period.

The King Government was in power when this period ended, and declined to renew the grants, with the result that so far as Ontario is concerned the Provincial Government has had to make up the difference.

The provincial treasury will now be freed of that obligation.

"When in opposition we took the view," says Premier Bennett, "that technical education grants should be renewed, and we will not depart from that position."

So that's that.

DISHONEST OFFICIALS.

One of the latest additions to the instances of fraud in public life is that reported from Ottawa in regard to civil service examinations in connection with the post office department, and inequalities in the income tax division. It is reported that the two officials concerned were guilty of a gross breach of confidence. It is alleged that one of these offending employees was head of a ring whereby candidates for positions in the postal services of Montreal paid from $400 to $500 each to have their examination papers filled out at Ottawa, when they were sent there to be marked. The charge is that the papers were left blank and the answers to the questions were filled in on the sheets. It is said the candidates who were dealt with in this manner have had singular success. The other case is that of a chartered accountant employed in the income tax division of the service. He has likewise been charged with conspiracy and both are released on substantial bail.

The members of the Civil Service Commission state that only a comparatively small number of applicants is implicated, and that the irregularities are mainly confined to the one department. It is hoped that thorough investigation will be made of these unfortunate cases, and that those who are found guilty will receive adequate punishment. It can readily be seen what a gross injustice could be done to deserving candidates in applying for admission to the ranks of the civil service if such practices were allowed to continue. Neither do the people of Canada like to read of any wrongdoing in connection with the tax division. The lure of easy money seems to point to the pathway that so many transgressors find exceedingly hard.—Brantford Expositor.

LIQUOR FROM CANADA.

President Hoover of United States waited 19 months to get a report from the Wickersham Commission on the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of that country. That is, in plain words, the dry law which made prohibition effective.

Of particular interest to Canadians is the claim made in that report that Canada is the chief source from which bootleggers in United States secure their supplies. Just how that opinion was arrived at is not definitely stated, and we imagine that estimating must have played its part.

It cannot be urged that Canada has not gone to extreme limits in doing what United States requested in trying to stop liquor leaving this country for the States. Canada made an offer at one time to allow a U. S. officer to be stationed at every export dock, so that any shipment to United States could immediately be spotted and traced by preventive officers. That proposal was refused.

Then the larger step was taken in complying with the request of Washington that this country refuse to grant clearance papers to ships carrying liquor to United States ports. That was done, and it cost Canada a good many million dollars a year in revenue.

Although there was general concurrence with this move at Ottawa, there were those who said plainly that it was a mistake. Their contention was that it would drive the liquor trade from known to unknown channels, and apparently that is exactly what has been done.

Liquor is now sent to St. Pierre-Miquelon, French islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and from there boats take it to coastal points in United States, and there seems to be no great difficulty in securing entrance and proceeding with distribution.

The Wickersham report says there shall be no return of the saloon in United States, a remark which is hardly worth recording because there is no chance for the saloon of other days again opening in either United States or Canada.

* * * *

After reading the report, it seems that a woman member of the commission has really stated the greatest truth in the fewest words in a statement which she submitted as her opinion. This woman is Miss Comstock, head of Radcliffe College for Women, and her opinion is:

"Adequate enforcement is impossible without the support of a much larger proportion of our population."

In other words, Miss Comstock believes there are too many people in United States who do not want prohibition, and they are probably more active and assertive than those who do want it.

Law, after all, cannot ignore public opinion. It must be solidly supported by it. We have laws against murder, stealing, perjury, driving cars recklessly, etc. When a charge is lodged under one of these heads there is little difficulty in securing the co-operation of all those who know anything about the case. There is a willingness to participate on the part of the public as well as officers in order that these laws shall be enforced. That is what makes a law operate efficiently.

In United States there is not that collective body of public opinion arrayed and available on behalf of prohibition. There are bootleggers who carry on their trade within the shadow of the Capitol in Washington. There are politicians, judges, police chiefs and men on police beats who are known to have accepted part of the revenue taken from trading in liquor. There is no fear at all of breaking the prohibitory laws in United States. Miss Comstock, we imagine, had these and similar conditions under review when she stated that enforcement of the law was not possible because there were not enough people in favor of prohibition.

As we see it, the only way to determine whether people want the prohibition enactment kept in force in United States is to vote directly on the issue. That would seem to be a fair method to settle so contentious a matter. If the people said they did not want the law to continue, then it should not be forced on them. On the other hand, if they voted for its continuance, then that should settle it and the dry law ought then to be enforced to the limit.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND NEED

Dear Mr. Editor:—

I should like to trespass on your valuable paper.

Christmas has come and gone once more and we have seen the end of the year 1930 which few will look back upon with any great degree of satisfaction. The widespread industrial depression and the attendant spectre of unemployment have been less apparent in our City nevertheless, and the experience of those organizations and individuals who are trying to do good have found more people living on the border line of want this last season than has been the case for many years past, but it is gratifying to be able to record that no known case of want in Peterborough was left unrelieved during the Season of Goodwill.

The problem seemed to be baffling the wisest. What was to be done? These people cannot be left to starve? Those who have work or the means of living without work pause and think and let their hearts go out to them in kind thinking to those who have no work and had to be supported. Our City Officials are making a supreme effort to handle the situation by the Unemployment Relief Work, etc., and making every effort to see that this is not misused and it is up to every citizen to see that no such misuse is made of same.

But with the arrival of the New Year it brings with it the hope that springs eternal in human breasts and encourages us all to look forward in the belief that some of the worst is over and that the year 1931 will see restored a more normal state of affairs.

To-day the spectre of unemployment was stalking not only in our Canada but all over the world. Men and women were deprived of the only sure basis of a sound and wholesome life—the opportunity of earning their living.

On the other hand there must be sorrow and sympathy go out to these people whose moral fibre was being sapped by worklessness. Imposed poverty was not likely to be holy poverty, and this sympathy cannot be emphasized unless we are all willing to love much, and those that can afford give much, and it is for this spirit we must look forward for until the tide turns and work becomes normal.

Yours truly,
James Abraham.

BURNING BEAUTY
By TEMPLE BAILEY

(To Be Continued)

"I'm not silly. And it would settle everything. Without argument. Midget would rave, of course, but she couldn't do anything. Dad has fallen for you flat. He said so. He had a Maryland grandmother. He hates the modern worldly type like Mother."

Virginia looked at him in astonishment. "Do you mean he hates your mother?"

"Not exactly. It's only that the way she likes to live doesn't appeal to him."

"But why did he marry her?"

"Oh, she probably camouflaged," cooly.

Then with a quick change of voice: "Marry me to-morrow."

"I'm not going to marry you at all."

He laughed. "You may think that, but you're mistaken. You remember what I said to you—'You're going to be mistress of Derekdale—'"

Virginia was gripped suddenly by a sense of impending disaster. Would she really marry Tony? And lose Michael? Then: she couldn't. Michael loved her. Nothing but that!

After dinner, awaiting the arrival of the guests for the dance, the house party grouped itself about the fire in the great hall. Old Anthony had Virginia with him in a corner where she could look out at Michael leaning on the back of a chair. Marty Van Duyne on a fireside bench had Rickey at her feet. He sat on a great red cushion, his bright ruffled head almost touching her knee. Marty was challenging Michael, "We've been saying there isn't a ghost of a chance for young authors these days. What do you think about it?"

"There's always a chance for genius."

Marty tapped his cheek with a pointed finger. "Don't be rude, little boy. We have Mr. Michael McMillan speaking! Go on, Michael. I apologize for your opponent."

"Why apologize!" Michael realized that Rickey was in a mood to make trouble. Yet nothing Rickey could say should move him to retaliation. He regretted that Marty had seen fit to bring on such an argument. But that was Marty, loving to set a spark to men's tempers for the excitement of it.

He spoke with calmness: "We editors want spontaneity and imagination. Most of our young people are writing according to a formula."

Rickey broke in, "Isn't that a rather broad statement?"

Things began to get tense. The people about the fire were looking with interset at the beautiful boy with the flushed cheeks who sat at Marty Van Duyne's feet and dared defy the most famous editor in New York.

Virginia held her breath. Oh, how wonderful Michael was, leaning on the high back of the green chair, his eyes with their deep sparkle, his laughing voice making light of it all, refusing to recognize the rudeness and rancor of Rickey's youthful challenge.

Oh, if only Rickey wouldn't! She caught the almost hysterical note as he again began to speak. She turned to her host. "Oh, can't you stop him, Mr. Bleecker?"

"Your brother?"

"Yes. He is saying the most dreadful things to Mr. McMillan.'

"It is Marty's fault. She egged him on." Old Anthony rose and stood with his arm on the mantel shelf. "Speaking of geniuses," he said, "there's a young South American—"

After that he dominated the conversation. Rickey sulked on his red cushion. Michael, with a sigh of relief, left the green chair, and went over and sat by Virginia. "I'm sorry," she whispered, and Michael said, "Why be sorry for anything to-night?"

They drifted presently to the ballroom. Virginia had never seen anything like it. It was so high and wide that the people in it were dwarfed by its immensity. It had balconies and a raised platform where the musicians sat. There was no suggestion in the decoration of the usual Christmas scheme of color. The whole effect was modernistic, grotesque, glaring, deep pink and purple, orange and blue. Orange trees set about the room were hung with artificial fruit, the great golden globes to be used later as favors. There were purple balloons and purple umbrellas, and prim tight nosegays of pink roses, frilled with lace paper.

She did not like it. "It's all rather dreadful and nightmarish," she told Michael when she danced with him.

It grew more nightmarish as the evening advanced. It seemed to Virginia that the people in the ballroom took on something of the effect of the decorations. They were grotesque, distorted.

She shivered in Michael's arms when she again danced with him. "I hate it."

"Hate what?"

"Oh, the men aren't themselves—I wish I could dance with you forever, Michael."

He held her close, and presently she said: "In Annapolis we went to church on Christmas Eve, and there were the bells, and the stars shining—"

As if in mockery of her words, other bells began to ring, a mad chime of them, giving a syncopated version of a sacred tune. "It is midnight," Michael said, and in a moment, "A Merry Christmas, my dearest."

All about them others were saying it—"A Merry Christmas—a Merry Christmas—a Merry Christmas—" One joined hands with another until there was a great ring of dancers. Tony came up and literally tore Virginia away from Michael. "It's my turn," he said, and danced off with her. "We'll join the others," he added. "It's going to be fun. Midget is having things a bit different."

He stopped, picked up a wreath of mistletoe from a cart drawn by two pages ,fitted it on Virginia's head and bent down and kissed her. Then suddenly Virginia saw what everybody was doing, all the girls wearing mistletoe, all the men kissing them.

She broke from Tony and fled. He followed, laughing, at her heels. "Oh, look here, look here, Virginia!"

The ring of dancers charged madly between them and gave her a chance. She ran into the hall and up the stairs, finding sanctuary at last in the picture gallery where in the afternoon, she and Tony had talked. As she stood in the door, panting a little after her wild race, she saw a leonine head raised above the back of a seat drawn up in front of a painting of a family group, and old Anthony Bleecker spoke to her, "I thought I heard a step." He rose and came toward her, Then as he saw her agitation, "My dear child, what's the matter?"

She told him, frankly, "I ran away."

"Ran away? From what?"

"Tony and the others."

Her cheeks were flaming. "Tell me about it," he said. They sat down, and Virginia stated her case, "I'm not a prude or a prig, but they were having a mistletoe cotillion, and I didn't care to be kissed."

He laughed a little, but his eyes were understanding. "A woman like you wouldn't. In these modern days almost anything goes with young people. But you belong to the generations of gentlewomen who had a sense of personal dignity."

"Perhaps that's it," she agreed, "I don't know. You see I've always lived shut away from people. I'm not up-to-date and all that."

"Thank heaven, you are not, my dear," he answered smiling. "Sit down and talk to me."

She was glad of it. He asked her questions and she told him about her life in the old house in Annapolis and in that other old house in Washington Square. She told him about the sale, and about the things his wife had bought.

She told him about the Dutch spoons, and her roistering ancestor. She told him about the Bronze Knight on the stairs and about little Roger.

She told him about the primrose cat and the little Scotch dog who had followed her home.

Old Anthony was much interested in it all. He liked to see her sitting there in the gold lace gown, her bright head against the dark velvet, the soft voice with its Maryland accent speaking a language which had once been his, and which he had almost forgotten.

For Old Anthony loved the things of the heart and mind and spirit, but in the world of business and in the world in which his wife lived these things counted not at all. The only things that counted there were stocks and bonds and sports and jazz.

And here was Virgina Oliphant, bringing to him memories of the simplicity and charm and dignity of the life he had lived before he met Jane Bleecker. Oh, well, he was not blaming Jane for anything. He was blaming himself. In a sense a man was master of his fate. He was master at least of his soul.

"Tell me," he said to Virginia suddenly, "are you going to marry Tony?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"Because he's in love with you and I'd like it no end."

She lifted her eyes to his. "I'm not in love with him," she said simply

"Couldn't you be?"

"I think not."

"Is there someone else?"

She drew a quick breath. "Yes."

"Oh—I'm sorry."

A Thought

CHEERFULNESS

The hardest thing is to keep cheerful under the little stings that come from uncongenial surroundings, the very insignificance of which adds to their power to annoy, because they cannot be wrestled with an overcome, as in the case of larger hurts. Some disagreeable habit in one to whom we may owe respect and duty, and which is a constant irritation to our sense of the fitness of things may demand of us a greater moral force to keep the spirit serene than an absolute wrong committed against us. In the one case endurance is all that is possible; in the other we may sometimes rightfully fight—and there is a world of comfort in the powers of action.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. S. Pearce are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Isaac Stoving has been ill for the past week.

What To-day Means To You

AQUARIUS"

If January 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 3 p.m. to 4:45 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The critical hours are from 9:15 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m

The planetary aspects of January 24th denote rather unsettled conditions and restlessness. Probably, a great deal will be done which, afterwards will have to be undone. In the evening a more normal atmosphere will prevail, propitious for entertaining and social recreation.

The child born on this January 24th will, as time develops its character, be very matter-of-fact. It will never build castles in Spain. It will be self-contained and reserved, capable of a very great affection, but entirely lacking in sentimentality or romanticism.

Although, if you were born on January 24th, you have not realized all the hopes of those who knew you in your early youth, yuo have accomplished a great deal, and have largely contributed to the happiness of others. Your judgment is always serene, never biased. Your counsel, when given, is always replete with wisdom and practibility. Consequently, you are the confident of many, and have helped many a lame dog over the stile.

You only know two roads: the right and the wrong, and you never try, or advise short cuts or detours. You are always frank, but courteously so. You never say one thing, and mean another. In your actions and thoughts, you are downright , but not extreme. Your influence over subordinates is one of your most valuable gifts, as, combined with your organizing ability, it makes of you an ideal executive. Your grasp of essentials, and the shedding of superfluities, is largely responsible for the success that has attended your efforts in any walk of life.

You are a cheerful companion, and a reliable friend. You are a good mixer, and an earnest conversationalist, and intelligent, without ever becoming a bore. If a woman, your home will run smoothly, and the grinding of the wheels will never be heard. If a man, you will bring into your home that absolute confidence and trust that bespeaks harmony.

If January 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. The only danger period is from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

January 25th will prove to be a day of contradictions. In the morning, harmony will prevail In the afternoon, there will be differences that will lead to acrimony. In the evening, peace will again reign, and the day will end as it began.

Children born onthis January 25th, will be healthy specimens of humanity, and will be more fond of play than work. Their dispositions will be sunny, but the signs prestage that they are not fated to cut any wide swathe in the world. Satisfied with little, they will always have little.

If your birthday falls on January 25th, you possess some excellent characteristics, and some very poor ones. You are a loyal friend, but a bitter enemy. You can be very generous, but, on the other hand, you are, at times, very stingy. You can be very kind, but are often quite cruel . You usually are considerate, but sometimes show a decided streak of selfishness In all the big relationships of life you are what you should be. In life's small affairs, you reveal a character that repels, rather than attracts.

Very little good is achieved by being splendid, and then removing all the gilt by some trifling act of meaness. It is a waste of time to build a structure with your hands then kick it down with your feet. Little things—those that cause a sting—are remembered, whilst splendid deeds are often relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness.

You are very shrewd, and though your knowledge is superficial, it passes muster with the world in general. You can never be a successful executive because of your attidude to those who work under your orders. You are exacting, without being compensatory. Your obsession, too, to get even with those who so not see eye to eye with you, detracts from your efficiency and interrups the continuity of your efforts.

Your home life does not hold out much promise of happiness. "Nagging" is bound to prevail. Your variable moods will breed discontent and your inconsiderateness will cause reprisals.

Membership Increased Marmora Men's Club

MARMORA, Jan. 24. — Another splendid meeting marked with the addition of nine to the membership was held by the Men's Club of St. Paul's church at the White Hall on Wednesday evening under presidency of C. H. Buskard.

Under general business, mention was made of the receipt of several individual gifts by members. The name of the Rev. F. H. Howard was added to the list of honorary presidents.

Owing to the indispostion of the Rev. M. J. C. Levason, the club's pianist, T. L. Jones acted ah accompanist.

The program commenced with community singing and stories. S. B. Cheeseman then entertained the gathering with a humorous soig, "Riding Down From Bangor." W. R. Reynolds gave a most interesting talk on current events, after which James Rice recited "Tim Tompkins." J. F. Baker followed with one of his pleasing songs, "Tuppenny Ride in a Tram Car." Dr. R. E. Lumsden gave a much appreciated paper, "Immunity in Relations to Disease.' James Ric. gave another recitation and J. F. Baker supplied the closing item in rendering a whistling song, "He Whistled Up the Same Old Tune."

It was decided that at the next meeting, the ladies be invited and a very choice program is being drawn up for the occasion.

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 24.—What about this secession talk? Is it to be dismissed as one dismisses the preposterous theories of a soap-box orator addressing half-a-dozen curious passers-by at some street corner? Or has it backing, is it growing in strength, is there any likelihood of it pervading any considerable part of the West and resulting in political action or even violence?

These are questions which many thoughtful Canadians are putting to themselves to-day. It was to make some preliminary inquiries on the subject that I came here to Saskatoon, which is the most fertile city in Canada for new "movements," extreme ideas, and disturbing propositions. Saskatoon boasts two "Red" newspapers, an outspoken farm journal, and the headquarters of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

Support Advanced Ideas

Yesterday I would not have thought of including George H. Williams, President of the Saskatchewan United Farmers among the "Reds." But in the course of a long interview, followed by conversations with George F. Stirling, former publicity manager of the U.F. of C., and still working as organizer, and Frank Eliason, secretary, it became evident that the executives have now come out boldly in support of advanced ideas, and have no objection to be delineated as minutely as desired for the readers of Eastern Canada. They talked with the utmost freedom, and never once did I hear the remark, so familiar at Ottawa: "Now don't quote me on that!"

Leaders of agrarian thought at Winnipeg warned me that I should not take "Secession" talk seriously. "They don't mean it; they're just expressing their rebellion over tough times; they use "secession" because it's a striking term, likely to call attention to their plight." Such is a fair summary of the best Winnipeg opinion. Farmers and tradesmen in the southern part of this province are also inclined to "pooh-pooh" it, though I remembered that the most impressive of the former I met there said, thoughtfully: "Secession talk doesn't represent the rank and file of the Saskatchewan farmers. But it's fertile time for such ideas. Given a leader, and some fanning of the flame, and such agitation might spread far and wide."

Resembles Military Depot

On the second floor of the Avenue Block, Saskatoon, are to be found Saskatchewan's "secession headquarters." Some resemblance to a military depot strikes the visitor when he sees piles of clothing and bedding in disorder in the outer office, but these are "relief" supplies, being send out to needy farmers and children who who can't attend school until they get something warmer to wear.

"Is there any connection between "secession" meetings being held up and down the province and your organization?" was the first question I fired at the president. (Mr. Williams shaven and recently barbered, dressed neatly and quietly in grey, a youngish man with smooth skin and regular rather delicate features, he much more resembles a bank manager or an associate professor of economics. But there's blood in his cheek, and fire in his eye, as I realized before the interview was complete).

"There is a close connection," Mr. Williams informed me. "Indignation meetings are being called by individual lodges within our organization. They are being addressed in some instances by speakers from headquarters. Members of our body are thus taking the usual means of attempting to start provincial-wide action. Resolutions which emanate at these lodge meetings throughout the year are debated at the annual convention. If they are supported by a majority of the delegates, they become part and parcel of our provincial policy."

"Is your next annual convention likely to endorse such an extreme measure as secession?" was my next question, though I framed it in rather different language.

"That remains to be seen when we meet late in February. Until the convention approves of a policy the executive does not recognize it or act upon it. But it is safe to say that a resolution naming secession as the consequence of a refusal of our rights will command considerable support. I would go further and predict that some political action is sure to grow out of the present crisis."

"What is the membership of your organization?" "About 30,000," the president replied. "Is it going up or down?" "Up, though we are having some trouble collecting fees because of hard times." "What is your annual fee?" "Five dollars, and it is usually pledged out of the second payment of the wheat pool."

"Your secessionist resolutions express a feeling of grievance against the East," I remarked. "Is it that you feel that a fiscal policy favorable to the east is not suitable for the west, and that you wish to control your own fiscal policy?"

"That is not our major grievance," he replied. "Tariffs constitute only a small part of our trouble. It is the financial control of the west by the east which we object to most. For years the profits of farming in Western Canada have been sucked east through the banks, the mortgage and loan companies, farm implement companies, and so forth so that to-day 98 per cent. of our farmers have not clear title to their land."

"You mean that interest rates are too high, and that if they were lowered your situation would be improved?"

"If we had socialization of capital it would not be necessary to pay interest rates at all," he replied, to my great surprise.

"But if I choose to save some of the earnings of my labor, and a farmer comes to me and wishes to borrow to buy land, am I not entitled to something for the use of my earnings, that is, my accumulated labor?" I asked, wishing to understand him thoroughly.

"I would call that a case of two fools meeting," he replied. "Under a system of state socialism the worker would be paid in goods, and the farmer would not need to buy land, because it would all belong to the state, and so in a sense to him."

The president of the Saskatchewan branch of the United Farmers proceeded to drow an astonishing conclusion affecting Western Canada and Soviet Russia.

MINE EXCHANGE CLOSES STRONG

Big Majority of Gains To-day Take Form of Small Gains on Standard.

PENNY ISSUES ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24.—Though some irregularity was evident in early action on the mining market, the close was strong with a big majority of changes taking the form of small gains.

Mining Corporation showed late strength to close up 6 at $1.96. Dome gained 5 to $10.40, and Vipond 3 to 61.19. Hollinger was easier but balance of the higher-priced dropped a couple to 70, but Kirkland Lake Gold was up 2 to 19, and Siscoe, Northern Canada, Howey, Eldorado and Gem Lake advanced a cent apiece.

Penny issues continued active, Bunker Hill gaining another cent to 4½. San Antonio; Barry-Hollinger and Baldwin were fractionally higher. Balance were holding.

International Nickel was slightly reactionary, but Noranda and Lindsleys firmed, Sherritt Gordon gaining a couple to 94. In the oils Mayland advanced 5 to 90, Ajax Oil a couple to $1.47, and Nordon and Merland a point each.

NO STEADY TREND ON TORONTO CURB

Few Individual Issues Move Along Independent Lines—Inter-listed Stocks Heavier.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(CP)—A few individual stocks moved along independent lines on Toronto stock exchange this morning. The bulk of issues were slow to respond and left off with no definite trend, although inter-listed issues were heavier in the second hour

Massey-Harris common slipped downward to a new low at 7½ weakness being due to announcement that dividend on the preferred stock had been passed.

Of the leaders, Nickel, Brazilian, C. P. R., Ford of Canada, Walkers, International Petroleum closed just under last night.

Consolidated Bakeries received good support, especially in the first hour when it rose to a new high of 12½.

MAGNIFYING GLASS UNNECESSARY HERE

MINOT, Me., Jan 22.—The eyes of Alvah Mason, 25, a local electrcian, are so focused that objects within a distance of eight inches are magnified more than 100 times beyond their actual proportions. For ordinary work Mason has to use glasses that de-magnify and another person looking through these spectacles might just as well be gazing through the wrong end of a telescope...

Objects more than eight inches away from Mason's naked eyes appear blurred but at a closer range he can even distinguish phonograph records by the difference in impressions made in the discs. Removing his glasses, he can point with unfailing accuracy to the recorded anvil strokes in the "Anvil Chorus from Il Trovatore." Mason does not have to hear a record to determine whether or not a song was sung in a staccato or crooning manner. The sound grooves appear to him as the track made by dragging a finger through soft mud seems to the ordinary naked eye.

Pores of the skin and the infinitestimal holes in newspaper are quite apparent to Mason when he discards the glasses necessary for the greater part of his work.

ERIE, Pa., January 24 (C.P.). — Colonel Zack Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch Shows, was awarded $90,000 in his breach of contract suit against Tom Mix, movie cowboy by a jury here to-day.

Miller had sued Mix for $325,000, charging that the actor had broken a promise to appear as a circus rider in the 101 Ranch Show. Mix denied an agreement had been made

The show owner claimed Mix joined the Sells-Floto Circus at the time he had agreed to appear with the 101 Ranch outfit in 1929.

Relief Fund Donations

E. H. Wilkinson of Smith Township has kindly donated six bags of vegetable to the Peterborough Relief Association, which will be distributed. To-day we are also in receipt of a quantity of cakes, the gifts of Mr. Hagerman at the Bon Ton Delicatessen, and Mr. Austin, of Austin's Banquet Hall.

The initial donation of money to the baby organization, which aims to augment existing relief agencies in the city, was the gift of $5 from the Lyceum Women's Art Association. This society is not organized for charitable work and the gift, therefore, as an incentive to community effort, is doubly appreciated, and was made possible by a suggestion from Mrs. W. R. Morris.

Among the many donations of clothing and furniture which are constantly being brought into this office for the new society, are several from the district, including parcels from Mrs. A. Northey of R.R. No. 1, Lakefield, and from Mrs. J. W. White of Bailieboro.

PRODUCE SCARCE ON LOCAL MARKET

Zero Weather Conditions Slackens Up Business in Open Stands.

Zero weather conditions which prevail to-day tended to slacken up business on the open market, and while meat was on sale in specially large quantities, such produce as potatoes and apples, which are sensitive to frost, were almost entirely lacking. Of the one or two bags on sale, wrapped around with fur coats, $1.00 was being asked.

In the closed portion of the market, the usual variety of choice farm produce was on sale, with eggs at 30 to 35 cents per dozen, butter 30 cents a pound, chickens 20 to 25c per pound, lamb 18 to 20 cents, beef 11, 12, 13, and 14 cents, and pork 16 to 18 cents a pound.

CHELSEA BEATS

Arsenal's press eased, Chelsea nearly made Parker, the Arsenal captain put the ball through his own goal when Mills shot at Harper. Lambert missed several chances when Arsenal returned to the attack, though Chelsea had to defend desperately in the closing minutes.

The stubbornness of Barnsley against The Wednesday's second half strenuous efforts were responsible for the upsetting of the league champions. The Blades made heroic efforts to hack their way through, but the Coalminders resisted until Ball equalized, then they sprang back and Curran scored a clever goal, which gave Barnsley an advantage they held till the end.

Firemen's Relief Fund Joins Central Body

The Firemen's Relief Fund has been merged into the City Relief Committee to-day, and the latter will carry on the work of the older organization.

There is a mixed feeling of gladness and sorrow amongst the members of the Fire Department at the discontinuation of their work. The labor and pains of every man have not been spared, and the firemen as a whole have accomplished much in seeking out the unfortunate, gathering in and mending clothing, toys, etc., and then distributing the relief to the many needy families. All of this has entailed much hard and unselfish labor, but the pleasure gained by the knowledge that they were substantially aiding their fellows has more than justified their trying work.

The firemen wish sincerely to thank all those who have in any way contributed to their cause, and hope that the benefactors will continue their good work under the new central committee.

AT ANNUAL MEETING.

MADOC, Jan. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).— The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Anglican church Madoc, was held in the guild rooms on Tuesday evening, with the rector, the Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds, in the chair. The financial statements with regard to the church, the guild and the Sunday school were presented and adopted.

The yearly reports showed an increase in church attendance and also in Communicants. The Sunday school also has increased. During the year a new furnace has been put in the rectory and also the rectory roof has been re-shingled. Some minor repairs were also done to the church fabric, and the new bell erected.

R. Belshaw was re-elected as rector's warden. G. S. Avery was appointed as lay delegate to the synod. E. T. Nayler also again consented to act as vestry clerk.

The rector thanked the officers for their assistance during the past year, also the organist and choir for their valuable help in the services of the church.

The hearty thanks of the congregation were tendered to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds for their untiring efforts in the parish.

Enjoy Social Evening.

The Ladies Guild of the Church of St. John the Baptist held a very pleasant social evening and progressive euchre at the home of Mrs. Frank Smith on Wednesday evening. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. W. E. Connor and the gentleman's prize by George Springham. The consolation prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. William Hart. A dainty lunch was served at the close of the evening. The ladies expect to hold the next at the home of Mrs. C. E. Tufts on Wednesday evening, February 4.

MEMBERS ATTEND CLASS ON CANNING

Mrs. Elliott Gives Helpful Talk on Principals at Meeting.

WARSAW, Jan. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—A number of the Institute members attended the class on canning for the girls to which they were invited on Tuesday afternoon, when Miss Elliott gave a helpful talk on the principles of canning and also described the processes of factory canning included the grading.

In speaking of buying she pointed out that there is probably more nutriment in the choice grade than in the fancy. Fancy goods are little milder and not so ripe. Buyers are assured that the standard grades are just as clean and wholesome and nutritious as the choice and fancy goods and much cheaper.

Miss Elliott also described some apple orchards and showed slides of them in blossom time, also of spraying and described the need and methods of such work.

Classes Entertain

The entertainment given by the classes on Wednesday evening was well attended with Dr. Munro as chairman for the evening. Mr. Nelson showed in moving pictures some Japanese scenes and pictures of the lumbering industry in British Columbia and other parts of Canada, from the forest and felling of trees, cutting into logs, transportation, saw mills for various kinds of lumber, and on to the factories or buildings.

Eileen Hamblin danced the Highland Fling and Anna McMurray gave a piano solo. Velma and Doris Payne gave a guitar duet and a playlet "Matrimonial Agency", was presented by seven of the boys and girls.

A facial operation was performed with Harold Payne as the patient, Ralph Garbutt, surgeon, and Miss Leahy nurse and others in various roles. Instruments consisted of saws, butcher-knife, hammers, axe, tin cans, etc.

Visit Factories

On Monday the members of the classes were taken through the Quaker Oats building, Westclox, DeLaval, Silverwood's Dairy, Court House, Council Chambers and other buildings. The girls visited Eaton's store and Comstock's Undertaking parlors besides most of the manufacturing buildings.

Items of business were discussed regarding a speaker from the department for the spring season, which was arranged. Also the distribution of clothing and suits which Mrs. E. McPherson was to look after. The banquet which is the crowning feature for the conclusion for the short course classes was then arranged for and committees framed.

Mrs. E. McPherson gave a humorous reading which was much enjoyed. The offering was taken after which refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Clemett, Mrs. J. Magee and Miss Parsons, and a social time was enjoyed.

ALWAYS ON HAND

To be always kept on hand is a sure sign of appreciation of a medicine. Baby's Own Tablets hold this enviable distinction in thousands of homes from one end of Canada to the other. Mrs. Ernest Gallant, Shediac, N.B., is one of the young mothers who appreciate the Tablets. She says: "Baby's Own Tablets are wonderful. I have used them for my little one for the past two years, and would not be without them. They quickly banish constipation and colic and keep baby happy."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the stomach and bowels; relieve indigestion; break up colds and promote healthful sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REV. A. E. THORNLEY IS GUEST SPEAKER

"Should Young People Save Money" was the subject of an address given by Rev. A. E. Thornley at the annual church meeting of Stewart Hall congregation held on Monday evening in connection with the Young People's League.

After a short program, L. Stewart, the president, turned the meeting over to Rev. Mr. Thornley, who gave a report of the Session in which the membership remained the same and in a few words stated how delightful were his labors in the Stewart Hall field.

W. W. Dawson, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and R. L. Stewart gave the financial report. Under the leadership of Ormie Stewart, the Sunday School, for which William Armstrong reported, showed an increase in both collections and attendance.

The W.M.S. reported by Mrs. G. Savigny showed that the ladies had had a very successful year and Miss G. Stewart reported a very active year for the Y.P.L. with a little balance on hand.

The main item of business was to decided the length of term for the Elders and after some discussion it was decided that they be appointed for a term of five years.

The officers for the coming year were appointed as follows: Walter Thorne, congregational secretary; R. L. Stewart, secretary-treasurer; Miss G. Thompson and W. Thorne, auditors.

R. Harrison spoke of the good work the Y.P.L. was doing in the neighborhood and on behalf of the church thanked the League for the two collection plates they had given to the church. The motion was supported by B. Savigny. After a motion to adjourn, the meeting was dismissed by Rev. Mr. Thornley.

W. M. S.

On Tuesday afternoon, the members of Stewart Hall W.M.S. were entertained by Mrs. W. W. Dawson, for the initial meeting of the new year, when the president, Mrs. H. Thorn, presided.

Special numbers on the program consisted of a delightful solo, by Mrs. A. E. Thornley, of Peterborough; a very fine duet by Miss M. Hanbidge and Mrs. H. Taylor and an instructive and interesting paper on "Thoughts from Modern Japan" given by Miss Gertrude Thompson.

During the business session the "Sunshine Bags" were opened and which netted the Society a considerable sum for missionary work.

A social time was then enjoyed by the ladies, many of whom pieced blocks for a missionary quilt. The meeting was brought to a close with the serving of dainty refreshments by the hostess and her assistants.

MR. McCAFFERY IS RE-ELECTED HEAD

Satisfactory Reports Read at Annual Meeting of United Dairymen Co-operative Limited.

The annual meeting of the United Dairymen Co-operative ltd., was held on Thursday last at Belleville, Ontario. The president of the Company, John McCaffrey, Madoc, presided, and there was a good attendance of shareholders from the different cheese districts of Eastern Ontario. A very satisfactory financial statement for the year 1930 was presented to the meeting, and it was announced that a dividend of 8 per cent on the paid-up stock had been declared for the past year. The president referred to the fact that this will be the tenth annual dividend that has been paid since the Company was established in 1920, the average rate being over 7 per cent. The general manager of the Company, W. W. Moore, gave a comprehensive review of the business of the Company during the year 1930, and in the course of his remarks pointed out that in the Kingston District the business of the Company had increased over 1929 by 6.87 per cent. and in the territory from Kingston to the Quebec boundary the increase in volume of business was 16.35 per cent over the previous year, whereas the total increase in the production of cheese in this territory was only 1.16 per cent. In the cheese handled by the Company, due to a decrease in the make. Conditions in the various markets during the past season were also reviewed by the general manager. In Great Britain, which of course is the principal market for Canadian cheese, there was a larger quantity of New Zealand and Canadian cheese available at all times than was required by the consumptive demand so that it was a buyers' market throughout the season. The returns therefore to producers have not been remunerative although comparing very favorably with other branches of farming. With regard to future prospects Mr. Moore pointed out that the production of cheese in New Zealand continues to show an increase of about 10 per cent over the same period a year ago. He also thought there was a danger that the recent increase in the Canadian tariff on butter may react unfavorably on cheese as the butter industry will enjoy a highly protected market while cheese will have to sell on a competitive basis with New Zealand in the markets of the United Kingdom. Until such time, therefore, as sufficient butter is produced in Canada to meet our own requirements and provide an exportable surplus the creamery will enjoy an advantage over the cheese factory. This would prove unfortunate, taking a long range view of the dairying situation in this country, as the cheese industry is valuable to Canada as an export commodity possessing a splendid reputation and it should receive every consideration when tariff adjustments are being made.

The directors are: W. H. Moore (general manager), Montreal; W. V. Drewry, Warkworth; Hugh Moloney, Marmora; J. A. O'Callaghan, Kars; D. A. McGregor, Moose Creek; Malcolm J. McRae, Vankleek Hill; S. L. Joss, Belleville. The executive committee consist of the president, vice-president, treasurer and Messrs. Moore and Drewry.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, January 24. — There was not much change in values of cattle at the Union Stock Yards market this week. Receipts were lighter and trading was somewhat slower than on the previous week, but offerings were practically cleaned up on Wednesday, and bulls, baby beeves, and heavy heifers were the only classes of killers showing a distinct weakness. Baby beeves which sold up to 10½c at the top last week, closed this week at a top of 9 cents, with other grades downward to a low of 7½ cents per pound.

There was no demand for cattle to export either to Antwerp or Great Britain, but a few prime heavy steers sold at 7.35 to 7¾c per pound, even with the previous week at the top, though only some half-dozen made the top price and rough heavies were slow, downward to 6½c.

Good to choice butcher steers brought 6¾c to 7c, with common downward to 5c, or a shade easier on the range than last week.

Butcher cows brought 3½c to 5c per pound, taking the whole range of quality, barring a few kosher killers at 5½c. Bulls sold at from 3¾c to 5¼c, with heavies a very slow trade and down in price at a range of 4½c to 4¾c per pound for the best.

Store cattle were a light offering and there was not much inquiry for that class, though a few sales of fair to real good stockers were made at steady prices from 5c to 6¼c per pound.

Light Run of Calves.

Calf receipts were 300 lighter than last week, and the light run one day brought a slight recovery in prices at the top, choice vealers selling at 10½c to 11c and but few of the plain light kind below 8c per pound. A few common grassers moved at 4c to 5c.

Sheep and lamb supply was only about half that of last week at 1,450 head. Lambs sold unchanged at 9½c per pound for good ewes and wethers, with bucks at the 2c per pound discount and thin culls at 6½c to 7c per pound. Quality of the bulk was poorer. Sheep in a light offering brought from 5½c to 6c for best light ewes and 4c to 5c for good heavies, with culls at 2c to 4c per pound.

Hog Prices Down.

Hog receipts for sale were 3,700, with 600 western hogs in addition on through billing to outside packers. The market opened on Monday at 99½c f.o.b., and 10¼c to 10½c w.o.c., for bacons, but on Wednesday prices were down 50c per cwt. on f.o.b. hogs at 9c per pound, though most w.o.c. hogs sold at 10c, or the top of the differential spread. No hogs arrived by railroad on Thursday, but packers' bids for loadings were again lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Corn led an all-around drop of grain prices yesterday. The tumble received much of its momentum from a trade summary which said that, barring crop failure or war conditions, world prices of majority farm products would at best rule but slightly higher than current levels, and that no general increase of farm land values was looked for. Indications of urgent pressure to sell Australian wheat abroad had a further bearish influence.

Corn closed unsteady, 1⅛-1¼c down, wheat at ⅝c-1c decline, oats, ⅛-¼c off and provsions showing 5c-10c fall.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.— Egg prices were slightly higher, butter and cheese advanced, while potatoes were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Ontario fresh eggs, in carlots, were from one to two cents higher. Extras gained two cents at 30 cents a dozen, and firsts advanced one cent at 26 cents, while seconds were unchanged at 20 cents a dozen. British Columbia fresh extras were one cent higher at 30 cents a dozen and firsts and pullets were unchanged at 26 cents a dozen. Storage eggs were unchanged, extras being quoted at 19 cents, firsts at 18c and seconds at 14c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 2,374 cases.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter advanced one-quarter of a cent at 31¾ to 32 cents a pound. To retailers solids were 33 cents and prints 34 cents a pound. Receipts were only 51 boxes.

Winter white cheese was unchanged at 11 to 11 1-3 cents a pound, but winter colored gained one-half of a cent at 13 to 13½ cents a pound. Summer cheese was also up one-half of a cent being uoted at 15½ to 16 cents a puond. Receipts were 161 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots were quoted at 85 cents per 90 pounds bulk, and to retailers 95 cents per 80-pound bag.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 24. — The cold weather in effect the last two days of this week was long overdue, from the local egg dealers' point of view, but when it did arrive prices were steadied and then strengthened, both to country shippers and retailers. For the past few weeks quotations on eggs have been going lower, for fresh and storage alike, and a low point was reached on Thursday when shippers were quoted 22c for fresh extras, 19c for firsts and 15c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned, and retailers were offered supplies at 29c to 30c for extras loose, 27c for firsts loose, 22c for pullet extras and 20c for seconds. Brokers were trying to get 27c to 28c for extras, 23c for firsts and 18c to 19c for pullet extras, graded and in free cases.

Storage Eggs

Storage eggs are still overhanging the market in large quantities, and in some cases the desire to hold up prices of these has been interfering with the sale of fresh eggs. Those who have storage eggs yet to dispose of would like to see them cleaned up before consumers switch to fresh eggs. In their efforts to clean up storage stocks many holders are taking severe losses on the present market. With prices of fresh eggs now lower than last spring it is easy to realize the extent of these losses.

Butter

The butter market showed little change in activity and prices this week. Only small lots moved and these at the low point of the spread, or 31c for No. 1. General asking prices were 31c to 31½c for No. 1, and 30c to 30½c for No. 2 creamery solids.

Toward the end of the week butter brokers took on a more optimistic air and when questioned many admitted that better times were just ahead. In other words it was their opinion that the larger butter buyers would be forced to enter the market soon, and they thought "soon" meant the first of next week.

Cream

Cream prices, to the country shipper and f.o.b. country points, were advanced one cent at the end of the week. Special was quoted at 30c to 31c; No. 1, 29c to 30c, and No. 2, 26c to 27c. Creamerymen evidently figured that butter prices would not go any lower for a while, and so decided to give the producer a larger cheque.

Cheese

Prices for cheese were higher at the end of the week ¼ cent. Country shippers were quoted 14c to 14¼c for new large, 14¼c to 14½c for twins, and 14½c to 14¾c for triplets, colored, paraffined, Government graded.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 24. — Weakness in outside markets and a decline in coarse-grain commodities depressed values on the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday. Closing prices showed net losses of ½c to ¾c from the previous close.

The market was narrow in range. Fractional advances were recorded at the start, but prices soon eased off, with a resultant net loss.

Export sales for the day were placed at close to 500,000 bushels. Some buyers were inclined to liquidate, but there was not enough demand to absorb the wheat.

Cash grain trading was slow, with spreads generally unchanged.

Trading in the coarse-grain section was confined to odd lots. Prices moved within a narrow range.

SESSION REPORT NOT GIVEN OUT

OFFICIALS RE-ELECTED.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The congregation of St. Andrew's United Church met in Queen Street Theatre on Thursday evening for the annual meeting for which the Rev. R. J. Burton presided, opening the meeting with a Psalm, scriptural reading and prayer.

J. W. Ridpath and A. H. Clarke were re-elected to the Board of Management and T. W. Chaplin was added.

Owing to the illness of the clerk, A. Fairbairn a report from the Session was not forthcoming. The report from the Sunday School was given by Miss Thomson, secretary-treasurer who enlarged upon the activities of the school and the visible progress in the nature of scholars and finance.

Miss Duff presented the report from the W.M.S. and showed how active its members had been in getting clothes and other articles to be sent to needy ones. Miss Duff also pointed out the strain imposed upon the W.M.S. through the efforts to erect a new church and because of the urgent need of money for the church it was impossible to meet all requirements. However a portion of money had been sent to the Church office. She paid special tribute to the zeal of Mrs. J. W. Ridpath the president, and Mrs. Simpson the secretary.

The Women's Association reported by Miss Annie McKibbon showed the extensive undertakings during the past year. By the help of sister societies, organizations and private individuals and especially the great work among themselves they had succeeded in railing about $1300. The Association had given $1000 toward the new church and had pledged itself to pay for the furnace.

The report of the financial committee was very encouraging. Notwithstanding the strain of the new building and the often repeated needs for donations the current expenses had been all met and there was a small surplus.

J. W. Ridpath in reporting for the building committee said the new Church had cost little more than $9000, and suggested that $6000 more would cover the amount necessary for completion. He pointed out that the congregation had strained a point in raising $4000, and said that to overcome such troubles that may arise there must be a pulling together in the future as there had been in the past.

At the conclusion of his report, Mr. Ridpath read a resolution which strongly urged the church to re-engage the minister, the Rev. R. J. Burton for the following term. This resolution was unanimously carried.

The Rev. Burton said he was glad his services had been appreciated and stated that much credit was due to his committee and especially to Mr. Ridpat who did much active work in bringing about the erection of the new church.

Mrs. Simpson was re-appointed as the secretary of the congregation and a motion of sympathy was passed for A. Fairbairn who has been ill.

Refreshments were served by the ladies following the meeting.

TRENT RIVER.

The low temperature of Wednesday and Thursday caused the main channel of the canal to freeze from shore to shore and ice harvesters are busy.

Mrs. C. Alley and son Fred, returned on Wednesday to Peterborough after spending a week with the former's mother, Mrs. Trueman Dunn, who accompanied them home to spend a few days in Peterborough.

The Misses Marion and Bessie Ipkster and brother Albert, attended the oratorical contest held in the High School at Campbellford on Monday evening.

VIOLET-RAYS AND TREATED FOODS AID FARMERS IN STOCK RAISING

Sun-Lamps, Irradiated Cereals, Cod Liver Oil, All Entering Farm Life.

NOTICEABLE IMPROVEMENT

By MICHAEL O'MAYO

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1931)

BRANDON, Man., Jan. 24—Thirty years ago a silver-fox caught in a steel-jawed trap was a rarebit dream of the lonely trapper. Nowdays this lovely animal is coddled and petted on fur ranches with the care lavished on a millionaire baby! You can't take chances on breeding stock which sells for thousands of dollars. High-priced scientists have devised new foods replete with calories and vitamins, and they have discovered that liberal doses of cod liver oil produce richer and more lustrous pelts. These bottled sunbeams, placed in the tummies of baby foxes, work magic with the pelts destined for the graceful shoulders of milady.

Hens, too, need sunlight. Disease stalks in the shadows of hen-houses as in the canyons of city streets. Dark days are death days. To be healthy, so that they can lay plenty of eggs, hens must enjoy daily sunbaths. At least that's what the experts of the Department of Agriculture have discovered after many experiments at Ottawa.

Artificial Sun

Unfortunately it is not always possible to give hens this medicine. Old Sol swings south on his winter vacation and when he does peep above the horizon some of the vitalising rays are missing from his light. Are the experts stumped? Not at all! Feed the pale yellow oil coming from the livers of the savage fish and your hens will be healthy. Or you can dose them with yeast held under the eerie light of a sun-lamp. Or you may snap on a switch and turn on your own sun in the form of a mercury-quartz lamp. In any case sit back and watch the little egg-factories swing into an overtime schedule.

Pigs, too! On the edges of the campus of the University of Alberta you may find squealing porkers which have been deprived of their rightful place in the sun. Sickly and death-hurrying, those pigs! Nearby are vigorous pigs which have been fed their daily ration of sunbeams—cod liver oil, irradiated cereals and the like. The farmer who robs his pigs of sunlight does his book-keeping with red ink. It's even possible to switch on a sun-lamp and watch the little pigs grow!

And what about the cows? Experts maintain that the milk of the domestic cow is "the perfect food." But recent research has shown that it is rather short of some of those vitamins so necessary to strong bones and firm teeth. That's why they bathe cows in the ghostly light of sun-lamps at Wisconsin University. But the men of science struck a snag. Somehow the cows failed to respond. Then they turned to cod liver oil, and were amazed to find that this "old reliable" failed to increase the rickets-preventing powers of the milk. But yeast exposed to ultra-violet rays increased the vitamin content of the milk manyfold and at small cost, so that little babies in the dark tenements of our cities may have "sunbeams for their breakfast."

Dogs, too! Dr. Harry Steenbock of the same university has shown that dogs robbed of sunlight can become bone-brothers of children suffering from rickets. He has also demonstrated that dogs fed cereals bathed in the rays of a sun-lamp grow into vigorous animals. Out of this particular series of experiments there developed the "irradiated cereals and breeds" now flooding the markets.

Plants Work Overtime

Plants can be fooled into working overtime as well as hens. They can be persuaded to bear flowers and fruit out of season. Just as surgeons pep up our bodies by tinkering with our glands, so can plant doctors transform giants into dwarfs and dwarfs into giants. On the threshold of old age, plants can be induced to send forth vigorous branches to fruit and flower again. At least that's some of the magic worked with light by the experts of the Boyce-Thompson Institute for Plant Research at Yonkers, New York.

There are plants which seem to carry a trade-union card. They refuse to work overtime. Give a tomato plant (for instance) twelve hours of sunlight and it increases in stature and fruitfulness. Provide it with continuous sunlight for twenty-four hours a day, and it promptly goes on strike. It withers away and dies.

On the other hand there are plants which are glutton for light. Spring wheat, oats and barley are in the class. Given continuous light over twenty-four hours, and they'll ripen in forty-five days That's one of the reasons why they grow championship crops in the Peace River country. Red clover which usually needs two seasons to mature, can be grown in sixty-five days by lenthening the period of sunlight. Sweet-peas can be speeded-up five weeks in the same manner.

Men of science tell us of the giant ferns which grow in the Carboniferous Age. Plenty of sunshine and lots of carbon dioxide—such is the explanation of the lush vegetation growing in the steaming swamps of that bygone day. But it's possible now for any florist or hot-house farmer to produce similar results and at small cost! Buckwheat given twelve hours light per day did not do as well as plants which get eighteen hours of light plus an extra ration of carbon dioxide "scrubbed" from the flue gases of that institute's power house.

Any school boy with a piece of glass can prove that sunlight shoots forth rays of different length and most of us know that some of these rays are vital to life itself. Robbed of the ultra-violet rays, for instance, we develop rickets, and tuberculosis, and anemia. A pane of glass is just such a robber, and that's one reason why we are equipping our schools, offices and homes with glass designed to convey these vitalising rays. But what of the plants which grow under glass?

At Yonkers some interesting experiments have been conducted along this line. In a "red house" sunflowers lost their backbone and refused to flower; stout, low-grading soy beans became spindly, twining vines; petunias and four o'clocks grew pale and anemic; and the towering sudan grass took on the palor of death. Potatoes refused to produce tubers and carrots to store nourishment.

In the neighboring greenhouse the plants receive a different ration of light rays. Here tomatoes flowered early and carrots performed their duty better than when given a full ration of sunbeams.

These interesting experiments are proceeding but it is certain that they will be rewarded with exact knowledge as to the light needs of various plants. Already florists have profited. Late flowering varieties of dahlia are readily induced to bloom during the summer, whilst highly colored poinsettia typical of Christmas, is now grown in August. Many a truck-gardener has discovered how to speed up his fruits and vegetables, and in at least one instance the vitamin-content or plants has been increased by the introduction of special glass.

By hitching their business to the sun our farmers are learning to transform their liabilities into assets

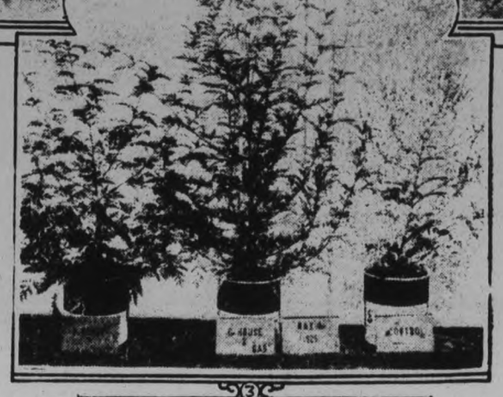
Homestead Entries Higher in West

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 24. — Homestead entries made in the four Western Provinces within the three-quarter period of the calendar year 1930 numbered 13,550 as compared with 11,579 for the similar nine-month period of 1929. Alberta continued to lead with 8,542 entries recorded, as compared with 6,582 for the corresponding period of 1929; Saskatchewan showed 3,763 as against 3,902; Manitoba, 564 against 502, and British Columbia, 681 against 592.

Farmers Now Trap The Sun To Aid Products



Farming in Canada is fast changing from the old style. Now the up-to-date farmer feeds his stock on cod liver oil and violet ray treated foods, instead of the scraps and ordinary foods which were used formerly. In the above layout is shown (1) pigs under the ultra violet ray lamp. This light acts the same as sunshine and increases the ash content in the bones of the animals. (2) Cows undergoing a similar treatment. Experiments show that this does not have as much effect on the milk as does irradicated foods. (3) Ragweed plants showing the effect of different periods of light plus doses of carbon dioxide gas. Plants show remarkable changes under such treatments.

COLORINGS IN McINTOSH APPLES LEAD TO BELIEF OF TWO STRAINS

SOME ARE STRIPED

The McIntosh, though regarded as a strictly red apple, sometimes appears in stripe coloration. It is not a settled question as to whether there are two varieties of the McIntosh differing markedly in color development. It is claimed indeed by some that both stripe and blush fruits can often be picked from the same tree.

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has been making a study of this question, particularly at the Summerland, B.C. Experimental Station. Thirty-five McIntosh trees in one orchard studied during the past five years, indicate that there are two distinct strains, but that buds sprouting from one to the other takes place quite frequently. McIntosh trees secured from different nurseries in 1916 were planted in two rows thirty feet apart and the rows were separated by five rows of other varieties. In 1925 the thirty-five trees surviving were bearing, and were carefully examined just before picking time, to secure information regarding the color characteristics of the fruit. From the fruit produced it was found possible to divide the trees into two main groups, one producing fruit in which the red color was laid on in the form of a blush and the other in stripes. It was found that nineteen of the trees produced striped fruit; fourteen showing blush red, while two trees were of doubtful classification.

Colorings Change Yearly

Discussing this qestion in his report for 1929 Mr. W. T. Hunter, Superintendent of the Station points out that some growers report that their trees bear blush fruit one year and striped the next. With the possible exception of one tree in the station orchard this certainly has not been the case at Summerland. In seasons of low sunshine and on trees carrying a very light crop, the apples were found to develop the trees of striped strain sometimes produced fruit of quite high color which tends to merge together giving the effect not unlike that found on fruit from blush trees. Nevertheless, the observations made in this test lead to the belief that there are two strains in the McIntosh sufficiently distinct to be readily identified by many horticulturists and growers who have visited the Station during the past five years.

Quebec Beekeepers Own 108,282 Hives

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 24.—There are 7,816 beekeepers in the Province of Quebec, owning 108,282 hives, according to Cyrille Vaillancourt, chief of sugar and bee industries. The 1929 harvest was reported fair, but not as good as that of 1930—of which exact figures are not yet available. In 1929 the harvest was a little over 4,000,000 pounds, worth $435,174.

KEY TO PROGRESS IN DAIRY INDUSTRY

Dr. J. A. Ruddick Gives Review of Whale Situation in Canada.

In a review of the dairy industry throughout Canada on a recent occasion Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, emphasized the importance of estimating the status of the dairy industry in the Dominion not by volume of exports or by one or more products but by total production of milk. This factor alone is the key to real progress in dairying.

In this connection Dr. Ruddick called attention to the fact that while New Zealand's total production of milk is only little over one-third as large as Canada's, New Zealand's exports are the largest of any country in the world—domestic consumption there amounts to only some twenty per cent. In Canada home consumption is so large that the gross surplus for export is hot over ten per cent of the total production.

Since 1921 domestic consumption of dairy products in Canada has increased to the extent of 154,529,347 lbs. of fat equivalent. This is made up of increases of 72,707,604 lbs. in butter, 12,657,919 lbs in cheese, 2,541,361,024 lbs. in milk, and 1,875,322 gallons in ice-cream.

The important increases in per capita consumption of dairy products are in cheese, milk and ice-cream. In 1921 the average Canadian used 2.51 lbs. of cheese, 240.1 lbs. of milk, and 5.26 pints of ice-cream. In the following seven years this increased to a per capita consumption of 3.54 lbs. of cheese, 470.8 lbs. of milk, and 7.05 pints of ice-cream.

Following the recent promulgation from Rome of a decree of "Strict Papal Enclosure," Dominican Sisters at Sienna Convent, Drovheda, Ireland, have taken solemn vows to seclude themselves from the outside world and to converse with outsiders only through an iron grille.

Dozen Dog-Mushers Entered in Derby

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 24 (C.P.)—An even dozen racing dog mushers were yesterday "under the wire" with their entry forms for Canada's second annual 100 mile international dog derby for a $1,000 purse. The entry lists are now officially closed but any forms in the mails before to-day likely will be accepted.

The Derby is to be run on Feb. 2, 3 and 4, in legs of 33 1-3 miles daily as a part of the Ottawa Winter Sports Carnival. The course is for the most part laid out over rural highways where an ample pillow of snow is ensured in order that the grind will not be too severe on the paws o' the racing dogs.

MARMORA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY SHOWS DEFICIT $250 FOR 1930

G. B. Airhart Elected President —New Board of Directors Named.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT

MARMORA, Jan. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of Marmora Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber on Monday afternoon with a fairly large attendance. The number present and the interest shown in all the proceedings promise well for the success of the society during the present year.

The auditors' report was presented and showed a deficit of about $250.00 for the year. The deficit was due to the increased amount paid out for prize money and attractions, while the receipts were about the same as last year. One encouraging feature was that the membership was larger last year than for quite a number of years and the number and above the average.

Mr. H. R. Haacke, president for 1929 and 1930, gave a report of the work of the society during the past year, which indicated that in spite of the deficit there was no reason to be discouraged over the results of last year. A better fair, bigger and better exhibits and the favorable comment heard in regard to the frir should result in an increased attendance this year.

On the motion of R. E. Bonter and F. S. Johnston, a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Haacke for his services as president for the past two years.

On the motion of F. S. Johnston and Orville Leonard, G. B. Airhart was elected president for 1931.

It was moved by Mr. Rhind, seconded by R. E. Bonter, that L. E. Neal be 1st vice-president for 1931. Carried.

Moved by T. E. Laycock, seconded by L. E. Neal, that F. S. Johnston be 2nd vice-president for 1931. Carried.

Board of Directors.

The following were elected to the Board of Directors for 1931:

Men—F. N. Marett, T. E. Potts, T. W. Rhind, H. W. Sabine, R. E. Bonter, W. A. Sanderson, Geo. Wellman, J. E. Gehan, Rev. J. J. Keeley, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, Geo. Forestell, Geo. Kerr, Hugh Moloney, John Quinn, Charles Cook, Chas. Kelly, Lac Hughes, Irwin McCoy, W. J. Pack, W. S. Stiles, H. Heath, Charles Jones, W. J. Barlow, W. Billings, Orville Leonard and Dr. Lumsden.

Women—Mrs. D. Shannon, Mrs. A. H. Connor, Mrs. D. E. Bell, Mrs. C. A. Bleecker, Mrs. F. R. Wells, Mrs. F. N. Marett, Mrs. E. C. Prentice, Mrs. Hugh Crawford, Mrs. S. B. Wright, Mrs. F. A. Bapty, Mrs. H. R. Haacke, Mrs. Orville Leonard, Mrs. F. E. Trennum, Mrs. T. E. Laycock, Mrs. W. W. Heath, Mrs. L. P. Hughes, Mrs. W. J. Barlow and Mrs. W. Stiles.

Moved by H. Heath, seconded by R. E. Bonter, that the past presidents and Mr. Jos. Wilson, representative of Department of Agriculture, be added to the Board of Directors. Carried.

Moved by C. U. Heath, seconded by H. R. Haacke, that a field crop competition be held this year if sufficient entries can be secured.

The meeting then adjourned for directors' meeting, at which C. A. Bleecker was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

PASTEURIZED MILK CARRIES NO GERMS

Method Does Not Make Dirty Milk Clean, But It Does Make It Safe.

There is considerable popular interest at the present time in the pasteurization of milk, and a good many people are asking the question —Why pasteurize milk?

The best answer to that is the bald statement that pasteurization is the one effectvie method through which disease germs present in milk are rendered harmless.

The Dairy Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture in Pamphlet No. 124 NS. "Why Pasteurize Milk," deals in a practical and interesting way with this issue. It also provides directions by which one may pasteurize milk at home with little trouble or expense.

Pasteurization makes milk safe, because, without in any way detracting from its inherent fine qualities, when properly done it kills diphtheria germs at a temperature of 130 degrees F., sore throat germs at 134 degrees F., typhoid germs at 137 degrees F., and tuberculosis germs at 139 degrees F. The boiling temperature for milk is 212 degrees F. Pasteurized milk is not boiled. It is raised to a temperature of 145 degrees F., at which it is held for thirty minutes, then it is cooled quickly to below 50 degrees F.

Inspection and control practices is the only solution for a safe milk supply. It will not make dirty milk clean but it will make milk safe.

CANADA FILLING OWN SEED NEEDS

One of Most Important Factors in Farming is Supply of Known Quality.

GOVT. PLAYS BIG PART

One of the most important factors in sucessful farming is a convenient and assured supply of seed of known quality. Canada is fortunate in this respect in that the policy of the Seed Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture has built up supplies of high quality commercial and registered seed at convenient points throughout Canada.

Every province in the Dominion is now producing high grade seed in commercial quantities and of the kinds suited to the seed production possibilities of the several provinces.

Some idea of the value of the seed production is available from the statement issued by the Branch that, in the Maritime Provinces returns for 1930 show seed supplies as follows:—Prince Edward Island has handled 40,000 bls. of Bent Grass seed; the Memramcook and Sackville district of New Brunswick have some 1,400 lbs. of Bent Grass Seed; in Nova Scotia in Digby and Yarmouth counties some 1,700 lbs. of Registered and 2,500 lbs. of commercial turnip seed is available, while the production of Registered seed oats in each of the Maritime Provinces amounted to many thousands of bushels.

The bent grass and turnip seed production of the Maritime provinces is of recognized superior quality and should be welcomed by seed buyers in the other provinces.

Successful Meeting For St. Mark's Church

Satisfactory reports showing the close of a successful year were presented at the annual vestry meeting of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, held this week, with the rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, presiding. Mr. T. E. Graystock, people's warden, presided for the statement dealing with the church's finances, and Mr. R. Dixon, rector's warden, gave the cemetery report. The Woman's Auxiliary had a successful year, and had been a great help to the Church by their efforts. The retiring wardens were re-elected to their respective offices for the ensuing year, and Mr. T. E. Graystock was appointed as lay delegate to the Synod.

RECORDS OF FARM SALE IN 1869 RECALL DAYS OF MANUAL LABOR

Grain Harvested With Cradle—Cream Was Skimmed From Milk.

AN ASPHODEL SALE.

Those receding days when grain was cradled and cream was skimmed from milk in flat pans are recalled again by an itemized account of a sale of household furniture, farm stock and implements sixty two years ago in Asphodel township, as recorded in the private archives of F. H. Dobbin.

That long forgotten sale took place on March 12, 1869, at the home of John Nelson, who had died some time prior to that date. William Sharp was the auctioneer's clerk and his report becomes an interesting human document of a period in Peterborough county history when the toil of pioneering was virtually ended but machines had not yet relieved the farmers of the hard, primitive work that is now only a memory of our oldest citizens.

William Sharp's written report of the sale is faded and brown but is otherwise well preserved. It sets out in detail a complete list of John Nelson's household possessions, the names of the purchasers who once were men and now are probably only names on scattered tombstones, and also the prices paid. Quite a long list of useful, homely things it is, things that were intrinsically valuable to John Nelson, personal intimate belongings then dispersed among the highest bidders

Nine Milk Basins.

A sugar kettle was bought by John Campbell for $2.75. It must have been used in making maple syrup and sugar. Nine milk basins and a strainer went to Arch. Wilson for $1.40. They remind us of a dairy method that antidated the modern cream separating machines. The milk was poured into shallow pans and left in a cool cellar until the cream had collected at the surface. It was then skimmed off and was the raw material for domestic churning.

One grain cradle and scythe was bought by H. Nelson for $3.10. It must have been a good one for the same man bought another grain cradle and scythe for only fifty cents. We have traveled fast and far mechanically since one John Nelson swung his cradle through the standing grain. Since then the cradle has developed into big binders with their wide and regular swaths, and its fullest flowering is the "combine" that cuts and threshes as it moves through prairie grain. The scythe or sickle is one of the symbols of the Russian Soviets and its communistic connotation becomes apparent in the recollection that the scythe distributed manual labor and the big machine monopolises its man-power equivalent.

The Distaff Side.

Again, a bread trough, bench and rolling pin were bought by Charles Leitch for eighty cents, another reminder of our grandfathers' days when every home was its own bakery. Families were large probably because grain had to be cradled, milk skimmed and bread baked in the old-fashioned domestic economy.

Richard Tedford paid $8.75 for a Buffalo robe, one of the swanky appurtenances of the cutter era. In fact a man's wealth might have been guaged by the number of Buffalo robes he draped around himself and his cutter.

To James Bicket went a sponing mill for $16, and Richard Emmett bought a pile of lumber at $4.75 per thousand feet. That item may be of interest to home builders and others who have occasion to go into the lumber market today.

Other significant items are: Parlor stove to Charles Leitch for $6; one horse to Mr. Hancock for $104; one string of bells and whip to John Cameron for $1.75; two and washboard to Richard Tedford for $1.00; box of carpenters' tools to James Moore, $1.62½; twelve plates, side dish, covered dish to Wm Blezzard $2.50; five iron spoons to William Moore for ten cents; cotton and woolen yarn to S. Griffin for $3; a bureau to W. Blezzard for $10, and a bedstead to Arch. Wilson for $2; and so on, the total receipts being $313.70.

Catch 8,000 Turkeys Across Manitoulin

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 24.—The recent annual round-up of turkeys on Manitoulin Island netted more than 8,000 birds, which were shipped out to various parts of Canada and the United States, and marketed at good prices.

USE MORE ROOTS IN FEEDING STOCK

Prominent Authorities Claim There is Really No Substitute for Value.

EASILY GROWN

That silage alone for dairy cattle is not sufficient and roots should also be included in the regular rations, Professor J. C. Steckley of the Ontario Agricultural College stated at the annual meeting of the Experimental Union. In this contention Professor Steckley was strongly supported by W. J. Bell of the Kemptville Agricultural School, who pointed out that the cost of producing roots was by no means excessive, particularly where the ground had been thoroughly cultivated before sowing. "At Kemptville last year our mangels averaged twenty-four tons to the acre," said Mr. Bell, "and because we had cleaned up the soil by thorough cultivation during the hot weather the year previous we had very little work with weeding."

In all the rations quoted for dairy cattle Professor Steckley urged feeding roots at the rate of two pounds daily for every hundred pounds of live weight of the animal, in addition to one pound of Alfalfa or Red Clover Hay and two pounds of silage. Where no silage was available, four pounds of roots should be fed, he said. In feeding beef cattle, roots occupy a prominent place, according to this authority, who advocated four pounds daily for every hundred pounds of the animal's live weight.

Both speakers claimed that it was impossible to get too much succulence and palatability in the cattle rations and in their opinion roots constituted one of the most important feeds in this respect. Moreover, mangels and turnips, they said, could easily be grown on practically every Eastern Canadian farm and they strongly urged a big increase in the acreage sown.

AGRICULTURAL CLUBS

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 24—In connection with the Department of Agriculture's promotion of boys' and girls' agricultural clubs, the development of Junior Potato Clubs, a recent special scheme, has reached a point where 48 of the 58 fields planted by members of the seven organizations passed certified seed this season. The average profit was $112.35 per acre. There are now 142 boys and girls clubs in Nova Scotia, with a membership of over 2,000, engaged in all kinds of farming activities.

Tossed Her Into Decorative Pond in Garden Several Times.

FAILS TO GET ALIMONY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Alfred F. Barbaresi, wealthy Bronxville and Mount Vernon realty man, never got a kiss from his wife except when she was intoxicated, he swore in affidavits on file in Supreme Court at White plains yesterday.

But that was not so bad, because, the affidavit said, she was frequently intoxicated, and his kissless spells were broken. He recited that Mrs. Katharine B. Barbaresi became kiddy, indeed, at the Lenox Hunt and Riding Club, Lenox, Mass., last July, and insisted on sitting on the lap of every man on the lounge.

Whereupon the men—unchivalrous things!—all got up and went away from there, Barbaresi says. He added that his wife pitched ash stands, mantel clocks and water glasses at him, besides clawing him and beating him with clenched fists.

Mrs. Barbaresi, who is suing for separation, alleged her husband tossed her into a decorative pond in their garden and, when she climbed out, threw her in again.

Justice Bleakley denied her application for $500 weekly alimony and gave her $1,000 of the $5,000 counsel fee she asked. She admitted owning $125,000 worth of property in Macon, Ga.

BOYS WORK BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

L. W. Copp is President With Herb Tranter Vice-President.

FRENCH PREMIER HARD TO CHOOSE

President Doumergue Confers With Leading Politicians of Country.

BRIAND ELIMINATED.

PARIS, January 24 (C.P.). — The necessities of growing hard times spurred President Doumergue to-day in his search for a new Premier to replace Theodore Steeg, whose Cabinet resigned on Thursday night after a defeat in the Chamber of Deputies.

Figures made public to-day revealed that there are now 22,464 persons drawing the unemployed dole in France as against 988 at the end of last September. It is estimated that a far larger number of unemployed have not yet sought the dole, not to speak of an increasing number who are employed on part time only.

Prompt designation of a new Premier and his quick formation of a Government, it was believed, will prevent the instability of the present political situation from accentuating further the conditions which are leading to wonder if France, hitherto largely spared, is not to see a period of depression, too.

Four men stood out to-day as possible designates, but one of them, Aristide Briand, was considered as eliminated, he having no wish to take up the heavy burdens of leadership at this time. The others were Pierre Etienne Flandin, Secretary of Commerce under Andre Tardieu, Senator Louis Bartnou, and Pierre Laval.

President Doumergue, who yesterday consulted seventeen of the nation's political leaders, conferred with others to-day, but it was believed would make an announcement of his choice by to-night. Much depends upon the attitude of the Radical Socialists, who as always are demanding a big price for their collaboration with any party in forming a Government.

ARMS LIMITATION PARLEY FOR 1932

Place of Gathering to be Named During May Council Session.

TO CHOOSE CHAIRMAN.

GENEVA, Jan. 24.—The Council of the League of Nations to-day formally invited the governments of the world to assembly for general disarmament conference Feb. 2, 1932.

The date designated as the first Tuesday after the session of the Council in January 1932, which will begin Jan. 25 and last about a week. Geneva was designated conditionally as the place for the conference.

The city finally chosen must give guarantees for satisfactory entertainment of the delegations, the press, and the public.

The president of the conference will be appointed at the May Council session, which also will name finally the place where it will be held.

In a short address before the Council to-day Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, declared that the draft convention constructed by the preparatory disarmament convention must not be considered as binding upon the Government conference.

Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, in answering, called attention to this German reservation, declaring that the preparatory commission's work must not be regarded as negligible. If debate is re-opened on various principles already decided the possibility of success of the conference dwindles he said.

Auto truck manufacture and a tannery will be operated in the same plant at Mukden, China.

EXAMINER CHEER FUND STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Daisy DeBoe, former escretary to Clara Bow, movie "it" girl, now standing trial at Los Angeles on charges of misappropriating funds of her former employer, whose tales of Hollywood night life in her evidence have been banned by the court.

Gifts By Citizens Greatly Appreciated and Money Used to Best Advantage.

FUND NOW EXHAUSTED.

In comparison with other places Peterborough is getting through the winter with a minimum of distress. Up to the present the program of the City Council has relieved the situation very considerably and many men have been able to work and earn for their families through the City's work program.

The City Relief Officer has been very considerate and relief organizations, the major one of which is the Canadian Legion, through its officers headed by James Abraham, have taken care of a number of cases and it is felt that no one actually in need has been overlooked. Money subscribed through The Examiner by citizens and donations to The Examiner Cheer Fund has been distributed to good advantage and is now practically exhausted, as the following statement will show, and to carry on the work of the Peterborough Relief Association recently organized, some means of raising necessary funds to carry on the work until spring will require to be worked out.

The actual money received from individual subscriptions amounted to $556.23, added to which was the Bowling Club Dance proceeds of $300; The Examiner Dance, $200, and the Midnight Show in the Capitol Theatre, $540.70. The total amount paid out for relief by The Examiner was $851, and the amount paid to other relief organizations was $705, making a total of $1,556, leaving a balance of $40.93, with a further work done that will overdraw the account until fresh funds are obtained.

Y.P.S. MEETING IS HELD AT OMEMEE

Mr. Lamb is a Special Speaker For Occasion—Interesting Program.

OMEMEE, Jan. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The young people's meeting of Trinity Church was held on Monday evening with Fred Weir in charge and conducted the opening part of the service. Miss Christina Connell read the scripture lesson.

The special speaker of the evening, Mr. Lamb, was called upon to give the topic. "Right Living" (Isaiah 5:1-12) The speaker dealt with the worship rendered by the people of Isaiah's time. "They were punctual, faithful worshippers at Jerusalem. Yet they were a great disappointment to God. This of course does not mean that. St. James was in different to the matter of public worship. His epistle takes public worship for granted as also does the new testament "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together as the manner of some is."

Many of our 20th century writers and novelists direct their fire against the state and church, but these writers go too far as we cannot get along without church and the church without worship.

We should not be indifferent to public worship. All things in the house of God should be carried on reverently and in good order. Whether in Sunday School. Young peoples meeting, mission band or wherever we meet to promote God's work.

The ritual of public worship is not of first importance, but must take second place to the ritual of private living. We must first show loving kindness and be ever ready to help the harsh lot of others for God says "be ye kindly, affectionate, one to the other." To obey is better than sacrifice

We must see our great resources and opportunities in Canada not as occasions for pride and self, glory but as reminders to whom much is given of him shall much be required. All these as compared with the people of Isaiah's time demand in return, purity in the lives of the people which is the greatest asset any nation can possess. What do we think it means to live right, be honest in business, good citizens, good members of the home circle, having our minds filled with high ideals of duty and faithful to do them. Is it easy to live such a life?

This is a great challenge for each member of the Young People's Society. Let us not be forever seeking worldly possessions, pleasure, honor, fame or high position but let us seek first the Kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto us. No longer would it be necessary to coax for workers in the various departments but we would all be ready to say what shall we do and God's blessing would rest upon us."

Several choruses were given by six girls of the society. The meeting was then given over for a social time, when contests and community singing was enjoyed. After these, Mr. and Mrs. E. Corneil, were asked to come to the platform, when an address was read by Miss Faulkner and a table carrying numerous gifts were presented them. Mr. Corneil made a very suitable reply.

Mr. Lamb was tendered a vote of thanks for his topic. The young people then served refreshments and a very pleasant hour was spent.

NOEL COWARD IS ONE OF ENGLANDS LEADING WRITERS

Hay Fever is Sparkling Comedy Which Has Had Amazing Success.

PUT ON BY KINSMEN.

Cast Under Adrian Macdonald's Direction is Working Hard at Play.

In deciding to produce Noel Coward's sparkling comedy, "Hay Fever," the members of the Kinsman's Club, one of the city's younger service organizations, are showing themselves extremely enterprising. Their purpose is two-fold. They wish to raise funds for the extension of their service work, and also to put on an entertainment that will be a credit to their organization and a pleasure to those who attend.

The date of the performance will be announced later, but it will probably be about the middle of February. The production is under the capable direction of Adrian Macdonald of the Normal School staff, and the cast is composed of Mrs. D. Mactavish, Mrs. G. C. Carruthers, Miss Nan Parsons and Miss Marcelle McNulty, Dr. R. Honey, Dr. Herbert Young, Alexander L. Elliott and Murray Smye.

Interviewed by The Examiner, Mr. Macdonald, who is well known in this district as a literary man and one keenly interested in drama, briefly outlined some notable facts relating to the meteoric rise to fame of Noel Coward and the amazing success of his comedy, "Hay Fever."

Only 30 Years of Age.

"Mr. Coward, although still a comparatively young man, is undoubtedly one of the outstanding dramatists in England to-day," said Mr. Macdonald. "He is only thirty, but he has already been the author of a number of remarkable successes. 'The Vortex,' produced in London and in New York, was his first great success. In this play Mr. Coward, who is an actor of unusual technique and excellent ability, took the leading role himself.

"Mr. Coward has had many ups and downs in his career as an actor and as an author. When only eleven years old he made his first professional appearance on the stage. From then on he was continually appearing, first in minor parts and later in important ones. 'I'll Leave It to You' was his first play to be produced. He wrote it in four days. It was a moderate success. There followed rapidly several other plays, until with 'The Vortex' and 'Fallen Angels' Coward reached the peak of success. He then took to writing musical comedies, and showed himself as adept at composing song hits as he was at making brilliant epigrams. 'Bitter Sweet,' which was played in Toronto with considerable success, is perhaps his best known operetta.

"Mr. Coward, like many other important dramatists, has a serious side to his work. He has held up to ridicule or condemnation the vices of the dissipated rich. The chief character in 'The Vortex,' for instance, is a dope fiend. Now, the general public is always on the lookout for some delightful bit of scandal, and it jumped to the conclusion that 'The Vortex' was not a satire, but a personal confession. It pictured Noel Coward as himself frightfully depraved, addicted to cocaine, and a frequent visitor to opium dens. But such a picture is, of course, ridiculous. In private life, according to those who know him, Noel Coward is thoroughly respectable, quite a tennis player, and very hard working.

"'Hay Fever' is one of Coward's lighter pieces. It is very modern—a startling combination of satire, sophistication and clever wit. When I saw it in Toronto it had the curious effect of dividing the audience into two groups. Half of those present laughed until they were weak, and the other half wondered what the laughter was all about."

The cast under Mr. Macdonald's direction is working strenuously at rehearsal of the play, and it is confidently expected that the results will justify their efforts.

Some excise returns from the Dumfries district of Scotland, signed by Robert Burns, 1794, together with a thermometer and a hydrometer used by the poet in his studies as exciseman, were sold in London recently for $270.

MUSTEROLE
BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PLASTER

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Applique which can be used so well in interior decoration has an interesting history.

• • • • • • •

It was first used to quicken work and is now popular for a like reason. In this era when speed so effects needlecraft that what cannot be done in a short time is considered difficult, embroidery has become firmly yoked with applique.

• • • • • • •

Applique gives splashing effects with the minimum effort while the ornamental stitching used with it gives the aspect of embroidery to the whole.

• • • • • • •

Patchwork and applique are so closely related in the mind that the word is frequently used for applique. But patchwork is not identical with applique although in each piece of textile are shaped and used ornamently.

• • • • • • •

The distinction is probably more clearly established when patchwork is termed piecework as it was its one-time name. It consists of sewing shaped pieces of material together to form an uninterrupted surface, while applique consists of sewing shaped pieces onto another textile.

• • • • • • •

Both applique and patchwork are intentionally decorative.

• • • • • • •

The modern idea of speed in the use of pieces of textile to represent stitching is not itself modern. It is the original purpose.

• • • • • • •

At first a foundation textile was colored with pigment to supply ornament, and later on, in the earliest stages of decorative art, it is considered probably ,that patches of cloth were used instead of paint to give the same ornamental touches.

• • • • • • •

At still a later period when needlecraft began to flourish, stitching done alone was employed as the one worthy form of decorating textiles. It was still at a later period when work began to be taken in consideration as well as the fineness of the decoration, that applique began to come to the fore.

• • • • • • •

These bygone centuries have this in common with the present one—time and a minimum of labor for the maximum of effect.

• • • • • • •

Net applique is one of the smart new methods of decoration that harks back to past generations. The designs of flowers, buds and leaves is charming when carried out in colors. A bedspread with a border of green foliage and gay blossoms and buds will dress up a bed charmingly.

• • • • • • •

Window hangings are also prettily done with the applique using any plain flat color and running the border around the bottom of the curtain and separating the leaves to use as a side border.

THE MILLS OF THE GODS.

The Mills of the Gods are grinding
Though slowly, perchance they may,
Yet silently, surely turning
Their grim wheels, night and day.

For all alike they are grinding
It matters not what befall,
Turning out what ere is brought them
To the last grain, fine and small.

If we bring them grain that's golden,
And wholesome, and clean, and sound,
Then may we expect rich measure
Of good grist, when 'tis ground.

But if poisonous tares we furnish,
'Stead of pure, and perfect wheat,
Then of tares will be our gristing
As surely is just and meet.

To those mills of such fateful grinding
Be it ours to bring supply,
Of the best, the purest, and fairest,
For our gristing, bye and bye.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CLASSIFYING AND TREATING ASTHMA.

Perhaps you or one of your family is afflicted with asthma and have been reading from time to time that asthma is now curable.

You may have tried some of the newer methods of treatment—cutting down on certain foods; operations on nose and throat; the use of certain vaccines, X-ray treatments, ultra violet rays—and have had no satisfactory results.

Why?

Because although the above and other methods have cured many cases, every case of asthma is a law unto itself and must be treated accordingly.

In reviewing many cases of asthma, Dr. G. B. Rice, Boston, tells us that Dr Burlton Hareltine, Chicago, and Dr. Jas. Adam, Glasgow, Scotland, both arrived at the same conclusion about the same time and that is that asthma is a poisoning due to organisms or other poisonous matter in the system.

This poisoned condition of the system interferes with the proper balance of the nerve supply to the bronchial tubes, alters the chemical condition of the blood, and produces irritation of the ethmoid sinus or cavern adjoining the back part of the nose.

And the underlying cause of this poisoning may be infected teeth or tonsils, the sinuses adjoining the nose, or the gall bladder and intestine; constipation and the failure of the body to get rid of its wastes properly; errors of diet and unfavorable living conditions or climate.

Dr. A. LaForge, Chicago, divides asthma cases into five divisions or categories (a) anything of an obstructive nature in region of nose and throat, such as polypus or inflammation of the sinuses (b) anything which may be poisoning the system, tonsilitis, bad teeth, inflamed gall bladder and so forth (c) anything that interferes with getting rid of wastes—constipation, kidney or skin conditions, (d) gall stones, chronic appendicitis, growths, (e) conditions like asthma but where the shortness of breath is due to heart, kidney or lung conditions.

What about treatment?

This must be done by a physician and a nose and throat specialist working together. The patient is built up physically and where the treatment is likely to be prolonged, hospital treatment for two or three weeks is given.

Hot packs to induce sweating, drinking ten to fifteen glasses of water daily; cleansing the large intestine by high injections, and the use of medicines that work on liver and gall bladder. The nose conditions are treated by cotton packs of silver nitrate solution for the two weeks and any surgical operation is then performed.

Results show that this classification of cases and treatment give most satisfactory results.

Pleasing Program By George Street Y.P.A.

A very entertaining meeting of the Y.P.A. of George Street Church was held on Tuesday evening with the president, Homer Borland, as leader of some jolly community songs. Miss Marie Thompson took the Scripture lesson and Elmer Tretheway gave a five-minute talk. A short stunt entitled "The Piano Tuner" had a cast consisting of the Misses Ethel Titus, Marie Thompson and Hazel De Guere. Max Parnell played as a piano solo, "The Monastery Garden," and a charade, entitled "Pollyanna," was enacted by Hazel De Guere, Doris Mutton and Harold Barnard.

Miss Eva Outram, the speaker of the evening, related some of her experiences while teaching in England.

With the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard as teacher, a spelling match was held with such tongue-twisters as proselytize, psoriasis and cactaceous, as pitfalls for the unwary. Miss Musa Cox proved to be the champion speller of the group.

The closing exercises consisted of a hymn, a poem, entitled "In a Friendly Way," given by Miss Irene Cox, leader of the group in charge, and a prayer.

To save a sale of articles, made by disable soldiers and sailors from failure, Countess Haig, widow of the World war leader, and Colonel Robertson, V.C., carried sandwich boards through the streets of Edinburgh, Scotland, advertising the event.

MUSICAL COMEDY'S MODERN DEFECTS

George Grossmith Says "No, No, Nanette" Was Best.

"The trouble with American musical comedy is over-production," said George Grossmith, British actor-manager, whose experience in the United States began in 1913. In an interview on his recent departure for Europe he declared that "No, No, Nanette" was the greatest musical comedy success England ever saw with "Rose Marie" not far behind it "Both had definite, strong stories ("Rose Marie" even had a murder in it), but what is to be done in this era of specialty acts when a narrative stops for an adagio dance and a plot has to wait in the wings during ten coloratura encores? Let there be a cessation of the gaudy shows in which a potentially interesting character makes an appearance at 9 p.m. and then is not seen again until 10.55, the interval having been taken up by the parades of satins and shimmering silks. For the plaudits, he avers, are annually becoming more apathetic, and the silks and satins more dolorous."

And as to Hollywood, Mr. Gross with dismissed it as the place where 300 song writers were employed for one picture, three of them were used and all were paid.....A London actor-manager threw up his hands and sailed for home.

SEVEN McLAGLENS

Three Are Just One as McLaglen Family Lines Up

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—Three of the seven McLaglen brothers from England are very friendly here, but Leopold McLagen is the one who busted out with $100,000 damage suit against Victor McLaglen, the picture actor. Arthur and Cliff McLaglen are the most recent arrivals and another brother, Cyril, is coming over also intent on getting into pictures.

Edward Small has just taken over handling Cliff McLaglen as a male lead. Arthur is already cast in a Tarzan type of ape-man serial.

Victor McLaglen points to this as evidence that he is not jealous of maintaining his own standing in pictures at the expense of his next-of-kin.

GETS "PAR" STARS.

Says Louella Parsons:

"The principal topic of conversation in Hollywood these days is Jack Warner's coaxing of Paramount stars on the First National lot. If Jack had looked about to find a sensation to spring he couldn't have found one that would have created more excitemnt than his signing of Ruth Chatterton and William Powell.

But, you haven't heard anything yet, my children. Josef von Sternberg, director of Marlene Dietrich is the next in line. This is not official, but I hear it from a source that heretofore has been impeccable in its authenticity. I also hear that Marlene Dietrich will go with von Sternberg. Paramount had no idea when Miss Dietrich was signed by them that she was going to be such a success. I, of course, am one of the few who do not see great star material in Dietrich."

EVELYN LAYE'S BEAUTY

Although the reviewers do not rave over "One Heavenly Night," Evelyn Laye's first picture, and some of them bestow but faint praise they are unanimous in their tributes to the English girl who starred in "Bitter Sweet." One of them writes: "Evelyn Laye is probably the world's most captivating blonde actress on screen or stage."

It is a United Artists production. Leon Errol and John Boles have leading roles.

PRIESTLEY WOULDT MIND.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24—J. B. Priestely, author of "Angel Pavement," will give Hollywood a whirl with an eye to writing for pictures. He gets here in May.

Priestly is coming over from abroad on a limited lecture tour en route to study native life on the small islands in the Pacific, in line with the setting of his next novel.

MLLE. MODISTE AGAIN

"Kiss Me Again," the title of its famous waltz song, is the screen version of Victor Herbert's "Mlle. Modiste" in which Fritzi Scheff won the hearts of theatregoers twenty-five years ago. Bernice Claire is given the titular role and sings charmingly. Walter Pidgeon, Claude Gillingwater, Albert Gran and Edward Everett Horton are in the cast.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IDEAL OF ARLISS

Famous Actor Says Films Emphasize Little Details.

ART OF RESTRAINT.

"My experience in films has taught me many things that have been useful to me in the theatre as well," said George Arliss in a recent interview. "First and foremost it has brought home to me the value of sincerity; I found that every flicker of an eyelash, every shade of thought was registered on the screen and so I reason that what is seen by the camera may be felt by an audience. The art of restraint and suggestion may be studied by watching Charlie Chaplin on the screen; he is in my opinion the ideal motion-picture actor.

Work in the studios is not always it is by no means all beer and skittles. To me it is always interesting but rather exhausting. The real fun and pleasure is the outdoor work in the country on charming sunny days. I am never happier than on location work in such a picture as "The Ruling Passion." It is a picture in which I am supposed to work in a garage, and when I have on my overalls and am loitering about outside my workshop in real earnest I begin to realize the pleasures of being a 'workingman.'"

MARY PICKFORD'S STAGE CIGARETTE

Had to Smoke in "Coquette" and Spoiled a Scene.

HAS BIG FARM.

These modern cigarette ads have no appeal for Mary Pickford according to this film experience she related to a New York Times interviewer.

"In Coquette in keeping with my character as a very modern young woman, I was called on to smoke a cigarette. I was to stand in the middle of the room and puff nonchalantly without thinking much about it. Well, I puffed once and blew out a cloud of smoke at the same time stepping back to get the full of it. I puffed again and took another step backward. And that finished that little performance. For that I had to put my cigarette in the ash tray, which didn't please my director.

"That was one of the few times I've had to 'Kill.' I'd observed smokers (cigarettes so much that I mean there couldn't be any illusion) [illegible] a cigarette really inhaling the smoke as if I were quite accustomed to smoking. The cool menthol was turned on and then I became accustomed to it while I practiced [illegible] this scene. I [illegible] the smoke and I choked and [illegible] coughing spells. They had to fetch me a glass of water. The second scene was turned off and that ended my career as an advertising [illegible] standing with a cigarette [illegible] from my lips, but you may find Kiki smoking in the picture.

Talking pictures are a great strain" on Miss Pickford. She [illegible] ten days [illegible] which [illegible] hearsal period usually takes. The greatest strain she finds [illegible] through a scene before the microphone with no director to [illegible].

"When it comes time for me to go Douglas and I have our ranch in the West. It's twenty-seven miles from San Diego and consists of about fifty-five acres of beautiful eucalyptus, miles of lovely grazing land. Our oranges will bear fruit next year, although I was saddened by a magazine article recently which said good oranges will not appear until ten years after planting. We have a herd of cattle, too, but I never kill any of them. I'll just chase them around the hills like a real Peter Pan, I suppose. I'd like to build a nice, clean, cool dairy [illegible].

Miss Pickford will leave for Europe later in the Spring to have a rendezvous in Baden Baden with Mr. [illegible] who is in the Orient on a hunting trip.

CHAPLEAU INDIAN SCHOOL.

Read before Madoc Women's Institute on January 16

"There are three Indian schools in Ontario and two in Manitoba Chapleau Indian Residential School is about three miles from Chapleau, and the staff consists of the following members:

Head principal, two public school teachers, head matron, boys' matron, girl's matron, laundry matron, two kitchen matrons, farm supervisor and engineer.

The ladies of the staff wear a white uniform with a black tie. With the exception of the school teachers, they wear a white veil, similar to that worn by Red Cross Nurses.

Ninety-seven are attending at present. They are from Brantford, Parry Sound, James Bay and from the vicinity of Chapleau. Children are accepted from three to eighteen years of age and may stay longer. Several call Chapleau Indian School, home, and return to it for holidays or when out of employment.

The school is under the M.S.C.C. with headquarters at Winnipeg.

The school is managed by the government who own the school, they land and they send the children. The church supplies the staff and the government pay their salaries. The children are adopted and fed by the government, and are clothed by the church. The pupils do not pay for supplies, education, etc.

There is a service room in the building where regular church services and Sunday School is held.

The junior pupils attend school from nine until twelve and from one thirty until four. The second and third classes attend in the morning and do various tasks in the afternoon. The girls sew and mend, and the boys saw and split wood. The fourth classes attend in the afternoon. In the morning the girls sew, cook, do laundry and kitchen work. MOUNT PLEASANT

At the January meeting of the Mount Pleasant branch of Women's Institute, the 1931 programs were given out to the members. The program is in folder style.

On the inside is printed the twelve months with four subjects for discussion and a roll-call subject with space enough left between each month for the individual branch to fill in place of meeting and the members responsible for the program of the meeting and also the names of those who will help with the refreshments.

YOUNGS POINT.

The following paper was read by Mrs. Andrew Wilson, at the recent meeting of the Women's Institute, being experiences of Mrs Laura Rose Stephens and Mrs. A. E. Walker on their trip to the International Congress at Belgium, as Ontario Delegates and which was told by Mrs. Stephens at the Toronto Convention.

Mrs. Stephens said she tried to observe everything that had happened.

As they left Montreal, streamers of ribbon were thrown from the ship as they left the dock and passed on under the Quebec Bridge and were fairly on their way.

Eleven days were spent in the city of London, and here Mrs. Stephens told of the most good they derived from visiting the Women's Institutes in England.

Canadians are favored in having such generous and splendid Government help. In England the Institutes are an independent organization and all assistance and literature is paid for by the separate Institstes or by the individual members.

The Institutes of Europe are still stressing the problems of home, urging that more modern conveniences be installed and especially do they desire that the women be freed from doing so much labor in the fields that they may have more time to care for the duties of their homes and the Welfare of their children.

In England they aim to have an amusement hour at all their regular meetings.

Mrs. Stephens told how glad both she and Mrs. Walker were to compare our methods of work with those of the over seas Institutes. Progress is learning what others have done and taking a step in advance.

Travel and contact are a great means of gaining this knowledge. The different Institute Pins were described. The Canadian Pin has the two Maple leaves; in England the pin has the maple-leaf and the rose; the Welsh pin has a dog, and so on.

Four unknwon soldiers graves were visited, one in Westminster Abby, one in Belgium, one in Paris and one in Germany, the grave in Germany is down in a hollow and us surrounded by high stone walls and on those walls are 13,000 names of the men who fell in the Great War.

They then visited the Crystal Palace where 62 countries are represented, all with maps, Canada being one of them.

In her travels, Mrs. Stephens also had the pleasure of visiting the Prince of wales' ranch in the west.

The sail down the River Rhine was most wonderful, but they wondered how the people in Belgium lived.

Neither Mrs. Stephens nor Mrs. Walker saw a milk bottle while there, the milk being delivered in jugs and pails. Men with yokes on their shoulders carry the water pails, and such a lot of old-fashioned wind-mills.

In Holland there are fields of beautiful flowering bulbs, daffodils, hyacinths and others. Dutch-folk were so hospitable they leave doors always open.

In Switzerland the mountains were the attraction.

In Germany they paint their houses outside in beautiful colors, but are not so particular about the paint inside and when the ladies arrived there, whey were holding the Passion Play, which is held there every 10 years from the 15th of May to the end of October.

Some hundred years ago there was a poor workman who became so homesick that he was stricken with the plague. Two hours after the was stricken. Six hundred were down with it and in that time 84 had died.

When the priest saw everyone dying, he took a vow, if God would remove the plague, that every ten years the Passion Play would be held, and after that not another death occurred.

No greater honor can be bestowed or anyone, than to take a part in the Passion Play.

Mrs. Stephens said never had she seen anything so wonderful, so beautiful and helpful, and in closing she said, Can we measure the good from the lesson of the great sacrifice of our Lord and Saviour' "

WARSAW.

When the Martha Union of Finland was divided because of the Finnish and Swedish languages, the work which is much alike in both organizations progressed rapidly and is gaining as at first there was a certain amount of distrust among the rural women. The form of the organizations is founded on the idea of equality. The principal object of Martha work is to raise the standard of domestic economy and to improve financial conditions in the country, by gardening, poultry-raising, needlework and other home crafts.

Extensive plans for instruction in these occupations have been made and carried out and many have taken advantage of the classes. It was difficult at first for there was much prejudice as well as distrust among the rural population, but that is largely overcome.

Now the country people are learning how to grow, cook and enjoy various vegetables, and consequently their food is not so monotonous as it has a short time ago. Interest in vegetable gardens is rapidly gaining. Through the poultry-raising induced by the Martha activity the finances in the homes are increased.

Needle-work and weaving have attracted many women and in one year 148 courses were organized with an attendance of 2732 pupils.

Both organizations have done much to further the doll industry. It earned $200,000 in one year.

There are short courses in the care of young children, and in house-keeping.

There are children's circles for cooking, Gardening in general, and potato raising, and it is intended as soon as possible to have circles for every kind of work a child can do.

The Marthas are also trying to show the women how valuable there time and work in the home really are. The government gives a certain fixed sum to the Union and many communities, banks, business firms and private citizens, make donations of money.

The ideal of the Union is an enlightened interest, efficient housewife in every home in Finland.

Not many of us here in Canada can realize what that means in the Finnish homes.

MILLBROOK

As a response to the roll-call in a recent Institute gathering the program called for "Aids in Dish-Washing," and many helpful hints resulted, the members giving their information from actual experience. One suggestion was rather amusing since the homemaker, who was fairly well up in years, brought a smile when she declared it was no longer excusable to use "the sleeve from one of your husband's, or son's, discarded shirts for a dish-cloth in these days, as I did for years after I was married. Either that, or a piece from worn-out underwear. But now I go to the five- and ten-cent store and buy a good dish-mop, or a cloth to match my tea-towels, or the color scheme of my kitchen, and feel my self-respect doubled, and my dishes scrupulously clean."

Several others mentioned using the dish-mop in preference to the old-time cloth for the dish-pan "full of used" china after each meal; and there seemed to be a preference for steel wool, scouring mitts, or a wire brush, that quite displaced the bath-brick with its invariable dust and clumsy board, which used to be considered an indispensable item of the household cleaning apparatus.

Soap, and scouring powders were however still used by a number, and the president brought in a warning note in regard to keeping brushes thoroughly clean lest they become a hiding-place for germs.

One members, when the matter of hooks over the sink for hanging brushes was under discussion, gave a practical suggestion for the use of worn-out rubber rings from fruit jars. "Tie them together securely, forming a flat mat, using eight, ten or twelve, according to the size of mat you want, hang the completed article over your sink and you have a handy protection for sink or table, when you have a hot sauce-pan or kettle to set down. It save a black mark, and thus saves scouring, as well as any surface injury from contact with the hot vessel."

The care of the hair was discussed at an Institute meeting with beneficial results, one fair-haired member telling of her discovery that as she found her 'thatch' darkening as she grew older, the addition of a scant tablespoon of soda to the wash water, and another of lemon juice to the rinse water, had rectified the trouble and made her hair light, fluffy, and easy to handle.

The the hair needs washing at least every ten days was the general opinion as its absorbs odors such as tobacco, and cooking, and adds to this perspiration, hence the need of care to keep it sweet and clean.

IMMORTAL MEMORY

and R. Clyde, after making a circuit of the tables, deposited the haggis with all its trimming of thistles and heather, on the head table, where Burns' "Address to the Haggis," was delivered by G. G. Low.

Prior to his opening remarks, the chairman read greetings from Rev. W. S. Edgar, now of Chester, Pennsylvania. He also tendered the apologies of Colonel J. W. Miller and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who were unavoidably absent.

"I have great pleasure in welcoming you here to-night to do honor to Scotland's national poet, 'Bobbie' Burns," said the President, addressing the gathering. "Burns is one whom every Scot regards with a deep personal love, and although most of his poems are written in dialect, they belong to Scotland no more than they do to the rest of the world at large."

"The Twa Countries"

Responding to the toast, "The Twa Countries," Past-president Robert French, who was incidentally the haggis cook on this occasion, spoke very capably on the outstanding characteristics of the Scotch race, of the contribution which his countrymen have made to Scotland and to the world, with particular reference to the contribution which Scotland's sons have made to Canada.

"Scotland has never been accused of being a laggard nation," he stated, "and in spite of the fact that it is only a small country has left her mark on the progress of the world."

"We have Scotsmen everywhere," he continued, "and everywhere you find them, you will find them at the top. The rank and file plod away accomplishing just as much proportionately speaking, as their countrymen in higher spheres of endeavor."

"Absent Ones"

"We always have absent ones," said Vice-President A. D. Clark to this toast. "It seems like a law that the same company that meets here one night never assembles again in its entirety on other occasions." He did not, however, think it a time for sadness; rather was it a time for remembrance.

In referring to the pleasure it gave him to respond to the toast, "The Immortal Memory," His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, recalling the circumstances in which Robert Burns was born, termed him the "great apostle of freedom," and stated that in the year 1759—the same year that this great deliverer from the burden of prejudice was born, there was brought into the triple cross of St. Andrew, St. George and St. Patrick, this great land of freedom—Canada—that those from the land of Burns might come. That fact, His Honor thought, should make us more continual to Burns' memory than we might othewise be, and it is well to bear in mind that Burns' birthday and our accession to Canada came in the same year.

Looking over the history of Scotland, said the speaker, there are four outstanding characters; two of them soldiers and the other two literary men. He referred to Bruce and Wallace, and Burns and Scott. There was one striking similiarity between these four men, in so much as they were all deeply imbued with patriotism.

He termed Sir Walter Scott as the poet of Scotland and Robert Burns as the poet of humanity. Scott gave an insight into history, legendary lore; Burns did not do that, nor did he attempt such work.

His Honor spoke also at some length concerning his recent visit to the British Isles, dwelling mainly with his impressions of Scotland, which he had studied from the angle of a scholar and an ardent lover of history and Scottish literature.

He described the great Wallace monumment, the numerous statues to the memory of Robert Burns, and also gave a detailed account of the impressive scene at the grave of Sir Douglas Haig—a scene which was impressive, because of its remarkable simplicity and beauty.

Speaking of Scotland's national War memorial to her 100,000 sons who gave their lives in the cause of freedom, His Honor described it as one of the most magnificent, sorrowful, touching and poignant War memorials he had ever seen. You may ask what this has to do with Burns, he said. It may have very little and perhaps a great deal of relationship. Burns, born in humble circumstances, a man who did not have the advantages of a great education, nevertheless sounded the battle cry of freedom for which Bruce fought and Wallace died, and for which Sir Douglas Haig and that large army of Scotsmen gave their lives.

Later, His Honor spoke of Burns as being to him, one of the saddest tragedies ever known. It was tragic that such a superhuman genius should have had a life so sad and in some respects unsuccessful. Books have been written denouncing him as a drunkard but, stated the speaker, Dr. H. B. Anderson, who is a native of Apsley and who was educated in Peterborough and who is now a specialist on heart diseases, has made an exhaustive study of the life of Burns and of his literature. His studies have been from a medical as well as from a literary view, and he has come to the definite conclusion that Burns died as the result of a rheumatic condition of the heart, caused by his early struggles.

The speaker continued to explain why it was that after rising to fame almost overnight, Robert Burns just as suddenly lost favor with his countrymen. It was because he held up the signal of liberty for the freedom of all mankind. The old Calvinistic ideas were rigid at that time, but Burns fought them also. He should be honored for his patriotism. He loved Scotland.

The toast, "Our Club" was honored by Robert Hendry, who stated since the Caledonian Club was first formed here in the year 1913 it has kept steadily going forward, except during a short interval at the time of the war. He extended an invitation to all Scots people in the city and district, not yet affiliated with the club, to come along to the meetings. "You will be assured of the glad hand," he told them.

No little credit for the success of the evening is due to the efforts of Mr. Clark and Mr. Hendry, who arranged a splendid musical program, and of course to the various talented persons who contributed songs and recitations. They were as follows: Songs, "There Was a Lad," "A' the Airts," Mrs. G. Craig Bell; Songs, "The Bonnie Lass o' Ballochmyle," "A Man's a Man," J. Smith; Duet, "Oh, Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast," Mrs. C. Braig Bell and Mr. A. Clark; Reading, "Epistle to Davie, a brother Poet," Miss Margaret Wyllie; Song, "Whistle and I'll Come to You," "Within a Mile," Mrs. W. Howes; Duet, "Ye Banks and Braes," Messrs. Smith and Hendry. The accompanist was Miss Pearl Smith.

Following a vote of thanks, tendered by D. Anderson and which embraced the speaker of the evening and the entertainers, the proceedings concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

EGG CIRCLE HAS

laying an average of 37 eggs a year. To-day that number had increased to thirty five million birds with an average of 95 eggs. This increase of production he pointed out must be met ,and this could only be done by getting the eggs out of the country and on to a foreign market during the period of the year when production was highest.

Mr. Ashton thought that the cause of the present depression was the fact that there were on Jan. 1, over 4,700,000 dozen eggs in cold storage.

"What is going to be done, the speaker asked, when the production in the past ten years had increased 65 percent and the consumption only 55 percent" and continued to state that now the tariff had been regulated by government there was a good opportunity to find foreign markets for Canadian eggs.

Seek Gov't Commission

With this idea in view Mr. Ashton presented a resolution to the meeting asking them to pass it on motion and send it to the government. This resolution called for the appointment of a government Poultry Commissioner, whose duty would be to establish regular markets for Canadian eggs and establish an export business which would be beneficial to the producer. The speaker mentioned Great Britain as a possible market for the home produce, as in his opinion that country could buy from Canada if Canada could offer fair competition with other countries on her market. This resolution was accepted on motion and will be forwarded to the Dominion government.

F. H. Buker, of Brockville gave a short address on the egg situation. Speaking on the question of the resolution, he thought that owing to the fact that there were more eggs on the market than could be consumed, it would be advisable to sell for less and increase the consumption.

The Campbellford report, the speaker said, was a good one, featuring, as it did, the increase in extra grades. He looked forward, he said, to the time when the district would produce the long anticipated 10,000 dozen eggs a year. He pointed out that the price in Campbellford for the past year had been higher than in Toronto and other large cities.

Mr. Buker thought that the solution of the present egg situation was cheaper production which could be brought about by selected flocks. He pointed out that at the present time the trade had to deal with world marketing conditions. Increased consumption was one of the things to be aimed at, and this would have to go hand in hand with cheaper production.

At the conclusion of the meeting the speakers received a hearty vote of thanks for their attedance and addresses.

PROGRESS REPORTS READ AT MEETING

Members of Knox Presbyterian Church at Keene Hold Successful Year.

KEENE, Jan. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—A very successful meeting was held on Tuesday afternoon when the members of Knox Presbyterian Church met to receive the year's reports. The Rev. Mr. Sutherland conducted the devotional exercises and presided for the meeting with Will Renwick as secretary.

The session's report read by John Renwick showed that for the first part of the year the pulpit was filled by students from Knox College, George Hamilton, of Queen's University spent the summer months and his work was very appreciated, and for the winter the church was fortunate in securing as pastor the Rev. Mr. Sutherland of Edinburgh, Scotland, and late of the Central Presbyterian Church, Vancouver. The church had sustained serious loss during the year in the death of Robert Adamson and three faithful adherents, Peter MacFarlane, Mrs. John Neish and Mrs. Tucker.

Miss Nellie Hunter presented the reports of the Young People's Society and the flower committee, Miss Viola Wilson the Sunday School and Mrs. R. D. Short for the Women's Missionary Society.

The report of the treasurer, John Drummond was read by John Renwick, who also presented the building report. Mrs. Harry Short read the report of the W.M.S. meetings prepared by the secretary, Mrs. John Renwick.

Votes of thanks were tendered Miss Viola Wilson and Miss Nellie Hunter for their committee work, Miss Campbell, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Annie MacFarlane for their assistance in the service of praise, and all the church officers for their faithful attention to duties. The auditors were David Hastie and W. Donaldson.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed following the close of the meeting.

Mrs. R. A. Buchanan Is Hostess To Society

HAVELOCK, Jan. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Mrs. F. A. Buchanan was hostess to the members of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox Presbyterian Church for the January meeting held at her home.

The president, Mrs. J. Lennox was in the chair and a very interesting portion of the new study book, 'Ambassadors of Goodwill," was read by Mrs. F. J. Squire, after which discussion took place regarding ways of developing faith for the future—can there be failure if there is dependence on God's promises?, and how many ways the welfare of others in this country depend on the support of the W.M.S. Auxiliaries.

Plans to promote the work of the Society for the coming season were discussed and Mrs. C. Jamieson favored the gathering with a vocal solo, 'My Prayer."

More than 25,000,000 pounds of fish were imported into the Philippines last year.

A chimney blaze at the residence of Mr. Geo. Gordon on Elgin Street was the cause of a fire alarm on Monday evening. The fire was soon under control and little damage done.

Madoc High School Hockey Team went to Stirling for a return game on Tuesday evening. Casualities along the road delayed the start of the game until after half-past nine, but a good game was played by the boys, and the victory went to the Madoc Lads with a score of 2-1.

Final Period Rally Wins For Local Intermediates

Lakefield Strengthens E. P. L. Lead

PETES COUNT THREE GOALS TO WIN 6-5

Defeat Port Hope Ontarios to Remain in Running For O. H.A. Group Play-off Berth.

NEED BOWMANVILLE WIN.

Game is See-saw Affair With Visitors Holding Edge on Play in Second.

Staging an onslaught in the final period that netted them three goals, the Peterborough Hockey Club squeezed out a 6 to 5 victory over the Port Hope Ontarios in a peppy intermediate O.H.A. fixture last night at the Brock street arena. The successful rally of the Petes delighted the fans to no end and the win means that the blue shirts still retain the chance of breaking into second place in the group. A win over Bowmanville on Monday night will do that.

While better games have been seen at the local ice palace, few have exceeded last night's tangle in excitement. Jimmy Coursey's stalwarts and Alex Hills' henchmen from the lakefront battled it out, dishing up fast, rugged hockey. At times they almost scaled the heights of brilliance and at others they slumped down into something bordering on shinny. But the railbirds enjoyed the good with the bad and always there was the chance that the old feud between the two clubs might break out afresh. However, the engagement did run its length without fisticuffs being exchanged, which is something beyond the customary when the Petes and Port Hope cross sticks.

It was touch and go all through with Port Hope having the edge in the second period and the Petes riding along on a great offensive in the final canter. Both teams nabbed one in the first. The Petes were dragging 5 to 3 at the conclusion of the second. But in the third, with Port Hope endeavouring to defend their lead the Petes spurred into the driver's seat and quickly hammered in three counters to win by the one goal margin.

Vin Utronki, though his play lacked finish, was perhaps the most effective player for the Petes. He added greatly to Goalie Joe Micks' worries by continually hovering about his citadel and his tactics in this regard brought about the tieing and winning goals. Lackey rushed well and cleared well from in front of his goal. With Lebarr he made a sturdy defence which was not loath to bounce the opposition as they bored in upon occasion. Maudsley, Creighton and Hatton went well out in front, but Creighton's shooting (and he did a lot of it) was consistently off the mark. Jarvis checked and stickhandled well and Calladine loomed up as one of the fastest men on the ice when he untwisted himself.

Both goalies had plenty of work as they raced the length of the ice and both turned in nice cards. When the Petes were hard-pressed because of penalties, Gillespie proved his worth and Micks pushed out plenty of hot ones.

For the hardy Ontarios, the forward line of Ken and Ray Ware and Moise gave the Petes the most trouble. The trio proved tricky, close checkers and they wasted no opportunities. Hagerman with his accurate long-distance gunning and Harwood—he of the corpulent figure—staged many dangerous rushes. Francey, a hard-working substitute, was injured early in the third period when he struck the goal post in a melee, and had to retire.

The Teams

Port Hope—Goal, Micks; defence, Hagerman and Harwood; centre, K. Ware; wings, Moise and R. Ware; alternates, A. Hills, Francey and Freeman.

Peterborough—Goal, Gillespie; defence, Lebarr and Lackey; centre, Maudsley; wings, Creighton and Hatton; alternates, Calladine, Utronki and Jarvis.

Referee—A. W. Armstrong, Oshawa.

The battle opened up at a fast clip with both outfits sailing in to test the goalies. Two and a half minutes after the start, Maudsley and Hatton hooked up for an excursion, Maudsley slipped the rubber to Hatton, who breezed in on top of Micks for the first goal. The Petes were passing the puck freely and their attacks were carrying them inside but Micks was there. The Wares with Moise were not laying back and were also blazing shots at Gillespie. Harwood checked a Petes' attack, catching the forwards cold and then split the defence to score, tieing the count as the period closed.

Moise stickhandled his way in for a pretty effort to get the second period underway. However, the Petes were first to get on the score sheet again, Lebarr giving a pass at defence. Hatton's shot was stopped by Micks, but the rebound eluded the goalie and Lebarr banged it over his prostrate form. Labarr drew the first penalty of the game for tripping K. Ware and while he was off, Hills gave R. Ware a perfect pass to allow him to waltz in on Gillespie and bulge the twine. Jarvis drew a penalty and the Petes, two short, were hard put to it to withstand the Port Hope offensive. The Petes were still one short when R. Ware blazed a shot from the blue line that bounced off Gillespie's glove into the corner, putting Port Hope one up. Port Hope was carrying the play and they were showing their best speed of the game at this stage. Moise stickhandled his way through to the Ontario's fourth goal. Both teams were penalized two players together and when things returned to normal Moise again tricked his way through. Gillespie stopped his shot but Moise snared in the rebound. Before the period's close Creighton went down alone and lifted one into the corner to give the Petes their third marker.

In the final dash, Port Hope deemed it wise to play defensive hockey in order to protect their two-goal margin, but the Petes opened an attack that swept the Ontarios aside. Less than two minutes had passed when Lebarr did a solo down centre to score. The Petes opened up many other opportunities but Micks was in great form and ten minutes of effort passed before Utronki carried the puck around behind Micks and pushed it out for Jarvis to bang it home for the equaliser. A minute later, Lackey gave Utronki a pass, and while Micks stopped the shot, Lackey picked up the rebound and scored the winning tally. The Petes continued to force the play until the end.

WINDSOR BULLDOGS BREAK LONDON WINNING STREAK

Victory Puts Windsorites on Even Footing With Tecumsehs in International League Standings, Three Points Behind Buffalo Bisons.

BORDER CITY TEAM MEETS THE YELLOW JACKETS AT PITTSBURGH TO-NIGHT—OLYMPICS HAVE DOUBLE

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24 (C.P.)—A winning streak which had extended to seven straight games was stopped at Windsor last night when the Bulldogs nosed out London Tecumsehs, 1 to 0, in the only scheduled International Hockey League fixture. The victory put the Windsorites on an even footing with London in the standing, just three points behind the league leading Buffalo Bisons.

A long shot by Stan Brown, defence player, halfway through the final frame, avenged the Bulldogs for the 1 to 0 defeat Tecumsehs had inflicted upon them in their previous meeting.

The game was one of the best seen in the Border City Arena this season and places the Bulldogs in a splendid position to take undisputed possession of second place when they clash with the Yellow Jackets at Pittsburgh to-night.

In all, four games are scheduled over the week-end. The fast-slipping Olympics are called upon to do the iron-man stunt this time. They clash with the Indians at Cleveland to-night then return home to entertain the Stars on Sunday. A double victory will place them right back in the running for the play-off, but on their recent showing even a triumph over the lowly Stars is doubtful.

The Bisons entertain the Stars to-night and after a good rest should be able to maintain their advantage at the top.

CANUCKS MEET GERARD'S CREW THIS EVENING

Sextet Battling Hard For Positions as N.H.L. Teams Enter Home Stretch.

TEN IN ACTION.

Habitants Have Taken Six Triumphs in Last Seven Starts.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24.—(CP)—Primed for victory, which may or may not be theirs, 10 teams return to the hockey wars in the National Hockey League this week-end. With every game gaining in importance as the teams approach the stretch drive teams are taking fewer chances and striking hard for every point.

The four teams struggling for a play-off berth in the Canadian group have interesting tussles before them. Montreal Canadiens, leaders by four points over Toronto Maple Leafs, clash with New York Americans for the fourth time this season. The Habitants have found the Amerks tough opposition: Two games they won by the odd goal while the other the A's held their speedy rivals to a one-all tie.

Apparently the Red Shirted Habitants have only one aim in life at present, that being to clinch a play-off berth as quickly as possible. In their last seven starts they have scored six triumphs and suffered one defeat. Their last two wins were registered with Howie Morenz at home taking a well deserved rest and as he will return to action at the Forum tonight it is anticipated the Canucks will continue to advance.

The A's have collected five points out of a possible six in their last three starts. Boston Bruins were their most recent victims. A victory over the Habitants will greatly aid Eddie Gerard's men in their drive to overtake the Maroons, who are only two points in the van for third place honors.

GALT LOSES FIRST GAME ON HOME ICE

Fall Before Pittsburg Strengthened Niagara Falls Cataracts By 2-0 Count.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24 (C.P.)—The first defeat Galt Terriers have suffered on home ice this season was the high light of the three games played in the Ontario League last night, the league leaders fell before the Pittsburgh strengthened Niagara Falls Cataracts, 2 to 0.

Oshawa Pats deefated Guelph, the third place holders, 3 to 1, thereby enabling Kitchener Silverwoods to climb into a tie with them for the third rung. Kitchener downed Stratford Nationals, 5 to 3.

The Cataracts won over the Terriers by setting a burning pace from the start. Weakened through lack of relief material, the Terriers wilted toward the end. Manners opened the scoring in the middle frame and "Frock" Lowery clinched the result by sniping a pretty counter in the final session. The Cataracts are now only three points behind the leaders.

CEMENTVILLE SEXTET WINNERS ON ROUND 8-4 IN DOUBLE GAME O. H. A. SERIES WITH COMBINES

Association Hockey Run Off in Connection With Regular League Schedule.

DEFEATS NORWOOD 4-2.

Combination Play on Part of Winners is Highlight of Last Night's Game.

By their 4-2 victory in Norwood last night, Lakefield knocked off two birds together.

They wound up their two-game intermediate O.H.A. series by the score of 8-4 on the round, and they added two more points to their commanding total in the East Peterborough league, which they are now leading by three points over C.G.E. and Cogs, who are tied in second place.

In the next round of he O.H.A. the Cement town team will probably meet Port Perry during the first week in February in home and home games.

Lakefield demonstrated once more last night that a team playing regularly together has a distinct advantage over competitors drawn from a district as widely, though locally, scattered as that of the Combines. Their organized play stood out over the individual brilliance of several of the Norwood team. The Lakefield squad is also noticeably well balanced with a clever boy, Junkins in goal, a steady and hefty defense in Tom Wood and Johnnie Sabatino, and White a capable alternate; and the regular forward line has both weight and dash.

Tallies First Goal

With a dazzling burst of speed and smart stick-handling, McLaughlin of the Combines caught Lakefield before they had got their bearings with a goal in the first minute of play. While the home crowd was welcoming the impression that they were all set for a pleasant evening Braden Blewett put Lakefield on even terms with the Combines, and four minutes later Stuffy Mahood sent the visitors ahead, and from then on they were never overhauled.

Along through the second and third periods the pace not only accelerated, but the Norwood-Havelock clan started to smoke up the checking, especially with a liberal barrage of body-checks, but Lakefield stood the gaff and stayed on the ice, for the most part. Excepting a few squalls of heavy checking the game was comparatively clean. It was close all the way, and the sustained speed kept the crowd in a continual uproar.

Lakefield sent along a big contingent of supporters, and the eastern end of the county was represented by groups of fans from Havelock and Hastings, both these towns being represented in the Combines' line-up. The crowd was the biggest of the season for the Norwood rink.

Lakefield led at the first intermission by 3-1. They got the only goal in the second canto and Norwood scored the solitary goal in the third.

Lakefield: Goal, Junkin; defence, Tom Wood and J. Sabatino; centre, Louie Sabatino; right wing, Blewett; left wing, Stabler; subs, White, Mahood and Wannamaker.

Lead From First

McLaughlin's first goal was a promising curtain-raiser, and then when Blewett came right back along the boards and finally shook off Charlie Brennan who was checking him, and flashed in toward the Combines net for the second counter in less than two minutes, all the signs pointed to a busy evening for the boys with the big pads.

The action ranged back and forth for a few minutes with direct shots by Johnnie Sabatino for Lakefield, and McLaughlin and Jack tossing them for Norwood. Up near the home goal Jack dumped Stuffy Mahood and got the gate, and from the following face-off Stuffy hopped in close and snapped the rubber past Beavis

Louie Sabatino earned Lakefield's third goal, and when the period ended the visitors had a fairly comfortable margin to their credit for the game, and five goals up on the round.

Lakefield's fourth goal was fired from a neat three-man combination. Blewett, Louie Sabatino and Stabler traveled along abreast going straight through the Norwood defense, and Blewett scored, taking plenty of time to slip the puck past Beavis. The Lakefield attack reached its fullest force in that play. Meanwhile Junkin was holding a complete blockade against the Combines' strenuous efforts.

He stopped two in a row from McLaughlin, and another from Jack was tossed at him from a range of a few feet. Stuffy Mahood at the other end got in close for a chance, and lifted the rubber over the net Barney Quinn bumped Tom Wood into the boards and hostilities threatened for a moment

Wright Scores Last

Glen Wright was rewarded with the only goal of the last period a few minutes after it got under way. His rush carried him in behind the Lakefield goal, and as he passed the puck out in front it was apparently deflected by Jack Sabatino's skate into Junkins' net. The Lakefield boy blocked a hard one from Glen Wright. During the period Johnnie Sabatino stopped at least half a dozen shots from McLaughlin as he fired them from inside the Lakefield blue line. Barney Quinn handed out a liberal assortment of bumps, and drew a penalty for dumping Louie Sabatino, a few minutes after he was freed for upsetting Wannamaker. White got a ticket during that hectic session for tripping Jack, and Louie Sabatino was sent off for a similar offense against Norwood's flashy wing.

One of the last incidents was a fast combination by Blewett and Mahood that ended with Stuffy landing in the Combines' net but the puck was booted out by Beavis.

The Lakefield squad turned in a fine game, the forwards playing their positions more regularly than in any of the starts they have made this season. White rather spoiled an otherwise creditable performance by unnecessary tripping that cost him penalties. Both the goal guardians were exceptionally good, and not one of the six counters was soft.

McLaughlin and Jack flashed repeatedly for Norwood, and Glen Wright also played a fine game with Hill, Brennan and Stevenson also going good. Barney Quinn stopped a lot of the Lakefield rushes but his checking in spots was inclined to be strenuous.

Ray Rose handled the game impartially, but the home crowd didn't like Blewett's second goal seemingly under the impression that there was an offside in that play.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor: :

Well Mac, we can't anyway kick at the quantity of hockey we've been getting round these parts recently, even if some of the experts kinda sniff disdainfully every time Canada's national winter pastime is mentioned. They is a fracas of some kind nearly every nite at the Brock st. ice palace—in fact, the lunchroom hot dogs in the local arena don't get a chance to get cooled off between sessions.

In the jr. group, Mac, it looks like the 2 local entries, the Hockey Club and the Saints, will battle it out for the section honors and the right to meet the section champs for the group title. And a right merry little duel it oughta be, too. The 1st time the 2 teams clashed the young Petes just naturally climbed all over the Saints and win 6 to 0, but nobody is claiming any such 1-sided score the next time the jr. rivals tie into each other. Both sides has their supporters which is calling them to win, but the neutral fans can't make up their minds and is satisfied to predict that the play-off series oughta be real spicy from the 1st face-off until the final bell. The Saints is all through their schedule except for the 2nd game with Hockey Club, while the latter got another game with Lakefield to work in.

The intermediate issue, Mac, hinges on whether the Petes can go into Bowmanville next Mon. nite and slam Ginger Edgar's lads right on the snout. If they don't do that very same thing the home talent is through for the season. If they do do it, they'll be tied with Bowmanville for 2nd place and will hafta to play off to see which of the 2 teams will be walked over by Oshawa in the group finals, which ain't the most pleasant way of putting it, but undoubtedly is the most truthful.

Charlie Curtis' four-ringed hockey circus, the East Peterborough section of the T.VL. loop, is providing plenty of fireworks, and just as this is being writ, Johnny Sabatino and his Lakefield playboys, including the circling Stuffy Mahood, is right out at the head of the parade. The Lakefield lads threw the Cogs for a total loss Tues. nite, and up to now ain't been beat. The 2 local teams is both going good, and with Alex. Kempt's combines libel to kick the props from under somebody every time they start, sizing up this E.P. battle is a mighty tough assignment, what I mean.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, by this time next week the situation oughta to be cleared up a lot and we'll be able to get a line on what's likely to happen, if anything. Meanwhile the customers oughta be able to keep themselves amused with all the games that is being dished up.

Don't forget your license markers, old-timer.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

LADIES' CITY LEAGUE

"Happy Days" was never written by the Quaker Oats girls after their game with Brintons on Thursday evening. 550 and 542 counts by Mrs. Hewitt and Peggie Taylor hauled them down out of their first place tie with Columbians. Miss Dixon and Miss Northey were the only Quakers to get going.

After bowling 900 to win the first game the Nashua Paper team was overcome by the now fully aroused Metropolitan Store. Jean Mackie ar ' Agnes McCormick of the Stores turned in big scores, the former's 618 stood high for the night. Mae Hatcher, Ella Lockhart and Dot Copping chalked up big singles for Nashua.

Mrs. Coursey's Columbians added six more points to their lead by defeating West Ends. A 260 single by E. Drury followed by G. O'Connell's 610 triple cinched the job. Miss Pearson's all-round work and Miss Rightmyer's 203 single saved the final game for West Ends.

MANUFACTURERS

Heavy hitting by Lewis, Martyn and Trennum of the Sealrights offset the steady plugging of the Brintons to give the former team safe possession of first place. Lewis' 682 count was too much for the good bowling of Rundle and Munn of the Brintons.

Six points was the best the second place Merchants Press team could squeeze out of Martin-Hewitt gang. Consistent hitting of Johnson and Sunbury for the rival teams and big single by Leggott, Vohe and Gordon of Martin-Hewitt and O'Connor and Copping of the winners kept interest at top heat.

AUTOMOBILE

Another night of crowding was the outcome of the Automobile League games. Chryslers held their lead by downing the Fords, but a new menace sprang up in the Pontiacs who jumped into second place. Oldsmobile, Ford and Buicks are tied for third position, with Chevrolet and Hudson-Essex on their heels. Solid singles by Shaughnessy, Dorsett and J. J. Duffus enabled the Buicks to check the troublesome Hudson-Essex and 283 wallop by Evans following Ellis Armstrong's 224-211 and Inch's 216 gave Oldsmobile a clean sweep over Chevrolet. White and Dunford of the Chevrolets kept their team in the hunt.

Interest centred on Chryslers' six to two victory over Fords. Ab Juby was high man on the two teams, but big scores by the Chrysler veterans, Detcher, Robinson and Wilson, and good work by Gamble and Hales leaves but one more victory needed to clinch the Automobile League trophy.

WESTCLOX QUINTET TROUNCES WOHELOS FOR 54 TO 0 DECISION

BLUE PETES WIN 15-0.

Playing decidedly off color, the "Y" seniors managed to stagger through to a 12-6 victory over "Y" Elementary in the opening contest of an interesting tripleheader played last evening in the Ladies' Basketball League the Seniors, who appeared rather listless at first, were checked closely by the Elementary and play was even for several minutes. Then Isobel Davidson, clever centre player, scored twice in quick succession to put the Seniors four points up. Just before the half ended, Sybil Ecobichon scored a neat basket which left the Seniors leading 4-2.

Play speeded up considerably in the second half and both squads displayed much better basketball.

Sybil Ecobichon and Gerta Gamble were responsible for Elementary's final two baskets and for the Seniors, Isobel Davidson and Ev. Armstrong, both scored twice, giving the Seniors the game 12-6.

The teams:—

"Y" Elementary — Forwards, S. Ecobichon, M. Simpson, C. Millard; centre, G. Crawford; guards, E. Lynch, J. Dawson, P. Patterson, L. McGee.

"Y" Seniors — Forwards, M. Holmes, M. Haggart; centre, I. Davidson; guards, S. Sharpe, E. Armstrong, G. Hewett, G. Gamble.

Referee—Hec. McLeod.

Early Victory

In the second game, the Westclox overwhelmed the Wohelos 54-0. The Clockmakers could do nothing wrong and had little difficulty in slipping through the opposition defence. For the winners Elda Bradley went on a scoring bee to net 12 baskets as her contribution, and she was closely followed by Leona Kingdon with eight.

The game was a gentle workout for the Wesclox girls, but from the gallery standpoint it was too one-sided to be interesting.

Wohelo put up a great fight but were completely outclassed, although the entire team worked hard to stave off the Clockmakers. Other scorers for the winners were Isobel Thirnbeck, Hazel Foster and Connie Mason.

The teams:—

Wohelo—Forwards, O. More, I. Northey; centre, D. McMann; guards, A. Frew, K. Kingdon.

Westclox—Forwards, L. Kingdon, I. Thirnbeck, E. Bradley, H. Foster; centre, M. Mortimer; guards, F. Fever, C. Mason, H. Joys.

Referee—"Bim" Sturgeon.

Blue Petes Win, 15-0

In the 9 o'clock game, the new entry, the Blue Petes, sprung a surpris when they played their first game of the schedule and held the fast St. Paul's team to a 15-0 score. It was expected that the Saints would walk away from the younger team but such was not the case. Dorothy Kelly and Jean Howson on the Petes' defence checked everything that came their way and Maizie Cowan was the only player who scored with any regularity. She accounted for 11 of the Saint's points, the other four being scored by Jeannette Allin.

At half time the score stood 11-0 for the Petes, and from then on the Presbyterians played head up basketball, allowing their opponents only 2 baskets. The St. Paul's defence were playing nice basketball also and Sybil Jackson and Edna Morrow had a busy evening looking after the Blue Petes' forwards, who showed no respect for the highly touted St. Pauls five, and who are bound to make much trouble for the other teams before the season is over.

The teams:—

St. Paul's—Forwards—M. Cowan, J. Allin, T. Patterson; Centre, A. Comstock; guards, S. Jackson, G. Comstock, E. Morrow.

Blue Petes—Forwards, B. Rogers, M. Rogers, B. Scott; centre, P. McClellan; guards, D. Kelly, J. Howson.

Referee—Joe Cooper.

Monday evening, January 26, at 7.30 p.m. "Y" Elementary meet St. Paul's.

Friday evening, the undefeated Westclox team will meet the Senior School Girls at 8 p.m. and and 8.15 the Blue Petes will try conclusions with the "Y" Seniors.

Miller to Compete In Millrose Games

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Leigh Miller, sprint star of Hamilton, Ont., will compete in the annual Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden, Feb. 7. The Dominion ace won the Millrose sprint competition last year and hopes to repeat.

Another prominent Canadian runner will be seen in action although he will be listed on the program as from Notre Dame. He is Alex Wilson, a fine half-miler, who will run for one or both of the two Notre Dame relay teams which have been entered in the meet.

POOR WILL BENEFIT FROM TOURNAMENT

Elimination Golf Tourney to be Staged at Pulit-a-While Course.

The Examiner's public relief fund will benefit from the indoor golf tournament which starts at the Putt-A-While course on Water Street, February 2nd.

Half the proceeds will be given to the relief fund. The tournament will be conducted on the elimination plan, and it is expected that this competition will create unusual interest among the followers of the indoor game as well as among those outdoor golfers who have not yet tried their skill at the new game.

Cash prizes amounting to $50 will be distributed among the winners. The tournament will extend probably over three weeks, and should bring out all the local talent among the putters. Details will be announced during the coming week, and the prominent feature is the provision for aiding a community relief cause while at the same time enjoying an indoor game that requires skill and holds the interest of everyone who plays it.

THIRTY-SIX SHEETS OF ICE AVAILABLE

Many Changes For Fourth Annual Toronto Bonspiel This Year.

Profiting by the experiences of the past three years, and acting on a number of suggestions from curlers who have taken part in one or all of the previous three 'spiels, the committee in charge of the fourth annual Toronto bonspiel, which will be held during the week of February 16, has made a number of changes that will make the visit of the out-of-town curlers much more pleasant and considerably less of a strain than in the past. Above all it is the intention of making the fourth bonspiel an enjoyable outing for he knights of the "besom and stane" and many of the inconveniences of other years have been removed.

Thirty-six sheets of ice will be available, at the five local artificial ice curling rinks, Toronto, Granites, High Park, Oakwood and Royal Canadians, and at Varsity arena and a limit of 144 rinks has been set. With the number of sheets of ice available and a limit of entries plans have been prepared which will bring out the finals of the six events not later than Friday afternoon and to do this no rink will have to play more than three games each day. As was the case last year curling stones will be provided for all rinks and no curler will be permitted to use his own rocks. Sets of eight pairs of stones will be placed on each sheet of ice previous to the first draw, at nine o'clock Monday morning, and the same set will remain on each sheet until the end of the 'spiel. This proved a great benefit not only to the curlers but to the committee. The former did not have to worry about their stones and the latter was relieved of the complicated job of moving the stones from one rink to another.

One of the new features which will be introduced this year but which was given a thorough trial at Winnipeg last year is the draw. All rinks will enter and play in the Royal York, the primary competition, and all rinks will have played their first games in this event by the conclusion of the noon draw on Monday. The rinks which win their first games in the Royal York will enter the Ryrie Birks and Seiberling competitions while the rinks that lost their first games in the Royal York will play in the North American Life and Wrigley trophy events. This means that in each of these four events there will not be more than 72 entries.

After the first games in the Royal York, at nine and noon on Monday, there will be no more play in this event until Wednesday, the three remaining draws on Monday and the three on Tuesday being devoted entirely to the Ryrie-Birks, North American Life, Seiberling and Wrigley competitions. In this manner the number of rinks in these events will be rapidly cut down. A new competition this year will be the consolation which is open to rinks that do not remain in any one of these four events after the second round has been played in each. By this arrangement every rink will be certain of playing at least four games.

CENTRAL SIX DEFEATED 2-1

Only Close Contest in Public School Hockey League This Morning.

OTHERS LOPSIDED.

Lopsided scores marked two of the three Public School League games this morning at All Saints' rink. The second game was the closest and best on the card. With fast ice and snappy weather, the kids travelled at high speed all the way.

In the opening game, the boys from King Edward cleaned up on the Prince of Wales aggregation, the final score being 9-2. The losers who were minus their star, Robinson, hadn't a chance. King Edward played faster and combined better to pile up their lead They got two in the first, three in the second and four in the last period. WThe losers got one in the first and the other in second.

The teams:

Prince of Wales: Goal, Jay; right defense, Hope; left defense, Anderson; centre, Kingdon, right wing, Rusaw; left wing, Platt; alternates, Menzies.

Referee, D. Crawford.

The second go was fast and even, with very few penalties. Both teams played an individual brand of hockey doing little passing. The players from Queen Alexandra finally squeezed in the winning counter late in the third period, to win out 2 to 1. The first goal went to the winners in the middle chapter, but in the last, with both teams playing their heads off, the Centralers evened it up. It was not until the last few minutes of of the game that the Q.A.'s slipped in the deciding tally.

Queen Mary Trounced

In the last affair, King George team plastered an 11 to 1 defeat on the Queen Mary outfit. The play was one-sided from start to finish, with the huskier winners outskating their opponents and peppering their net continuously. Their combination and stick-handling was perfect, and only good goal-minding on the part of Harding kept the score as low as it was. The losers were game to the end, but the play was practically all at their end of the rink.

"NEGATIVES" BAT 1.000 ALL ALONG BASEBALL ROW

News ran strongly to negatives along Baseball Row yesterday. Lou Gehrig has not signed a two-year contract with the Yankees, as rumored. Lyn Lary's unsigned contract has not yet arrived at Yankee headquarters. All the contracts which have arrived are not signed.

The latest Gehrig rumor had the big first baseman getting into line for the next two seasons at an annual stipend of $33,000, which is a lot of money whether Lou gets it or not. It brought forth an official denial that Lou has signed anything that will bind him to the Yanks, but there need be no worry on that score. He will be in the fold within the next few days and very likely at a figure in advance of that written in the contract mailed to him last week.

When ball players get into the $25,000 class the original contracts are always in the nature of feelers which will lead to negotiations.

FAST JUNIOR FIXTURE HERE ON WEDNESDAY

St. John's and Peterborough H. C. Tangle For Last Scheduled Game.

KEEN RIVALRY.

Teams Are Battling it Out for First Place in O.H.A.

The junior game at Brock Street Arena on Wednesday night, in which St. John's and Peterborough Hockey Club clash shapes up as the season's best game. The rivalry between these two clubs is at fever heat. Both teams are fast and clever, and contain some of the most promising hockey material seen here for ages. Both teams are battling it out for first place in the group, with St. John's at present out in front by virtue of having played two more games than Jimmy McMartin's team.

In their previous engagement St. John's suffered a 6 to 0 defeat, but on fast ice their supporters claim that verdict can be reversed. The Hockey Club will be at full strength for the engagement with Meagher on the firing line, and they are just as firm in the belief that they can again down the redshirts.

Anyway the fans want to look at it this game promises to be the choice hockey morsel of the entire season

GERMAN RING SOLONS HOT ON SCHMELING'S TRAIL

BERLIN, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, continues to incur the wrath of boxing commissions here and there. Now his home board, the German Boxing Commission, has worked up quite a peeve at him.

The Commission wireissed a sharp request at him to-day aboard the liner Europa, bound for New York, asking that he explain immediately a newspaper interview published here. He was quoted as saying that the Commission "never knew anything about fisticuffs, never showed real interest in his or any other German boxer's foreign achievements, but always found him home when it needed money."

Schmeling has been involved for two years in disputes with the New York State Athletic Commission, which recently withdrew recognition of him as the heavyweight champion. He was also involved in a long drown-out managerial squabble in New York.

Berg Strengthens Hold On Welterweight Throne

The champions fought in the twin feature bouts at the Chicago Stadium last night and the fortune of choice smiled on them. Berg, who staked his crown, won a decision over Goldie Hess of Los Angeles after ten furious rounds that had the crowd of 12,896 spectators cheering from start to finish. Battalinio, who risked nothing but his reputation, dropped a decision over the same distance to Eddie Shea, pride of Chicago's west side, after a disappointing exhibition.

Berg's match with the freckle-faced challenger from the Pacific Coast was as pleasing the Battalino-Shea fight was disappointing. Suddenly reversing his usual slow-starting tactics, Hess swarmed all over Berg in the first round, battered him with long, swinging lefts and right uppercuts and dazed the Briton.

SQUIRES HEADS HAVELOCK BOARD SENIOR MEMBER

Inaugural Meeting of the Havelock School Board is Held.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 24.—(Examiner Corrrespondence.)—The inaugural meeting of Havelock School Board was held in the school room on Wednesday evening.

For the first time in many months, there was a full attendance of the members. The secretary treasurer, Ed. Fennell, presided, until a chairman was appointed. This honor was unanimously accorded to F. J. Squires, who is now the senior member of the Board.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Squires thanked the other members of the board for the honor conferred upon him. He felt sure that the present board would work in harmony, and put its best efforts forth to deal with the difficult problems

Other members of this year's board are, Messrs Robert Crawford, Fred Post, Bernard Smith, Alex Leeson and James W. Ketchen.

Mr. Yuill, principal of Public School, reported that the new teacher, Miss Massey, was now on the regular staff.

It was moved by trustees Smith and Crawford, that M. Leeson be delegate to the Toronto Convention. Carried.

Two for Truant Officer.

There were two applicants for the position of truant officer, Fred McAdam and Charles Dewey.

Moved by trustees Post and Crawford that Fred McAdam be re-appointed at a salary of twenty-five dollars per year. Carried.

One application for the position of caretaker was received from Douglas McQuaig. On motion this application was filed.

Under the heading of unfinished business, the account of Hornsby and Allan was again discussed. This bill is for fifty dollars, for attendance at a public meeting at the town hall, at the time of the discussion of alternative plan for a sanitary system in the school.

There is no record of alternative plans having been submitted and an investigation will be held to ascertain who was responsible for the presence of Hornsby and Allan's representative at the meeting.

For the present this bill was laid over.

After a careful survey of other bills and accounts, they were ordered paid, on motion by Trustees Crawford and Poste. Carried.

It was decided on the suggestion of Chairman Squires to appoint committees to look after the different departments of the school board. A finance committee was appointed to assist the secretary in preparing necessary reports for the council, and to look after financial requisitions, for school operation. Last year the Board's requisition was sent in at the last moment, and was almost too late to be dealt with.

Moved by Trustees Crawford and Post that Trustees Smith and Leeson act on the Finance Committee. Carried.

Moved by Trustees Ketchen and Leeson, that Trustees Post and Crawford be a Property Committee. Carried.

A committee was appointed to look into the matter of the School Grants. There is a new method of school allotments on the basis of teachers salaries, and average attendance, also the County equivalent. Trustees Ketchen and Smith will act on this committee.

The matter of a teacher in the school who is receiving less than one thousand dollars per year was discussed by the board. In order to obtain the larger grant from the govrnment it is said that only seventy five dollars per year more in teachers salaries would be necessary. This would entitle the school to four hundred and seventy dollars yearly additional grants. The teacher in question is fully qualified and efficient, and has a very large class. It was decided to increase the salaries by the necessary seventy-five dollars and thus obtain the larger grant.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the clerk of Belmont and Methuen and get exact figures of grants on equalized assessment plan.

T. L. Lancaster M.L.A. was present at the meeting and drew the attention of the board to the new system of reporting the monthly attendance to the Inspector monthly for publication. He believed this is a good system as publication would have a tendency to create friendly rivalry, and the average attendance would be raised. It would be a matter of price to have the school rank high in attendance, as in other matters. At present there is one school in Belmont with a record of 100% average attendance for December last. This is school number 3.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial cougis which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

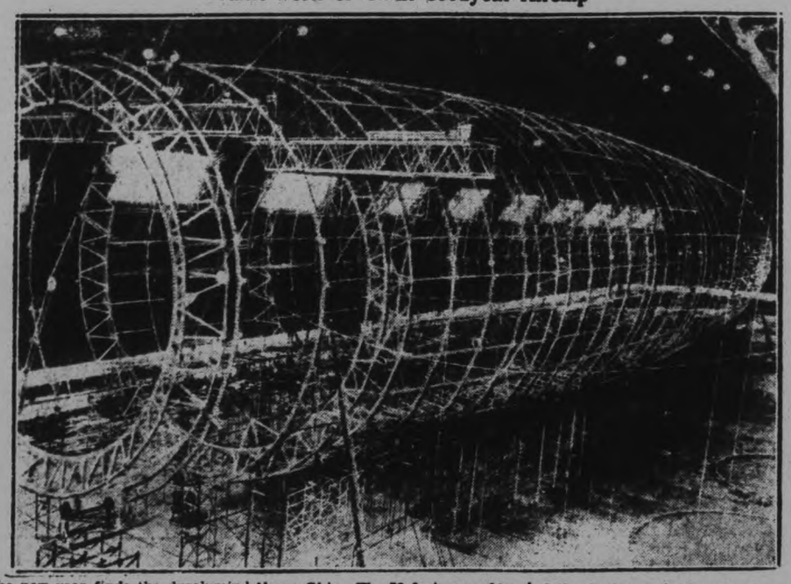
Frame-work of Giant Goodyear Airship



The new year finds the duralumin frame-work of the U.S.S. Akron, giant airship the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp. is building for the United States navy, bordering completion at Akron, Ohio. The 78-foot cone-shaped nose has been raised into position, the control car taken from the fabricating plant to the dock for attaching to the ship and the tenth of the twelve main frames about to be hoisted into place. Photo shows a view of the network of metal of the new giant airship.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BRAVE PUSSY

Baby Bunty and all the other rabbit girls and boys in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow were very glad the little tree pussy had come to live with them. Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, was most surprised when, riding home on the pulley line one day, she saw Uncle Wiggily take the small cat out of the same basket to the bottom of which Bunty had clung to have her ride.

I told you about that last night, if you will kindly remember

"Welcome to our bungalow, little pussy," said Baby Bunty and all the others of Uncle Wiggily's girls and boys said the same as the tiny cat climbed out of the basket.

"Oh, how kind you are to me," mewed the pussy who had been up in a tree quite a long while before Uncle Wiggily rescued her in the basket. "But what am I to do?" she asked the bunny gentleman.

"Do what or where or for whom?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I mean," went on the little cat,

"That was the best favor you could do me."

"what am I to do to pay you back for being so kind to me?"

"Well, the first thing you are to do," answered Mr. Longears, "is to drink this warm milk," and in front of the pussy he put a saucer that Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy handed in from the kitchen.

"Oh, this is good—very good!" purred the hungry kitten as she lapped the milk. "But you are still doing kind things for me, Uncle Wiggily. I want to so something for you since you are going to let me live in your bungalow. What can I do?"

"There is time enough for that," answered the rabbit gentleman. "Just now play with the other children and have a good time."

So this is what the tree pussy did, having fun until it was time for all in the bungalow to go to bed. There was a warm spot in the kitchen which Nurse Jane said would be the best place for the new pussy. So the little animal cuddled up there in a soft, fluffy ball of fur and purred herself to sleep.

During the big storms and deep snow that had come to Woodland where Uncle Wiggily lives, none of the Bad Chaps had been able to chase after the rabbits. The snow was too soft. The Bad Chaps sank down in it when they tried to walk. But, now that the storms were over, and most of the snow had melted away, until some more should fall, the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat saw that they had a chance to catch a rabbit.

"I think we had better start out tonight," said the Fox to the other two Bad Chaps. It was late afternoon of the day when Uncle Wiggily had ridden the little pussy cat from the tree to his bungalow in the pulley line basket telephone.

"Yes, tonight will be a good time to catch Uncle Wiggily!" growled the Wolf. "I wonder how we can get him?"

"That will be easy," snarled the Bob Cat, who had a very silly little tail. "The other day I happened to notice, as I was passing, that there is a hole in Uncle Wiggily's kitchen door. How the hole got there I don't know. But it will be easy for me to sneak up on the back stoop, put my paw through that door hole, turn the key, unlock the door and open it. Then we can all three go in and catch the rabbit."

"Good," yapped the Fox and the Wolf. Though if Uncle Wiggily had heard them he would have said it was bad.

When it was dark the three hungry Bad Chaps set off to the rabbit's bungalow. Uncle Wiggily was asleep. So was his wife. So was Nurse Jane. So were all the little bunny boys and girls, from Jingle and Jangle down to Baby Bunty. But the new pussy cat in the kitchen wasn't asleep.

"I do wish I could think of some favor to do Uncle Wiggily to pay him for all his kindness to me," purred the pussy. It was thinking of this that kept her awake. Then, all of a sudden, she heard a noise on the backstoop. "Oh," murmured the pussy, getting out of bed, "this may be some one coming whom I can ask to do Uncle Wiggily a favor."

The three Bad Chaps had made the noise the pussy heard. The Bob Cat sneaked up on the steps, close to the kitchen door.

"I'll slip one paw in, turn the lock and then we can all go in!" whispered the Bob Cat. He thrust his paw in through the hole. The little pussy saw it moving and, being very playful, she whispered:

"Oh, somebody is trying to have fun with me! I'll bite and scratch whatever that is sticking through the hole in the door. Then I'll try to think of a way of doing Uncle Wiggily a favor!"

Giving a big jump, the little pussy bit and scratched the Bob Cat's paw sticking through the hole.

"Oh wow! Oh, my goodness! Oh Uncle Wiggily has me!" howled the Bad Chap. "Come on, run!" he called to the others. And they all ran away.

Mr. Longears heard the noise and came down stairs, and when the pussy told him what had happened the rabbit said:

"That was the best favor you could do me! You saved my ears!"

So the Bad Chaps had no rabbit supper after all.

$100 To The Hangman For Keeping Date Open

FREDERICTON, N. B., Jan. 24.—The legal question as to whether a retaining fee paid a hangman to "keep a date open" is returnable when the hanging is not held, was the subject of recent debate in York County Council, the decision being to hold the matter over for a joint meeting of city and county councillors.

The question arose when Sheriff John Hawthorne presented a bill for $100, the sum he had paid Arthur Ellis, official hangman, as a retainer to officiate at the execution of Harvey Dunlop, Campbell Settlement recluse, who had been condemned to death for the murder of Erbon Dickinson, but whose sentence was subsequently commuted to life imprisonment.

FIRE HORSES UNDER HAMMER.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 24.—Stepping out of the city's harness to make way for motor equipment, four of Saint John's best known fire horses were auctioned off a few days ago. They were Barney and Dan, a pair of matched blacks, which had hauled the steam engine at number one station for eleven years, Joe, with fourteen years service, and Fred with five.

Barney and Dan, fourteen and fifteen years old, brought $165. Joe, seventeen, and Fred, fourteen, were sold separately for $82.50 and $52.50.

The sale leaves but ten horses in Saint John's fire department, the Commissioner pointing out about $400 annually was saved by the replacement of each horse by motor equipment. Along with some forty of their predecessors, Barney and Dan and Fred and Joe have gone to the farm.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when Aspirin tablets will "save the day." They will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Or check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets.

Gargle with Aspirin tablets at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Aspirin on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Aspirin tablets do not depress the heart.

Can't PLAY Can't REST

—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

CASTORIA

"MOCK TRIAL" ON SOCIETY PROGRAM

Members of Omemee A.Y.P.A. Hold Pleasant Social Evening.

OMEMEE, Jan. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—On Monday evening January 19, the A.Y.P.A. meeting was the scene of a mock trial. Mr. Burgomaster sued the Spotlight, the branch magazine for libel. It seems that H. Hill, the editor of the Spotlight had published a poem some time previous which spoke of Mr. Burgomaster's car in somewhat deprecatory terms. Mr. Burgomaster upon the advise of his counsel, H. Bent, claimed an apology from the editor.

W. Stephenson was the lawyer for the defense, when the jury had been impanelled and the court policeman, H. Mitchell, had restored order, the case began. There was considerable testimony given after which both lawyers made an eloquent appeal to the jury.

It did not take the latter long to reach a decision and they returned with a unanimous verdict of not guilty.

The Judge, J. Bent, stzted that Mr. Burgomaster would be requested to hand in an apology to the editor for causing the latter so much inconvenience.

The proceedings caused much merriment.

THE NASHUA CO. HAS DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENING

125 ATTEND DINNER.

The esprit de corps which has been a noticeable feature of the annual gatherings of several years past of the employees of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, Limited, and the Canadian Sealright Company, Limited, was manifest again to a very remarkable degree last night when the employees of the sister companies were guests of the management at a jolly dinner and dance held in Austin's Banquet Hall, and attended by about one hundred and twenty five people, among them representatives of the company from Nashua, New Hampshire, Montreal and Toronto.

The invitations read "Dinner and dance given to the employees as an expression of appreciation of their loyalty and faithfulness during 1930," and many expressions of deep regard for thee general manager, J. R. Marshall, and of appreciation on his part of the devotion of his employees, were heard during the dinner hour, which was followed by a pleasant dance to music provided by Rick Roberts and his Melody Men.

The setting for the affair was a delightful one. Soft lights with rose-colored basket shades were flanked on either side by rose-colored streamers that stretched across the ceiling. The decorative effect of the tables was enhanced by the dainty menus and place cards with their triple triangles, emblem of the company, on the covers. The menus were done in the new and very attractive velour paper that the company prides itself on very justly, in shades of leaf green, crimson, nut brown and grey. At the head table was a silver basket filled with daffidils.

The program was featured by the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall who leave early in February for a short vacation in Bermuda, of gifts from their employees. To Mrs. Marshall they presented a beautiful Spanish shawl of warm beige tones, embroidered with roses, and to Mr. Marshall, the gift was a grey and green golf sweater, with socks to match.

With Mr. Marshall in the chair, the program progressed by way of a delicious meal served in splendid style, to a number of toasts and their responses. Arrangements were in charge of Victor Hamilton, traffic manager of the company, who also proposed the toast to "Our City," with a response by Mayor Denne, after Mr. Marshall had expressed his pleasure at the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Denne.

The Mayor, in his brief address, said that Peterborough was an outstanding town in the Dominion, as far as unemployment and general conditions are concerned. He said that the press has stressed hard times too much and that such emphasis is a bad thing to go to the south of us, to other papers and over the radio.

"We have the wrong idea in stressing hard times," he said. "If we all pull together, we will be all right. It has been said that we have been extravagant in Peterborough, but it is better to be so than to have soup kitchens like other towns. No council can do everything right."

Congratulates Host.

The Mayor went on to congratulate the two companies on their successful year and to speak of anticipations of a good year in this city. He spoke of the "Wonderful city officers," referring to the splendid work done by three of the senior officials, "Mr. Green, who is eighty-three and comes into the office whistling, Mr. Adams, who is over seventy, and Mr. Armstrong, who is about seventy-two years old." He also said that there were many prospective factories on a list of those that might locate in this city, "where we can offer them good employees, cheap power and a nice place in which to live."

The toast to "Our Employees" was proposed by F. G. R. Clarke, General Sales Manager of the local office, formerly of Toronto, who introduced his successor in the Toronto office, Walter Spain.

Mr. Clarke, in a happy little speech, aroused much merriment in his listeners and his talk was responded to by John Cunningham.

G. A. Richmond, supervisor, rising to propose the toast to "Our Companies," was greeted with loud applause that showed his popularity with his audience, who sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" as a prelude to his characteristically pleasant little talk, in which he said that "a person's ability is gauged by his will to do," and ended with the words: "We all try to do our part as Mr. Marshall does his part, which is the secret of the growth of the company."

J. R. Marshall, replying to the toast to "Our Companyes," expressed his deep appreciation of the constant loyalty and faithfulness manifested by his employees and said: "We are particularly blessed in our location in the city of Peterborough."

He went on to speak of the manner in which the companies have built up a business that is second to none in Canada "because we have made our product superior to other—a pride to ourselves and a pleasure to our customers"—and said that the companies looked back with pride to a difficult year just ended, and forward with hope and expectation of still better business in the years to come.

At this point, with a brief word of explanation by Roy Lewis,the presentation of Mr. Marshall's gift was made by Thomas Kay, and the guests sang "See Him Smiling" and "For He's a Daisy" in honor of their popular employer, who thanked them warmly for the remembrance.

O. Tacy of Nashua, New Hampshire, auditor for the companies, spoke of the interest and pride taken in the growth of the local establishments, by the parent companies in Nashua, and the toast list concluded with the tribute to "The Ladies," voiced by E. E. Ferguson, Mill superintendent, and responded to by Miss Lillian E. Hall, accountant, to whose work Mr. Marshall paid a warm tribute.

Miss Myra Hickey closed the program with the presentation of Mrs. Marshall's gift, which was appropriately achnowledged. A jolly dance followed, with splendid music furnished by Rick Roberts and his Melody Men.

HARVARD WILL PAY STUDENTS

Freedeom From Financial Problems to be Given Distinguished Scholars.

FOR SIX YEAR PERIOD.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 23.— Plans to gather a group of distinguished young students and relieve them of all financial worries for a period of three to six years in order that they may develop their talents for the benefit of art and science, were set forth in the report for 1929-1930 by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University. Following the example of European universities, Harvard will house and feed these students and even pay those who require additional financial assistance. The plan as applied to non-religious institutions is new in this country.

As those qualifying for the fellowship must not be over 25 and must have a doctor's degree, usually secured by students older than this, the young men selected must be unusually brilliant They will live together in apartments already provided for, and an important part of their training will be their associations with one another.

The practice of such fellowships was began by Cardinal Wolsey of England about 1520, when he founded Christ Church at Oxford. His principle of providing food for the intellectuals and having them dine together, will be followed at Harvard. Prize fellowships at English colleges have produced a large number of distinguished men, commented President Lowell. One-half the British winners of the Nobel prize had been holders of such fellowships at Trinity College, Cambridge, England.

"We hear so much about co-operation in research, and that is good in working out well-defined problems, which requires great labor and often the collaboration of different specialists," stated President Lowell. "But it is not all. It aids in solving difficult and intricate problems; yet it does not touch the greatest of all contributions to thought, that of discovering a wholly new problem to be solved. This, like a work of art or literature, is essentially the creation of a single brain. To select men capable of this, to set them at work in surroundings most adapted to entice and fructify imagination, is certainly worth while if it can be done.

"The plan would be to have the prize-men selected in any subject by a body of older fellows eminent in various fields upon evidence of remarkable promise; to provide them with ample stipends and appoint them for three years with a reappointment for three more if their work in the first term justified the renewal."

Since most of the suggestions made in the annual report of the President are put into effect when the University opens in September, it is believed that September will see the beginning of the experiment.

Whether or not the students will take examinations in their work has not been announced. Since they can have no higher degree than the one they possess when beginning the plan, their work will probably be judged in the light of original research.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No 54 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan groped about the reeking, oozy den. He found that he was imprisoned in a subterranean chamber amply large enough to have accommodated a dozen or so of the huge animals such as the one that had dragged him thither. He realized that he was in the creature's hidden nest far under the bank of the stream and doubtless the only hope of escape was through the submerged opening.

Could he make his escape to the surface of the water? There might be turns and windings in the neck of the passage. Or, most to be feared, he might meet another of the slimy inhabitants of this den upon his journey outward. Still there was no alternative, and, filling his lungs with the close and reeking air of the chamber, Tarzan of the Apes dived into the dark and watery hole.

The leg which had been held within the jaws of the crocodile was badly lacerated, but the bone was not broken, nor the muscles or tendons sufficiently injured to render it useless. It gave him excruiating pain. But Tarzan was accustomed to pain from sharper teeth than a crocodile's. Rapidly he crawled and swam downward through the passage. Then it inclined upward and opened at last into the river bottom.

As the ape-man reached the surface he saw the heads of two great crocodiles but a short distance from him. They were making rapidly in his direction, and with a superhuman effort the man struck out for the overhanging branches of a gearby tree. Nor was he a moment too soon, for scarcely had he drawn himself to the safety of the limb than two gaping mouths snapped venomously below him.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH CLANCY

The death occurred at 8.00 p.m. Friday of Mrs. Elizabth Clancy, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. Powers, 106 Lock Street. The deceased was born in Otonabee where she resided until sven years ago. Mrs. Clancy is survived by two sons, John and Harry, and two daughters, Marie and Mrs. C. Powers.

The funeral will be held in Sacred Heart Church at 9.00 a.m. Monday, and interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

WILLIAM P. MACPHERSON.

The funeral of the late William P. MacPherson took place this morning at nine o'clock from the residence of his brother, Angus MacPherson, 533 Patterson Street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, with interment later in St. Peter's Cemetery.

The church was filled with the sorrowing friends and relatives of "Bill" MacPherson, who, in his quiet and unassuming way, would probably be most surprised could he know how sincere and deep was the regret of so many people at his passing. Over one hundred of the members of the Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name Society and the War Veterans attended the funeral and filled the pews on either side of the nave, as the coffin, draped with the Union Jack in memory of Bill's war service, was borne up the aisle. The cortege had a Guard of Honor in members of the Sixth Peterborough Troop of Boy Scouts, headed by Ernie Wolfe, and the remains were met at the door and escorted up the aisle by the celebrant priest of the Solemn Requiem Mass, the Rev. C. Carroll, a cousin of the deceased, attended by four nephews: Ronald, Francis, Donald and Murtagh MacPherson.

The Rev. Paul Costello, rector of the Cathedral, spoke feelingly of the high character and outstanding Christian virtues of the late Mr. MacPherson. Just as he had given his services, freely and unselfishly, in the cause of his country during the War, so he had served his friends and the community at all times. He was noted for his piety and fidelity to his church and its obligations.

At the graveside, officiating priests were the Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore, the Rev. J. Finn and the Rev. Carroll. Just before the sods were placed over the coffin, the war veterans dropped Flanders poppies on the coffin.

Pall-bearers were several of the closest friends of the deceased: his two close chums, George Rutherford and Joseph Sharpe, also Vincent McCabe, Clare Wolff, Cecil Shaughnessy and Frank Carroll of Young's Point.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

The confusion, error, superstition and absurdity, that we find in the creeds of Christendom is proof positive, that they are not of Divine origin. The wisdom of man is an uncertain and insufficient guide; yet many surrender their judgement to the dictation of other men. A great part of the perplexity connected with superstitious doctrines comes from failing to derive the first principle of faith from the teachings of Jesus alone. There is one God and one Mediator between God and man—the man Christ Jesus. The Great God and Jesus the Mediator are distinct in nature, diverse in office and are not to be confused together. The Mediator is not God as well as man, and the Supreme Deity is not Mediator between himself and his creature, God, by His own voluntary and unsolicited grace, sent His Son into the world, not to condemn thew orld, but that the world through him might be saved. The intercessions of Jesus and the prayer of God's people do not make God gracious. The gospel is a system of grace, originated by the Supreme Deity.

SANDS OF NORTHERN ALBERTA YIELD COMMERCIAL GASOLINE

MANY BY-PRODUCTS.

(By Michael O'Mayo. Special to the Examiner. Copyright, 1931.)

REGINA, Jan. 24.—Your automobile may run into a gasoline drouth one of these days according to the geologists. But that does not bother your motor car manufacturer Not at all! He doesn't give a whoop whether the squirting oil wells give out or not, for there's power for your engine in coal, alcohol, wheat straw, cornstalks, and potato peelings. Our present quota is an average of ten barrels of gasoline a year per yaer. Use all you want! Step on the gas, for if the worst comed to the worst you can drive about in cars driven by fuels that never squirted through an earth-driven pipe.

Canada, of course, has rich reserves of gasoline. The roaring "gushers" of the famed Turner Valley and elsewhere pressage the tapping of these rock-ribbed riches, and only a few weeks ago some of the most eminent oil authorities of this continent slipped into Edmonton. They came unheralded, and as silently journeyed to a small shack on the outskirts of the city. There they donned overalls and helped Dr. K. A. Clark of the University of Alberta extract some high-grade gasoline from a pile of dark-colored sand brought from the northern hinterland. They assisted that man of science in opening the door to the commercial exploitation of the richest repository of bituminous sands in the world and which covers more than ten thousands miles of the northland. In those towering cliffs of McMurray's there's enough gasoline . . .!

For ten years the Scientific and Industrial Research Council of Alberta in conjunction with the federal Department of Mines has been investigating the economic possibilities of these deposits which tower in black cliffs over the waters of the northern rivers. Success has crowned these efforts.

Sixteen years ago sacks filled with this tarry sand paved one of Edmonton's finest streets. It was proved that this material made excellent pavements. There was, however, a nasty fly in the ointment of success and it was this: it cost a whole heap of money to transport cheap sand from one place to another. The bitumen was valuable but the sand was not. Hence the long researches of Dr. Clark to extract the bitumen from the sand.

Quite early the Albertan scientists succeeded. But it was one thing to do the trick on a small scale in a laboratory regardless of cost, and quite another to do it on a large scale at a profit.

The basement of the university's power plant was turned into an experimental refinery—the students cracking many joke at an experiment which involved shovelling tons of sticky sand into a small basement then tossing those tons out again! The experiment however proved to be so successful that Dr. Clark erected a larger plant in the yards of the Edmonton and Dunvegan railway just outside of the city's limits. For five years this plant was in operation and encouraged the scientists to erect a plant at Fort McMurray with a daily capacity of 70 tons of sand.

Plans are now well advanced for a mill capable of treating 600 tons of bituminous sands per day, natural gas being piped from adjacent wells to heat the enormous quantities of water needed. The new extraction process involved the use of a centrifuge and plenty of hot water. A centrifuge, of course, is a machine used for separating and cleaning any combination of materials of different specific gravity.

The bitumen thus separated from the sand can be turned into high-grade gasoline. The crackling of the bitumen into gasoline has been tested by commercial firms and has been pronounced practical and productive of particularly good quality of gasoline," says Dr. Clark. "Technical difficulties no longer stand in the way."

Recent tests show that from bitumen it is possible to extract more than 45 per cent gasoline. This yield compares very favorably with that now secured from crude oils imported from South America by Canadian refiners.

Not only gasoline but lubricating and fuel oils, paving materials and a pure grade of asphalt for use in shellac—all from the bituminous sands of Alberta's northland.

Of particular interest is the employment of bitumen in the making of roads Earth roads can not stand the strain of modern transportation whilst gravel rapidly disappears beneath the incessant pounding of innumerable rubber tires. If these roads are sprayed with oil now being taken from the McMurray sands their powers of endurance will be materially increased whilst the dust nuisance will be greatly reduced. Experimental roads built at Jasper in 1927 prove this conclusively.

Price War Responsible For Liquor Seizures

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 24.—(By Canadian Press).—The possibility of a war to extinction between two syndicates, which have elevated the game of beating the Eighteenth Amendment to the sphere of big business, is seen here in the capture by the United States coastguard within the last two months of seven rum carriers all of them incidentally, built in Nova Scotia yards or registered in provincial ports. Bad weather forcing the boats in for shelter, and an extra patrol during the holiday season, are not sufficient, in waterfront opinion, to explain the remarkable success of the enforcement cruisers in snaring the speedy supply craft. The coastguard, the theory is, are being used as a weapon by one syndicate against the other, following initiation of a price-cutting contest.

The Mazel Tov, of Lunenburg, was the first seizure in the present series. She carried 403 sacks of liquor and was taken on November 2. Twenty-one days later the Good Luck yielded 501 cases. She was built in 1930 and carried a steel-plated deckhouse. The Maskininge, biggest of them all, fitted with a high powered wireless and smoke-screens, was taken into Providence on December 17 with 1,600 cases aboard. The Shanalium with a big Christmas load was towed into New York a day or so later, The Audrey B., of LaHave, had her hull battered by three one pound ers before she surrendered on Christmas day to the destroyer Nemaha. Coastguards found 2,800 sacks of liquor on board the Elinor Joan, of LaHave, sister ship of the Audrey, when they captured her at Greenport, L.I., on December 28. And on the last day of the month the Radio II, of Shelbourne, was brought into Boston by the patrol boat Active, after several rounds of shot were fired

Whether or not a rum war has been declared, that two months period of coastguard success has cost the men behind the trade, in vessels and cargo, at least $1,000,000.

Wales is to have a regular air service connecting it with England and the Continent.

Man Injured By Hit-And-Run Driver

Alvin Franks Is Seriously Hurt When Cutter Hit

Hit-and-Run Motorist Hits Cutter at Fowler's Corners, Throwing Driver 120 Feet and Injuring Horse So Badly it Had to be Shot.

AUTOMOBILE IS FOUND ABANDONED NEAR LINDSAY AND IS FOUND TO HAVE BEEN STOLEN FROM CITY

Seriously injured when the cutter in which he was driving was struck by a hit-and-run motorist shortly after eight o'clock on Saturday night, Alvin Franks of Emily Township lay over the week-end at the home of Frank Johnston, Fowler's Corners, where he was taken immediately following the accident. The attending physician, Dr. G. N. Earle, of Omemee, who put five stitches in the head wound, decided that the injured man's condition was such as not to allow of his removal home or to hospital.

The motorists action in driving on after the smash and the subsequent discovery of the abandoned car, six miles this side of Lindsay, which it has since been ascertained was stolen from Owen Johnson of Peterborough on the same evening, providing some of the dramatic incidents which have caused quite a stir of indignaiton, throughout the countryside.

Every effort is being made by the police to trace the driver of the car which was found early on Sunday morning standing at the side of the roadway near Lindsay, with the body badly damaged, apparently as a result of its impact with the cutter.

It is stated that Mr. Franks had just left the store at Fowler's Corners, and had proceeded as far as the blacksmith shop, when his cutter was struck by a Chevrolet coupe with such force that it was reduced to kindling wood. Mr. Franks was pitched a distance of 120 feet, police state, while the horse, which had its legs and back broken, had to be shot.

Traffic Officer Edward Hornick said he reached the scene of the accident a short time afterwards. Mr. Franks was conscious, but was unable to give an account of the accident. That the car was stolen has been positively ascertained as the result of a check up made by Traffic Officer Hornick and by Sergeant Detective William Meagher of the City Police, who state they are satisfied that no member of the Johnson family was driving the car prior to the smash up.

The extent of Mr. Franks' injuries are as yet unknown, but it is quite possible that he sustained a fronter fracture of the skull. His face was very badly lacerated, also. Inquiry on Sunday elicited the information that the injured man was resting comfortably.

Although no one actually saw the accident, Mrs. George Hewett, who lives nearby, heard the crash, and when she went out to look she saw a car stop, two men get out, and throw something off the radiator, and immediately get into the car again and drive off.

Wrathful Father Fires at Daughter, Turns Gun on Self

ROUYN, Que., Jan. 26.— Fred Avdeychuk, a Russian, 48 years of age, killed himself at his home yesterday after firing a shot at his daughter, because police reported, she refused to give up her young fiance, of whom he disapproved. Yesterday the father made a final appeal and when the daughter refused again, he picked up a rifle and was in the act of pulling the trigger when a neighbor suddenly entered the house. The latter sensing the seriousness of the situation sprang toward the irate parent, knocked the weapon aside and the bullet buried itself in the wall of the room. Avdeychuk then went into another room and shot himself.

WINNIPEG BLAZE WILL BE PROBED

$500,000 LOSS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 26.—(CP)—Investigations from the Provincial Fire Marshalls Department today sought the cause of a fire that early Sunday razed the six-storey avenue block, on lower Portage Avenue, and caused damage of $500,000. Entry to the ruins of the ice-coated structure, situated in the midst of Winnipeg's downtown business section, will be made today. It is believed the fire broke out in the basement of a shoe store.

In freezing weather, firemen from nearly every department in the city battled the blaze for more than five hours Thought to have shot up an elevator shaft, flames jumped from the main floor to the fourth and the top three floors, occupied by offices, were totally destroyed. The fire-fighters succeeded in stopping the spread before it reached the second and third floors.

Irvin de Mill, a caretaker, and his wife, were the only occupants of the building when the fire broke out. They escaped in night attire by a fire escape. No serious injuries resulted to firemen. Several were buried under stock and debris following an explosion on the main floor of the Allan shoe store, but were not hurt.

Astronomer Believes Life On Mars, Venus

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 26.—Dr. Leon Campbell, instructor of astronomy at Harvard University, today was confident of the possibility that the planet Mars and Venus have some forms of life.

"We have no right to assume," Dr. Campbell said, "that we are the only people in the universe. There are billions of suns just like ours and much larger than ours. Such suns may each have their different planets. We do not know, however. We can never make them out here. A theit immense distances from us, they huddle up into their respective suns.

"According to the theory of probabilities, it is ridiculous to believe that our earth is the only peopled planet."

With others at Harvard, Dr. Campbell is making a close study of Eros, an asteroid or planetary fragment and it was in this connection that he gave his opinion concerning habitation of other planets in the solar system.

Willingdon Visitor To Peers' Gallery

LONDON, Jan. 26.—With Viscount Willingdon, former Governor-General of Canada and newly appointed Viceroy of India in the Peers Gallery, Premier Macdonald initiated the Indian debate in the House of Commons today, declaring that the Round Table Conference had been "very successful' in reaching an agreement in advance on the broad principles of any constitution which may ultimately be granted to India.

"We did not meet to frame a constitution' said Premier Macdonald, "make no mistake about that."

He said he could make no suggestion immediately as to how the work of the Round Table Conference will be continued, and this was taken as an indication that the impending release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi dominates the situation in India now.

CASHIER KILLED SAVING $15,000 FROM ROBBER

Gunman Shoots When Montreal Taxicab Official Refuses Key to Office.

POLICE MAKE ARREST.

Drivers Surge From Waiting Room But Fail to Catch Desperado.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 26 (C.P.).—The heroism of a night cashier in an early morning hold-up to-day saved the De Luxe Cab Company $15,000 in cash, but William Reid, 37-year-old cashier, had to lay down his life to foil the bandit. A few hours later detectives had a man under arrest but would not say whether he was suspected of being the lone hold-up man or not.

Reid was in his office in the headquarters of the taxicab company at 3.50 o'clock this morning when he heard someone tapping on the glass door panel. Believing it to be a friend calling on him, Reid stepped to the door and walked outside. He heard the snaplock click behind him. A revolver was shoved under his nose.

"Give me the key quick or I'll kill you," the bandit ordered. Reid refused to hand over the key and the hold-up man shot him through the chest.

Shot Brings Drivers.

The shot brought a crowd of taxi drivers surging from their waiting-room and the bandit had to take to his heels, leaving the $15,000 in cash intact within the locked office. A taxi driver rushed Reid to hospital, but he died twenty minutes later, a bullet through his lungs. Detectives found a hat and coat discarded in a lane. Taxi drivers told police that they had noticed two men loitering about the corner before the shooting.

It is believed the second man was to act as look-out. Police telephone alarms placed a cordon about the city, with all railway stations and bridgeheads under surveillance.

Four Under Arrest.

At noon to-day Montreal detectives had two men and two women under arrest in connection with the fatal shooting of William Reid, 37-year-old night cashier of the De Luxe Cab Company, during an early morning hold-up that was frustrated by the heroism of Reid.

While refusing to divulge the names of the four persons they hold in the cells, detectives describe one of the men as a known American gunman. A .38 calibre revolver was found in the abode of the man.

San Francisco Woman To Explore In Arctic

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—Plans for her third expedition into the Arctic were announced here to-day by Miss Louise E. Boyd, San Francisco society woman.

She said she had chartered the Norwegian ship Veslekari, on which she expected to sail from Aalesund, Norway, July 1, for the northeast coast of Greenland and the Island of Jan Meyen. She said the National Geographic Society was sponsoring the voyage and would select scientists to accompany her.

"I am going to make the expedition I had planned for the summer of 1928," Miss Boyd said. "That trip was abandoned so we might aid in the search for Roald Amundsen and the survivors of the dirigible Italia.

GAUDY ATTIRE FOR 1931 HOST

Will Wear Special Suit to be Distinguished From Head Waiters.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—At last the pesky problem of how at all stages of the party, to distinguish the host from the head-waiter, members of the orchestra or the guests, is about to be solved.

From now on the host a la mode will don his suit, what a suit.

Delegates were for the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors, opening today, whisper that they discuss the general idea—something like this:

It will be a sort of tuxedo on generous lines, with trousers wide and splashed with satin. There will be a sprightly sash amidships and a jacket of vivid hue, and there will be a shawl collar faced with bright silk. The suit will be of blue, purple, brown, tan, maroon — anything but black.

In addition, the other 14 suits the tailors think the well-dressed man should have, will be discussed

CONFIDENCE MEN MAKE $250,000 IN SIX MONTHS

Swindlers Work in Three Groups Interchanging Personell to Meet Requirements.

WOMAN LOSES $50,000.

Unnamed U. S. Senator, Chicago Business Leader, Listed Among Victims.

CHICAGO, January 26 (C.P.). — Reports that Mrs. Myrtle Tannel Blackledge, former internal revenue collector, was but one of many recent prominent victims fleeced of huge sums by a ring of confidence men were circulated to-day.

The Herald and Examiner said that three groups of swindlers, interchanging personnel to meet the requirements of various types of crooked deals, had robbed their victims of more than $250,000 in the last six months. An unnamed United States Senator, the paper said, lost $68,000 in a racing racket, while David Tinkham, an Englishman gave up $33,000 in a stock swindle.

Another victim, a Chicago business leader whose identity was not revealed, was swindled out of $90,000, but regained $82,000 in a compromise with the swindlers, who involved him in a faro game—a racket similar to the one in which Blackledge reported that she lost $50,000 borrowed from Edward Litsinger, prominent Chicagoan, in a Springfield, Illinois, hotel.

Announcement To-day.

Attorney David S. Stanbury said he had been called into the case in the interests of Mrs. Blackledge on Saturday afternoon and indicated he would make an announcement today.

He was shown a photostatic copy of a pencilled memorandum found on Saturday in the Springfield Hotel where Mrs. Blackledge said she won $207,500 in paper profits at faro two days before she borrowed from Litsinger.

The memorandum at first was thought to have been made by the three men she told of having played with, but a later theory credited it with being kept by Mrs. Blackledge. Sums of addition, subtraction and division were based on a total of $207,500.

Stansbury said it was a "strong piece of corroborative evidence," and "would be significant in a law suit."

Rumor Sir C. Tegart May Succeed Byng

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 26 (C.P. Cable via Reuters)—Persistent rumors circulated here to-day that Sir Charles Tegart, Commissioner of the Calcutta Police, would succeed Lord Byng as Chief Commissioner of the London Police and head of Scotland Yard. Sir Charles, who is 49 years of age and a native of Ireland, has been connected with the police in India since 1900, and when only 20 years of age officiated as Deputy Inspector-General of the Calcutta Police.

An attempt against his life was made last August when two bombs were thrown at the motor car in which he was riding. Sir Charles was not injured, but the driver was wounded and the car damaged.

Greatest Romance For Swedish Lass

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 26. (CP)— One of the story book's most appealing tales—that of the pretty girl who marries a Prince—appeared to-day about to come true in Sweden.

The principals in the romance are Prince Linnert, grandson of King Gustave and son of the Monarch's second son, William, and Karin Nisswandt, daughter of a prominent industrialist of Stockholm who is of Dutch descent.

Court circles deny that stories of impending announcement of engagement of the two are correct, but the newspaper Degblad says, apparently with some authority, that an official announcement will be made shortly.

DAISY ASKS WEEK TO FIGURE MOVE

Former Secretary of Film Star Determined to Get Full Vindication.

LACKS MONEY.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—It was Daisy De Boe's move to-day, but the slim blonde fidgeting in a county jail cell awaiting sentence for the theft of $825 from her former employer, Clara Bow, indicated she might take a week to figure out the move.

The former secretary to the film red-head was under orders to appear this morning in Superior Judge William C. Doran's Court for sentence.

Daisy was expected to ask for a continuance of one week in which to exercise her prerogative about seeking a new trial.

"I am determined to fight it out to the end," she explained. "I want complete vindication."

But to battle it out," Daisy admitted, would take lots of money, and while, according to Clara's charges, Daisy has a lot of swell clothes and a dandy car, money is something Daisy says she lacks.

In the course of the week, she will decide whether to appeal or throw herself on the mercy of the court, bearing in mind the recommendation of the jury for lenience that accompanied the verdict of guilty on one of the 35 counts of grand theft with which she was charged.

An attorney just added to Daisy's legal staff, William A. Beirne, explained a continuance would be necessary to permit him to study the transcript of the case and confer with Attorney Nathan Freedman, who defended her.

The Weather

Yesterday the temperature rose to 40 degrees—a decided change from a few days ago. Last night the thermometer went a little below the freezing point. Our winter has not been very severe. In this connection a Campbellford correspondent writes: "During Christmas week a wren was seen by two of us as we were working in the woods. The grass sparrows are frequently seen and heard. A mud-hen, or bittern, with wing broken, was caught crossing the barnyard also during Christmas week."

There is yet time, however, for winter to show its true character.—W.P.

CANADIAN GOV'T STARTS PROBE INTO SHOOTING

Officials Decline to Comment Until Legation Makes Report.

BENNETT IN CHARGE.

Much Depends on Distance Vessels Were From Coast When Fatal Round Fired.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. — The Canadian Government wants information from the United States Government on the Coastguard action in firing on the Josephine K. off the Jersey coast Saturday.

Hume Wrong, Canadian Charge d' Affaires, made the request to-day in a conference with Assistant Secretary Castle at the State Department. No report on the incident had been received from the Treasury, which had jurisdiction over the Coastguard at the time.

Guards Performing Duty

Previously, however, Assistant Secretary Lowman—of the Treasury—had called at the White House. He issued a statement saying the Coastguard "was performing its statutory duty in prevention of smuggling" in the capture of the Canadian schooner.

The Canadian Legation will make a report on the incident to the Department of External Affairs and in the meantime officials of the Department decline to comment. No doubt much will depend on the distance the Josephine K. was from the United States shore when she was challenged and when she was fired upon. Very serious study will likely be given the report. Premier R. B. Bennett is directly in charge of this Department as Secretary of State for External Affairs.

Officials Keep Mum

News of the death of Captain Cluett came to Washington over the press wires on Sunday and created considerable perturbation. Off hand officials ventured the opinion that the importance of Saturday night's incident as between Canada and the United States depended upon the distance the two vessels were from the coast when the fatal round was fired from the patrol boat. If the Josephine K. were within an hour's sailing of the United States coast then the coastguard, it was said, had the right to search and seize her.

Early reports from New York presenting the coastguard side of the case indicated this might be the situation. The incident was said to have occurred ten miles from shore and the Josephine K. was said to have a speed of 14 knots. The impression gained from New York reports asserting that the Coastguard disturbed the Josephine K. while unloading liquor also tended to indicate the vessel may have been within United States jurisdiction under the Anti-Smuggling Treaty.

On the other hand should it be shown the Josephine K was fired upon outside treaty limits, the position of the Coastguard, it is unofficially admitted, would be awkward.

Use Old Plea

It is probable that in such case the plea made on behalf of the Coastguardsmen who destroyed the "I'm Alone" would be made again—to wit, the doctrine of "continuous and hot pursuit" in the argument immediately following upon the sinking of the rum runner commanded by Captain John Randall, "continuous and hot pursuit" was a favorite phra It was claimed by the United States Government that inasmuch as the "I'm Alone" had been picked up by Coastguard destroyers within treaty limits an attempt at seizure by force 214 miles at sea was justified. It was pointed out however on behalf of the Canadian position that the doctrine "continuous and hot pursuit" was a reference in International Maritime law to chases begun in territorial waters, that is within the three mile limit. At present, while arbitration of the "I'm Alone" case has not yet commenced, the United

Robin in Kingston Visits Police Chief

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 26.—If the robin still remains a true harbinger of spring, winter is fast disappearing, in this part of the country at least.

Despite weather at ten below zero on Saturday, a mild spell came yesterday and this morning with the weather just about the freezing mark, Chief of Police R. J. Robinson was surprised to see in front of his house, a robin, chirping as though it was the middle of the summer.

Former Constable Will Stand Trial On Theft Charges

FIRST OFFENCE DATES BACK TO JANUARY, 1929 SIX THEFTS WERE OF SUMS OVER $100.00

Accused Did Not Elect or Plead and Assented to Commitment on the Evidence of One Witness in Each Case—Thefts Total $1,373.50.

Leonard Matthews, for ten years a member of Peterborough City Police Force, who was on Saturday discharged by the Police Commissioners, this morning occupied the dock in Police Court, and answered to eleven charges of burglary involving the sum of $1,373.50, before Magistrate O. A. Langley.

Through his counsel Alexander S. Elliott of Gordon and Elliott, accused did not elect or plead, and assented to a committment on the evidence of one witness in each case.

Regarded by his fellow citizens as an efficient and fearless officer the charges against Matthews caused a stir of public interest such as has seldom been shown in this city previously. Long before the doors leading up to the public portion of the court were thrown open, a large crowd had congregated and many were unable to gain admittance.

The accused attired in a neat blue serge suit, walked from the cells escorted by one of his comrades. His face was pale and tense, and large beads of sweat stood out on his forehead as all the formalities of the law were carried out

The eleven charges, the first offense of which dates back to January 4th, 1929 in the order in which they were taken by the Police Magistrate, are as follows:

Breaking and entering the office of W. H. Bradburn, George street, on or about the 4th day of January, 1929 and stealing the sum of $120.00.

Breaking and entering the office of W. H. Bradburn on or about the 17th day of March, 1930 and stealing the sum of $74.00.

Breaking and entering the store of W. H. Hamilton on or about June 20th, 1930 and stealing the sum of $20.00.

Breaking and entering the store of W. H. Hamilton, on or about January 20th, 1929 and stealing the sum of $70.00.

Breaking and entering the store of W. H. Hamilton on or about July 11, 1930 and stealing the sum of $200.

Breaking and entering the store of W. H. Hamilton on or about September 17th, 1930 and stealing the sum of $88 00.

In each of the above charges Chief Constable Samuel Newhall gave evidence in which he stated that Matthews had made a voluntary statement to him in which he had admitted committing all the offences with which he was charged. In accordance with the formalities of the law the Chief Constable was sworn and gave evidence respecting each individual charge.

Bail Is Refused.

Application for bail was made before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke this afternoon, but was refused, the application being opposed by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

ROBILARD GIVEN TEN DAYS IN JAIL

Committed For Trial on Charge of Abduction of Mary O'Neill.

Joseph Ernest Robiliard who appeared in Police Court this morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley on remand, was sentenced to ten days imprisonment on a charge of pointing a firearm at one Mrs. L O'Neill.

Answering to a further charge of abduction, the accused who through his counsel, W. F. Huycke did not elect or plead, was committed for trial, after Mary O'Neill had given evidence on behalf of the prosecution.

In disposing of the first charge on which His Worship had reserved judgement from a previous hearing, he stated that he was taking into consideration the whole evidence, particularly that of Mrs. O'Neill at whom the firearm was pointed. "The case relies upon her testimony" he said.

He also pointed out that it was apparent the accused had used the threat "blood will be spilled" immediately after he had taken the gun from the wall.

Combined with the evidence of the woman's son, who had made reference to the accused holding the butt of the gun with his right hand and who with the left hand on the barrel was facing witness's mother, the magistrate was inclined to regard that testimony with some importance.

"I am convinced the accused man took the gun from the wall and pointed it at the woman while it was in his possession. I have decided to make a conviction" he said addressing the prisoner, "and I find you guilty of the offence."

Mr. Huycke, making a plea for leniency, stated the prisoner had been in gaol for a week, having failed to get bail. He submitted that a fine would meet the demands of justice.

Abduction Charge

Called by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry to testify, on the charge of abduction against the accused, Mary O'Neill stated that on December 27th, 1930 she was employed at a house on Brock street. On that afternoon accused called for her, and as a result of his visit she met him later. He said he was going to his sister's house, and after I got into his car he started off in the opposite direction up George street.

"I asked him where he was going" said witness, and he replied that he was only going for a short drive and would bring me right back."

The accused drove to Lakefield she continued, but would not let her out of the car there.

Crown Attorney—Why did you not get out of the car.

Witness—It was almost impossible. There was not much room in it.

From Lakefield they proceeded to a place known as "The Ranch', situated in the township of Burleigh While in the car at the end of the

SHOTS ARE FIRED AS RUM RUNNER TRIES TO ESCAPE

Schooner Interrupted Unloading to Three Boats—19 Men Arrested.

CARGO WORTH $100,000.

Canadian Legation Expresses Grave Concern—Will Ask Immediate Probe.

NEW YORK, January 26 (C. P.). — A rum-running drama, in which a ship captain was wounded mortally by a one-pound shot and his vessel was captured by a coastguard cutter after a five-mile chase up the Lower Bay, is expected to be the subject of exchanges between the United States and Canada.

Captain William P. Cluett, 39, of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, died in the Marine Hospital at Staten Island, Sunday morning though his right leg was amputated in an effort to save him.

$100,000 Cargo Captured

Four hours before, the Josephine K, a two-master auxiliary schooner of Nova Scotian registry, the scow Brooklyn, of Newark, and the tugboat Dauntless 6 had been seized by the Coast Guard cutter 145, together with liquor valued at $100,000 and 19 men.

As reconstructed from the report to Coast Guard headquarters at Staten Island, the cutter 145 sighted the schooner and three small craft clustered about her four and a half miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship, 9½ miles off the New Jersey coast. Before the cutter could reach the spot, the schooner cast off lines and shot away toward the Upper Bay, its way to the open sea being blocked.

Speed Boat Escapes

A speed launch escaped without pursuit.

While the Josephine K was hitting a 14-knot clip and widening the gap, the cutter fired three warning shots in the air, a summons to halt. Still th pursued craft kept on her course and four more shots were fired, the last one tearing away the pilot house and wounding the master.

The Josephine K hove to and a crew from the cutter boarded her. The captain died without regaining consciousness. The crew of five was placed under arrest after 2 500 cases of Scotch whiskey had been discovered in the hold and the schooner was convoyed to Red Hook Flats.

Scow Captured

Although the cutter had lost more than an hour in the chase, she retraced her steps and coast guards boarded the slow-moving scow and its tug. Captain Mario Laudi, his crew of three and 1,200 cases of the same content as found on the schooner were seized aboard the scow. Captain John Ambrose and a crew of eight were arrested aboard the tug.

The Josephine K is equipped with oil-burning auxiliary engines. The scow belongs to the A. and S. Transportation Company which hold a contract to transport to sea the sediment from northern Jersey sewers. The tug is owned by the Dauntless Towing Company.

Dominion To Act

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Within a few hours of the shelling of the Canadian schooner Josephine K, Saturday night and the killing of Captain William P. Cluett of Lunenburg, N. S., says the New York American, the Dominion Government and the Canadian legation in Washington "began unofficially to express grave concern over the killing."

"The Canadian legation," continues the American, "permitted it to become known that it will ask an immediate investigation.

"Scrutinizing reports which placed the scene of the shooting off Ambrose Lightship, Canadian legation attaches points out that the lightship is seven and a half miles southeast of Rockaway, Long Island, and that the shelling might have occurred outside the 12-mile limit."

COUNTY COUNCIL OPENS TUESDAY

Two Members Are Believed to be Aspiring for the Wardenship of the County.

IMPORTANT SESSION.

The County Council will get down to work to-morrow afternoon when its members will assemble at the Court House for the first meeting of the year. Big problems, mainly of a financial nature, await this year's Council, and the session promises to be an important one.

Chief interest among county residents is centred on the council's choice of warden. There are two eager aspirants, Reeve Tanner, of Lakefield, and Reeve Parker, of Harvey, to the county's throne. The important choice between these two worthy claimants will be made Tuesday afternoon.

MINISTERS RAP UNIVERSITY VIEW ON FREE SPEECH

Rev. R. G. Stewart Claims it is Time Minister of Education Took Action.

OPEN LETTER CRITICIZED.

Police Action in Handling Issue Lauded by Rev. F. C. Ward-Whate.

TORONTO, Ont., January 26 (C P.). — Professors of the University of Toronto who recently wrote an open letter supporting free speech were criticized from the pulpit of St. John's Presbyterian Church here by Rev. Rupert G. Stewart, B D.

If it is "a new covenant of Communism on the old cart of education" that the 68 "free-speech" defending professors are offering young men and women, "the sooner the Minister of Education wakes up, the better for Ontario and Canada," declared Dr. Stewart.

Meanwhile, at St. Alban's Cathedral, Rev. F. C. Ward-Whate, priest-vicar, endorsed police action in handling the "free-speech" issue. To concede unbridled free speech to be every one's right would be but to give the Reds "a wonderful chance to blaspheme the Christ of the ages and wound recent Christian citizens to the quick," he declared.

Caused Wide Discussion.

The "free-speech" issue has caused considerable discussion in the city during the past few months. Police interference with Communist meetings, which were forbidden, led to much ill-feeling. Recently, the Fellowship of Reconciliation sent a deputation to the Police Commission, asking for a clearing up of the Commission's stand with regard to free speech in the city.

Last week, 68 professors of the University of Toronto wrote the now-famous open letter, in which they spoke in support of free speech The Police Commission took the stand that any person could speak on any subject—providing the subject was a lawful one and the matter was declared closed. The Fellowship and Police Commission figuratively shook hands.

In his sermon last night, Rev. Rupert G. Stewart said the truce happily arrived at between the Commission and the Fellowship did not dismiss the issue behind the letter made public over the signatures of the University Faculty.

OPTIMISM SHOWN IN MINING TRADE

GUEST AT BANQUET.

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Jan. 26 (C.P.)—"In this period of depression the spirit of optimism as shown by those engaged in mining had shaken off the mantle of despair," said Hon. W. A. Gordon, Federal Minister of Mines and Immigration, in the course of an address here Saturday night. Mr. Gordon was guest of honor at a banquet of the local Board of Trade, and was later entertained by the Kirkland Lake Conservative Association.

When industrial heads and farmers were hindered for lack of money, the Minister said, the mining industry was making increases without any special aid or support. The industry was maintaining the high standard of wages, and last year had paid out $125,000,000. From executive to muckers, those engaged in this industry had reason to be proud of themselves for the part they had played. He referred briefly to immigration, and the work of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, and also to the Department of Justice, of which he is the head during the absence of Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

QUEBEC, Jan. 26 (C.P.)—The Church of St. Valier, Bellechasse County, was destroyed by fire early Sunday, with a loss estimated at $200,000. The edifice was comparatively new, having been built about thirty years ago.

Arsenal Uncovered In Windsor Store

WINDSOR, Jan. 26.—German-made rifles, shotguns and ammunition were seized late on Saturday by the Windsor Police in the basement of a sporting goods supply house, and are now being held at Windsor Police headquarters.

A warrant charging that the guns and ammunition were stored illegally by a Major J. M. Toohey of the United States Army, an alien in Canada, was the authority on which the police made the seizure.

According to information available, the shipment came into Canada by way of Montreal some five months ago.

RED HOT SKIT ENDS WITH FIRE AT WRITERS CLUB

Satire on Police Commission and Two Toronto Papers Halts Abruptly.

MEMBERS SAVE PICTURES.

"Judge" Loses Set of Beautiful Whiskers—Damage is $31.000.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 26.—Members of the Toronto Writers' Club will think quite a while before they stage any more "red hot" skits. They "pulled" one in the course of a meeting Saturday night, and the damage amounted to $31,000—plus one set of magnificent white whiskers.

And here's how it happened. The club, composed of many newspapermen, is situated within a stone-throw of four newspaper offices. The gay and carefree band often trail into the "joint" on Saturday nights, when things are quiet, and there are no "deadlines" to catch. So Saturday night they trooped merrily in. It was cold outside, but inside a huge log blazed on the hearth. They talked, as all newspapermen do, of events of last week and this week and next week. Then they decided to pillory the local Police Commission, and a couple of newspapers. The impromptu skit went beautifully, and roars of amusement were heard.

Judge Adjourns Session

Suddenly, clouds of smoke appeared. At the time, no one happened to be smoking that kind of a pipe or cigar. The pesudo "Judge" who was presiding, gazed apprehensively around. He sniffed. Then, stroking the club "whiskers", he quietly announced that the meeting had better adjourn. The whiskers dropped off in the resultant confusion. Another "Judge" who was about to take the witness stand asked members to save the pictures on the wall. The "Chief of Police" called the Fire Department. The "Policeman" on guard at the door pleaded for the rescue of autographed first editions which make up the club library.

Then the members went down the long narrow steps into the cold outdoors. They carried paints valued at more than $2,000. A few of them hurried off to write their "stuff" on the fire.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

BANDIT WOUNDED BY OWN BULLET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (C.P.). — A bullet fired at an intended victim early to-day proved a boomerang for two hold-up men.

In an attempt to rob the tenant of an upper East Side tenement house, police said, Martin Bray, 27, was seriously wounded by a bullet ricocheting from a third floor landing. Taking him to a hospital, Michael Reardon, 24, was arrested on a charge of attempted robbery. A third man escaped.

Five Main Planks Laid Out By New English Party at Norwich.

TAX FOREIGN WHEAT.

NORWICH, England, Jan. 26. — A new party—the so-called Agricultural Party—was launched at a meeting of Norfolk county farmers here oh Saturday night. Five main planks were laid out as the party platform, and this platform will be submitted, for endorsation, to all the Norfolk members of Parliament and to prospective candidates. The platform, follows: First, the imposition of taxes on foreign agricultural produce which competes with the home-grown article; secondly, a guaranteed market and guaranteed price for wheat, based on the cost of production on the average British farm; thirdly, a duty on all imported foreign barley to be used for malting and distilling, this duty to be without reservation; fourthly, the giving of preference to home-produced foodstuffs in army, navy and air force contracts; fifthly, that the Dominions should get the benefit of a market for the supplies of foodstuffs needed "over and above the maximum home production."

Archbishop McCarthy Is Dead In Halifax

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 26.—(CP)—His Grace Edward J. McCarthy, Archbishop of Halifax since 1906, died here this morning. His health had been failing for some years. In recent months he grew weaker and death had been expected since he collapsed on January 11. Yesterday was his eighty-second birthday.

Edward J. McCarthy, Archbishop of Halifax, was born in Halifax in 1849 and received his preliminary education in that city in Belle Air and St. Mary's Colleges. When he reached the decision to devote his life to the priesthood he went to the Grand Seminary of Montreal to pursue studies in philosophy and theology. On completion of his studies there he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Connolly of Halifax and appointed assistant at St. Mary's Cathedral.

In 1906 Father McCarthy was selected by the Holy See as successor to the Most Rev. Cornelius O'Brien, Archbishop of Halifax, and he was consecrated to this high dignity by the Apostolic Delegate to Canada, Archbishop (now Cardinal) Sharetti, on Sept. 9, 1906.

OLD CLASS MATES HONOR PREMIER

HENRY SPEAKS SHORTLY.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 26.—"Pat" Henry, otherwise known as Hon. George S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, was guest of honor at a pleasant little function at University of Toronto Saturday night, when sixty-two men who were with him at 'Varsity in the nineties united to congratulate him upon elevation to the Premiership of the Province.

There were no serious speeches, but there were many reminiscent stories of the old days.

Then, just for a moment, he spoke of his new position. "To accept the office of Prime Minister would have been too much, I think, if it had not been for the feeling that the people generally were behind me. I do not believe that the people expect super-human results from Governments. Governments, after all, are only human, and to err is human, unsmirched integrity and honesty of purpose I think, are the things that Governments, like men, should maintain first and most zealously.'

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Egg prices declined, butter and cheese advanced, and potatoes were unchanged on the produce market here last week.

Prices of eggs, in carlots and to retailers, closed the week unchanged. Fresh eggs, in carlots, were quoted at 30c for extras, 26c for firsts and pullets, and 20c a dozen for seconds. Storage firsts were 16c and seconds 14c a dozen. Last week's receipts were 856 cases.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter finished the week unchanged at 31¾c to 32c a pound in carlots. To retailers solids were 33c and prints 34c a pound. Receipts for the week were 634 boxes.

The cheese market was unchanged on Saturday, winter white selling at 11c to 11½c and winter colored at 13c to 13½c a pound. Summer cheese was quoted at 15½c to 16c a pound. The receipts for last week only amounted to 18 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots were unchanged at 85c per 90 pounds bulk and to retailers 95c per 80-lb bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Oppressed by general expectance of increased arrivals of corn in the near future, grains suffered new all-around price breaks Saturday. The season's bottom-most quotations heretofore were outstripped both by corn and rye. Leadership on the bull side of every kind of cereals appeared lacking, and many traders said the low prices were without the appeal that would ordiarily develop if there were no Government interference with business.

Corn closed nervous, ½c to 1¼c lower; wheat irregular, ⅝c off to ⅛c up; oats, ⅛c to ⅜c down; and provisions at 5c to 15c decline.

WINNIPEG, January 26. — Good export business and reports of a serious lack of rainfall induced a bullish feeling into trading on the Winnipeg grain market on Saturday. Final quotations showed gains of from ⅝c to ¼c for the short session.

Export business overnight and during the day was placed at close to 1,000,000 bushels. Offerings at times were quite liberal, but toward the close they eased up, and the advance was fairly well held.

Demand for cash wheat was indifferent, and spreads held at unchanged figures.

Substantial improvement was noted in cash-grain trading. Prices for the most part followed the action of wheat.

A. CLARK PRESENTS ANNUAL FIRE REPORT

Although Loss is Not as Low as 1929, Record For Past Year is Splendid.

LAKEFFIELD, January 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual report of the Fire Chief (A. H. Clark) presented to the Municipal Council and received by them is a highly creditable document, recording the activities of a very full year. The fire equipment was increased, a new 600-gallon combination pumper was purchased, and some other equipment. Although the fire loss did not touch the spectacularly low level of 1920 ($5.00 for the year3, nevertheless the record has been excellent for 1930. No fire went beyond the fire building; the Melody Inn fire in October was the greatest loss. The value of the storage tanks was proven by a fire on Edward Street in December, when the tank on Ermatinger Street was used to advantage.

The Fire Chief also stressed the need for a more adequate supply of hose and also a better approach to the Fire Hall. Fire prevention has been stressed in the schools and in the village generally.

During the past year the local Fire Chief was honored by being made vice-president for Ontario-East of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs.

The Fire Underwriters' associate engineer paid a visit of inspection in November, and expressed satisfaction, which it is hoped will be reflected in a further decrease of fire insurance rates.

The Chief paid tribute to the loyalty and co-operation of the Brigade and expressed thankfulness that during the year only a few minor injuries had been sustained while in the line of duty.

A MILLION FAT FOLKS CAN'T BE WRONG

And that's a low estimate of the number taking Kruschen to keep down superfluous fat.

When you take vitalizing Kruschen Salts for a few days that old indolent arm-chair feeling deserts you—it doesn't matter how fat you are—the urge for activity has got you—and you're "stepping lively."

And best of all you like this activity—you walk a couple of miles and enjoy it—you thought you'd never dance again, but you find you're getting as spry as ever—the old tingling, active feeling reaches even your feet.

Kruschen is a combination of the six salts Nature has already put into your body to keep you alive—if it were not for these vital salts you could not live.

One bottle is enough to prove to you that Kruschen will make you feel younger—spryer—more energetic—you'll enjoy life, every minute of it.

A half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning is all you need to keep healthy—keep your stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys in splendid condition—free your system from harmful toxins and acids.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

A court in the United States has delivered a judgment that if accepted as a precedent should cause motorists generally to be more careful in regard to the mechanical condition of their automobiles.

In a case arising out of a motor accident it was shown that the mishap was caused by the bursting of a tire, and the evidence was to the effect that the tire had been worn thin and was in bad shape.

The court decided that the owner of the car in question was responsible for the accident and for the damages occasioned thereby, because he had been guilty of negligence in not having his equipment in a safe condition.

That is a very important verdict.

It means that accidents caused by faulty tires, defective brakes or other mechanical weaknesses cannot be regarded as "acts of providence," but rather as the result of carelessness on the part of the car owner.

In short, the man who deliberately uses an automobile that is not in good condition is liable in the event of an accident and cannot plead these defects as an excuse.

In view of that decision, it would look like real economy for every motorist to make sure that his car is in good working order.

UNITED ACTION NEEDED.

Premier George S. Henry has declared that the program of the Government for the coming session of the Legislature does not provide for changes in the gasoline tax, motor license fees or succession duties.

That announcement means that the municipalities of the Province need expect no relief from the present burden of taxation, and no share of the gasoline tax, unless there is sufficient pressure brought upon the Cabinet to induce the Government to change its mind.

The Ontario administration, with a deficit to report after returning a surplus for the past four years, will, of course, advance the argument that so many services are expected of the Government that it is impossible to give up any of the present revenue.

On the other hand, the Province is to be relieved of the cost of old age pensions, and to some extent the cost of technical education, a development which should give the municipalities something to work upon when they make a demand for relief.

Municipal administrations throughout Ontario would be well advised, The Examiner feels, to co-operate in an impressive drive upon Queen's Park, a mass movement big enough to convince the Government that the people of the Province are in earnest in their request that at least a portion of the present burden of taxation should be lifted from municipal shoulders.

KEEP IT OUT.

The Canadian Forestry Association at its annual meeting last week passed a resolution requesting the Canadian Government to take whatever steps may be necessary to afford protection to Canadian forest products against the importation of lumber "cut and shipped by forced or conscript labor in Russia."

That is a request that should receive sympathetic consideration from the Federal Government.

There is surely no reason why a country like Canada with huge forest resources should allow an important industry to be menaced by lumber imported from a land where it is manufactured under conditions that would never be tolerated here.

We have no need of Russian lumber, and if there is no machinery available at the present time to prevent the Canadian market from being menaced in this way, the Bennett Government should have no hesitation in taking steps to provide safeguards that will keep the Soviet article out of this country.

Every bit of business done with Russia under present conditions is merely helping the Soviet plan of demoralizing the world's trade, and certainly the door should be tightly closed against Russian lumber cut by slave workers at a fraction of the cost of Canadian production.

A TURN-OVER TAX.

Press despatches from Ottawa that, while not officially confirmed, are probably not far off the mark, predict that Premier R. B. Bennett when he brings his budget proposals before Parliament at the coming session will announce his intention of imposing a 2 per cent. turn-over tax on manufacturers and wholesale dealers as a means of raising the revenues needed to meet the falling off from other saurces.

The Government is faced with a situation that will necessitate heavy borrowing or the tapping of other channels of revenue, and it is declared that the turn-over tax, which it is estimated would produce nearly fifty millions dollars, has been decided upon as the most practicable solution.

The theory is that the tax will be confined to manufacturers and wholesalers, it being pointed out that there interests have benefitted by the tariff increases passed at the special session of Parliament.

However, in its actual working out it is likely to be found that, as in many other levies, the tax will ultimately be passed along to the consumer, with the final result, if history repeats itself, that two per cent. will be added to the cost of most of the things the Canadian people will have to buy.

The details of the plan will therefore be awaited with a great deal of interest by the whole country.

Ottawa despatches prophesy that there will be relatively few tariff changes.

It is true that a general revision was, some months ago, announced by the Premier, but much water has run under the bridge since that time, and the decision to have the Imperial Conference re-convene at Ottawa this year will probably delay tariff changes for the time being.

Too many people think co-operation consists in going through a revolving door with the other fellow and yet doing nothing to make it revolve.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

A GOOD CASE.

Ald. Wilkinson, of Niagara Falls, is only one of many aldermen throughout Ontario holding the opinion that the Provincial Government should share up the gas tax with the municipalities. The justice of this demand lies in the fact that there are hundreds of cars and trucks which burn up all their gas on city streets, for the construction and maintenance of which the Province does not contribute a nickel. In fact, without the fine permanent pavements within municipalities the Ontario highway system would be pretty much disrupted.

In an interview with the Premier, Ald. Wilkinson did not get very far. There is no doubt a good case can be made out for the municipalities, but the chances of getting a share of the tax are, according to the Stratford Beacon-Herald, "slim even to the vanishing point." Even so, that constitutes no reason why the demand should not be continually dinned into the ears of the members of the Legislature and the Cabinet, too.

Nearly every city and town in the Province has to adopt hard-rock economy to make both ends meet and not have a tax rate which is unduly oppressive. And yet we read of expenditure in the Province continually going up along with revenue, with a fair-sized deficit for the last year. Gas tax, motor licenses, real estate transfers, theatre and amusement attendance, death, booze and liquor fines, are just a few things in which the provincial tithe gatherers have a stranglehold on the urban dweller. If the groans of the taxpayers become so articulate that eventually they will be heard and taken up by the Opposition, then the present regime at Queen's Park has only itself to blame. The problem is a good deal more pressing than present governmental complacency would indicate.—St. Catharines Standard.

CLOSING CLIVEDEN.

Lord Astor has made the announcement that he will close his country estate at Cliveden, in Buckinghamshire, England. He had a meeting with his tenants yesterday, and explained that for every hundred pounds sterling he received from the place he had to pay sixty pounds to the Government.

There is really nothing very new in this situation, because there have been many English estates abandoned for the same reason. It is not likely that the Astor fortune is seriously impaired, but the upkeep of that estate is a greater expense than its owner, as a business man, can countenance.

This estate, Cliveden, the home of Lord and Lady (Nancy) Astor, has a peculiar interest to many Canadians. It was turned into a military hospital during the war, and what is probably the most unique and beautiful cemetery for members of the Canadian overseas force who died in the hospital there, has been brought into existence on this property.

During the time when a party of Canadian editors toured England in the summer of 1929, Cliveden was on the itinerary, and there was opportunity to see much of the historic home there, and also the extensive estate. On that occasion approach to the place was made from Windsor, passing through Eton and also Stoke Poges, where rural England shows itself in all its unspoiled beauty.

* * * *

It is indeed an historic place, and history there is preserved. At one side of the house there is a spot where a sword is worked in floral design, running across the date 1668, also worked in a flower bed design. This bit of perfect lawn is enclosed partly by a hedge, and marks the place where the first Duke of Buckingham engaged in a duel with the husband of Lady Shaftsbury over that fair ladys hand. As we recall it, the Buckingham contestant won the duel and also the lady. The house itself is rich in paintings, many of them of ancestral interest.

Lady Nancy Astor, herself a Virginian by birth, was a tireless worker during the war. It was largely under her supervision that the hospital at Cliveden came into existence, and it was her idea, shared also by her husband, Lord Astor, that there should be created on the estate a cemetery for the burial of Canadians who died in the hospital there.

The whole-hearted manner in which the scheme was carried out can be judged by the fact that what was conceded to be one of the most beautiful spots on the estate was selected as a site. Formerly it had been planned and finished as a sunken garden of Italian design. It stands on ground where immediately to one side the land breaks off sharply into a great valley below.

Around the sides is a walk done in mosaic, and in the centre there are the graves of 22 members of the Canadian overseas force. There are no headstones, but placed in the closely-trimmed grass there are bronze tablets, with the inscription necessary for identification. On the east side of the enclosure, and standing up on the embankment above the sunken space, is a remarkable piece of statuary, done by one of the world's greatest artists. It is the figure of a mother, with arms stretched out over the graves below. It faces directly toward the west, and as Lady Astor explained to the Canadian editors, the idea was that as the sun went down in the west, in the direction from which these Canadian boys came, the face of that figure should look directly into it. In order that this might be actually accomplished there was a clearing made for some distance through the forest so that the sun might have an unobstructed chance to cast its last rays each day on that guardian figure in the cemetery.

It would be difficult to imagine anything more beautiful in design, more thoughtful in conception, or more perfect in errangement than that little cemetery which stands on the Astor estate at Cliveden.

Just what the closing down of the estate will mean we do not know. It will not carry with it anything in the way of neglect as long as it remains in the Astor family. Of that we are certain.

It is probably a very correct picture of the manner in which the burden of taxation is resting on the people of Britain. Here is a place, deep-rooted in British history, probably for long years a source of revenue, and to-day it becomes too great an expense to be kept open.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That turn-over tax mentioned in Ottawa despatches will no doubt be levied on professional wrestlers.

Sam McBride has announced, apparently for no reason at all, that he will be a candidate for the Toronto mayoralty next year.

It may be remarked for the benefit of those without them, that new automobile license markers are now available.

And still, a Cabinet Minister cannot be expected to accept all the challenges for a joint meeting that may be hurled at him by political opponents.

After all, it cannot be said that Canada suffers from any lack of free speech. The real trouble is that we have too many talkers.

RADIO BROADCASTING

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I just read the squeals of "No squeals" with some amusement. I have heard a good many programs over CKGW, and have yet to hear the five-minute programs and ten minute advertising he speaks of.

Has "No Squeals" stopped to consider just what it would cost for a license if the radio stations were taken over by the Government and there were no advertising? He must be aware that if there were no companies to pay for these programs with a few minutes of advertising, we would have to pay for these programs ourselves.

I believe the majority of the radio fans are satisfied with the present arrangement.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your paper,

Yours for a Square Deal.

A Thought

YOUTH

In general I have no patience with people who talk about "the thoughtlessness of youth" indulgently. I had infinitely rather hear of thoughtless old age and indulgence due to that. When a man has done his work, and nothing can be in any way materially altered in his fate, let him forget his toil and jest with his fate, if he will; but what excuse can you find for wilfulness of thought at the very time when every crisis of future fortune depends on the chances or the passions of an hour? A youth thoughtless—when the career of all his days depends on the opportunity of a moment! A youth thoughtless—when his every act is a foundation stone of future conduct, and every thought a fountain of life or death! Be thoughtless in any after years rather than now; though indeed there is only one place where a man may be nobly thoughtless—his death-bed. No thinking should be left to be done there.—Ruskin.

What To-day Means To You

If January 26th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9:45 a.m., from 1 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Astrological influences will bring about a very restine feeling on January 26th and longings, which will be difficult to fulfil. Misunderstandings with close associates are almost inevitable, and every effort should be made to bridge over the trouble. A vein of good luck extends to those people whose business or vocation is of a mechanical kind.

The child born on this January 26th will have a perverse, stubborn nature. Its desire to have its own way will work both for and against its ultimate good. It will crave sociability and a good time, and will be a superficial student.

You are by nature both a sad and pessimistic being, and you go about as if life holds nothing but gloom. Your horoscope however, does not reveal that you are destined to meet with more than your share of misfortune or grief. It does reveal that you have all the trappings necessary for a normal success and happiness. Envy lies at the bottom of most of your disatisfaction with life. The desire to be in some other fellow's boots prevents you from enjoying the beauty or comfort of your own. You are chronically sorry for yourself, both in and out of season.

You are very moral and high principled, but are not tolerant minded, and you are inclined to be preachy or a reformer. Lacking both pliability and adaptability, you must do things in your own way, or not at all. You have strong likes and dislikes with regard to your acquaintances, and prejudice often blinds you when a correct vision and understanding would inure to your benefit. You are a slow worker, but a very careful and thorough one.

You are liable to be unlucky in love and marriage for the simple reason that you feel so deeply. Jealousy, on your part, will blind you to reason, arouse your suspicians (false ones) and destroy your faith.

You do not know how to hide your feelings, or when not to speak your mind. (opyright, 1931, The Bell Syn., Inc.)

LAKEFIELD

The Examiner wishes to make a correction regarding the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Lakefield appearing under the heading of "section reports" in January 24 issue. The article should have read Presbyterian church instead of United church as stated.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

They sat in silence for a moment, then he said again, "I am sorry, more than I can tell you. Tony needs in a wife just what you can give him. He's not weak. He's simply on the wrong track and you could lead him into other paths. To be perfectly frank he's following false gods. I am not finding fault with his mother. It is her world and she likes it. I am blaming myself. I should have held on to my own ideals. Oh, you don't have to tell me, little Virginia, that you believe in God and life and love and all the other great good things that so many of us scoff at. And if you have children your motherhood will be sacred, and your wifehood will be sacred."

He stopped and sat staring for a moment at the picture before him. "That's my family, planted ten years after our marriage—"

Virginia looked up at the great painting. She had not seen it in the afternoon for Tony had been called away before they reached it. It showed Jane Bleecker in trailing diaphanous blue, with her hair dressed high and a tiara of diamonds.

She was seated in a carved chair and her husband leaned on the back of it looking down. Old Anthony was young Anthony then, and so like his son today that it almost took Virginia's breath away to see him—the same fairness, the same air of laughing gaiety. Young Tony, a boy of eight, sat on a cushion at his mother's feet. Pressed against Jane Bleecker's knee was a little girl in white with a rose-colored sash. The contrast between the blue of the mother's gown and the rose-color of the child's sash was exquisite. The whole thing was indeed lovely, and Virginia said so.

"The little girl," old Anthony explained, "was our daughter. She died when she was five. She was named for my Maryland grandmother, Cynthia Howard. Tony adored her. He has never, I think, got over it. It is because of what he was to little Cynthia that I know what he might be to you. He was very tender, very protective."

"And you can't?"

She shook her head.

"I'm going to hope a bit," he smiled at her, "there's no one else I'd like so well to see as mistress of Derekdale."

Mistress of Derekdale—Mistress of Derekdale—Tony's words came back to her and the shivering sense she had at the time of impending disaster.

A voice behind them said, "Anthony."

It was a cold voice—Jane Bleecker's. She stood in the doorway. She wore a tulle gown of palest rose, which dripped with rhinestones. She looked young enough to be the grand-daughter of the woman in the portrait. "In a few minutes," she said, "we'll be having supper. Aren't you coming, Anthony?" Then, to Virginia, "Michael McMillan was asking for you a moment ago." She did not say that Tony, too, was asking.

Old Anthony said, "She ran away from your mistletoe cotillion, Jane, dear. It was a bit too rackety for her taste."

Jane shrugged her shoulders, 'My dear Tony, we're not mid-Victorian!"

Virginia's temper was flaming, but she controlled it. "Your husband has been showing me your portrait, Mrs. Bleecker. You look younger now than you did then."

"It's the short hair and my clothes," Jane said. She stood staring up at the lady in the blue dress. Then suddenly her eyes rested on the child in the rose-colored sash. "If Cynthia were here," she said, "she'd be nearly twenty." It seemed to Virginia that her voice softened. She wondered if Jane Bleecker's daughter had been at the ball if there would have been a mistletoe cotillion.

Jane turned from the picture. "Anthony, we must be going down."

The three of them descended the stairs. But at the door of the ball-room Virginia left the others and made her way to the library. Before she entered she spoke to a servant in the hall, "Do you know Mr. McMillian?"

He thought he could find him. 'When you do, will you ask him to come here to Miss Oliphant?"

As the man went on his way Virginia found her cheeks hot. What would he think of her? And what would Michael think? She curled up on the divan behind the screen and waited. He would come in a moment, eager, lighted-up, smiling.

He came, presently, but not alone and not in answer to her message. Rickey was with him. From her hiding-place she heard their voices, Michaels' first: "Have you seen your sister?"

Then Rickey: "If I had seen her I wouldn't tell you."

'I am sorry you feel that way about it, Oliphant."

'Why shouldn't I feel that way about it? Just because I happen to owe you a thousand dollars is no reason why you should try to force your attentions on Jinny."

She heard Michael's sharp exclamation: 'If you were yourself, I'd make you take that back."

"I won't take anything back and I am willing to fight if you are."

Virginia got to her feet. She felt that she must go out and face them, but Michael's next words restrained her. 'Let us be friends, Oliphant."

"Not if I know it. I'm going to pay back your money. But I don't want anything to do with your magazine—or you!"

Dead silence, then Michael speaking. "There's no reason why we should prolong this, is there? Perhaps when you are yourself again, you'll apologize."

Rickey began to laugh, and Virginia was aware, suddenly, that his laughter was receding. She ran around the screen. Both men were gone. From the hall came the echo of her brother's laughter.

She stood very still in the middle of the room, white and shaking, her mind whirling.

What had Rickey meant when he said he owed Michael McMillan a thousand dollars?

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

So early in the Morning

Following Michael, Rickey caught up with him at last. "Look here," he said, and laid his hand on the other's arm, "you might as well keep away from Jinny. She's going to marry Tony Bleecker."

Michael whirled around on him. 'You lie."

Ask her if you don't believe me."

"I don't need to ask her. She's no more in love with Bleecker than I am."

Rickey's face was white. 'Well, what if she isn't in love with him? He has a lot to offer her. She'll be mistress of Derekdale. That's something for a girl to think about, isn't it?"

Michael stood staring at him. 'Something for a girl to think about"—but not a girl like Virginia Oliphant. He wanted to shake Rickey as he would a snarling puppy. But he mamaged to keep his temper. "I don't care to talk about it," he said, and made his way back to the ballroom.

He looked everywhere for Virginia, but did not find her. Others were looking—Tony and old Anthony. At last a maid brought a message to Mrs. Bleecker: Miss Oliphant was not well and had gone to her room.

To Michael the disappointment was like a blow in the face. He had counted so much on the moments they would have together. Behind the screen, perhaps, he would tell her all that he had left unsaid. And they would plan their future.

And now he must wait until morning.

He finished the night as best he could and went upstairs to a sleepless pillow. He was weighted down with the thought that something was wrong. He recalled Rickey's insolence, and sinister import of his insolence that Virginia was going to marry Bleecker. She'll be mistress of Derekdale—that's something for a girl to think about." Then Virginia's sudden disappearance.

Tony Bleecker had seemed to take it philosophically. He had danced and laughed and eaten his supper with an appetite. If his mind was on Virginia it did not appear on the surface. Yet, might there not be a secret understanding between them? Michael hated the thought and put it from him.

He rose early and went down stairs. A corps of servants was getting the place in order. Wells, the butler, fresh as a daisy in spite of only a brief season of rest, asked, "Would you like your coffee now, sir?"

'If I may have it."

'There's a maid in the breakfast room. She'll look after you, Mr. McMillan."

Refreshed by his coffee, Michael went out of doors. It was snowing delicately, the flakes floating like feathers in the crisp, thin air. The ground was veiled with white, and the stillness was so intense as to be almost startling. It was as if there was nothing alive in the world except those falling flakes.

He looked at his watch. It was not yet eight o'clock. It would be hours before any of the guests would be down. He could not hope to see Virginia before noon.

He decided to bridge the time between by riding over to Aunt Molly's. He could buy flowers for her in town, wish her a Merry Christmas and get back easily to Derekdale by eleven.

Before he left he handed a small parcel to Wells, "Send this up on Miss Oliphant breakfast tray," he said. 'Don't disturb her with it before that."

He went to the garage and asked for his car. One of the men bringing it out, said, "The roads are a bit slippery this morning, Mr. McMillan. There's a lot of ice under the snow."

'I'll take it slowly," Michael said. 'I have some time to kill."

"It will be a good thing if only time is killed this morning," the man remarked, "with all the delivery trucks and the boys an them full of Christmas hooch."

Michael's spirits rose as his car picked up the road. He stopped at a florist's shop as he drove through the little town and bought roses for his Aunt Molly—an armful of gorgeous red ones.

He bought roses, too, for Virginia, small pink buds tied with ribbon. He put them in his car and went on lightheartedly.

When he reached the old farm house, he saw a marching line of ducks making its way toward the big barn. The door of the barn was open, and his aunt, wrapped in a great fur coat, stood with a pan in her hand and threw out food to the doves which flew down from above, and to the ducks which broke ranks as they reached her.

ICE CARNIVAL PROVES SUCCESS

Colorful Affair Carried Out Under Auspices of Northumberland Regimental Band.

AWARD PRIZES.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence) — The fancy dress carnival and races staged in the Davidson Arena, Campbellford, on Friday, under the auspices of the Northumberland Regimental Band, proved a very successful event. With a large attendance registered, many of whom were in fancy dress, the affair was one that was enjoyed by both young and old.

The northumberland Band, under the baton of Bandmaster W. Pearson, was in attendance, and entertained with musical selections during the evening's fun. The judges for the races and costumes were Mayor J. M. Bygott, Col. A. Earchman, and Councillor A. D. Bennet. Every class carried off a prize, all groups being well represented. All awards were donated by the merchants of the town and proved a very fine selection of prizes, these being distributed at the close of the evening by Mayor Bygott.

The lucky number prize went to Miss Irene Tripp, while Charles Montgomery won the award for the oldest person on skates. The contest that drew a great deal of attention was that which called for the largest family on skates. This was won by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Montgomery, the number of the family being seven, inclusive of the parents. These were: The parents, Dalmas, Donald, Muriel, Helen, and Robert. Laval Is Confident Of Forming Cabinet

PARIS, Jan. 26 (C.P.). — Senator Pierre Laval expressed confidence today that he would have a Cabinet to replace that of Premier Theodore Steeg, which resigned Thursday, before to-night, and would be able to read his declaration of policy to the Chamber of Deputies Thursday.

His optimism was in the face of a renewal of old antagonisms between the Radical Socialists, a powerful Left group, and the Rightist colleagues of Louis Marin.

Desultory Trading Marks Opening Session on Toronto Stock Exchange To-day.

Massey-Harris at New Low.

TORONTO, Jan. 26. (CP)—Desultory trading marked the morning session on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Leaders were inclined to ease slightly from the closing levels of last week but such declines were limited to ½ point or less and indicate nothing more than that the local market was shading off with New York.

Massey Harris hit a new all time low of 7 to-day. The oils were particularly slow and it was not until near the end of the second hour that either B.A. Oil or Imperial had a transaction. Both were about the same price as the close last week, B.A. Oil 15 to 15 1-8, Imperial 17¾. International Pete was unchanged at 14¾.

Nickel at 15⅛ was down approximately ½ point, Braxilian Bell Telephone, C.P.R. were each ½ point or less under their last closing. Walkers shaded to 8¼ and Dominion Stores dropped the minimum fraction. Ford was unchanged and firm at 24.

The incorporators are Russell McInnes, listed as President of the company; Louise M. Colter, secretary, and R. D. Caldwell Stewart, solicitor's clerk, director.

MINING LIST IS STRONGER AT NOON HOUR

Several Gains Registered, Although Trading Irregular at Opening.

TECK HUGHES UP.

Noranda Slightly Firmer, Advancing 15 to $16.50—Base Metals Unchanged.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 26. (CP)—Somewhat irregular at the opening, the mining list firmed towards mid-day to show a majority of gains when taken at noon.

Teck Hughes and Hollinger were up 5 apiece to $7.20 and 8.05, respectively, and Mining Corp., and Lake Shore were holding unchanged. Dome lost 15 to $10.25 and QWright Hargreaves a couple to $2.23. Siscoe and Barry-Hollinger were strong in the lower priced group, both gaining a cent and a half to 51½ and 17, respectively. Vipond was up a couple to $1.21, and Big Missouri and Howey a cent each. Columario was active and nearly 3 higher at 16 7-8.

N.Y. BOND STOCKS HOLD GAINS WELL

Wall Street Opens This Week's Trading in Neutral Tone—No Real Liquidation.

U. S. STEEL REPORT DUE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (C.P.) — The financial markets began the new week in Wall Street in neutral, awaiting traffic signals. Shares backed up a little at times to-day, but activity in that market represented little save professional activity in a few volatile issues. Bonds held their recent gains well. With United States Steels' earnings report due tomorrow, and current improvement in business characterized in banking quarters as still inconclusive, investors and speculators alike were inclined to bide their time.

In the share market, pivotal industrials eased at times, but there were no signs of real liquidation. Shorts were driven to cover in Auburn and Case, which shot up 3 and 4 points. The tobaccos, which were heavy on Saturday, reflected some short covering. Some of the rails made headway. Union Pacific advanced more than 3. Allied Chemical, which shot up sharply late last week, reacted substantially, and again turned upward. Several of the utilities were under pressure. American Water Works, North American and American Power and Light fell back about a point.

Farm implement shares were conspicuously strong, along with J. I. Case. While Case's strength appeared to be largely the result of an over-extended short -interest, the weekly advices of one of the prominent statistician's organization spoke favorably of the leading farm implements as long term and investments, while pointing out that improved earnings might be some time in appearing.

Credit rates in this market were unchanged, with call money freely offered outside at 1 per cent. Considerable interest was shown, however, in a sharp rise in bankers acceptance in London, carrying them well above 2 per cent., against 1½ bid for short term dollar acceptances here. This should strengthen sterling exchange, and to remove the danger of a flow of gold to New York.

Bermudan Assembly Passes Bill On Cars

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 26 (C.P.)—The House of Assembly today passed a bill permitting practising medical men to use motor cars. Last session the bill was rejected by a large majority, but the scarcity of medical men and the difficulties of transportation have brought about a change of opinion. The Motor Car Act of 1908 prohibits all mechanically-propelled vehicles on the public roads, but this has been amended from time to time to permit Government lorries, municipal fire-fighting vehicles and hospital ambulances.

It is expected the Legislative Council will reject the bill and suggest more doctors and fewer motors.

The prize was brought here and will be surrendered at New York when an investigation is completed.

COL. GEORGE HENDERSON HEADS GREAT CANADIAN INDUSTRIES

INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN.

(Special to the Examiner. Copyright, 1931.)

TORONTO, Jan. 26.— George Henderson, Montreal's English-speaking appointee to the new Canadian National Railways Board, has been closely identified with products of wholly-Canadian manufacture for many years.

As President and General Manager of Brandram-Henderson, Limited, one of the Dominion's largest makers of paint, varnish and allied products with branch-from coast to coast, Mr. Henderson brings to the new directorate a wealth of successful business experience and a mind trained in his private enterprises to a keen knowledge of Canadian conditions and to the mentality and requirements of the various sections of the country.

COL. GEORGE HENDERSON

Born in Nova Scotia

Born in Colchester County, Nova Scotia, in 1878, the new railway director entered the firm of Henderson and Pottsparent of the present company, in his twentieth year and was associated with that company's operations and those of Brandram-Henderson, Limited, in the Maritime Provinces until 1915. Shortly after the outbreak of war, he became President and General Manager, with headquarters in Montreal. During the intervening fifteen years the company has grown to become one of the great successes amongst the Canadian makers of paint and varnish and today operates branches in eight key cities between the two oceans.

Mr. Henderson has been for many years one of the leaders in commercial advance in the Dominion and has been unflagging in his zeal for improvement of business methods and working conditions. He has served such semi-public bodies as the Board of Trade, both in the Maritimes and in Montreal, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He was President of the Montreal Board of Trade in 1928 and held the chair of the Montreal Branch of the Manufacturers' Association in the following year. In addition to occupying the presidency of Brandram-Henderson, Limited, Mr. Henderson is also President of the Alberta Linseed Oil Company of Medicine Hat and of Pacific-White Lead Company, with headquarters in Vancouver. He is Canadian Trustee of the Guardian Life Assurance Company of London, director of The Guardian Insurance Company of Canada, is a governor of Dalhousie University, his alma mater, and a director of the Review Publishing Company of Halifax, publishers of the Dalhousie Review.

Resides in Montreal

In politics, Mr. Henderson is a Conservative. In religion he is Church of England. He is an ardent fisherman and an enthusiastic golfer, as his list of club memberships proves. He married Miss Annie Lee Keith, daughter of a prominent Halifax business man, and has one son and three daughters. The family residence is on the slopes of Mount Royal on Upper Drummond Street in Montreal.

LONDON SYNDICATE NEGOTIATING FOR THE SAN ANTONIO PROPERTY

Present Control of Central Manitoba Mines in Winnipeg Interests.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 26. (Special to Examiner.)—Announcement that Premier Gold Mining Company has taken an option on the Tough Oakes Burnside property clears the air of a lot of rumors regarding this group in the east end of the Kirkland Lake ore zone. Gossip of renewed attention to properties adjacent to the larger producers in Kirkland Lake has been plentiful of late, and the above development marks the entry of at least one new and important mining group into the district.

Last Saturday the report was carried in this paper that the Otisse claims, located between the Ashley Garvey property on the south and the Broobanks Syndicate group on the north in Argyle township, Matchewan had been optioned to prominent mining interests. It is leaned to-day that Fred J. Hickey, president of Columbario Gold Mines, and associates have secured the option on the Otisse and plan immediate development.

According to dispatches from Winnipeg, a mining group of London, England, is negotiating for operating control of the San Antonio mines in central Manitoba. Engineers are said to have approved of the property and the outcome of the deal is understood to be now resting on the question of terms. San Antonio is at present controlled in Winnipeg with Bobjo Mine holding approximately 600,000 shares.

A card showing dividend yield at various market prices of Nipissing, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes, International Nickel, Imperial Oil, International Pete, Premier, McIntyre, Hollinger, Dome and Sylvanite has been issued by the firm of Louis J. West and Company, members of the Staard Stock and Mining Exchange. The card gives a sliding scale, with the prices running considerably above current levels. A width of 110 feet of mineral zone has been indicated by the first diamond drill core drawnfrom the Beatty property in the township of Duparquet. While the average value of $3.50 per ton in gold is below what is regarded at present as payable grade, yet the great width of the deposit and the possibilities of improvement in depth lend a considerable degree of interest to the further drilling now in progress. The surface sampljng also indicated an average of $3.50 per ton in gold, across a width of between 60 and 100 feet.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

Wheat was again dull and featureless on Saturday, with prices holding within a narrow range. The market opened fractionally higher and while there was some fair class buying, the market eased off about half cent, offerings being sufficient to fill the demand. Export sales overnight were quite good for Saturday being around 750,000 bushels, but strange to say only part of this business was reflected in the local pit. Some close observers are of the opinion that exporters are not lifting their hedges against some of their scales, an operation that will have to take place at some time. The bulk of the business was finished during the first half-hour, after the market turned quiet with just a small local trade passing. However, there was no selling pressure, offerings being quite light and the market was able to hold steady at around top levels. There was practically nothing doing in the cash market, the demand for everything being extremely quiet. Terminals were taking the odd car that was coming out, and spreads were all about unchanged. The Buenos Aires market closed 1-8 higher and the weather prospects in the Argentine are clearing after a week of rains. Chicago wheat was a little easier while Corn was about a cent lower. Country marketings in Western Canada on Friday were 550,000 bushels, as compared with 213,000 a year ago. Winnipeg futures closed 3-8 higher.

Coarse Grains—

These markets again made new lows during the first part this morning when there was a little stop loss selling in evidence but the perssure was quickly off the market and there were indications that the liquidation was practically finished for the time being at least. Most of the pit trade appeared to be spreading between the different months. However the cash demand for Oats, Barley, and Rye is extremely small and it is very difficult to sell much of anything. Oats closed ¼ to 3-8 higher, Barley ½ to 3-8 higher and Rye 1-8 higher in the nearby months. Flax market was weak, closing 3 cents down. Scattered liquidation was in evidence, probably based on the better weather prospects for the Argentine. Demand is very poor.

Liverpool Cables due ¼ higher based on Winnipeg.

NEW YORK LOST NUMBER 25,000

Of the Total Missing Last Year 2,450 Were Girls and 3,500 Boys.

NO HARM FOR BOYS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—More than 25,000 persons, including 2,450 girls and 3,500 boys, were reported missing in New York last year.

So said Captain John H. Ayres, of the Missing Persons Bureau, in an address at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church last night. It's one thing when a boy runs away from home, he said, but a different matter with a girl.

"I have never known of a case where a boy has come to harm through running away from home," he said. "They are usually a self-reliant, self-confident and firm type. The experience often helps them to find themselves.

"It is not so, however, with the girls. Girls who run away from home are oftimes liable to become the victims of designing persons and scalawags. It is dangerous for a girl to cut loose from her home life. I have found that in 99 cases out of 100 it is the fault of the home when a girl goes out on her own."

GANDHI IS RELEASED.

POONA, India, January 26. — Mahatma Gandhi, frail 61-year-old leader of the Indian Nationalists, was released from prison to-night shortly after eleven o'clock.

They took him out the back way secretly, bundled him into a closed automobile with drawn curtains, and driven to a small railway station some miles away.

CROP OF SUGGESTIONS CAUSE CONFUSION IN WHEAT CIRCLES

Government and Pool Delayed With All Kinds of "Cure-alls."

French Government Crash.

By T. W Banton
(Special to the Examiner. Copyright, 1931.)

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—With so much smoke, there must be some fire.

Or, in other words, with such an abundant crop of suggestions and cure-calls for the present ills of the world's wheat markets, there must surely come a harvest of some sort.

If this crop in fact continues to grow at the present rate of growth, it may soon be necessary for the government or governments, or some other even more powerful bodies, to "take steps" with a view to a reduction in the acreage of ink that is at this moment being spread over the face of the earth, threatening such a deluge of ideas, half-baked and otherwise, as has never before been seen in the history of this "ink age."

There are so many proposals and suggestions of one sort or another now before the public and dealing with the wheat question, that there is danger of such bewilderment in the profusion of ideas that the wheat question itself may be lost in the general confusion.

Already this same wheat question is responsible for the crashing of one national government and it is not improbable but that other governments may follow in a general crash before a sort of wheat cyclone.

The French government has this week fallen, under an attempt to fix the price of wheat at two dollars a bushel.

"Why should we pay two dollars a bushel?" asks the French miller, "when wheat is selling in Canada and the United States of America at 50c to 60c a bushel?"

And the answer to that question is that the French government is driven from power.

Take the case of 'our neighbours across the line." They have for some months past practically been holding wheat in their markets at "fixed" prices. As a result of operations on a wide scale, of the N. S. Farm Board, through its auxillary agencies, the "Stabilization Corporation" and similar bodies, what is known as the "old crop months" in the wheat options have been held or pegged" at certain price levels below which "the market" could not go so long as the "corporation" continued to support them at those levels.

So far the American government has not "crashed" as a result of this price fixing under government auspices and by the use, of course, of government money.

Several other things, however, have happened as a result of this price fixing.

One noteable result has been the elimination of United States wheat as a competitor in world's export wheat markets.

Another outstanding result has been that the American wheat grower and producer has been receiving a price for the wheat he has marketed away above the price obtainable in the Liverpool or the world markets.

And still another result, and perhaps the most outstanding of all, has been the practical elimination of speculation in the American wheat markets, at least, so far as those particular "old crop months" are concerned.

A certain but limited amount of speculation has been possible in the "July" or new crop option, but even here the speculation has been almost negligible, since the price at which this July option has somehow or other been "held", perhaps indirectly by the Farm Board has still been higher than Winnipeg, and therefore out of the export market and practically free from speculation.

Whereat, all the alarm and consternation which has been so evident of late among "the trade" and all the old time institutions and organizations which held their very existence and being on the continuance of the system of exploitation and speculation of wheat.

National governments may crash, but if "price fixing to even so small an extent as in the United States, is going to result in the elimination of all speculation in wheat, then, from the point of view of the Canadian Wheat Pool, this is a consummation devoutly to be wished."

FORMER CONSTABLE WILL STAND TRIAL

Interviewed by The Examiner, Chief Constable Samuel Newall stated that up to recently he had always regarded Matthews as one of the most fearless and conscientious officers on the force, who had in the past borne an excellent character.

Meeting is Called

"At an early hour on Saturday," he continued, "I called a meeting of the Police Commission composed of His Honor Judge Huycke, chairman, Police Magistrate Langley and His Worship Mayor Denne for the purpose of dealing with a delinquent officer. Following the inquiry I had a consultation with Crown Attorney McElderry, which resulted in Matthews appearance in Police Court."

Matthews, whose home is at 302 Pearl avenue, joined the City Police Force on December 15th, 1920, just prior to the resignation of Chief Thompson, and since that time had earned for himself an enviable reputation for meritorious service.

In the well-remembered Montgomery Hotel affair, in which David Montgomery shot and killed Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker, on May 3rd, 1928, Matthews with commendable courage tackled the crazed gunman, who fell a victim to Matthews' weapon. At the subsequent inquest into the deaths of the two men, Matthews was exonerated from any blame and was commended by the jury for the courage he had displayed in the execution of his duty. The action of Matthews also met with the approval of Police Chief Newhall, and was praised by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young.

As recently as September 29th, 1930, he was again warmly commended by his Chief, for tackling single-handed and arresting a burglar as he was about to enter the premises occupied by Charles Brewer, automobile dealer.

Coincidentally Matthews apprehension was made on the 35th anniversary of Chief Newhall's entry into the Police service, since which time he has seen the arrest of three fellow officers for breaches of trust, in London, England, in Liverpool, and in this city.

DEATH TOLL DURING WEEK-END CLAIMS MANY OLD-LAND NOTABLES

FAMED HOSTESS.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (By Thos. T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent) —Death was busy over the week-end among well-known persons of two generations.

Outstanding was the death of Lady St. Helier, formerly a member of the London County Council, dame of the British Empire and writer of many essays and of illuminating reminiscences of the Victorian era. She was a famed hostess. Lord St. Helier, her second husband, died 26 years ago. He was known as Sir Francis Jeune until a few months before his death, a sagacious president of the divorce court who, though possessed of considerable official and intellectual gifts, was content to follow his brilliant wife's lead. Her Ladyship was equally notable for her charitable work.

Lord Langford, William Chambre Rowley, the sixth baron, died at the age of 81. Formerly on Lord Roberts' staff in Afghanistan, he had been a member of the Royal Bodyguard from 1899 to 1921.

Lord Kingsdale, Michael Constantine de Courcy, holder of a title that goes back to 1189, Premier Baron of Ireland, died at the age of 75. The historic line will be carried on by Lt.-Col. M. W. R. de Courcy.

Oldest Journalist Succumbs.

Other notable who died over the week-end were:

Sir Knowles Edge, 77, who started life in a Bolton cotton mill, and became Lord Mayor of Bolton and head of a world-wide firm of color and dye manufacturers.

Andrew Laing of Newcastle, one of the greatest of marine engine and ship designers. He designed the engines which gained the Atlantic blue ribbon for the Mauretania for so many years.

Sir Harry Frankland Hepburn, 64, member of Lloyd's and former Sheriff of London.

Henry James Cochrane, aged 102, proprietor of the Cheltenham Chronicle. He was the oldest journalist in England, and probably in the world. Until a few weeks ago he was walking about without any help.

Richard Johnson, former Lord Mayor of Bradford.

Two of the pioneer residents of the city had the pleasure of gathering about them their children and grandchildren from many points of the compass, to celebrate with them the golden anniversary of their wedding, when Mr. and Mrs. Odino LaPlante of 178 Lansdowne Street celebrated on Saturday the fiftieth cycle in their married life. In the house from which they were married, half a century ago, then occupied by the father of Mr. LaPlante, and now the residence of their son, Edward, at 164 Lake Street, Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante sat down to a celebration dinner attended by fifty-eight guests, all members of their immediate families, including their eight children and their families. The Saturday celebration opened with a Solemn High Mass celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart by the pastor, the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, assisted by the Rev. C. Moloney and the Rev. P. Butler of Kinmount. The Rev. Father O'Brien spoke of the fidelity to their Church and its obligations which has characterized the lives of Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, of the manner in which their children and grandchildren are carrying on, by assistance in the choir and on the altar, the traditions of their forbears, and of the obedience and consideration to their parents manifested by the large attendance at this celebration, when their children and grandchildren came from many distant points to be present at the anniversary. The days of the patriarchs, said the reverend pastor, are not yet dead. History repeats itself when such celebrations as this bring to mind the patriarchal days of old, when the family was the center of community life. A pleasant feature of the religious celebration was the presence on the altar, as assistants, of six of the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante. Gordon, son of Mr. Edward LaPlante, acted as Master of Ceremonies; his brother Gerard assisted as an altar boy, also Roger, son of Mr. Joseph LaPlante of Iroquois Falls, and Raphael, Dorian and Vernon, sons of Mr. Herman LaPlante of Romaine Street. Another grandchild, Aileen, sang in the choir, while her mother, Mrs. Herman LaPlante a daughter-in-law, sang Roswig's "Ave Maria" during the progress of the Mass. At the sumptuous dinner which followed the Mass, served at the home of Mr. Edward LaPlante on Lake Street, and dignified by the presence of the three priests, fifty-eight relatives of the host and hostess were present, including the members of the families of their eight sons and daughters: Mr. Edward LaPlante of Peterborough, Mr. Joseph LaPlante of Iroquois Falls, Mr. Herman LaPlante of Peterborough, Mr. Henry LaPlante of Toronto, Mr. Thomas LaPlante of Iroquois Falls, Mrs. Fred Rishea of Toronto, Mrs. Caverley of Buffalo, N.Y., and Miss Armene LaPlante at home. The decorations and appointments of the table were carried out in gold, making a very brilliant and attractive effect. The china and glass were decorated in gold, as was the cake and the large basket of golden flowers: daffodils, soleil d'or and Tulips, which represented the gift of the grandchildren, presented by Aileen LaPlante, accompanied by an address in English read by Gordon LaPlante. The present from the children was a purse of gold, given by Mr. Tom LaPlante of Iroquois Falls, and accompanied by an address in French, read by Mrs. Joseph LaPlante of the Falls. During the repast, brief speeches were made by the three visiting priests, also by Mr. Edward and Mr. Joseph LaPlante. In the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante received a large number of their friends at their own home at 178 Lansdowne Street, when many handsome gifts, all combining gold in some form, were received. Tea was poured by Mrs. Henry LaPlante of Toronto, assisted by Mrs. Caverley of Buffalo, Miss Armene LaPlante and Aileen LaPlante. During the evening hours, many people came in to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante and wish them a continuance of good health and happiness.

There is a fashion to-day for keeping pins out of sight on a dressing table! I wonder how many of you follow this fashion?

• • • • • • •

They have long-since lost that novelty of newness which gave them glamor when pins were so scarce and expensive that it almost bespoke wealth to have more than one or two.

• • • • • • •

It is difficult for those of this era to appreciate that there was a time when pins as we know them, did not exist. The commonplace pin is now relegated to obscurity on most dressing tables, although their necessity makes it imperative that they be handy.

• • • • • • •

There are various ways of hiding pins and yet having them at one's command.

• • • • • • •

There are exquisite boxes of gold and silver, enamel and glass, that adorn bureaus, and in any one of these pins may be discovered if one is in need of the commodity.

• • • • • • •

Then, too, there are all sorts of dainty French frivolities in the way of pin cushions that deftly conceal their purpose of sheltering pins.

• • • • • • •

One of these fascinating frivolities is a wee doll with full flounced and beruffled skirt that spreads voluminously over the pin cushion.

• • • • • • •

And it is something any woman who it at all handy with her needle can make. I am going to tell you how to do it.

• • • • • • •

The materials needed are a porcelain doll's head and body to the waist, and dolls legs with shoes on them. These doll portions are obtainable at art embroidery departments of stores and at embroidery shops.

• • • • • • •

Or, if you have any difficulty in finding what you like, buy a small fancy doll at a toy shop. This will give you legs and arms as the body to the waist. The arms come on the French frivolity doll portions as described.

• • • • • • •

Cut a circle of cardboard and cover it with a silk, or rayon textile. Sew a straight piece of the textile around the edge and stuff the container with wool, hair or absorbent cotton.

• • • • • • •

Draw the top of the straight strip together and you will have a pin cushion. Sew the doll's waistline to this top. Make a full skirt of the textile and sew three ruffles of the same material onto it to form a tiered ruffled skirt.

• • • • • • •

Sew the legs to the skirt foundation so that the dainty shoes peep from beneath close together and so placed that they are properly positioned in relation to the doll's body.

• • • • • • •

Stick plenty of pins of different sizes into the cushion and the doll is ready to stand, or appear to sit, on the dressing table. If a regulation doll is used, a waist will have to be made as well as a skirt.

• • • • • • •

Do not have a doll that will require a skirt more than four inches long.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

PYORRHOEA MAY CAUSE SERIOUS TROUBLE.

I often wonder why physicians and dentists do not talk more about pyorrhœa when we think of all the damage it can do to the system. The danger from infected teeth and dead teeth has been so well established that it seems almost unnecessary to even mention it. Dr. Mayo, the renowned surgeon, and Dr. Weston Price, the great dental authority, both tell us that infected teeth and dead teeth are a terrible menace to health and life itself.

And yet pyorrhœa is a pus condition, as its name implies, due to changes in the tissues surrounding the teeth.

The causes are due to neglect of the teeth, to faulty diet, and also to the fact that the lower teeth do not meet the upper teeth evenly, and there is thus some jarring at the roots of the teeth.

There is a collection of organisms and pus between the tooth and the tissue that forms the tooth socket. This infection can get carried to other parts of the body by means of the blood-vessels just as with the infection from abscessed or dead teeth.

That is the reason that physicians should be thinking more about pyorrhœa and its general effect upon the body.

The beginning of pyorrhœa is usually in the form of deposits of lime at the margin of tooth and gum, and this tartar," "calcar," or other names by which it is called, must be removed. It is formed by the hardening of sticky saliva — the mouth digestive juice — when the food eaten contains too much acid. Food particles lodge in and around these deposits and ferment, with a consequent increase in organisms. The pressure of these hard deposits on the lining of the surrounding tissues opens up the blood-vessels; inflammation starts around the margins of the teeth and forms pus-pockets.

If it is not removed the gum margin gradually disappears, together with the bony socket, and the teeth become loose. Dr. Allen Griffith, Chicago, tells us that where one third of the bony socket is left most teeth can still be saved; and one tooth is worth many artificial ones.

So don't neglect pyorrhœa. Get the tartar removed, and keep the gums healthy by frequent brushing. Cut down on your starchy foods, and get a little more lime into the system by the use of cod liver oil.

Elaine And Her Ideas From Paris

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

WHAT UNCLE WIGGILY FOUND

Once upon a time when Uncle Wiggily was hopping around in the woods looking for an adventure, he saw something moving back of a stump that stuck up out of the snow. For it was winter, and there was snow on the ground.

"Oh!" said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he jumped behind a tree after seeing something move back of the stump. "Oh, ho! I had better be careful! It may be the Bob Cat, and he will be extra angry at me because my tree pussy scratched and bit him last night."

This was when the Bob Cat, as I told you in the story before this, thrust his paw through the hole in Uncle Wiggily's kitchen door, hoping to unlock it and let two other Bad Chaps in.

So, hiding behind the tree, Uncle Wiggily looked again toward the stump sticking out of the snow which had newly fallen in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains where the rabbit gentleman lived. He saw something like fur moving.

We were looking for hickorynuts.

"Perhaps that is Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy trying to play tricks on me," thought Uncle Wiggily. "If it is I'll play a joke on her!"

Nibbling off a bit of bark, Uncle Wiggily tossed it across the snow to the stump. As the bark fell into the snow two little boy animals popped out from behind the stump, and then Uncle Wiggilly laughed.

The rabbit gentleman laughed because he was not at all afraid of those two animal boys. He knew them. One was Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel, and the other was his brother Billie.

"Hello, Bushytails!" called Uncle Wiggily. "What are you doing out here in the woods? Are you playing tag around a stump?"

"Oh, no, Uncle Wiggily," chattered Johnnie, that being his way of talking. "We weren't exactly playing tag."

"Did it look as if we were?" asked Billie, also chattering.

"Yes, indeed it did," answered Uncle Wiggily. "If it wasn't tag what was it you were playing?"

"We weren't playing at all," said Johnnie. "We were looking for something good to eat."

"We're hungry!" added Billie.

Well," chuckled Uncle Wiggily, "do you like snowballs best or icicles? I see plenty of them all about, but nothing else to eat."

"Oh, we don't eat icicles or snowballs!" chattered Johnnie.

"We were looking for some nice hickory nuts we hid out here in the fall before there was any snow," added Billie.

"Oh, so you are looking for hickory nuts, are you?" asked the rabbit gentleman in surprise. "Well, it seems th be a very silly thing to do to hide nuts so that if snow comes you can't find them again."

"Yes, we were silly," Johnnie answered. "In the fall, when there were plenty of nuts—more than we could eat—Billie and I dug holes and put the nuts in, covering them so no one else would find them."

'Could you find them again when you wanted them?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, yes!" chattered both squirrel boys and Billie added:

"We just scampered over the ground and sniffed and smelled and when we smelled a nut, under the dirt, we dug until we got it up and then we gnawed off the shell and ate the meat."

"But we left the nuts in the ground too long," said Johnnie. "And now, when the snow is so deep, we can't smell to find out where they are. If the snow wasn't so deep maybe we could smell; cloudn't we, Bill?"

"Sure," answered Billie. "That's why we were skipping around, Uncle Wiggilly, trying to find the nuts we hid when there was no cnow."

"Um," said the rabbit gentleman, thoughtful like. "It looked like a game of tag. But I wish I could help you squirrels find the nuts."

Do you think you could make the snow go away?" asked Billie.

"Well, I might try," Mr. Longears answered, smiling.

"Oh, how can Uncle Wiggily make the snow go away?" asked Johnnie.

"I think I can do it with a bit of a bonefire," answered the rabbit gentleman. "I wouldn't let you boys have matches, but as long as I am here it will be all right to make a fire. In this hollow stump are some dried leaves. Pull them out and pile them on the snow over the place where you think you hid the nuts in the fall."

The squirrel boys quickly made a pile of leaves. Uncle Wiggily set them on fire. The fire was blazing hot. It soon melted the snow and when the bare ground was cool and dry Uncle Wiggilly looked and found some of the nuts the squirrel boys had hidden some time ago. Billie and Johnnie, with their sharp claws, dug up more nuts and then they had a fine feast. For the fire had toasted some of the nuts giving them a sweet flavor.

"You are a good finder of lost nuts, Uncle Wiggily!" chattered Billie and Johnnie as they scampered home.

MANY PLEASING NUMBERS ARE PRESENTED AT MUSICAL RECITAL

Vocal and Piano Pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade Give Concert in Mark Street Church Auditorium.

ASSISTING ARTIST.

A very pleasing program was presented in the auditorium of Mark Street United Church Friday evening by the pupils assisted by the senior vocal piano pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, assisted by Mrs. Maye Rodney Ford of Toronto. A large audience was present and listened with great appreciation to the interesting and varied program, which consisted of classical number, lightened by selections of a popular type.

Of the vocal pupils Miss Lily Ellis has a sweet clear voice, showing promise, while Clifford Cruickshanks charmed the audience with his rendition of "The Holy City". Miss Geraldine Campbell in a rich mezzo soprano voice, showing a high degree of splendid training sang "Times Roses" which captivated the audience. Miss Ena Young's selection "Sunshine and Butterflys" was a very popular number. Her voice is light and airy and her clear lilting high notes very beautiful. Mrs. Mendell Braud, one of the outstanding singers was greatly applauded.

In her first number "Flutes of Spring" was imbued with the freshness of the vernal springtime while her second selection was superb. The second number Recit, and God said, Aria with verdure clad from Handel Creation.

Marked Ability

The piano pupils all showed marked ability and careful attention to technique, playing in almost every case the difficult selections from memory. Hudson Hall's work was perfect and he played with ease and expression. Miss Freda Kilchir's selection of the intermediate work was very lengthy and was played evenly, smoothly and triumphantly through the difficult and exacting composition.

Bob Maybee's selection showed his artistic and musical ability to interpret music and to impress his feelings on the audience. Jack Cuff's (one of the senior pupils) playing is outstanding.

Pleasing Numbers

Mrs. Maye Rodney Ford of Toronto, a post graduate of Chicago school of Art and Elocution made a very fine impression on her hearers by her dramatic ability and her splendid power of memory. She excelled in her selections of Negro dialect "Mama's Li Boy" won the hearts of her audience. Her most ambitious number, "Idyle of the Period" in three acts, made a fine impression. Possessed of a flexible vibrant voice, she made her characters very real and her ability in acting and memory made it quite possible to see the different people. Her numbers were varied from extreme pathos to humor and showed a high degress of imaginative power and dramatic ability.

The last number on the program was a "Pageant" entitled the seasons when "Miss New Year" dressed in white, adorned with tinsel and wearing a bright glittering head-dress, 1931 came forward, introducing the seasons. This part was taken by Miss Evelyn Miller whose work is well known. Miss Ena Young followed as Winter with her skates and bells. Miss Jean Hurl in green was Spring with a profusion of spring flowers. Miss Bertha Binks as Summer with her roses and pretty summer costume, singing to her flowers and Miss Geraldine Campbell as Autumn in brown tints with her basket of fruit and ripened grain, sang of her favorite season. Mrs. Greenslade played the accompaniments for her pupils and announced the numbers on the program.

Rev Thornly presided and led in prayer after which he briefly referred to the evening's program. Before the last number Mrs. Ford was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by Doreen Braund. Following the recital, a sumptuous banquet was tendered to those taking part in the program by the choir of Mark St. Church. Mrs. Greenslade in a few remarks moved a hearty vote of thanks which was responded to by Mr. Pomeroy, president of the choir.

The following is the program:

CROWDS GATHER TO SEE GANDHI GIVEN FREEDOM

Nationalists' Idol Indicates He Will Go to Bombay When Freed.

TROOPS HELD READY.

Mahatma Silent Regarding Viceroy's Decree of Liberty For Fellow Officials.

POONA, India, Jan. 26.—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, awaiting release from his prison quarter at Yeroda here, this afternoon signified to prison authorities that he would go to Bombay as soon as granted his liberty.

The "Holy One" was spending his day of silence and refused to utter a word when asked in writing where he wished to proceed, but taking a slip of paper write on it in English, "Bombay."

Police and troops were in readiness here to prevent any demonstration when the prison's gates should be opened wide to release the man who has led the Nationalists in their campaign of civil disobedience to secure Indian independence.

His decision to make Bombay his destination when leaving the prison aroused considerably anxiety among authorities, who feared demonstrations with possible bloodshed and rioting when he reached the city, where his popularity is a kind of worship.

Has Nothing to Say

Gandhi, mute, had nothing to write about the decree of the Viceroy granting him and his fellows on the working committee of the All India Nationalist Congress, Nationalist organization, their freedom.

It is presumed that they will get together at the first opportunity and make their decision or rejection or acceptance of the British offers of qualified Dominion status for India as expressed by Prime Minister MacDonald in closing the Round Table Conference in London last week.

The Mahatma spent to-day in prison at his miniature spinning wheel. He observes his period of silence every Monday as a sort of "tonic and rest for his soul."

At 3 p.m., there was no indication of his release. Crowds of his admirers, hearing that his departure from prison was imminent, had gathered outside its gates and sat patiently on their haunches in the scorching sun in the hope that their hero and idol would emerge after his eight months of incarceration.

RECTOR BREAKS NEWS OF DEATH

Lunenburg Captain on Last Trip Before Giving Up Rum Running.

WIFE IS STUNNED.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Jan. 26 (C.P.).—An Anglican rector who six years ago united in marriage a 22-year-old seaman with a daughter of Lunenburg's sea-going breed, yesterday walked to their family home to break the news of that union's severence by a shot from the United States coastguard patrol. The tidings were carried by Major the Rev. W. E. Ryder, rector of St. John's Church, to which William and June Cluett belonged, and whose watch-night service on Christmas Eve they attended, the last occasion on which the captain had visited his home.

Stunned silence and then quiet tears were the tribute of June Cluett as she learned of her husband's death. In a few weeks she will become the mother of their third child. With here were their two small sons, five and three years old, whom she was preparing for the morning Sunday school service when the rector arrived. Sea-wives are not demonstrative when the sea takes toll. William Cluett's life had not been forfeited to the sea. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Eseon Selig, wept uncontrollably as she learned of what took place off Ambrose Light when the coastguard surprised the Josephine K.

On Last Trip.

Captain Cluett was on his last trip as a liquor-runner, after three years as captain of the Josephine K., without previous contact with the coastguard. During his Christmas visit, he had expressed himself to Major Rev. Ryder as dissatisfied with the game, and ready to get out of it. Though still in his twenties, he had made an enviable reputation as a sound seaman, and for some years, after coming here from Baloran, Newfoundland, his birthplace, had followed the coastal trade. Steady, reliable, of consistent good habits, he was just beginning to reach fairly comfortable circumstances.

A brother of the dead captain was engineer on the Josephine K., and another brother, Bronson, lived here, but is now at sea on a fishing trip. His mother and several other members of the family still live at Baloran, Newfoundland.

Arrangements have been made to have the body brought to Nova Scotia for burial.

LIVED ON SALMON FOR TWO MONTHS

Miss Joan Graham Describes Teaching Experience on Labrador Coast.

HAZARDOUS LIFE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Living on a daily diet of salmon and potatoes, unadorned by such vitamins as milk, fruit or green vegetables, in a colony consisting of two families the mothers of which were sisters, teaching the children not only the three R's but also how to play with a ball and the art of singing, also doing pioneer work in introducing applause, was the experience of Miss Jean Graham during the past summer.

Miss Graham, who addressed the Nolan-Cornell Chapter, I.O.D.E., described her volunteer teaching experience at the tiny spot on the Canadian Labrador coast called Rocky Bay. The Quebec Provincial Chapter makes a grant towards the travelling expenses of teachers doing volunteer educational work in Labrador.

During the two months she was at Rocky Bay, Miss Graham received mail from home only twice, for there is no mail boat service. The two families, with one of which she stayed, consisted of twelve persons, six children composing her educational establishment, classes of which were held in one of the homes. None of these youngsters had ever been to school, and only one could read a little. There was, of course, no equipment, Miss Graham remarked, and pupils sat around a home-made table for lessons, one little girl having the special distinction of using the family sewing machine as a desk.

Games were an entirely new idea to the children, and the ground did not lend itself to sports, being rocky and lacking level places. However, Miss Graham had taken a ball with her and she taught the children to play with it. Prior to her coming they had never sung, yet to such good purpose did they absorb her teaching of songs that a concert was given to wind up the the school season, with music and recitation. It was on this occasion that the colony learned what applause was, registering some astonishment when Miss Graham clapped her hands after the various numbers on the programme.

Salmon fishing is the only industry at this spot, which is at the mouth of a river, although cod is the usual product of the Labrador coast. No farming of any kind is possible because the territory is all rock, said Miss Graham.

Price of Farm Produce Takes Big Drop During Past 12 Months, Statistics Show

A dollar is worth much more to-day than it was a year ago. This is noticeable in all purchasing, and housewives have been getting the benefit of the sliding off in prices to meet economic conditions at the local Saturday markets.

In all lines of farmers produce the drop is evident. On butter shoppers on the market on Saturday saved twelve to fifteen cents a pound over the price they paid a year ago. Last year butter was quoted at 42 and 45 cents a pound, while on Saturday it sold at 30 cents. Eggs, too, show a big drop, their price to-day being 30 to 35 cents a dozen as compared with 50 cents a year ago. Chickens a year ago were 25 and 30 cents a pound, and on Saturday could be had for 20 and 25 cents.

Meats, too, show a big decrease that is causing joy to thrifty buyers. Pork on Saturday was 16 and 18 cents a pound, and a year ago 20 and 22 cents. Beef showed a drop from the 16 to 18 cents of a year ago to 11, 12, 13 and 14 cents. Lamb was down from 27 to 30 cents to 18 and 20 cents.

SAMUEL DEPICTS PLIGHT OF GOV'T

Sir Herbert Claims MacDonald's Reign is Uncertain—Future Obscure.

LIBERALS DIVIDED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (CP)—In a resume of Great Britain's political situation Sir Herbert Samuel, Postmaster-General and later Secretary of State for Home Affairs in the Asquith Liberal Government from 1910 to 1916, speaking over the radio from London characterized the British legislative body as "the precarious parliament."

After asserting that the Liberals hold the balance of power in the present parliament, Sir Herbert said of the MacDonald Government:

"Its life is held on no secure tenure. It passed from crisis to crisis. The Government has not yet been defeated in the House of Commons on any grave issue involving resignation. But its fortune is uncertain, and immediate future is obscure."

The Liberals, said Sir Herbert, are determined to avoid a general election, until the bill for the reforming of the franchise has been passed, although a faction of the Liberals, led by Sir John Simon, has come out in opposition to the Labor Government on the Trades Disputes Bill issue. Sir Hrbert said he did not think more than a majority of his party would support the Simon program.

Campbellford Sextet Subdues H.C. Juniors 6-5

HOME TOWNERS COP VICTORY IN OVERTIME

Millers Come From Behind to Overcome 2 Goal Lead of Petes in First Period.

SOME GOOD COMBINATION.

Jack Cowell Handles Bell, Handing Out Seven Penalties For Minor Offences.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Campbellford, after a startling defeat of the Havelock Combines on Thursday night, added another upset to the District Junior O.H.A. sweepstakes by defeating the Peterborough Hockey Club here on Saturday afternoon 6 to 5 in ten minutes' overtime. The victory was all the sweeter to the Mill Town youngsters because they came from behind to tie the score, and then in an extra flurry, banged in the winning counter.

Coming up against a squad of fast and exacting players, the Millers led them a merry dance despite the two-goal lead in the first period. This the visitors kept in the second round of the play, with four goals counted in all. The last period, however, the Maroons lobbed in three counters in succession and it looked like a win for them before the final gong and would no doubt have been but for the fact that Busch was fenced for throwing the puck over the boards, weakening the Millers' forward line and enabling Wood to collect the evening tally two minutes before the gong sounded.

The game was fast and clean, each team fighting hard for a lead. Peterborough featured some pretty combination, playing team work up to the mouth of their opponents' net. Their defence, however, was very weak, throwing much of the work on Foley, who played a splendid game in the nets, and stopped some difficult shots. They seem to feature long shots, especially Wood, but this sort of thing did not worry Heptonstall in the Millers' nets, who played up to his usual fine form, and assisted by the entertainers' defence, which was strong, kept the count down and checked some determined forward drives by the Peterborough boys.

Campbellford was on the ice to stay, their forward line working well together, specializing a little too much, however, at times in lone play. This proved to their disadvantage at times, several nice opportunities being missed to score. Jack Cowell of Campbellford handled the bell and did well on the job. Only seven penalties were registered during the game, all for minor offences. Checking was heavy, especially in the last period, when the game looked like going to either team, but despite this fact there was no rough play. In all, a good game of hockey for the fans.

The first period opened with Lambert getting possession of the puck and lamming the visitors' net. This did not suit Dallin, who drove forward, only to be heavily checked; McCullough returned to the fray however, but Hendy was too quick and broke through with the rubber and made a good try to tally, but was repulsed. The game then developed into forward rushes by both teams; Epps, Dallin and Meagher playing pretty combination and creating several scrimmages in front of Millers' nets. The Maroons, however, were on the job, the forward line of Hendy, Stokes and Busch playing splendidly together and having many hard breaks from counting. They found the visitors' defence, however, easy to pass, there seeming to be a lack of combination between Wood and McCullough, each man playing too much forward and laying their net open to attack. Lambert, for the Millers, played up well, starring with his rushes from the defense position, and working well with the forward line whenever he got the opportunity to drive the play into the visitors' house. Hendy was fenced during the last five minutes for tripping, three minutes after which Tuck, for the H.C., placed a pretty back-hander in the net, drawing first blood for the visitors. Forty-five seconds later, from the face-off, McCullough counted again on a pass from Tuck, the play ending in centre ice.

The second period started off with Peterborough taking the offensive, appearing determined to pile up an impassible lead. The entertainers, however, were on to their job. With Lambert now on the right wing and Holmes at the defense position, prospects seem to change. Breaking through the visitors' forwards, the Millers played to even the count but for some time found that they were up against a tough proposition. Holmes was boxed twice for tripping while McCollough cooled his heels on the fence for the same reason. The first counter was made for Peterborough when McCullough took the puck up from the net and placed a neat tally in the Campbellford front door from centre ice. This did not suit the Maroons, however, for two minutes after, Lambert netted a counter from a rebound from Busch, coming back one and a half minutes later with another counter, this time on a pass from Busch. Two minutes before the close of play Dallin netted another counter on a pass from Wood, making the score 4—2 in the visitors' favor.

Play Opens Fast

In the last period the play became more than fast, heavy checking started, with the result that Hendy was fenced soon after play opened, giving the visitors a chance to break through, but they failed to make a count. Coming out of the box, Hendy made a tally from an assist from Stokes. From the face-off, Wood got fenced for tripping, Busch ringing another counter when the defence was weakened. This seemed too much for the visitors, and forward drives started, heavy play being staged in the Miller's area, but to no avail. Three minutes to go, Lambert counted the fifth tally for the Maroons, and with a lead of one against them Peterborough put every ounce of beef they had into making another tally. It looked as if they were licked, however, until Busch was fenced for throwing the puck over the boards just when the Millers had the visitors tucked away nicely in their own area, and Wood broke through, ringing the tieing counter. Two minutes to go and Campbellford went on the defensive with the play in their own defensive area, but the H. C. were unable to count again.

In the overtime period, the Hometowners scored the winning goal to hand the H. C. Juniors a 6—5 setback.

The teams:—

Peterborough H. C.—Goal, Foley; defense, Wood and McCullough; center, Epps; wings, Dallin and Meagher; subs, Tuck, Thirnbeck and Jones.

Campbellford: Goal, Heptonstall; defense, Lambert and Wilks; center, Hendy; wings, Stokes and Busch; subs, Cubitt and Holmes.

Referee, Jack Cowall, Campbellford.

MARMORA

A dance was put on in the Town Hall, Marmora, by the young people of Marmora on Friday evening. Tommy Mason's Commodores supplied music for both round and square dancing.

Born—On Wednesday, January 21, to Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Lynch, a daughter.

A card party was held at the home of Mrs. E. Flynn on Friday evening in honor of her birthday.

A football game with brooms was played on the Deloro rink on Thursday evening between teams of nine players. Much amusement was provided and the scoreless draw suggests goal-getting was rendered almost an impossibility.

P.C.I. Basketballers Win Opening Tilt

LINDSAY "FIVE" LOSE OUT 24-12

Smooth Working Combination on Part of Garnet and Grey Accounts For Interscholastic Victory.

NO INDIVIDUAL STARS.

By a twelve point margin, the Peterborough Collegiate basketball squad defeated a fast moving Lindsay Collegiate quintette in the opening game of the Central Ontario Basketball Association in the northern town Saturday afternoon. The count was 24-12.

The Lindsay crew were fresh from their victory over Uxbridge the previous week and had high hopes of putting the skids under Coach Cumming's protegees but were rather badly disappointed when the Garnet and Grey team displayed a smooth working combination of Armstrong, Macdonald and Ward and a defence that the opposition were unable to penetrate with any success.

No Individual Stars

There were no individual stars on the P.C.I. line-up, the entire team played together to work the ball under the basket and then a quick pass out to the centre and a basket was inevitable.

However a major part of the credit should go to the defence where Stanger and Reynolds were on guard. The boys presented a veritable stone wall and Reynolds in particular stood out giving a wonderful display of checking.

Vern Armstrong lead the scorers, bagging five baskets which were all clever assists from the other forwards.

Howie Macdonald had little difficulty giving his team the tip off and looked good, especially in his passing, being credited with several assists on baskets scored.

Starting the second half, the regular front line took a rest and Armstrong, Wolstenholme and Chesler went out to battle the home team.

It was here that Lindsay began their charge and worked hard to turn the tide in their favor. The smooth passing game that featured the P.C.I. attack earlier in the contest was missing, the Petes being content to work the ball up the floor themselves but Johnson and Michael on the Lindsay defence made a fine defensive effort.

The visitors however staved off the attack but were forced to be content with 6 points for the half.

Smith Also Stars

For the losers, Smith was easily the pick of the squad and acounted for 8 of his team's markers. He played a clever game on the front line and teaming up with McLean and Sutton, made many dangerous sallies through the Petes territory.

The Play

Play opened at a fast clip and Macdonald, Armstrong and Ward made many dangerous rushes at the Lindsay citadel and the game was only three minutes old when Art Ward worked in close to take a pass from Macdonald for the first score of the game. Two minutes later Macdonald received a pass from Armstrong to bag the Petes second basket. The homesters began to take a hand in affairs at this juncture and Smith scored on a shot from the defense line.

The Petes came back strongly Armstrong combination gave the latter the opportunity to sift through for an easy tally, and a minute later Art Ward scored a nice shot bringing his team's total to 10.

The Scugogville team called a rest but when play was resumed Macdonald carried the ball to the corner and passed nicely to Armstrong in front of the basket for another marker.

In a fast exchange of ball tossing Smith scored for the home team on a pass from Sutton. McLean received a free toss on Macdonald's foul and scored a single.

Armstrong Scores

P.C.I. scored again as the period ended, Armstrong scoring on a pass from Stanger.

Starting the second half, Chesler scored a quick basket to lengthen the P.C.I. lead, but Lindsay retaliated with field baskets by Smith and Sutton.

The Scugogville team's trouble was basket-tossing inaccuracy and many scoring chances were lost by their inability to grasp the scoring opportunities, Sutton in particular, missing the open basket on more than one occasion.

Wolstenholme and Chesler combined nicely, the former scoring and a minute later Smith retaliated with a single on Kelley's foul and the home team pressed strongly for several minutes.

Wib Ward, Macdonald and Stanger relieved the pressure somewhat with several dangerous sallies and Ward was awarded with a basket, the final field goal of the day.

Singles were scored by Wolstenholme and Ward on Lindsay fouls and the Garnet and Grey stormed the opposition stronghold with a vengeance but Lindsay held firmly, not allowing any further scoring till the final whistle.

The Teams

Lindsay—Forwards, McLean and Smith; centre, Sutton; defence, Johnston and Michael; alternates, Meehan, O'Connell, Marley and White.

Peterborough C.I.—Forwards, Armstrong and A. Ward; centre, Macdonald; defence, Stanger and Reynolds; alternates, W. Ward, Wolstenholme, Chesler and Kelly.

Referee—L. Ecobichon.

CANUCKS HUMBLE AMERKS.

Stewart Scores Winning Counter as Maroons Call Halt to Chicago's Streak.

TORONTO, Ont. Jan. 26. — (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer.)—Scoring a 1 to 0 victory over the New York Rangers, Detroit Falcons secure undisputed possession of third place in the American group to mark the only change in the status of teams in the National Hockey League following the week-end's five game program.

Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons secured firmer grips on their play-off berths in the Canadian section, while Boston Bruins strengthened their hold on first place in the junior division by defeating the tail-end Philadelphia Quakers, 4 to 2.

After three close games with the amazing Amers, Montreal's flying Frenchmen smothered the star-spangled hockeyists under a 6 to 1 trouncing and thus maintained their two game lead over the Leafs. The latter thoroughly vanquished the perennial Ottawa "jinx" by handing the Senators a clean-cut 5 to 2 shellacking. The Leafs failed to gain ground, however, as the Maroons maintained their season's unblemished record against Chicago by nosing out the Blackhawks, 3 to 2, after 10 minutes' overtime. It was the first defeat for the Windy City squad in their last seven starts.

It is an old saying that if Canadiens notch the first counter in games on their home ice they are unbeatable. Little Johnny Gagnon gave them this advantage against the Americans by scoring on Pete Lepine's pass less than a minute after the start. From then on it was just a matter of time before the American defence wilted under the speery trusts of the Habitants.

Gus Rivers, the Montreal's pinch hitting recruit from Winnipeg, allied a pass from Marty Burke, halfway through the second frame and "Battleship" Leduc cruised through for another less than a minute later.

The veteran Joe Simpson gave the New Yorkers a little bit of hope early in the last 20 minutes when he snared Johnny Sheppard's pass to break his team's goose egg. Three pretty goals, two from the stick of Howie Morenz, Canadian group scoring ace, completed the rout of Eddie Gerard's pupils. Art Lessuier, defenceman recruited from the Canadian-American League, sandwiched Morenz' brace of tallies with his first major league marker.

Although minus their leading marksman, "Ace" Bailey, on the sidelines through an injured shoulder, the Leafs went about chasing the Senator jinx in a businesslike fashion. Leaving the ice deadlocked one-all by virtue of goals netted by Hal Cotton for the Leafs and Hec Kilrea for the Ottawans, the Leafs took the lead in the second frame when "Chuck" Conacher burned a shot past Alex Connel on a pass from "Hap" Day.

Joe Primeau, Harvey Jackson and Conacher, all members of the Leafs' "kid" line, clinched the verdict in the final session by scoring a goal apiece. Alex Smith accepted Kilrea's pass to notch the Senators' second tally.

Maroons secured a two-goal lead in the first 20 minutes against Chicago, but the speedy Hawks, playing before some 15,000 supporters, rallied strongly in the third frame to knot the count. Dave Trottier and Hooley Smith gave the Munromen what appeared a safe lead, but two smart combination thrusts with Tommy Cook and Miller on the finish end, saw the advantage vanish.

Scores Winning Goal

Nels Stewart, pivot of the "Three Musketeers," came through with the winning shot in the closing minutes of the overtime.

A long shot by Carson Cooper gave the Falcons their first victory over a New York team in their last eight games at Madison Square Garden. The Detroiters never can seem to get going in the Manhattan Arena and against the Rangers they elected to play a tight defensive game which proved successful.

The Falcons peppered the Ranger goalkeeper with long shots throughout, while the Blue-shirted hockeyists attempted to work through the Detroit defence for close-in shots, but they were not very successful. The final session was more than half over when the "shovel-shot" expert lifted the puck from the Ranger blue line and it found a resting place behind the surprised Johnny Roach for the solitary goal.

The victory placed the Falcons two points in the van of the Gothamites in their private feud for third place honors. The Detroiters also have a game in hand.

Led by their great defence player, Eddie Shore, the Bruins breezed through 60 minutes of mediocre hockey to victory over the Quakers. Shore registered the first Bruin tally in the opening frame and then put his team two in the lead soon after the second session had commenced. McCalmon then scored for the Quakers but Conney Weiland nullified that goal by scoring on a pass from Dit Clapper.

Harry Oliver increased the Boston margin in the last period before the tail-enders chalked up their second marker through Jerry Lowery.

JUNIOR LEAGUE OPENS TUESDAY

Double-header Will Feature Opening Program—Will Run Two Games a Week.

GAMES START 7.15.

To-morrow night at Brock street rink the Junior City League gets away with a double-header. Owing to a late start, the league will run its games off twice a week with two games a night. The first and second teams will play a series of two out of three games the last week in February for the city championship. There are no senior teams entered this year, and all junior players must be under twenty by the first of January, 1931.

The three junior teams have the pick of the city in players, and fans are assured of first-class hockey. The City League has cradled most of the local O.H.A. players, and the least that lovers of Canada's pastime can do is turn out and help support them.

The opening game on Tuesday will feature the Star Athletic Club Juniors and the C.G.E. Office. This game will start at 7.15, and as soon as he ice can be cleaned, the second game will begin. Johnson's Sea-horses will tangle with Stars in this fixture.

MACHINE SHOP NO. 2 TEAM RECEIVES 4-1 SETBACK AT HANDS OF THE PRESS CREW

Heavy Checking Results in Little Combination Play For Both Teams.

ARMATURE IN 2-ALL TIE.

Brass Department Continues Winning Streak By Taking 3-1 Decision From Fractional Motors.

A group winner was declared on Saturday last in Group 3 of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League when the Punch Press defeated the Machine Shop No. 2 team 4 to 1 in a close-checking combat on perfect ice.

The other two games also produced plenty of sparkling hockey. The Brass Department continued their winning streak by taking a game from the Fractional Motors outfit 3 to 1, while the Armature Winders and Office No. 2 team battled to a 4-all tie in the last event of the day.

In the Machine Shop-Punch Press affair, the close checking style of play adopted by both forward lines made good combination playing practically impossible, and during the greater part of the game the rushes were conducted by individual players. The first goal was scored when Rogers for the Press team hurled a shot at Sanderson from a tangle of players just inside the Machinists' blue-line and the puck hit the latter's skate and glanced into the net.

Superior Around Nets.

The winners showed a finished style of playing around both nets, while in this department the Machinists fell down badly, failing to cover up when play centered around their own citadel.

Murphy, on right wing for the Punch Press, scored two of the four goals unassisted, on both occasions drilling waist high shots from well out which found the corner of the net.

Ridley, Clarke and Mowry were the most effective for the Machinists and Sanderson in goal played nice hockey. Black, in the Punch Press net, finished the regular schedule having only one goal scored against him. The teams:—

Machine Shop.—Goal, Sanderson; defence, McGillen and Marchen; centre, Ridley; wings, Mowry and Hearst; alternates, Reynolds, Hardie and Roseborough.

Punch Press.—Goal, Black; defence, Ashmore and Darling; centre, Grierson; wings, Fee and Murphy; alternates, Howarth, Trotter, Rogers and Pilling.

Summary:

First Period:—
Punch Press, Rogers 4.00
Second Period:—
Punch Press, Murphy 6.00
Machine Shop, Ridley (Clarke). 8.00
Third Period:—
Punch Press, Murphy 5.00
Punch Press, Howarth 9.00
Penalties. — Fee, Hearst, Ridley, Howarth.
Referee—O. Kenneally.

Continue Win Streak

The Brass Department Bruins by their victory on Saturday loom up as the most likely group winners in the second section of the Shop League, and their clever teamwork exhibited against the Motor Makers mark them as a well trained outfit.

They started off at a fast clip and registered the first tally two minutes after the initial face-off. Higgins working in close to beat Bennett on a low shot.

The smooth combination work of the Brass forwards was a feature of the game, although they were slow in getting their shots away after crossing their opponents' blue line, and as a result missed numerous scoring chances.

Whatley played sterling hockey for the winners, blocking splendidly on defence and was always dangerous on lone rushes. Heal, Higgins, Paggett and Cadd also showed to advantage, although every player on the team played clever hockey.

Rainey, Hollingsworth, O'Brien and Kearney were the outstanding performers for the Motor Makers, while Bennett, in goal, made the winners fight for every marker. The teams:

Fractional Motors.—Goal, Bennett; defence, Rainey and Hall; centre, Kearney; wings, O'Brien and Hollingsworth; sub. Stewart.

Brass Dept.—Goal, Hope; defence, Cordery and Whatley; centre, Maudsley; wings, Higgings and Paggett; alternates, Cadd, Heal and Routley.

Penalties.—Whatley (2), O'Brien, Maudsley, Hollingsworth.

Referee—O. Kenneally.

Summary:

First Period:—
Brass Dept., Higgings 2.00
Fract. Motors, Hollingsworth... 6.00
Second Period:—
Brass Dept., Heal 3.00
Third Period:—
Brass Dept., Whatley, (Maudsley) 1.00

WARNED AGAINST REDS

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 (C.P.)—In a letter read in all the Roman Catholic churches of the Archdiocese of Montreal yesterday, Monsignor Georges Gauthier, Archbishop Coadjutor of Montreal, warned his parishioners against Communistic propaganda, and urged that Christian charity was the remedy of the ills of the day.

Much Sought After

Here is Bill McKenzie, sterling defense player of the Elmwood Millionaires of Winnipeg, who has received offers of professional hockey contracts from one end of the country to the other. New York Rangers and Philadelphia Quakers have made bids for his services, as well as numerous minor league clubs. He is a brother of Dr. Gordon McKenzie, a member of the University of Manitoba Allan Cup winners in 1928, who is now touring Europe with Manitoba Varsity Grads.

Cleveland Keeps Fourth Place Standing By Virtue of Lucky Goal.

LOSE AGAIN ON SUNDAY.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 26 (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer).—The double defeat of Detroit Olympics was the highlight of the International Hockey League's four-game schedule over the week-end. Battling desperately to escape isolation at the bottom of the ladder, the Olympics failed before Cleveland on Saturday and the Syracuse Stars on Sunday. In both cases the Detroiters put up a bitter battle before accepting defeat. The Indians beat them, 1 to 0, as the result of a "soft" goal, while the Stars were forced into overtime before they snatched a 2 to 1 verdict.

The league leading Buffalo Bisons increased their margin at the top by taking advantage of penalties to trip the Stars, 4 to 2. This enabled them to pull away from the second place occupants, Windsor and London, who had been threatening the Bison domination.

Tecumsehs Idle

Tecumsehs, after hanging up a record winning streak of seven straight games, enjoyed a rest over the week-end. The Bulldogs, however, skated into action against the fast-climbing Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and went down to defeat, 2 to 1, thereby losing a fine opportunity to forge ahead of the idle Londoners.

Paul Haynes and Earl Robinson, the league's leading scorers, combined in a perfect play to put the Windsorites in the lead, half-way through the opening 20 minutes. The Yellow Jackets then demonstrated what their record proves—they are a hard team to beat on Pittsburgh ice. Duke McCurry got the equaliser half-way through the second frame and then Fraser rapped in the winning goal eight minutes later while the Bulldogs were two men short through penalties.

The Stars can also attribute their defeat by Buffalo to penalties. The Bisons scored two of their counters while the New York State team was short-handed. Klein gave the Stars first blood less than three minutes after the start, but two successive penalties gave the Bisons an opening they did not pass up and Bogardis and Martin each scored to put the league leaders in front.

Each team scored in the second frame, Gauthier increasing the Bison margin, only to see Klein reduce it again with his tally.

With Fournier, their husky defence star, serving a major penalty in the final period for cross-checking, the Stars had little chance of halting the Bisons who made secure of victory when Marty Lauder and Gamey Lederman combined for the final counter.

Klein played a prominent part in the Stars' victory over Detroit. He chalked up the first goal half-way through the opening session and then gave Holmes the pass for the winning marker late in the overtime. Murray got the lone Olympic tally.

DE LAVAL WINS 35-27 VICTORY

"SCOTTY" McLEISH SCORES.

The De Laval basketball team forged their way to victory with a 35-27 count in a hard tussle with C.G.E. in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium Saturday evening. De Laval was in wonderful form, and their passing and checking counted heavily against their opponents. The C.G.E. team were not playing their best, and the team was one-sided—McLeish being the highest scorer in the game. The players of the De Laval five showed good combination, and were thus able to break through the enemy line by tricky passes. On the other hand, C.G.E. played hard, but were outpointed because of their lack of combination.

Sturgeon was the highest scorer for De Laval, totalling 16 points. He played a fine game, and his checking and shooting was infallible. Levine also showed good form and scored 11 points.

For the C.G.E. five McLeish was by far the best player, making 18 points for his team. He was the fastest man on the floor and his shot was always accurate. Had his team had another played like himself, they would have easily been the victors, but the next highest scorer made only 2 baskets.

The teams:—

De Laval.—Sturgeon and Routley, forwards; Levine, centre; Palmer and Cooper, guards; Graves, sub.

C.G.E.—McLeish and Greenlaw, forwards; Osterland, centre; Dickson and Howe, guards; Jones, sub.

Westclox Beats Y.W.C.A.

For the first time in two or three years the Westclox Ladies' basketball team handed a defeat to the Y.W.C.A. senior team, with the score 11—9. The game was a very close one, for within one minute of time the score was 9-all. Both sides played hard, and the checking was so inevitable that several fouls had to be given. Individual work on both sides were particularly in evidence, although there was some good passing. The Y.W.C.A. showed their old-time speed. At one point in the game, there was such a melee that one player took three shots in succession at her own basket without scoring, however.

Miss Fever played the best game for Westclox, scoring 5 points, with Miss Kingdon second with her three points. K. Haggard was the major scorer for Y.W.C.A., totalling 4 points.

Westclox. — L. Kingdon and E. Bradly, forwards; B. Thirnbeck, centre; T. Fever and C. Mason, guards; H. Joyes, sub.

Y.W.C.A.—M. Holmes and K. Haggard, forwards; I. Davidson, centre; G. Hewitt and S. Sharpe, guards.

H. C. JUNIORS NEED VICTORY ON WEDNESDAY

Unexpected Defeat at Campbellford on Saturday Makes Win Necessary.

AT FULL STRENGTH.

Wednesday Game Should Provide Hockey Fans With Sweetest Dish of Year.

Campbellford appears to be the upset team of the district Junior O.H.A. group. After handing the Havelock Combines a surprising 3 to 1 defeat on Thursday, the Mill Towners returned to grab a 6 to 5 victory in ten minutes overtime from the Peterborough Hockey Club on Saturday afternoon in Campbellford.

This unexpected defeat puts it squarely up to Jimmy McMartin's crew to take St. John's into the fold in the game at the Brock Street arena on Wednesday night. The Hockey Club administered a 6 to 0 trimming to the redshirts in their first engagement two weeks ago and are confident that they can repeat the dose to forge out in front of the group.

At Full Strength

Both teams will be at full strength for this feature tussle on which so much depends. Strict orders have gone out from the managers that no player is to engage in any games with other teams until this encounter is over. Both clubs should be in great trim and fans will get a chance to see two of the smartest junior outfits ever icey in Peterborough tangle in a game that more or less carries with it the group title.

The Hockey Club now have two defeats and if they lose to St. John's on Wednesday night it will practically mean their passing from the race with St. John's having the honors.

With so much depending on this contest and with the class of the two teams, this game looms as the sweetest hockey dish of the year.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLAR.—In loving memory of Annie Millar, who departed this life, January 26th, 1930.

ONE YEAR AGO

One year ago, this month of January,
An angel came, to call our Mother home,
And guide her soul to that eternity
Where dwells the God of Love on heaven's throne.
One year ago to-day, your lips we pressed
And knelt beside your silent form in prayer.
The cold, still hands we crossed upon your breast,
Above that kindly heart now stilled for e'er.
One year ago. Fast flows the sands of time.
Some day again, our Mother dear we'll see;
And in the garden of God's love divine
Walk hand in hand through all eternity.
Farewell till then, O dearest Mother mine,
And when on earth each task of life is o'er,
Our souls made pure, shall journey home to thine,
To share your joys with God for evermore.

—Ever remembered by her son, Robert, his wife and family.

AUSTRALIA SEEKS UNITY IN GOV'T

Hon. E. G. Theodore Re-elected on Majority Vote as Commonwealth Treasurer.

SERVICES ARE ESSENTIAL.

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 26.—(C. P. Cable via Reuters)—An important step towards restoring unity between the moderate and extremist sections of the Australian Labor Party was taken by the Cabinet today under the leadership of Prime Minister James Scullin. It was decided on a majority vote to reappoint Hon. E. G. Theodore as Commonwealth Treasurer. He resigned from the post last summer because of charges laid against his former administration in Queensland.

The appointment is subject to approval of the Labor Caucus, which the Prime Minister will demand immediately. Mr. Theodore's services are essential in the present crisis, the Government explains, and Theodore-Scullin combination is held to be the Government's only chance of restoring unity within the party and allowing the pursuit of a bold financial policy.

Hon. Mr. Theodore was formerly Premier of Queensland. Since he went out of office there, charges were made in the Estate in connecton with the purchase of the Mungana Mines by the Theodore Government. Civil court proceedings are now pending in Queensland, but the Commowealth Government asserts that legal investigation shows the court cases cannot succeed. The Commonwealth Government also claims that the Queensland Government has been unnecessarily delaying the cases.

MUSICIAN BARRED FROM DOMINION

Action Against Michigan Player Follows Repeated Breaches of Law.

CANADIANS COME FIRST.

WINDSOR, Jan. 26.—Deportation from Canada for life is the ruling of the immigration authorities in the case of Emil Gowatch of Roy Oak, Mich.

He was taken into custody by the authorities on Friday night while playing with an orchestra and his deportation was based on the contract labor law. He had been warned that he must not continue to cross the river to play with the orchtra, but failed to heed the warning. The fact that his wife is seriously ill was taken into consideration by the authorities and he was not prosecuted.

Since the United States' officers began to tighten up severely on Canadians who were commuting to Detroit there has been considerable agitation regarding musicians who have been coming to this side. Several times orchesras have been prevented from filling engagements and there has been a warning that Canadian musicians must be given first employment.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 55 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

For a few minutes Tarzan rested in the tree that had proved his salvation. His eyes scanned the river, but there was no sign of the Russian or the dugout. When he had rested and bound up his wounded leg, he started on in pursuit of the canoe. Twice upon his way to the coast, bellicose native run threateningly from their villages to bar his further progress, but soon turned and fled into the bush.

When the awful cry of the bull ape thundered upon their affrighted ears and the great white giant charged bellowing upon them, it was more than even they could stand. To the ape-man his progress seemed tantalizingly slow, but as a matter of fact he made such rapid pace that he came within sight of the ocean just as darkness fell the same day that both Jane and the Russian ended their flights from the interior.

Night lowered heavily upon the black river and the encircling jungle. Tarzan could not dream that the Kincaid lay at anchor but a hundred yards from him, for no light showed aboard that steamer. As the ape-man prepared to climb a tree wherein to spend the night, he heard a faint sound—the stealthy dip of paddles some distance from the shore. Motionless as a statue he stood listening. Presently it ceased.

Out of the darkness there came to him from across the water the sudden and unexpected sharp staccato of an exchange of shots. Then the scream of a woman. Wounded as he was, Tarzan of the Apes did not hesitate as the notes of that frightened cry pierced the shrill air. With a bound he cleared the bush—there was a splash as the water closed about him—and with powerful strokes he swam through the equatorial river toward that elusive cry.

INSTALL OFFICERS FOR ST. JAMES' S.S.

Impressive Ceremony in Charge of Rev. A. E. Moorehouse on Sunday.

Sunday morning in St. James' United Church was marked by an impressive service, when the teachers and officers of the Sunday School were installed by the Pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse.

Luke 9:48—"Whosoever shall receive this child in my name receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me receiveth Him that sent me; for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great" formed the basis of the speaker's inspiring address. Speaking of the Sunday School work, he said, "What an opportunity it is to gain divine knowledge and an intimate relationship with Jesus Christ. Sometimes such a task does not appeal because of its apparent simplicity and thanklessness There is little of glory or of encouragement in the work itself—we must look to other sources for our inspiration.

We cannot touch child life without feeling its power and possibilities for in such labour we are dealing with Christ Himself. Have we thought of this in our Sunday School work? Has it led us into a holy occupation such as this? All Sunday School work links us, not only with Jesus Christ, but with the Eternal Godhead. It is not the only channel, but it is one. Is this a task worthwhile? The Master says it points the way to true greatness even though our names may not be heralded before the world. Let us accept Christ's philosophy of life as the supreme work of the church.

To mould a life and fashion it for Jesus; to teach, impart and lead in the Word; to translate Christ's word into life—this is the task of every teacher and officer. That this is of value we know, because of the purity of the Word which has endured for nineteen centuries. When judged by its results we find God's Word to be the greatest deterrent to sin in the world today.

How many boys and girls have been held by the power of a good life influencing their's? Then what an opportunity is our's for Christ and His kingdom. Let us, as parents, see it that our children are ready to avail themselves of their opportunity to learn of God's Word.

The large staff of the Sunday School gathered at the front to take part in the installation service which brought so impressively before them the nature of the obligations upon which they were entering.

At three o'clock the Sunday School reached its maximum attendance of 539. Twenty-two years ago the School was organized with an attendance of 39, showing an increase of five hundred in today's total.

Will Labor Government Be Defeated On Trade Disputes Bill?

The long-heralded fight over the second reading of the Trade Disputes Bill has commenced in the British House of Commons. With the majority of the Liberals abstaining, a Government defeat is not expected, but the voting is expected to be very close, and the bill will probably have a rough ride in committee. Above are four of the principal figures in this heated debate. Left: Sir John Simon, prominent Liberal, who will vote against the Government with a small band of Liberals; Centre, top and bottom: Sir William Jowitt, Attorney-General of Great Britain, who moved the second reading of the bill, and Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister, who is seriously harassed by attacks from Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin (right), Conservative Leader.

UNITED COUNTIES SELECT WARDEN TUESDAY EVENING

Reeve George Hooton of Cavan, is in Race for the Wardenship.

A STRONG FIELD.

Warden Will Be Chosen This Year From Representatives From Durham.

The municipal hopes of Reeve George Hooton of Cavan will sway in the balance with the election of the Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham at Cobourg Tuesday night. This appointment is the first item on the agenda of the Counties Council, and Mr. Hooton's friends in the Peterborough district will join in the wish that this honor will come to him.

The wardenship alternates annually between the two counties, and this year it returns to Durham. Reeve Hooton, as one of the prominent representatives from his country, has been regarded as a strong candidate for the wardenship. Three of his opponents were removed from the field in the municipal elections. R. J. McKnight, Deputy-Reeve of Cavan last year had announced his intention of seeking the presidency of the Counties Council, but his ambitions were blighted by the Cavan ratepayers on January 5. Fred Hyland, Reeve of Cartwright township last year, was another aspirant, but he, too, was defeated in his municipal primary, and Monty Wilson of Hope township was the third.

A Strong Field

Among the onminees for the wardenship will likely be Reeve M. J. Holman of Clarke township, who ran against ex-Warden W. T. Wood of Millbrook two years ago, and will probably renew his quest Tuesday night; Reeve W. H. Carruthers of Bowmanville; Reeve Frank Rickard of Newcastle, and Reeve Bert Richardson of Manvers. This is a strong field, but Mr. Hooton has been "regular" in the support he gave former candidates for the position he now seeks, he pushed through his demand for the equalization of the assessment of the two counties, and he has always been one of the most active of the members of the Counties Council.

The last five wardens have been: John McCubbin (Percy) 1926; M. J. Elliott (Bowmanville) 1927; C. H. Davidson (Campbellford) 1928; W. T. Wood (Millbrook) 1929; W. H. Nelson (Percy) 1930.

Some of the major questions that will come before the Council this week are Judge O'Connor's report on the equalized assessment; the town of Cobourg's demand for increased rental of the municipal building and court house, which the Counties share with the town at present.

Disunion Mooted

Separation of the two counties was mentioned during last year's sessions as one of the eventualities that may develop from both the new equalized assessment and the county building questions. However, it is expected that the seeming difficulties will be overcome and the old sentiment of union remain unbroken.

If the urban representatives feel that the new assessment imposes an excessive burden upon them, they have themselves chiefly to blame. In the early stages of the discussion of Reeve Hooton's demand the urban group rejected overtures from the rural members that would certainly have been lighter in their taxation effects than is the new basis which Judge O'Connor has determined. Their uncompromising attitude forced the Council as a whole to the engaging of three valuators and finally the judicial appeal, and now that the decision of the Judge has gone against them, they are murmuring complaints and intimating the advisability of withdrawing from the Counties' Council.

PETERBORO EXHIBIT ATTRACTS INTEREST

Trent Waterway Display Well Patronized During New York Motor Boat Show.

In a telegram received early this morning, it was learned that the New York Motor Boat Show closed at 10.30 Sunday evening, and that the exhibit of the Trent Waterway-Iroquois Trail Association was well patronized during the show.

The 26th Motor Boat Show proved to be the most talked-about event of the winter; 175 000 paid the admission of 75c apiece. The exhibition salons of Grand Central Palace on Lexington (Fourth) Avenue were crowded throughout the week and interest ran high. The total sales of boats, engines and accessories amounted to well over a million dollars, and has thus stimulated to a great extent the general boat trade.

It was stated that the local exhibit was well situated and was very busy throughout the show. The birch bark Indian canoe, the stuffed and mounted specimens of animal life in the district, the excellent variation of pamphlets, and the several films shown of Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes, all proved very popular. Frank Stinson of the Chamber of Commerce, and Fred Roy of the Roy Studios were in attendance at the exhibit during the week and besides conducting the exhibit and giving information, had interviews with several business men of New York.

It will be impossible to give any idea as to the benefits that will be drived from this district's exhibit, but it may well be supposed that when men are buying boats, they will naturally seek out some summer resort at which they can use them, and thus the prominence of the Trent Waterway-Iroquois Trail exhibit will at once suggest the solution.

IN MEMORIAM.

LANG. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Thomas Allan Lang, who passed away January 26, 1928.

Beside your grave I often stand,
With heart both crushed and torn;
But in the gloom the sweet words come:
"Not lost, but gone before."

God knows how much we miss you
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers: "He only sleeps—
Your loved one is not dead."

So I'll be brave, dear husband,
And pray to God each Day;
And when He calls me home to you,
Your smile will guide the way.

WILD GEESE SPENT WINTER IN NOVA SCOTIA DISTRICT

Robie W. Tufts, Province Migratory Officer, Tells of Interesting Discovery.

HOW BIRDS PROTECTED.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 26.—(By Canadian Press)—Wild geese from the north are again in their winter quarters in the secluded harbors of Port Joli and Port le Herbert at the border of Queen's and Shelbourne counties. Describing his observations of the habits and movements of these creatures of the flying wedge, Robie W. Tufts, provincial migratory bird officer, writes that "It was not until within the last decade that I discovered that the haven for which these flocks were heading was actually within the confines of our own province, and at that time only a relatively small percentage of the people of Nova Scotia knew it."

Passing over the province in late autumn, the limits of the route taken by the geese are not definite, but the usual belt is between Windsor and Annapolis. "Every year since I can remember," says Mr. Tufts, "the wild geese have flown over Wolfville in the autumn, always heading southwest in long wavering lines or in perfect V formation. Their weird and musical honking could be heard when they were yet far off, and they were always a cause of wonderment to all who saw them passing with slow wingbeat yet moving onward with amazing swiftness."

At Port Joli and Port le Herbert, where the shoal water prevents shipping activities, the birds find shelter and food to their liking in the eel grass which covers thickly the harbor beds. When the temperature falls, ice forms along the shore when the tide is in, forming a shell which often seriously encroaches on the feeding grounds. At such times competition for food is very keen.

The two harbors are separated by a long headland, over which the birds fly a distance of six or seven miles when changing grounds. These waters have been a bird sanctuary for some years, but the law provides that shooting from the shore may take place during the open season. The main shooting is done as the birds fly from one harbor to the other over what are known as the Goose are located.

Local opinion as to the number of geese which comprise this winter colony vary, but a conservative estimate arrived at after observing the flocks through high-powered binoculars places the number at approximately 20,000.

The Northern Bald Eagle, rare in Nova Scotia, is never absent from the Port Joli district when the geese are there. Every winter a dozen or more of these creatures, with a wingspread of seven or eight feet, haunt the woods which encircle the harbors, to prey on wounded geese.

About the middle of March there is a stir in the flock. Some morning when a drizzling rain has succeeded the nip of frost, a small flock, perhaps a hundred or less, detaches itself from the main army, to rise in ragged formation from the water, and circle many times over the harbor calling excitedly as though to induce others to join them. Finally the vanguard swings off. Hour after hour this pageant of leave-taking continues, until at the end of two weeks practically all have departed on the long flight north.

CUTTER OFFICER WAS INTOXICATED FIRST MATE SAYS

Claims U. S. Boatswain Threatened to Shoot One of Rum-runner's Crew.

VESSEL 15 MILES OUT.

Canadian Positive Only Three Rounds Were Fired and All Took Effect.

NEW YORK, January 27 (By W. R. Wheatley, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — The coastguard officer in charge of the coastguard cutter 145 when it shelled and mortally wounded Captain William P. Cluett of the Canadian motor vessel Josephine K. last Saturday night, was intoxicated when he boarded the motor craft, according to First Mate Wesley Anderson, of Newfoundland, who to-day is nominally in command of the seized vessel.

Anderson told the Canadian Press to-day there is no question of doubt on the point, and declared that the officer admitted it.

Speaking directly to Anderson the officer, named by the Josephine's mate as K. Schmidt, boatswain said: "Don't let those fellows give me any more liquor. I am too drunk now."

This was after a shell from the cutter had crashed through the Josephine K.'s pilot house, and had struck Captain Cluett, who died later in a Staten Island hospital.

Threatened to Shoot Sailor.

"The man threatened to shoot one of our crew, Allan Falkenham," said Anderson. "He went up to Falkenham and I heard him say, 'You are not one of the members of the crew and I will have to shoot you.' With that he pointed a gun at Falkenham but did not fire. Falkenham's home is in Lunenburg.'"

In support of his contention that Schmidt was in charge of the CG-145, Anderson produced a receipt purporting to have been signed by the officer in charge, acknowledging the custody for safekeeping of instruments from the Canadian boat.

Only Three Shots Fired

The first mate is positive only three shots were fired by the United States boat and all three took effect. No blank shots were fired according to him.

Anderson showed the Canadian Press and with Louis Halle, New York lawyer retained by the Liverpool Ship Company of Halifax, owners of the Canadian vessel, a shell which he claims was picked up by one of the Josephine K's crew.

Two of the shots, according to the story told by the First Mate ripped through a dory about midships of the Josephine K, after ploughing through the galley. The third was the one that brought death to the Canadian skipper.

"The first intimation I had of the presence of the CG-145" said Anderson "was when the searchlight picked us up late Saturday night. The cutter was not more than 25 yards away. I was at the forward hole and as

INDIANS ON TRIAL FOR WITCHCRAFT

Evidence Shows Medicine Man Still Has Influence Over Coast Tribes.

TWO BRAVES SHOT.

HAZLETON, B.C., Jan. 27—Charges of witchcraft are involved in two Indian trials now pending here. Although the police have tried for years to suppress the practise, there is evidence indicating that witch doctors still hold considerable influence in the tribes.

Samuel Douse, a Kitwankool Indian, is awaiting trial for shooting Silas Brown and Charles Sampare of the Kitwanga Reservation. The shooting appears to have been a sequel to a celebration held in connection with the removal of a totem pole. It is reported that Brown had accused Douse of being a witch doctor. Douse resented the allegation and when he saw Brown near his cabin, Douse fired, the shot penetrating Brown's left forearm and then glancing off to strike Sampare in the left leg.

The other witchcraft story is connected with Donald Gray and Alex Tylee of Haguelgate, who are accused of practising sorcery. The trial is set for Jan. 31.

Dalton Gives Assurance Matter Will Be Delved Into.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (A.P.) — The British Government has made formal representations to the State Department regarding "unsatisfactory conditions" under which British subjects are being held at some centers and particularly at Seattle, Washington, for deportation.

The State Department, in a reply to the note presented December 18 by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, stated the Labor Department expected the new building at Seattle to be ready for occupancy in August.

The State Department communicated the British representations to the Labor Department, which answered the unsatisfactory conditions due to the lack of space at Seattle had been known to the department for some time. The new building, it was added, was being equipped with a view to comfort for those detained.

INVESTIGATION STARTED.

LONDON, January 27 (C.P.). — The cases of British nationals who have been deported from the United States and who have complained of the treatment received at the hands of United States authorities, are being investigated both in London and Washington.

Hugh Dalton, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons yesterday that such complaints had been received from time to time and that representations had been made to the State Department by the British Ambassador.

He said he was confident that such cases would receive the full consideration of American authorities.

LOCAL RINKS BEAT NORWOOD BY EIGHT SHOTS

Moore and Sedgewick Amass Total of 33 Against 25 in Preliminary.

KEENE DEFEATS MILLBROOK

Representatives From Surrounding Villages Participating for District Cup.

It's a big day at the local curling rink, stellar rinks from Lakefield, Norwood, Keene and Millbrook invading here this morning to play with the Peterborough representatives for the District Cup. The five entries exceeded yesterday's expectations—up until that time the redoubtables from Millbrook being the only sure entry.

Peterborough got off to a flying start in the preliminary round, defeating Norwood by eight shots. In the first round Keene disposed of Millbrook by three shots.

Ice this morning was not favorable to good curling. It was soft and greasy and weight had to be used with extreme caution. However, despite rather poor conditions clever curling was displayed on every hand.

Lakefield drew a bye and meets Peterborough this afternoon.

England's 'Lady Bountiful' Opens Purse To Ensure Plane for Schneider Trophy

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Lady Lucy Houston, of Jersey, known as England's "Lady Bountiful" for her many charitable gifts, has opened her crowded coffers to insure British defense of the Schneider seaplane speed trophy.

"To prevent the Socialist Government from being spoil sports," she telegraphed Premier Ramsay Macdonald today, "Lady Houston will be responsible for all extra expense beyond what Sir Philip Samson (head of the British Royal Aero Club) says can be found, so that Great Britain can participate in the race for the Schneider Trophy."

FARMERS GUESTS OF ROTARY CLUB; APPEAL MADE FOR CO-OPERATION IN SOLVING ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

Dr. Christie, President of O. A. C., is the Guest Speaker.

TRIBUTE TO FARMERS.

Big Enough Buying Power in City and District to Take Care of Situation.

Co-operation between the citizens of Peterborough and the farmers of this immediate district, as a solution to the present economic problem was brought forcibly to the attention of a mixed audience of farmers and Rotarians at the annuel Farmers' Day luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day by Dr. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, whose inspiring and optimistic address made a marked impression.

"There is enough buying-power in this City of Peterborough and enough buying power among the farmers of this district to take care of the present situation if it is set to work by co-operation, between the two," declared Dr. Christie, in urging that a committee of prominent business men and of representative farmers should sit down together and draft a plan by which the situation could be materially improved.

President Robert Abbott welcomed the visitors and then turned the meeting over to Rotarian George A. Gillespie, who, as usual, was in charge of the arrangements for the day, and who had succeeded in securing the presence of a large number of well-known farmers.

Rotarian Gillespie added a word of welcome to the guests and then introduced Dr. Christie.

The speaker of the day began his address by a tribute to the farmers of this county. Driving over the district with the agricultural representative, he said, he had arrived at the conclusion that farming here was above the average. The Peterborough farmers were not one-crop farmers; in fact, agriculture in this district was on a sound and varied basis and he was satisfied that as a whole the farmers of this section were in as good shape in the present crisis as any group of farmers in the whole North American continent.

Reviewing world conditions, Dr. Christie pointed out that the world was suffering from a glut of production, creating unusual conditions everywhere. In the face of this situation, he advised his hearers not to worry too much over the conditions in other parts of the country, or elsewhere in the world; there was the danger that in dwelling too long on these things, they would catch the disease themselves and imagine they were suffering from the same complaint.

The solution lies in co-operation in the immediate community," said the speaker. "Don't bother about us fel-

GANDHI REQUESTS GENERAL PARDON

Emphasizes Fact That Move Must Be Made to Restore Peace.

THOUSANDS IN JAIL.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 27 (C.P.) — Mahatma Gandhi, released last night from a British prison at Poona, today urged the authorities to liberate the thousands of Indian Nationalists still in jail, emphasizing the necessity for general political amnesty if peace is to be restored in India.

"I feel," he told the Associated Press, "that the release of the members of the Congress Party Working Committee makes a difficult situation infinitely worse and makes action by the working committee almost impossible. The thousands still in prison are better able to act than all the liberated leaders combined.

GOV'T WILL COME WITH OPEN MIND TO OTTAWA MEET

Thomas States Britain Has Single Desire to do Best for Empire.

QUESTIONED IN COMMONS.

Explains Committee of Cabinet Investigating Most Vital Subjects.

LONDON, Jan. 27 (C.P. Cable). — The British Government will enter the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference with the single-minded desire to do its best for Britain as a part of the Empire, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, said in the House of Commons to-day in the course of questioning.

The Minister was asked to state the precise nature of the research work being undertaken in connection with the suggestions of import boards, quota purchasing and tariffs, in preparation for the Ottawa conference.

Examination of the questions to be discussed, Mr. Thomas replied, was being conducted by a committee of the Cabinet, with the help of the Government department concerned. He did not expect any additional expenditure would be incurred in this connection.

"May I ask," said Captain Sir William Brass, Conservative, "whether the Government will enter this conference with an open mind so far as tariff questions are concerned?"

"It will enter the conference with the single-minded desire to do its best for this country, which is part of the Empire," replied Mr. Thomas.

Pressed for a more explicit reply, the Dominion Secretary said he assumed the answer covered the wider Imperial interests that Captain Brass had in mind.

SPLIT DEVELOPS IN AUSTRALIAN LABORITE PARTY

Action Follows Premier's Decision to Make Theodore Commonwealth Treasurer.

SANCTIONED IN CAUCUS.

Fenton Resigns Despite Plea That Move May Bring Early General Election.

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 27.—(C. P. Cable via Reuters).—A split of serious proportions has developed in the Australian Labor Party over the Prime Minister's decision to take Hon. E. G. Theodore back into the Cabinet as Commonwealth Treasurer.

To-day Hon. J. E. Fenton, Minister of Trade and Customs, resigned from the Cabinet despite the pleas of the Prime Minister that his resignation would weaken the Government's prestige and perhaps lead to an early general election. Hon. Mr. Fenton was Acting Prime Minister for months while Premier James Scullin was overseas recently.

The caucus of the party last night endorsed the Prime Minister's decision to reappoint Mr. Theodore as Commonwealth Treasurer, from which post Mr. Theodore resigned last summer after charges of fraud had been made against him by the present Government of Queensland. The charges arose out of the purchase of coal mines by the former Theodore State Government.

Attitude an Affront

Hon. Mr. Fenton is understood to have told the Prime Minister that he considered his attitude towards Mr. Theodore constituted a personal affront to himself. The caucus, it is revealed, endorsed the Prime Minister only after several hours of hot debate and by a vote of 24 to 19.

Hon. J. A. Lyons, acting Treasurer, and Hon. Frank Anstey, Minister of Health, backed up the strong protest of Mr. Fenton but did not go to the length of resigning from the Cabinet.

Meantime J. M. Gabb, a member of Parliament for Queensland, has resigned from the Labor party as a protest against Mr. Theodore.

Mr. Theodore former State Premier of Queensland, entered the Commonwealth Cabinet as Treasurer on the victory of the Labor Party in 1929. He resigned last summer when the charges were made against him. Civil court proceedings are pending against him, the present Queensland Administration charging that fraud and dishonesty entered into the purchase of the Mungana Mines by the former Theodore Government.

24,417 TICKETS WERE DEPOSITED IN BOX ON JANUARY DOLLAR DAYS

COVERED WIDE TERRITORY.

Judging the success of the January Dollar Days by the full box of estimating blanks, the optimists were correct, and Peterborough district residents showed that they could buy if they wanted to. As was promised the merchants outdid their usual splendid list of bargains and presented such an array of unmistakable values that the shoppers bought eagerly, in their own interests. The opportunity to buy seasonable goods at one-quarter, one-third, and one-half their regular value was too good to miss, so the sales mounted up, and the filled-out blanks kept piling up in the box at The Examiner's door, till the number reacher 24,417, a figure within a few hundred of the record set some ten years ago, when the first bonus was made $50.00 for the first time.

This remarkable result was a surprise, even to the optimists themselves, and to thousands of estimators who took it for granted that the number would fall somewhat below that of recent Dollar Days and largely influenced the filling out of the estimating blanks. The most popular figures ranged from 16,000 to 22,000, with just a few scattered shots at higher figures. That some of these went pretty true is evidenced by the fact that the winner of the $50.00 bonus gave the exact number, the second only one less and third and fourth a tie with just two less than the correct number.

Peterborough Dollar Days are famed over a large district, as tickets were noted from many points including Toronto. One disappointed shopper from Chandos had probably brought a dollar with him and a big sleigh box to contain his purchases, but finding he could only get $3.00 to $5.00 worth for his green back, he spent it and used it to tell the world: "I came down from Chandos Dollar Day. N G."

There were tickets filled in for Amos 'n' Andy, Mme. Queen and other fictitious people by parties who wanted a chance to win, in order to instill a little fun into the contest.

Following is the list of winners. The money will be paid out at The Examiner Office on Saturday morning:

1st—Bernard Killingbeck, 580 Downie Street	24,417	$50.00
2nd—Joseph Primeau, 709 Elcome Street	24,416	25.00

5th—Jean Menogue, 440 Driscoll Terrace	(tie for 5 and 6) 24,413	7.50

Room Is Crowded One Hour Before Court Is Opened

Leonard Matthews, With Several Years of Outstanding Service to His Credit on the Peterborough Police Force, Pleads Guilty to Burglary.

HUNDREDS ARE UNABLE TO GAIN ADMITTANCE DOORS WERE CLOSED LONG BEFORE COURT OPENED

Character Evidence is Given by J. F. Strickland, Charles Brewer and J. W. Selkirk — Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Defends the Prisoner.

Leonard Matthews with several years outstanding service to his credit on Peterborough City Police Force, this afternoon pleaded guilty before His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor to eleven counts of breaking and entering and to theft of the total sum of $1,373.50 which the charges dating back to January 4, 1929 involve.

"I am not going to sentence you to the Penitentiary," said His Honor, addressing the accused, "but the sentence of the Court is that you be committed to the Ontario Reformatory for a period of nine months determinate and for a further indeterminate term of one year."

Great Crowd Present.

Bearing witness to the sensation which Matthews' apprehension, subsequent discharge from the force and committal for trial had created, the court room, which is quite spacious, was taxed to capacity. Every seat was occupied and the aisles were crowded with people, packed close together. It is estimated that 500 people were present and a like number were probably turned away.

Long before the time fixed for the trial interested citizens began to congregate in the precincts of the Court House and County Jail, and a large crowd stood outside throughout the proceedings.

Matthews, who was yesterday committed for trial by Magistrate Langley on the evidence of Police Chief Samuel Newhall in each charge, was afterwards refused bail on application to His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke. Accused then elected for a speedy trial before a County Judge.

His entry into court under the escort of Col. D Johnson, the governor and jailor Ray, who had just brought him from the cells below, was the signal for a craning of necks and all eyes were centred upon the sturdy figure of the former constable, who occupied the dock, and whose popularity previous to the sensational charges against him could not be denied. For ten years he had patrolled the streets of this city and had figured prominently in several arrests in which he had displayed qualities of fearlessness and a high regard for duty.

His Honor Judge O'Connor took his seat just as the hands of the clock pointed to three, and in the intervening few minutes before Matthews' appearance from below the court was enveloped in an atmosphere of silence and expectancy.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. opened the case for the Crown and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., gave intimation that his client would plead guilty to each of the eleven charges and elected trial before this court."

Matthews stood tensly to attention throughout the reading of the charges, and had his hands clasped behind his back.

Character Evidence

J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.L.A., who gave character evidence in behalf of the accused said he had known Matthews 8 or 9 years. Previous to his delinquency I had always considered him a capable and efficient officer.

Charles Brewer, automobile dealer also said "I have known Matthews 6 or 7 years and have always thought

CHARLES TANNER ELECTED WARDEN IN CLOSE VOTE

Lakefield's Reeve Beats Out H. B. Parker By One Vote For Wardenship.

ONE NEW FACE IN COUNCIL.

Two Former Members Are Again Returned to County Council Board.

Reeve Charles Tanner, of Lakefield, was elected warden of the county for 1931 at the opening session of the County Council held this afternoon. Reeve H. B. Parker, of Harvey, ran Reeve Tanner a close race for the wardenship.

Votes for the office were taken twice and each time Tanner secured nine votes to Parker's eight. Clerk Ed. Elliott declared Reeve Tanner elected.

Two others, Reeves Leahy and Humphries were nominated for warden but withdrew.

In a brief speech Warden Tanner thanked the councillors for the confidence they had vested in him. Peterborough County holds an enviable position among the counties of the province because of its low debenture debt and I feel it will maintain its leading position" he said.

One new and two former members who were returned after a short absence, sat in Council. The new member is Reeve Austin Jackson of Galway and Cavendish, and the two returning members are: J. F. Breck-

BALDWIN DIFFERS WITH CHURCHILL OVER INDIA PLAN

Tory Leader Claims George III Might Have Made Similar Speech.

SCORES FOLLOWER'S STAND.

LONDON, January 27 (C.P.). — Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative Leader and former Prime Minister, took his brilliant follower, Right Hon. Winston Churchill, to task for his attitude of the Indian problem in the House of Commons ast night.

"If this happened to be a day of silence for Mr. Churchill, I would not have intervened," said Mr Baldwin.

The Conservative Leader then remarked that a previous speaker had referred to the loss of the American colonies. "If George III. had been endowed with the language of Edmund Burke he would have made just such a speech as has Mr. Churchill," he added.

Pledges Party.

Mr. Baldwin declared that any Conservative Government which he led would consider it their duty to implement, so far as possible, what had been done at the Indian Round-Table Conference, and would work for a Federal constitution for India.

Mr. Baldwin's throwing over of Mr. Churchill's views caused some sensation, and was much debated in the lobbies after the day's session. It was not interpreted as aimed solely at Mr. Churchill, who probably knew what was coming, but to make clear to a section of the Conservative Party—and to portions of the public having the same views as Mr. Churchill—that the party's Leader was not identified therewith.

The former Premier remarked that the whole situation has been changed by the attitude of the native state princes, who formerly wanted nothing to do with British India, but now favored a federation, and every one should work on the agreement reached for a Federal constitution.

MAYOR'S ACTION STARTS UPROAR

Lindsay Boards of Education and Water Commissioners Deny Press to be Shut Out.

TO BAN HONORARIUMS.

LINDSAY, January 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — The situation which has been created locally as a result of the action of the town council in excluding representatives of the press from committee meetings of that body has been further aggravated by the published interview which a representative of The Toronto Telegram had with Mayor Alcorn. In this interview the chief magistrate is reported as having said that the press was excluded from meetings of the Board of Education as well as Board of Water Commissioners. This has brought forth a denial from the heads of these bodies, who declare that the meetings have always been open to the press, representatives of which are always present.

Mayor Alcorn, in another published statement, says that the purpose of his resolution was to exclude the press from meetings of the Finance Committee only. For some years past the representatives of the press have been given a small honorarium by the town fathers in recognition of the satisfactory manner in which they have reported the proceedings. This, he declares, is irregular, and will be discontinued.

The Council meets in regular session on the first Monday in February when committee reports will be presented. Interesting developments are expected.

British Farm Boy Imports To Be Cut

This statement was made following receipts of a despatch from London, England, to the effect that the Provincial Governments of Canada had agreed to take 1300 boys from Great Britain in the coming year and would guarantee their placement on

PROVINCES ARE GIVEN ALL POWER IN DEALING WITH INSURANCE FIRMS

Federal Government is Bereft of All Authority Over Companies.

15 YEAR FIGHT.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—With the declaration by Mr. Justice Garrow yesterday that eight vital sections of the Insurance Act of Canada are ultra vires of the Federal Parliament, an important win was registered for the provinces in their jurisdictional dispute with the Dominion insurance department.

For years both the provinces and the Dominion have been seeking to regulate the business of insurance. During that time several decisions have been obtained in the provincial courts and even in the Privy Council but no definition of the powers of the provinces in this respect resulted.

As in the former cases, the province was not seeking whole control of the business of insurance in this present action, but was merely endeavoring to have its rights under the British North America Act clearly defined to preclude any encroachment by the Dominion Insurance department.

The present case was another challenge to the validity of certain important sections of the act. Ontario sought a declaration that the whole act (chapter 101 of the Revised Statues of Canada) except part 6, was beyond the competence of the Parliament of Canada to enact or, in the alternative, that these specific sections of that chapter were ultra vires.

What makes this judgement of greater significance than those preceding it according to Edward Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, is the fact that while sections previously involved were important enough, those being considered in the present case arefu ndamental to the act itself, and while His Lordship did not grant a declaration of invalidity on the whole act, as sought in the alternative, the condemning of these vital sections is thought by some to undermine the validity of the whole act.

The judgment follows fifteen years of legal battling between Ontario and Federal authorities over the Dominion's rights in assuming to license and control all but Provincially chartered insurance companies.

In effect, the trial judge declares invalid all the licensing sections, the penalty sections, and the contract-governing sections in the Dominion Insurance Act, and furthermore directs that the defendant, the Attorney General of Canada, pay to the plaintiff, Attorney General of Ontario, costs of the action.

The action is the first on record in which Attorney General of this Province has entered action against the Attorney General of the Dominion for the declaration of the validity of any statute, and it is assumed that the Dominion will appeal the decision to the Privy Council.

No substantial revenues are affected by the Dominion's apparent loss of jurisdiction over insurance companies and matters.

Parley Is Arranged On Fruit Terminal

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.).—Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, has invited Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railway, and E. W. Beatty, K.C., head of the Canadian Pacific Railway, to meet him here on February 6 in an endeavor to arrive at a settlement on the projected union fruit terminal here.

Two representatives of the Toronto Fruit Jobbers and Commission Merchants are also being invited. Col Kennedy himself will undertake to represent the interests of the growers.

Differences between the two railways and the jobbers have delayed the construction of the fruit terminal, and it is expected that the conference may overcome any difficulty.

Education Neglected Damages Are Sought

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27.— What is the value of an education: This is the question asked of the assize court by George Richards who has commenced action for $15,000 damages against his former guardians, John A. and Sarah Mackenzie, of Lucknow, Ont.

Richardson was adopted at the age of nine by his guardians. He claims that under the agreement between the Children's Shelter and the defendants, he was to receive education and protection. Between the years 1914 and 1925, he says, the defendants utterly disregarded their duties and responsibilities, treating him in a cruel and harsh manner. During the time he should have been attending school, he was forced to work, and his position and status is seriously prejudiced.

GANDHI IS READY TO STUDY OFFERS WITH OPEN MIND

Nationalist Leader on Being Freed Claims He Has No Plan of Action.

WILL MEET SAPRU.

Expresses Desire to See All Political Prisoners Set at Liberty.

YERODA, India, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Within forty minutes of Gandhi's release, the Associated Press correspondent and a Reuter Agency representative obtained an interview with the Nationalist lead, in which he told in plain language how he felt after eight months' incarceration.

In a candid and fresh speech, the noted leader said: "I emerge from jail with an absolutely open mind, unfettered by enmity and unbiased in argument. I am prepared to study the whole situation from every point of view, and to discuss the Prime Minister's statement (made at the conclusion of the Round Table Conference in London), with Sir Tef Bahadue Sapru, and other delegates on their return. They sent me an urgent cable appealing to me that I suspend judgment until I discussed the whole situation and all its problems with them.

Will Study Situation

"I am prepared to study every great problem which now faced India provided that those on the other side will approach such problems in the same spirit as "I very sincerely believe that every political prisoner now in jail (only Gandhi and his outstanding colleagues are being released) for being connected with my civil disobedience campaign should be released and none of us leaders should be happy as long as any of our brothers and sisters are in jail".

"If the Indian Government does not see eye to eye with you in the matter," asked the correspondent, "what will you do?"

'I don't know at this stage. I have made no plans yet, nor formulated any policies, nor even fixed my movements for the immediate future."

The Nationalist Leader commended the treatment given him by prison officials, and when asked if he were likely to return to Yeroda, replied with a smile, "possibly; you never know."

LETTER DELAYED PIANIST BARRED

Noted Russian Cancels Engagement—Had No Permit to Re-enter U. S.

MAIL BLAMED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Failure of the United States' mails to get a registered letter from Washington to Detroit in time yesterday was revealed here as the real reason for the cancellation of an engagement in Toronto last night by Vladimir Horowitz, noted Russian pianist.

In the registered letter was a special permit of re-entry into the United States, issued by the State Department at Washington and forwarded to Horowitz in Detroit. Without the permit, which did not arrive in time, Horowitz would not have been able to re-enter the United States if he had gone to Canada, his New York agents explained.

Original reports from Windsor, Ont., where Horowitz would have crossed the border, were that the pianist had been refused admittance to Canada by Canadian immigration authorities. These reports were immediately denied by Orval Adams, Chief Immigration Inspector at Windsor.

CHARGE RUM RUN BACK TO CANADA

Two Arrests and Third in Ring Expected Shortly By Gov't Officials.

BILLED FOR ST. PIERRE.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 27 (C.P.). — Officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police moved against leaders of an alleged liquor smuggling ring and arrested Harry Low in Windsor and Captain George Downer in Cornwall. J. Ross Byrne, barrister, of Liverpool, N.S., was arrested on Saturday at Sault Ste. Marie. At the same time warrants were out for the arrest of the proprietor of a warehouse at Liverpool, N.S.

The men are charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government, and on the basis of information in the possession of the Department, further charges of attempting to bribe officers in the discharge of their duties may be laid.

The object of the alleged conspiracy was to avoid the payment of excise and other taxes on liquor by bringing back into Ontario liquor already shipped out to St. Pierre Miquelon. After arrival at the French islands the liquor was allegedly brought to Nova Scotia and loaded on cars for shipment by rail to Ontario. The liquor was billed as fish and the cases packed in the car were mixed with cases of fish.

Lad Tells Teacher; Pupils, in Reprisal, Try to Hang Youth

WELLAND, Jan. 27.—Chief of Police Harold of Thorold Township is investigating the alleged hazing of a schoolboy by two of his schoolmates at Fonthill school which is stated to have taken place last week. It is alleged that the boys had threatened to hang the other lad, who is 11-years-old, for imparting information regarding some youthful prank. News of the alleged attempted hanging did not leak out until today. It is alleged two lads attempted to carry out their threat in the basement of the school, and actually had the lad strung up by a necktie to a pipe. It is alleged that only the intervention of the hazed boy's sister averted a tragedy.

28 WITNESSES CALLED IN CASE

1200 COUNTER CLAIM.

"You were drunk." "No I wasn't, but you were." These two statements might be considered almost the sum and substance of a civil action heard yesterday by His Honor Judge Huycke. The Judge, after hearing twenty-eight witnesses testify, asked that the two counsels, G. N. Gordon, K.C. and J. A. O'Brien, submit written arguments before giving his decision.

The case arises out of a motor accident on the Keene road on the evening of July 9. Witnesses testified that there was a veritable cloudburst of rain just as the accident occurred.

John R. Walsh, resident of Otonabee township and driver of the truck which figured in the accident, is claiming $500 damages from Leo Herr and Thomas Roach both of Otonabee. Herr was driver and Roach was owner of the other vehicle in the head-on collision. However, Herr, Roach and a passenger in their car, Isaac McNevan, also of Otonabee, are bringing counter suits totalling $1200 against Walsh.

Walsh alleges that Herr, Roach and McNevan had been drinking and that Herr was intoxicated and proceeding along the wrong side of the road causing the accident. The damages arise from the injuries alleged caused to Walsh and damage to his truck. Witnesses testified that there was a bottle of whiskey in Roach's car and Roach on the stand admitted the presence of the bottle, declaring his ownership of it. However, he and the others in his car affirmed that they had not had a drink since early afternoon and that Walsh had partaken from the bottle with them.

Herr, Roach and McNevan in their suits claim that Walsh was in an intoxicated condition at the time of the accident and that he was responsible for the crash. Little evidence pointing to the fact that Walsh was drunk was given and one of the trio's witnesses, Fred J. Borland, said that he talked with Walsh immediately after the accident and had failed to notice any signs of liquor on him.

Witnesses for Walsh were: Joseph L. J. Johnston, John R. Walsh, Henry J. Boyle, Allen C. Sharpe, Lawrence Mitchell, W. S. Hewton, G. A. Gillespie, Arthur Somerville, Roland Deane, J. T. O'Connell, Alfred Ausson, John Fitzgerald, Charles R. Kennedy and Harvey Wright. Witnesses for Herr, Roach and McNevan were: Hiram Wright, Frances A. O'Reilly, Herbert Young, Isaac McNevan, Dr. F. O'Reilly, D. H. Wright, H. Wright, Leo Herr, Thomas Roach, Lance Kemp and Frederick J. Boland. Before the case was concluded John Walsh and Mrs. Walsh were recalled to the stand in rebuttal of some evidence submitted by the defendant.

J. A. O'Brien acted for Walsh and G. N. Gordon for Herr, Roach and McNevan.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and one fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Orlex will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF CONSTANT RESEARCH

Durability HAS NOT BEEN SACRIFICED TO SPEED IN Moffats

THE QUICKEST Cook-Quik DURABLE ELEMENT

Element

SPEED, all kinds of it, can always be obtained, and records for speedy boiling of water can easily be broken at any time by laboratory tests. Indeed they can be broken under domestic tests, too.

But Moffats are building elements to last under ordinary domestic conditions: They have not deviated from this policy of speed plus durability in element construction. Moffats will not mislead their users by announcing the breaking of meaningless records for speed, because to provide speed without durability is a useless waste of money. Therefore, in the new Cook-Quik Element you have the highest speed science and ingenuity can produce without minimizing in any way whatever the wonderful durability and service record of Moffats Electric Range Elements.

The introduction of Moffats Cook-Quik Element is not the result of a sudden discovery of some new means of construction, but is the result of over twenty years' patient research and investigation in the Moffat Laboratory. Many, many hours, even days and weeks, have been consumed in studying very minor points of construction which ordinarily would be overlooked by people less thorough than Moffats Limited, yet this carefulness has been worth while because the sum total of it all is an element that is what Moffats declare it to be, namely: the quickest durable element made.

Remember there are over 130,000 Moffats Gold Medal Electric Ranges in daily use in all parts of the British Empire, and many parts of the world.

Indeed, there are more Moffats Ranges sold within the British Empire than any other make of range—a sure sign that you buy the best when you purchase a Moffats Gold Medal Electric Range.

MOFFATS LIMITED, WESTON, ONTARIO

The "A.B.C." of the Cook-Quik Element

A. The new element will boil water faster than any element previously made by Moffats, and compares with any other on the market for speed.

B. Speed is the result of light weight, therefore requiring fewer heat units for initial heating. New top plate and patented beads also facilitate speedy cooking.

C. Long-life is assured by use of patented alloy for top plate, which will not corrode or disintegrate with constant use. The high grade 1700-watt coils also operate efficiently at very low temperatures.

D. Service will rarely be needed on the new Cook-Quik Element, but if a necessity does arise, the element may be serviced without destroying any part of the element. Cleanliness is also a big factor with the new element.

E. Safe operation at the lowest possible cost is further guaranteed by the air and porcelain insulation features of the new element which prevent leakage of power whether the element is red hot or cold. This is a vast improvement over the cement or powder insulated element.

HARRY EVANS HAS SERVED 28 YEARS ON CITY'S BOARD

Street Commissioner is To-day Celebrating His 72nd Birthday.

STARTED AS CONTRACTOR

Many Changes in City's Streets Have Been Made by Veteran Commissioner.

Harry Evans, Peterborough's energetic street commissioner, and ex-Kaiser William celebrate to-day their 72nd birthday. Different from the dethroned Prussian, Mr. Evans is far from being through, although at the present time he is taking a little rest from his arduous duties because of not feeling right up to form.

Mr. Evans' handiwork is visible on every street in the city. For 28 years he has been street commissioner and during that time miles and miles of sidewalks and sewers have been put down until there are 75½ miles of sidewalk and 44½ miles of sewers. Street Commissioner Evans has been through the thick of the city's fastest period of expansion and most of the sidewalks and sewers were built under his direction by day labor.

Stood Well for 25 Years

With pardonable pride, he points to the cement tops on the Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte street bridges. The tops on the first two were put down by Mr. Evans twenty-five years ago and have stood the wear and tear of all that time without visible signs of weakening. It was under his supervision, too, that the first road pavement was laid in the city. It was on Chambers street back in 1911 and that block of pavement is still in first class condition.

Along with other innumerable bridges built under Mr. Evans' supervision are those over the creek on Sherbrooke and Dalhousie streets.

Mr. Evans can retrospect on a life of achievement in cement and mortar during his many years as a builder and contractor and then as street commissioner. It was in the little settlement of Holland Landing at the end of Yonge street, thirty miles north of Toronto, that Mr. Evans first saw the light of day. His father, Enos Evans was born at Holland Landing too. But Harry was only five years of age when his father brought the family to Peterborough. Enos Evans was a carpenter and builder and his son naturally followed the same trade.

Started as Contractor

Harry Evans first did work for the city by contract but on April 1, 1902 he became street commissioner. How faithfully and well he has served the city, first under City Engineer T. A. S. Hay and for the past 17 years under City Engineer R. H. Parsons, is attested to by the fine condition of the streets and bridges; and also by the high esteem in which he is held by members, past and present, of the City Council. All speak unreservedly of the service Mr. Evans has given the city. "He is ready at all times, and no difficulty is too great for him to overcome," stated Mayor Denne.

Memories of bygone days in Peterborough are fragrant in Mr. Evans mind, for while he states that he feels far from old he does admit that he has seen much water go downstream. He recalls vividly seeing the Peterborough volunteers march off to stem the Fenian raiders in 1866. He has seen no less than four bridges span the Otonabee where the big Hunter street bridge now stands. He recalls winter days in other years when the snow piled so high on George street that looking across one could only see the heads and shoulders of pedestrians.

He remembers, too, times in the city's history when the pay sheet for the Board of Works department for a whole week did not exceed $25. "Of course those were times when we weren't busy. But those days the city did do much in keeping the streets clean and the hundred and one other jobs that are considered necessary to-day. In those days the streets were flooded in the spring, but no one did much about it because everyone expected it."

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—During the last week, mainly Saturday, there was a better inquiry for butter on the local market and a fair clean-up of good quality lots resulted. Sellers were holding for slightly higher prices and buyers in need of supplies took the offerings at the fractional increase. Yesterday the market was dull, but the price range for both grades held to prices of Saturday at 31¾c to 31½c for No. 1 creamery solids and 30¾c to 30½c for No. 2. Dealers were able to move high scoring receipts at these quotations, but low scoring No. 1 and No. 2 were not so easy to move.

Cream

Cream prices were firm at the recent advance and shippers were quoted 30c to 31c for special, 29c to 30c for No. 1, and 26c to 27c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

The demand for cheese was fair to good and prices were steady, with the higher quotations of last week at 14c to 14¼c for new large, 14¼c to 14½c for twins, and 14½ to 14¾c for triplets, to country shippers. Retailers were offered new cheese at 15½c for large, 15¾ for twins and 16c for triplets.

Eggs

The egg market was stronger yesterday and prices to country shippers and retailers were steady with the 1c increases of last week-end. Brokers, however, were asking more money for graded eggs, in free cases, and reported a good demand for pullet extras. The strengthening resulted from slightly reduced receipts during last week and a better demand during the cold spell of that period.

Country shippers were quoted 23c for extras yesterday, 20c for firsts, and 16c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned, and retailers were offered supplies at 32c to 33c for extras in cartons, 30c to 31c for extras loose, 28c for firsts loose, 23c for pullet extras loose, and 21c for seconds loose. Brokers were asking 29c for extras, 24c to 25c for firsts, and 21c to 22c for seconds, graded and in free cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Prevailing abnormal weather conditions did much yesterday to pull corn values down, but tended to hoist wheat. With untimely high temperatures and diminishing demand from feeders, all deliveries of corn broke the season's low-price record, whereas persistent lack of rain or snow throughout domestic winter wheat sections aroused anxiety as to crop damage. Gossip regarding a war scare in Europe had little apparent market influence.

Corn closed nervous, ½c to ¾c lower; wheat, ⅝c off to 1¼c down, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—The run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards yesterday was only some 70 head lighter than on the previous Monday, but trading at the start was very slow, with packers bidding 50 cents per cwt. lower than last week on most classes of killers. Only the pick of the heavy and handy steers and cows and a few baby beeves moved in the early trading, and these made barely steady prices. The weigh-up at 2 o'clock accounted for only 500 head.

Top for a load of weighty steers was 7.40 cents per pound, and fair weight steers and heavies sold at 6¼ to 6¾ cents per pound. Small butchers took a few of the best heavies at the steady 7½ cents, but nothing higher than 7 cents per pound showed in the early sales of handyweight steers and heifers. Cows were more active than steers and made 4¾ to 5¼ cents for plain to medium. Butcher bulls, especially the heavy kind, were a slow sale from the start, the best bringing 4½ to 5 cents per pound. A couple of choice baby beeves sold at an outside price of 10 cents, and others anywhere from 7 to 9¼ cents per pound, or steady for the bulk.

Closed Lower

Movement to the scales was more active after mid-afternoon, with salesmen accepting lower prices, generally a quarter off on cows, and 25 to 40 cents per cwt. down on butcher cattle. With the lower price levels established, the weigh-up at 4 o'clock accounted for 1,500 head, out of 2,620 cattle in the day's receipt, and it looked as if 1,000 would be left for to-day as against a holdover of 600 at the close of the previous Monday.

In the store cattle division, only the odd small lot of light stockers went to the scales at 5.65 cents per pound, selling steady, quality considered. Trade in milkers and springers was slow, with $80 bid for the best.

Receipts yesterday were 2,620 cattle, 315 calves, 736 hogs and 505 sheep and lambs.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 27. — Firm foreign cables coupled with a fair export trade further bolstered Winnipeg wheat prices on yesterday's market. Values at the close were ¼ cent higher for all futures. Prices moved within a narrow range throughout.

There was evidence of a little selling of the May future by Chicago interests, presumably against purchases of the May at Chicago, unwinding spreads between the two markets.

The cash market was dull and featureless, with spreads unchanged from Saturday.

Light trading featured the coarse grains' section, and prices for the most part were firm.

GROVE DEFEATS CANOE COMPANY

Good Combination Accounts For 10-3 Victory on Part of Students.

JUVENILES IN CUP PLAY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27 (Examiner Correspondence.)— On Saturday evening at 7 o'clock The Grove defeated the Peterborough Canoe Co. team in a fast game full of thrills by a score of 10-3 with Braden Blewett handling the bell. The Canoe Company outfit had the weight and The Grove the team work, while the speed of both teams was about equal. There was a large attendance and the Peterborough team had some rooters with them who cheered them on when the pace began to tell.

The first period was marked by hard checking and Macrae, the Grove's trusty centre, scored twice.

The second period saw the heaviest scoring. Elmsley scored three and Carson and Bagg each scored one for the Grove while Mayette and Merritt scored for the visitors.

Elmsley scored two more in the third and Wright, the doughty defence man, planted another in Mayette's goal. Clancy scored for the visitors. The game was clean and fast and had some big moments and the victory lay mainly with team work against individual play. The Canoe Co. team have not got down to work as a team this season, but they have a husky crowd. Wright, Macrae and Elmsley showed the best form for the home team with Disney as ever a stone-wall of defence, in goal. Penalties were few and short. The following is the line-up:

GROVE NO. 2 WINS 6-4.

The second game in the Juvenile Hockey League for the Mackenzie Cup was played in the rink on Saturday and was attended by a good crowd in which the juvenile element naturally bulked large and tumultuous. The score was 6-4 in favor of The Grove No. 2 who played the Cubs. The speed and weight of both teams was about equal, but the team work of the winners was far superior and they played their positions to much better advantage. A tendency to "lone star" and "hog the puck" lost the Cubs many chances which otherwise might have meant gains. Magill, Carson and Dench were the strongest of the winners' team, while Theodore ('Red Light') Graham and Jerome ('Mickey') McFadden were outstanding among the Cubs.

Practice and combination play will put the Cubs on the map as there is real material. The referee was K. A. Mackenzie.

The first period was the big scene as far as scoring was concerned and The Grove scored four, Magill, Fletcher, Atwood and Dench being the players who scored while Graham scored two and McFadden one for the Cubs. In the second period the Cubs were not there in the scoring, but there was a general tightening up and The Grove scored two only, Magill and Dench putting them in. 'Red Light' Graham, who received a nasty cut in the face when the puck struck him during the second period, nevertheless played a strong game to the end and scored the only goal of the third period and being so near a second that many of the fans thought it was a bona fide counter.

The line-up was as follows:

The Grove—Goal, Miall; r. defence, Carson ii; l. defence, Atwood; centre, Dench; r. wing, Fletcher; l. wing, Magill; subs, Hepburn, Macdonald, Carter, MacPherson.

REGINA, Sas., Jan. 27.—(SNS).—Here's what a ten pound turkey will buy in rural Saskatchewan these days: One pound tobacco, six gallons of gasoline, one doctor's call, oil dipping for two sets harness, year's subscription to local weekly, or what have you?

The turkey has become a medium of exchange in rural regions of Saskatchewan. Turkey ranching is increasing in popularity and profit, with not so much favor as heretofore concerning the barnyard hen. Chickens were killed off by the thousands when hail storms swept central Saskatchewan last summer. Sturdier turkeys survived.

This winter good profits have been made by turkey ranchers and they still have a surplus of the big birds.

The turkeys are being used effectively to pay off the debts with small town business men. One garage man told this writer that his family were finally getting tired of Christmas dinners every day of the week but he had been satisfied with the manner in which his accounts were being squared. He was using turkeys to pay part of the wages to two of his garage employees.

Many country newspapers advertise that they will accept turkeys or fowl for subscriptions. Farmers contend that Saskatchewan will eventually become an outstanding producer of fine turkeys.

Natives of South Africa have a new craze for Japanese silks, and are using them for many purposes in which, in this country, cotton would be utilized.

MODERN, sweeping lines, a distinctive V-shaped radiator, handsome finishes and luxurious Fisher Bodies make the 1931 Pontiac a truly beautiful car.

Although it is a large car, a fine car, with many mechanical improvements, the 1931 Pontiac sells at lower prices. It is another outstanding General Motors achievement in motor car value.

All roads are smooth to the 1931 Pontiac because extraordinary efforts have been made to assure smoothness and quietness. There are over 40 points of rubber insulation throughout the chassis, to blanket engine vibration, muffle noise and absorb road shocks. Outstanding in this regard are the Inlox rubber spring shackle bearings that, among other things, eliminate 12 points of bothersome chassis lubrication.

Fisher Bodies have an improved, sloping, non-glare windshield. The windshield posts and cowl are formed in one piece, effecting weatherproof construction. Greater vision is attained through narrower windshield posts.

We urge you to see the 1931 Pontiac and to drive it. Your idea of 1931 motor car performance and value is not complete until you have experienced this fine car.

You may use the facilities of GMAC, General Motors' own deferred payment plan, to buy the 1931 Pontiac. And the liberal provisions of the General Motors Owner Service Policy assure your complete and continued satisfaction.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER.

In regard to the predicament in which a former member of the Peterborough police now finds himself, it would be well for the public generally to note the fact that the Police Commission, after investigating the circumstances, has unanimously and emphatically declared its confidence in the integrity of other members of the police department.

There is not the slightest tittle of suspicion involving any other police officer, and the fact that the unpleasant situation has been cleaned up by the police department on its own initiative is convincing proof if any were needed that the general morale and honesty of the force are beyond attack.

The Examiner in mentioning these things and in calling attention to the forceful resolution of the commission does so merely because when episodes like this eventuate it is so easy for those not familiar with the facts to voice unfair suspicions about men whose records should shield them against anything of the kind.

The case is a most regrettable and unfortunate one, and it should not be made worse by malicious and baseless stories reflecting upon other members of the police force whose reputation should protect them from calumny.

GOOD BUSINESS FOR CANADA.

The decision to have Sir George Perley represent Canada at the British Industries Fair, which is to be held in Buenos Aires in March, will be hailed with approval throughout the country.

The possibilities offered by Argentina as a market for Canadian products are so great that it will be generally regarded as good business for this country to exert every effort in making the Canadian representation at this big British fair as influential and impressive as possible.

Canadian manufacturers have enthusiastically acclaimed the project, and the exhibit of Canadian-produced and Canadian-made goods will be such as to command attention and admiration.

The presence of Sir George Perley, who has given frequent proof of his ability to serve Canada, will add strength to the Dominion's effort to secure a place in the splendid new field that is opening up in South America.

His experience as Canadian High Commissioner in London and his winning personality alike fit him for excellent work as the ambassador of the Dominion upon this occasion.

The fact that the Prince of Wales is making the long journey to South America to formally open the fair carries its own evidence of the outstanding importance of this huge event.

THE RADIO LEAGUE'S POSITION.

According to statements issued by the Canadian Radio League, the report that that body advocated a license fee of $30 for the operation of radio receiving sets in Canada is absurd.

The Radio League's proposal is that radio listeners should be charged an annual fee of $3.00, which with an advertising revenue of some $700,000 and a federal subsidy of a million dollars a year would, it is estimated, meet the cost of the nationally-owned radio broadcasting system advocated by the league.

It is but fair to the organization, which is agitating for a new plan of broadcasting in this country, to set forth its position, which briefly is as follows:

First, all direct advertising is to be eliminated from Canadian programs.

Second, the Government is to finance the erection of a number of 50,000-watt stations to ensure that every Canadian can get clear reception. The Aird report suggested seven such stations to cost $3,225,000. The league believes fewer stations would suffice.

Third, existing low-powered stations are to be appropriated, the owners compensated, and the equipment, if not obsolete, set up in regions not now served or retained for local broadcasts, such as sports, local elections, etc.—an important variation from the Aird report.

Fourth, the annual costs of the system are to be met by a listener's fee of $3.00, and the sale of time on the system to indirect advertisers offering sponsored programs, such as the railways and Imperial Oil.

Fifth, all stations in Canada are to be owned and operated by a national company, established by the Canadian people, and administered by a directorate of twelve leading representatives of business, educational and entertainment interests.

PROHIBITION AT WASHINGTON.

A new angle to the prohibition battle in the United States has developed with the introduction of the Howell bill, designed to strengthen enforcement in the national capital and make Washington a model for testing the enforceability of the Eighteenth Amendment.

According to the sponsor of the bill, the capital is a "sanctuary of the bootleggers," one liquor dealer alone having been arrested on fifty-four charges in a single year.

Senator Howell, who hails from Nebraska, declares that Washington is the best place in the United States to determine whether prohibition can be enforced.

Here is what he says:

"My investigation—and this is all based on facts—showed that 97 per cent. of the police in Washington have no prohibition enforcement duties whatever. There are only three or four prohibition agents in the entire District, ten miles square. Bootleggers operate without interference. They lead charmed lives. Why, Washington is a sanctuary for bootleggers.

"I found that bootleggers freely maintained storages of liquor in the city without interference. I found that not only was Washington a virtual sanctuary for stores of bootleg liquor, but that, professionally, high-class bootleggers led a charmed life, while the hazard of the common garden variety was nominal.

"I found that, contrary to law and the Constitution, persons of diplomatic status were securing the unlawful delivery in Washington of hundreds of thousands of quarts of liquor annually by virtue of permits and protection afforded by the executive branch of the Government.

"I found that one person claiming diplomatic status, but not residing in a legation, had thus secured the unlawful delivery on his premises of more than 5,000 quarts of wine, brandy and whiskey in one year. I found that diplomatic status had been successfully invoked for the release of a Washington Negro arrested on the street for the possession and transportation of whiskey admitted to be his own. He stoked the furnace and did other janitorial jobs at one of the legations.

"I found that from one foreign distillery was delivered in Washington, by virtue of executive permits and protection, some 13,000 quarts of diplomatic whiskey within a period of three months—the equivalent of twenty quarts for every diplomatic official and members of his family, including also maids, cooks, laundresses, chauffeurs and janitors enjoying diplomatic status in the city.

"I found that a local entertainment committee, in connection with a large convention recently held in Washington, deemed it necessary to budget 9,000 quarts of liquor for the delectation of delegates. Service was rendered upon telephone orders by an 'official bootlegger' and his half-pint assistant.

"I found that the hotels of the city and especially the great hostelries were hot-beds of liquor violation with never a raid for a prosecution of the principals involved."

HOOVER STANDS PAT.

President Hoover leaves no room for doubt in his acceptance of the findings of the Wickersham Commission when he says that it is his duty "to enforce the law with all the means at our disposal without equivocation or reservation." But while the President is clear cut in his statement, both wet and dry leaders in the United States are not so unanimous. The wets claim the report is the thin edge of the wedge by which prohibition will be repealed; the drys point to the document as being the bulwark upon which the Government may lay the foundation for a more intensive effort to enforce the law.

* * * *

The peculiar part of the findings is that all but one of the members of the commission apparently have agreed to sign the official majority report favoring retention of prohibition, and in almost the same breath, the majority of these members have signed minority reports in which amendments to the law are suggested. These amendments run all the way from a complete repeal of the legislation to the suggestion for the sale of liquor on a plan patterned upon modifications of the system in force in Sweden. There private corporations sell liquor under the supervision of the Government; a limited percentage of profit is allowed the private company, and the surplus is taken for the state.

* * * *

Whatever else may be said of the report, it must be admitted it is a fearless recognition of certain facts that have been spread throughout the United States during the past few years. Particularly striking is the paragraph which dwells on the difficulty of enforcing the law, in centres where the majority of public opinion is not in favor of enforcement. "The commission admits the efforts have not been as efficient as had been hoped. Various reasons are given, and the subject of graft is touched upon. That officers have allowed themselves to be bought is recognized as one of the most difficult parts of the attempts at enforcement.

Another factor working against enforcement has been the attitude of many in legal positions. Frequently attorneys, and even judges, have made public remarks deriding the prohibition law. It is only natural these utterances would have an effect on the people. If one of the laws on the statute books of the country could not command the respect of the judiciary, it naturally follows that many of the people would be inclined to scoff at the legislation. Mention is also made of the way in which parents have given poor examples to their children, and boys and girls have learned to drink in the homes.

But the commission does not stress only the handicaps of the law. It also lays its finger on what prohibition has produced in a constructive way for the nation. Under prohibition the commission finds the standard of living in the United States to have been improved. Also the production and efficiency of individual workmen has increased. Instead of spending money for liquor many of the people have been putting the same cash into improving the comforts of their homes, and they have benefitted directly.

* * * *

Of particular interest to Canadians is the finding of the commission that the action of the Dominion in prohibiting the export of liquor to the United States did not have the hoped for results. Instead of the liquor going across through the accustomed channels, the volume remained almost the same, and it was simply sent from Canada through circuitous routes until it reached its ultimate destination in the hands of the United States bootlegger, who distributed it to his customers. This section of the report will doubtless have an echo in the House of Commons at Ottawa during the coming session. There is likely to be some discussion on the possibility of repealing the export ban. This portion of the Wickersham report will be used by those favoring the idea of lifting the prohibition.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now that Toronto is to have "freedom of speech within the law," the Reds probably feel they are as bad off as ever.

And while the Toronto Communists complain that they are not allowed to talk, Mitchell F. Hepburn complains that the Attorney-General won't.

Mr. Bennett cannot at least say it of the newspapers of Canada that they are not giving him plenty of advice as to the necessity of curtailing expenditures.

Whatever other industries may feel, there is evidently nothing but optimism in the mining industry, according to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Federal Minister of Mines.

Premier Bennett is going to pay a visit to Washington, but too late to testify before the Faversham commission.

With more than 4,000,000 people out of work, Germany has decided to abolish the dole, which has been costing six hundred million dollars. The German Government now believes that expenditure can be used to greater advantage.

MR. FERGUSON

To Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The Montreal Gazette on the day of Mr. Ferguson's sailing from Canada gave him its editorial blessing. It referred to the brush at Toronto between Mr. Bennett and Mr. Ferguson.

It also stated that no public man in Canada had ever received equal testimonials of affection from all sides or more truly deserved them. Readers of the Gazette elevated their eyebrows. The editorial is plainly a notice to Mr. Bennett that if he thinks he is a bigger and better man than Mr. Ferguson, he is mistaken. We are settling down in this country to a struggle between the old-fashioned loyalists and the "Canada First" party which is a revival of the old "Canada First" party which Sir John sat on so effectually. The next election will be fought on this issue. The Bennett-Ferguson racket shows that plainly enough. Mr. Ferguson will come back and lead the loyalists. More power to him!

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In view of the fact that the temperance question may be removed from the political arena for the present time, the need of education along lines of the evils of in temperance is disturbing thoughtful minds, who have a vital interest in the present and future citizens of this fair Dominion.

The present Government legislation controlling the sale of liquor does not by any means settle the liquor question. When we consider the increased consumption of alcoholic beverages and the enormous amount of money spent on its purchase, we stop to consider will this Dominion with all its advantages and possibilities become a land of drunkenness.

There is evident indication that many of our young men and women, too, are sacrificing their nobility of life and dignity of thought through the degrading use of strong drink, not only is principle sacrificed, but health of the body impaired.

Health is one of life's greatest blessings and in this connection one of the first things we need to study is the health of our bodies and how it should be maintained. It is true that life is the most wonderful, beautiful and noble gifts we possess, and yet individuals of both sex poison their life blood with alcohol and other forms of evil which imperil in many cases the lives of the future generation.

It is also true that man is the highest order of God's creation and yet human beings have dared to think of this supreme power in their nature from a selfish point of view; from the point of view of their own pleasure and gratification, giving little study to nature and the laws of life. In many instances they have failed to realize the significance and sacredness of the inheritance which they have received in trust to pass on to future generations.

Our Dominion with its northern location is producing the finest type of youth of any country in the world. Shall their lives be blasted by existing forms of evil or shall they be given warnng and education that their lives may be safeguarded.

The pride of our fair Dominion as well as one of her greatest assets, should be youth, with glowing health, clear steady eyes, firm hands and erect figures, but this asset can be changed to huffiness, trembling hands, watery eyes and jaded features.

There is work for every home and church and every organization and agency that has the welfare of youth at heart to constantly instil into their minds the highest ideals.

Also editors could give more space in the press to this question of education. Their readers' interest would be aroused and it would help to clarify the thinking of the masses on this vital question.

Every child and every teen age boy and girl should be taught until they recognize and also to appreciate the knowledge of dangers that lurk in hidden evil which will appeal to them in fascinating forms.

Give youth to-day a vision of the larger life and its possibilities and when they come to the realization of this, they will make their contribution in some effective way toward the remedying of this existing evil.

Yours in the interest of Youth,

Thomas E. Sargent.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Michael was warmed by her delighted welcome. "My dear boy, how does this happen?"

He kissed her. "I am staying at Derekdale, and ran over before the others were up."

"You'll breakfast with me?"

"I've had my coffee."

"You'll want more than that after your ride."

She finished feeding the doves and ducks. The ducks were greedy but it was a sort of sedate greediness. "They always seem to me much better bred than chickens," Aunt Molly remarked, "that's why I keep them. They have manners and so have the doves."

He laughed and put his arm about her. "What a daer you are."

"Am I? Well, I like to hear you say it."

When they reached the house, breakfast was on the table—the hearty breakfast of farmer folk—country ham and fresh eggs, buckwheat cakes, the famous honey.

Michael ate with an appetite. All his doubts of the night had fled. He asked Aunt Molly, "May I talk to you about Virginia?"

"Of cousre."

"I am going to marry her."

"My dear boy, I guessed that long ago."

They sat a long time at the table talking of it. "You must come out here often when you are married," Aunt Molly said. "I'll lend the place to you for your honeymoon, and all my doves can coo for you." She was radiant with the thought of his happiness, and Michael was radiant. How silly he had been to doubt.

He told her what he had in mind. A camp in Maine, deep in the woods, adventuring voyages everywhere.

"But when will you work, Michael?"

"I don't need to work as I do now, Aunt Molly. I've tried to fill my life because of the empty days."

Aunt Molly laid her hand over his. She knew all about his wife. She had never wanted Michael to marry Helen. She said now, "You'll be happy with Virginia. She's a darling and she loves you."

When Michael was again in his car he rode along to the tune of that harmony: She's a darling and she loves you! In a few moments he would see her.

There was a truck coming toward him as he ascended a hill. Another truck tried to pass it. He was never sure how it happened, but something skidded. There was a crash and he brough his own car to a stop. Then he jumped out. The driver of one of the trucks was lying in the road. His head was cut and he was unconscious. Michael ran to him and picked him up.

"We must get him to a doctor or to a hospital," he said to the driver of the other truck. "I'll take him to town if you'll help me lift him into my car."

It was just an every-day episode and the man recovered. But Michael got back to Derekdale two hours later than he had planned. And when he got back there was a note in his room from Virginia. He read it and his structure of dreams toppled about him. It was very brief, just a few significant lines:

"Dear Michael:

I am leaving this morning. I am running away from everything. Even from you. Not because I want to, but because I must. Please don't try to see me. It will make it hard for me. It has been wonderful knowing you. Will you believe that and believe that I am always your friend—

VIRGINIA OLIPHANT."

As he finished reading, Michael was conscious of a sense of uncontrollable fury. He burned the note and went downstairs. He found a half dozen people gathered about the table and sideboard in the breakfast room. Rickey was there and Mart Van Duyne. Rickey did not speak to Michael, but Marty announced, "We've been to church."

Someone said, "I didn't know you ever went to church, Marty." Marty, smiling a little secret smile, received that in silence. She had gone to church because Rickey had planned it. "It will be a weird and wonderful experience going to church with a witch," he had told her.

Tony came into the room presently and went up to Rickey. The two spoke in low tones. Rickey seemed flushed and explanatory. Tony, with no laughter in his eyes, was asking questions. Michael, still consumed with dull rage, wondered what Virginia had said to Tony. He had, perhaps, seen her his morning, driven her to the station. Yet only last night she had said, "Michael, dear."

Jane Bleecker came down. She rarely stayed in bed as late as her feminine guests. She dropped into a seat beside Michael and outlined the plans for the day. Then she added, "We miss your sister, Rickey."

Rickey, smiling, threw over his shoulder, "Oh, yes," and went on talking to Marty.

Old Anthony who stood with his back to the fire, said cordially, "She must come again."

Tony said nothing. He too had had a note from Virginia. She had told him she was going away and that she hoped he wouldn't try to see her. "I can't marry you, Tony, and that's the end of it."

But it was not the end. Young Bleecker felt that he could bide his time. Virginia needn't think she could get rid of him with a gesture. Women had been known before this to change their minds. Now and then he had made them do it. He had liked the sense of conquest.

As he and Marty Van Duyne rode later over the frozen fields, he demanded, "What are you trying to do with young Oliphant?"

"I'm falling in love with him. He's unique. At this moment he is probably up aloft somewhere writing odes to my eyebrows."

"And you like that?"

"I think I do. If he had your money I'd marry him in a minute, Tony."

He laughed. "You don't mean that You are just saying it to hear yourself talk."

"I do mean it."

"He's too young for you."

"It's his youth I adore. He's like one of the tragic young gods burning altar fires before me."

When at last they came to a wood and walked their horses, Marty spoke of Virginia Oliphant. "What made her go home?"

"Heaven knows!"

"She didn't tell you?"

"Only that things had come up which made it necessary."

"Have you thought," and Marty's words seemed to tinkle in the thin air, "that it might be Michael McMillan?"

He turned on her sharply. "McMillan?"

"Yes. She's dead in love with him. Surely you know that, Tony."

"I don't. And neither do you."

Marty said nothing. She rode under the dark trees and thought of Rickey. If only he had Tony's money. But he hadn't and that was the end of it.

And just at that moment Rickey in the great room that had been given him, was getting out pen and paper. Here and now he would begin the book. It would be his own and Marty's—The Silver Witch. He wrote the title with a flourish. Then with deft strokes he drew a picture of Marty—not as he had ever seen her in life, but as he had seen her in his imagination. She sat on the edge of a pool with her knees drawn up to her chin and her arms around them. Her eyes were fixed on the pool from which a thin spiral of smoke seemed to ascend. He worked over the sketch for a long time and laid it aside only when it was time to dress for dinner.

After dinner he carried Marty off to the picture gallery. "I've got something to show you," he said.

He handed her the sketch of the witch by the pool.

She looked at it for a long time. "Am I like that?" she asked.

"You are, as I see you."

"But—there's something in the eyes." "That is not in your eyes? Yes, I put it there. Wait a minute while I write what I mean."

He turned the sketch over and wrote rapidly on the back. Marty watched him—the ruffled head bent down, the curve in the boyish cheek, the grace of the long figure . . . Shelley? Keats? Byron? Marty wasn't sure . . . but he had the same stuff in him as all the great young poets.

He lifted his head presently and read what he had written. "The silver witch said to the pool, 'Bubble and burn with the fire at your coo heart. For my heart is cool, yet there is fire within, and the smoke that ascends comes from the ashes of my old desires. They have burnt out and have left my heart clean.'"

Marty stared at him wonderingly. "Rickey, how did you know that?"

"That you've had love affairs? How could I help knowing? But you've always loved yourself more than anyone else."

"Well, why not? Then if I am disappointed I have only myself to blame."

He shook his head and bent down to write. When he again looked up he said, "Listen."

"And the witch said to the pool . . .

Let your smoke ascend and blind the eyes of my lover so that he may see me always beautiful even when age creeps upon me. Let me weave a spell about him so that when my eyes are dull and my hair falls out and my flesh folds into wrinkles!"

She stopped him. "Don't! You're dreadful."

He gave a triumphant laugh. "I'm not dreadful, and I've made you think. And why should you want to marry a man with money? You've enough of your own and I can do more for you than Tony Bleecker. He can only add a million to other millions. I can immortalize you in a book."

She tried to laugh at him. "How sure you are!"

"Why shouldn't I be sure?"

"No one knows what he can do until he proves it."

He threw back his head, his chin up, his eyes flashing. "With you for my inspiration!—"

Her voice shook, "Oh, Rickey, Rickey."

She insisted then on going downstairs. "If I stay," she said, "I'll be saying things I don't mean."

"You'll mean them some day," he had said with certainty. "You're mine forever, if you only knew it."

A Thought

PROSPERITY.

Wordly prosperity is frequently a mischievious evil, because it is apt to make men proud. "They come in no misfortune like other folk," says the psalmist, "and this is the cause that they are so holden with pride."—Prosperity is often a luscious poison.—Blair.

What To-day Means To You

"Aquarius"

If January 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this fate are from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The adverse periods are from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Disappointment and worry will result from the astrological influences in force on January 27th, and much will stand in the way of progress in both business and domestic life. It would well to ruthlessly cut through opposition, as the Stars favor new adventure. You can make it a historymaking day of your life.

Children born on this January 27th will lack self-confidence and will need the aid of a good education and special training in some pursuit to enable them to carry on in adulthood with ease and efficiency. They will have kindly, sympathetic and sincere natures.

If your birthday falls on January 27th, you are more of an autocrat than a democrat. It is difficult for you to associate with others on an equal footing for any length of time. Such links are either broken through your ambition, love of independence, or desire to lead or guide. You aliente your friends, consiously or unconciously, through your air of superiority. Partnerships do not favor you. Solo work is almost essential for one of your temperament, if peace and permanency are desired.

You do things quickly and unexpectedly, not always realizing the consequences until it is too late to stop or withdraw. In an emergency, you have all your wits about you. Tact and intelligence are both desirable factors—you possess the latter to a marked degree, but the former, not being a natural gift to you, will have to be acquired. Your conversation shows you to be a scholar, but it reveals that you are not a diplomat. Your words are both keen and cutting.

You stand the best chance of happiness attached to a companion with a passive and receptive temperament. Be you man or woman, you will be "boss." You always aim to be fair and square, and you are very generous to those who are near or dear to you. Those who lean on you, will find you to be a sturdy oak.

ROOM IS CROWDED

he was a very high type of man, and fearless in carrying out his work.

J. W. Selkirk of the firm of Selkirk and Elliott said he had known accused 6 years. His general reputation was good and of fine integrity.

Mr. Gordon said that this was one of the difficult cases to deal with and he realized that the man had taken an oath to assist in prevention of crime. Matthews is 32 years of age and the father of three children. Mr. Gordon called attention to the accused's past good conduct and fearlessness. "As Mr. Strickland said he had been a competent officer till time of temptation." He had purchased a home on which he was making small payments.

He was on night duty and had come across premises open and succumbed to temptation. It may be said that is nonsense but there is some justification. But Mr. Gordon submitted he is a young man, open to reform. Restitution is not yet made but provision would be made for that.

Mr. Gordon suggested that if a determinate sentence is given and restitution made in meantime, such a thing should be taken into consideration by the court. Mr. Gordon thought the interests of justice would be satisfied if he was sentenced to some corrective institution where he would not be associated with hardened criminals and he would be inclined to mend his ways.

Mr. Gordon spoke of the crushing blow to accused's wife, and of the bitter disappointment he has caused his fellow officers.

"Mr. McElderry said a case of this kind is very distressing. "Accused has been considered an upright and honorable officer, but on other hand Your Honor has to consider that in this breach of trust the offence is all the more serious."

He pointed out that the offences named in charges spread from January 1929 up to this year.

He had committed these crimes despite warnings from his chief, who was aware that the robberies had been committed on accused's beat.

Passes Sentence.

His Honor, in passing sentence, told Matthews to stand up. "It is distressing to find you in this position to-day. Not only is it distressing for you, but must be very distressing for the citizens of Peterborough, the Crown Attorney, your counsel and associates on the force.

"I do not desire to say anything to make you feel your position more keenly, but you, as police officer, had knowledge of the seriousness of the offence.

"When a person goes so far not only to take a thing but to break into a place made secure by its owner the offence is much more serious, and when made by police officer it is hard to find an excuse.

"Courts usually are very severe in such cases and those guilty are given maximum penalty of fourteen years.

"The policy of the law is that the interests of individual must be closely scrutinized. If I felt that you, Leonard Matthews, were an out-and-out criminal, I would have to perform my duty and put you away for a number of years. I cannot put you in that class. You have been an officer in this City of Peterborough and I am satisfied that what has been said in your behalf, has been said truly. You have pleaded guilty to eleven charges and your learned counsel, in an honest way, has said these charges do not cover all the offences.

"Temptation was there, no doubt, but you should have been able to resist these temptations. Your weakness in this respect is deplorable.

"It is a very sad situation. You are a very young man and while no doubt you should not get sympathy, no court could ignort the plea made for you and your wife and little children.

"My view in dealing with cases of this kind is that punishment is secondary to the interests of the prisoner when there is a hope that a man will turn over a new leaf and become a good citizen—more important than the interests of the State. By reformation not only puts a criminal on his feet but helps those near and dear to him; helps the district in which he resides and also the country.

"I am not going to brand you as a criminal beyond redemption. I always hope there is some good in a man and work to give it a chance to develop."

NEW YORK MART TURNS DOWN IN LATER TRADING

Advance Under Leadership of Merchandising Shares at Noon is Checked.

STUDEBAKER DIVIDEND CUT.

U. S. Steel Common Firm Despite Uncertainty of Earnings Report.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The share market again lost its courage to-day in this foggy and uncertain period of quarterly earnings statements and dividend declarations.

The stock list eased off right after the opening, rallied under leadership of the merchandising shares around noon, but again turned downward with the announcement of the sharp cut in the Studebaker dividend. The U. S. Steel earnings statement, to be issued after the close, still injected a note of uncertainty, but U. S. Steel Common was well supported.

Such favorite mediums of the floor traders as Auburn, Allied Chemical, Case, Eastman, and Worthington lost 2 to 3 points. Such issues as American Telephone, New York Central, National Biscuit, Electric Power and Light, American Can, Union Pacific, Air Reduction, Studebaker and Stewart Warner sagged about a point. U. S. Steel sagged ⅝, then recovered. Efforts to bid up some of the specialties such as National Distillers, Warren Bros., American Typefounders and New York Dock caused shortlived upturns.

CUTTER OFFICER WAS INTOXICATED

soon as the first shot was fired ducked to the engine room. I heard another and a third. Captain Cluett was alone in the pilot house, so far as I know, and I can't say on which shot he stopped our boat, but I am sure it was either the first or second. Whether it was one of these or the third that struck him I do not know.

Outside 12-Mile Limit

"So far as I could judge, our position was well outside the twelve-mile limit. I would place it at about 15 miles.

"I know of no blank shots fired at us.

The Coastguard boat was close to us all the time, and all three of the shots I heard struck us.

"The man in charge of the CG-145 boarded us and when he learned what had happened said he was sorry.

"I went to Captain Cluett's aid. He had rushed from the pilot house when he was struck and had fallen on deck. The wound was in his left leg just below the hip. He was still conscious. He had nothing to say to me about the shooting, but asked me to bathe his head and place a pillow so he could rest. I did this for him, and he was still conscious when he was taken away to the hospital.

"There was a lapse of about 15 minutes before the Coastguards-men decided to take Captain Cluett away. They seemed undecided what to do."

Asked if he thought the supposed delay might not have been caused by the fact that the cutter was awaiting wireless instructions, First Mate Anderson agreed this might have been the case.

WHEAT FOR FOODLESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (CP) — The Senate last night unanimously voted to turn over 20,000,000 bushels of the Farm Board's wheat to feed the hungry of the nation.

The resolution, proposed by Senator Capper, Repn., Jan., was adopted without a record vote on suggestion of eSnator Heflin, Dem. Ala.

It now goes to the house, where its fate is regarded as uncertain. Chairman Alexander Legge of the Federal Farm Board has approved the plan.

In all Europe only 2,721 miles of new highways were built last year.

Ottawa Slighted By English Atlas

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.). There's a map-maker in England who is not very well up on his Canada. An English-made atlas recently supplied to public school students here lists Montreal as the capital of the Dominion. Bringing the error to the attention of the City Council, Alderman R. G. Pushman opined that Ottawa had been seriously slighted in favor of Montreal.

TORONTO LIST HOLDS STEADY

Market Fluctuates Idly Within Narrow Compass—Slightly Easier Tone.

½ POINT SETBACKS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27. (CP)—Fluctuating idly within a narrow compass, the Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning presented a front unchanged from that of yesterday. If anything, stocks were easier to buy than to sell, price changes rather being on the downward than upward side. Still they were scattered widely and only in exceptional instances amounted to more than ¼ and ½ point.

Among those off slightly were nickel, off ¼ at 15 1-8, C.P.R., off ¼ at 41¾, Ford of Canada, off ¼ at 24, Distillers off 1-8 at 12.

Atlantic Sugar was still headed upward, selling ¼ higher this morning at 23. Gypsum, Page-Hersey, Walkers, Imperial Oil, International Petroleum, B.A. Oil were unchanged.

SOFTER TONE IN GOLD GROUP

Profit-taking General Throughout Mining Board in Forenoon Session To-day.

HOLLINGER ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27. (CP)—Profit-taking was general throughout the mining board in the forenoon to-day, with golds showing unusual softness.

Hollinger moved against the trend, gaining 5 to $8.10. McIntyre and Lake Shore were off a half each, Dome and Teck Hughes dropped 2 apiece. Mining Corp. lost 6 to $1.85. Wright-Hargreaves 4 to $2.18 and Vipond and Granada a cent each.

Noranda held firm but Waite Ackerman was off 15 and Nickel a like amount. Ventures eased 4 to 51 while balance of the Lindsleys were holding.

Ajax oil was strong in the oil, group registering an advance of 4 to $1.54. Home Oil recovered 3 to $1.73. Clericy and Acme Gas showed fractional recessions.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (Special to Examiner.)—"Just some of the boys making sure of a part of their profits," was the explanation given by one chap for the somewhat softer tendency noted among the goldstocks in to-day's session. Recent appreciation, ranging from 25 per cent among the higher priced stock to as high as 100 per cent in several of the lower priced issues, has made profits attractive to many traders who got in early, but brokers still report good buying power in the back ground with enquiry showing steady improvement.

Two new directors, both Detroit men, were added to the board of Chemical Research Corporation at yesterday's annual meeting in the automobile city. Reports that Pure Oil was erecting a large plant incorporating the Gyro process were confirmed by officials and it was stated that the Mexican eagle company had signed a contract for installation of a two thousand barrel a day plant. It is understood that no balance sheet was submitted.

The New York financial world publishes an article on Teck Hughes in which it states the company's mine has reached a stage where production yields profits more than $1,000,000 in excess of annual dividend requirements. Officials have declared. It is said, the average recovery will be $18 per ton, while costs are estimated at less than $7, indicating a profit per share of $11 per ton. As present facilities and the mine permit treatment of about 30,000 tons monthly, profits are running at the rate of $230,000 per month, or $3,990,000 per annum.

Officials of Pawnee Kirkland Gold Mines, Limited, are considering plans which include a capital reorganization and the acquisition of adjacent property in Lebel township where considerable work was done on the company's group to the south of Bidgood. The authorized capital of $3,000,000 has all been issued and a revamping of this structure will be necessary before further financing can be carried out.

It is reported that while the Dome mill was operated for a brief time at rated capacity of $1,500 tons, tailings losses were high and tonnage has been reduced temporarily to around 1,000 tons, while changes and adjustments in the flow sheet are worked out. Almost invariably mechanical difficulties are encountered in the working in of a new mill.

Another report around the street to-day was to the effect that Noranda is in the market for the acquisition of company which would form anew outlet for its copper production.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (CP)—Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents) Great Britain 4.85 7-16; France 3.91 7-8, Italy, 5.23¼, Germany, 23.76.

Canadian dollars at 1-8 of one per cent discount.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

There was practically nothing doing in the wheat market yesterday, volume of trading being the smallest in many weeks, and while there was no pressure, the demand was extremely limited and confined to locals. The market which firmed with prices about 1¼ cent above the close on Saturday Chicago July wheat was stronger with prices about 1¼ cent above the close on Saturday at top levels, while corn broke about 1 cent early, recovering half way later.

Export sales over the week end were estimated at around 250,000 bushels worked to the continent but this business was worked by the Pool and was not reflected in the local pit.

Liverpool market was firm, closing ½ higher in all contract months due to decreasing stocks in England to the firmness on this side. While North America shipped 546,000 bushels more wheat than the previous week, world shipments were 632,000 bushels smaller, and despite this factor, on passage stocks increased 3,080,000 bushels.

Rains were reported to have fallen in the Province of Punjab, which will be of great benefit to wheat but other provinces are still dry. The weather in Argentine is still unfavorable

The Canadian visible decreased 3,566,000 bushels while the United States Visible increased 964,000 bushels. The local demand for cash wheat was very quiet. Offerings were light and spreads unchanged. Only odd cars trading. There was nothing new in the flour trade which is still dull. It was reported new in the flour trade which is still dull. It was reported that Australia Government had ordered resumption of open trading because they had failed to secure to funds to back the banks in financing the wheat crop at the desired level. Dealers have resumed buying and shipping has been stimulated.

Country marketings Saturday were 517,000 bushels, as against 242,000 a year ago.

Coarse grains—All firmer to-day Liquidation appears to have run its course and there was no pressure to sell to-day. Cash markets all dull and confined to the odd car of oats and barley from Eastern Canada for feeding purposes. Oats closed ¾ to 7-8 higher, barley 5-8 to 1 1--8 higher and rye 3-8 higher. Liverpool cables due 1-8 to ¼ higher.

REAL TREAT COMING

"The Midnight Maids, a noted organization comprising 35 people, will come to the Grand Opera House, for one night only (Thursday, Jan. 29). Included in this company are some of the most famous musical comedy and vaudeville stars in the country — such names for instance as Lefty Levine, noted Hebrew comedian. Marion Wakefield, beautiful soubrette. Babette, diminutive and lovely singer and dancer, Florence Oxford, Johanna Slade, Eva Chaffin, Bunny Whitlock, the Lewis Sisters, Paul Workman, Mel Melvin. These are but a few of the names of the noted principals in this production. And directing is Frank Wakefield. There is a chorus of young and lovely ladies gorgeously costumed. There is colorful scenery, and a host of the most delightful assortment of comedy skits, dances, solo and ensemble, songs that are new, spicy and up-to-the-minute and sure to please.

OWNER WILL TRY TO RECOVER GUNS

Maj. F. Toohey Claims Sequoia Importing Company Conducts Legitimate Business.

50 GERMAN RIFLES SEIZED.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Steps to recover possession of guns were begun here to-day on behalf of the Sequoia Importing Company. Over 50 German-made rifles, nearly all of 22 calibre, and 50,000 rounds of ammunition were seized.

Major Francis Toohey, 15th Coast Artillery, United States Army, stationed at Kamehamera, Hawaii, has announced by cable that he is planning to take action against those responsible for the raid on the company's office in Detroit Thursday last, when Mrs. Toohey and a man named Silver, believed to be her uncle, were taken into custody and a quantity of guns and other articles seized.

Gerald McKeough, K.C., of Windsor, is acting for the company, and Major Toohey in connection with the seizure here. He states Major Toohey emphatically declares the business conducted by the company was perfectly legitimate both in Canada and the United States.

lows up at Guelph or any place else, but simply say that here is an unusual condition right here at home that we propose to deal with."

If he had the power of Mussolini, Dr. Christie remarked he would set about bringing together the rural and urban sections of this district, so that both would realize the desirability of buying from each other. He reminded the business men present that unless the people of Peterborough bought the products of the farms of this district, the farmers would not be able to come into town and buy the things they need, and advised a conference to put the whole matter on a business-like co-operative basis.

To the farmers generally, Dr. Christie gave the advice that in the present crisis they should stick to the branch of agriculture they knew best. The dairy farmer should carry on with his dairy herds; the poultrymen should continue in the poultry business. One great weakness of Canadian agriculture, he pointed out, had always been that there were too many farmers who plunged into something they know nothing about when the market looked good, and then got out again when there was a slump. "And usually they get in at the wrong time and out the same way," commented Dr. Christie.

Stimson Subsidiaries Declared Bankrupt

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27. (CP)—Associated Development Co., Lt., and the Grand Central Market, two subsidiary organizations of the G. A. Stimson Co., Ltd., were to-day declared bankrupt by W. J. Reilley registrar of Bankruptcy at Osgoode Hall.

G. T. Clarkson was appointed custodian in both cases. In each case two petitions had been fyled nominating in each one another custodian Mr Reilley ruled that in view of the interlocking circumstances of the Stimson Co., the same custodian should be appointed so that he might work out a comprehensive scheme for all of the companies if possible.

Creditors' meetings of the companies will be held consecutively beginning Feb. 5.

The taking of the census will be carried out by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, and examinations are to be held shortly for more than seven hundred clerks who will be required to assist in compiling the information gathered by the field workers. The field workers will number about 15,000.

SPLIT DEVELOPS

Stormy Scenes

Stormy scenes have already occurred in the House of Representatives. Hon. J. G. Latham, leader of the Opposition, having flatly declined to serve on any committees of which Mr. Theodore is a member. The opposition is expected to refuse to recognize Mr. Theodore, who is not taking office immediately.

The Prime Minister has explained that Mr. Theodore's services are needed in the present financial crisis. He also believed that re-entry of Mr. Theodore in the Cabinet would lead to a closing up of the gap between the moderate and extremist sections of the party, but it was shown to-day that the Prime Minister was over-optimistic in this regard.

PAINTER MAKES DISCOVERY.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, January 27. — The Reichenberger Zeitung to-day said Hans Gritz, Czechoslovakian academic painter, has succeeded in perfecting a method for reproduction of colored designs by purely thermic means to fabrics at an extremely low cost. The paper expressed the opinion that the invention would entirely revolutionize the printed textile industry.

99 RINKS ENTERED.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27.—(C.P.)—Enthusiasts of besom and stane will attend the Toronto curling bonspiel, to be held on Feb. 16 and already 99 rinks from many parts of Canada have sent in their official entries. Feb. 7 has been set by the committee as final day for entries, but the list of 144 rinks is expected to be completed before that time.

Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

A general shake-up was registered last night at the Duffus Academy when the ten teams in Group Four of the C.G.E. hammered the maple in their weekly scheduled battles. Test No. 1 league leaders were handed the small end of a 6-2 decision, the Switchboard No 2 team carrying off the laurels. Both teams bowled the first game with only four men but finished the other two with a full complement. J Cooper with a three-game total of 607 and W. Cordery with 551 were mainly responsible for the Switchmakers' victory. J. Quinn contributed a 212 single. For the Test Men, Schmidt and Brown were the only high scorers securing 225 and 203 respectively.

Switchboard	711	688	999	2398
Test No. 1	590	891	835	2315

The Test. No. 2 aggregation turned the tables on the team from the Automatic Screw Machine Department, handing the latter a 6-2 trouncing, in a nip and tuck affair that was featured by some very careful gunning. Jennings with 234, 212 and 177 and Mahood with 148, 206 and 232 were the heavy hitters for the winners.

Automatics	851	731	769	2351
Test. No. 2	756	911	993	2660

The Machine Shop turned back their old rivals from the Industrial Control Department after a hot argument that uncovered some clever pin toppling. Murphy clipped off 242 for the Control Gang to take high single in this battle, while G. Killingbeck carried the Machinists with 211 and 216.

City League.

A 689 count by Freeman and even bowling by the other Canadians sent the Big Five down without a point, the first drubbing they received this season. Curvin's 671 and Thomas' 667 were of no avail against the 3290 pins of the winners.

The Belmont Club were forced to concede one point to the determined Brintons. A heavy night's work by Tommy Holyman and "Doc" Green of the Clubmen helped pile up a big score, Holyman bumping off a 312 single for 772 total and the Doc helped himself to a 303 single to chalk up 700. George Dodgson of the losers held his own with the former pair counting 715.

Fred Hickey was all geared up in the Lucky Strike-Night Hawk tussle. He introduced himself with a 355 single and 794 count for his three games and Vince O'Connell urged him on with 719. Steve Elliott and Fawcett of the Night Hawks brushed off 656 and 679 to make the games very close.

Rangers took the Cogs on and found them just as tough as the advance reports stated. Each team took two points. Bill Prest's 757, Wilson's 674 and Batley's 616 against Bill McGee's 656, Marsden's 640 and F. Jones' 634 left the outcome in doubt till the last ball was rolled.

Westclox went into the lead, breaking even with the Bowlrites. After losing the first two games they came to life with 1299 ringer on the third. Dave Ahern, Bantle and Grant dug into the woodpile with 757, 696 and 647. Frank Wood and Vince Anthony made it interesting with 765 and 646.

Mercantile.

The Mail Carriers ran into some big time when they tackled the Brintons. For the second time this season the latter team cut loose, their 3146 pinnage including a 1225 single game was made up of fine scores by J. Sweetman's 718, J. Steward's 664 and H. Northrop's 641. Ray Bennett of the Mail Men cut down 628.

Legions got the jump on the Batchelors winning the first game, but Jack Playford's 656 and Ernie Guppy's 630 gave the latter team six points. Blodgett of the Legions hit 625.

Johnsons had it easy, getting a bye to win eight points.

Ten Pins.

It's about time somebody took it into their heads to stop this Bowlrite team. So far they have shown no respect for the opposition. With clean sweeps over De Laval, Lucky Strikes and Greenhorns and a slight loss of two points to Chief Gimbletts' Has Beens, they have chalked up 30 points. Tommy Holyman seems right at home at this pastime and at present has Galbraith, Sweetman, Farnell and Anthony thinking the same way. They will meet their stiffest opposition in Bert Duffus' all-star aggregation, who they will likely be drawn against this Saturday.

The nearest rivals to the Bowlrites, the De Laval, have rounded into a high class outfit and the veteran Has Beens have been cutting into the big sticks for some fine scores. The rest of the teams seem satisfied to wait till the deep snow comes before they start to work in earnest.

Four Games To-Night In South-End League

Two bantam and two juvenile games will be played to-night at the Sacred Heart Rink. Fosters and Canucks begin at six o'clock, and at seven the other bantams, Ravens and Athletics, come on. The juveniles start at eight with Canucks and Raybestos opposing each other, and the final game will see Tigers and St. Peter's in action at nine.

...OSED ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CANADIAN YACHT CLUBS

Letter Sent by Commodore of R.C.Y.C. to All Canadian Clubs.

UNDER CENTRAL CONTROL

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1931.)

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—In his effort to establish a system of national control for Canadian Yachting, Commodore George H. Gooderham of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto, premier yachting club of the Dominion of Canada has forwarded the following letter to all outstanding Canadian yacht clubs and organizations:

Dear Sir:

The possible need for some distinctly Canadian yachting association that could be recognized as nationally representative, has been the subject for quite a lot of discussion among yachtsmen here, largely as a result of developments in the yacht racing world during the last few years.

The matter becomes quite prominent from time to time when typically international yacht races are held and Canada is not represented by any national entry.

For example, when most of the yachting nations competed on Long Island Sound for the Scandinavian gold cup—emblematic of the six-metre yacht supremacy—our public insistently asked through the press, 'Why was Canada not represented?"

After the recent races for the 'America's cup', a great movement appeared to be under way in the press of Canada to organize some means whereby Canada might challenge for that trophy in the near future.

And now we have to consider the international yacht races to be held in connection with the olympic games at Los Angeles in 1932.

The truth is that we have no Canadian yachting body that is sufficiently representative to make a national entry in any such events.

Practically all our clubs are affiliated with racing associations composed of both Canadian and United States clubs, and while this arrangement is a natural and most convenient one for the purpose of local or district racing, it does not provide for many aspects of the sport in a strictly national sense.

Promote Sport.

It has been urged also that the time has come to promote and develop a distinctly national character in our yacht racing activities and co-ordinate them through the medium of a national body preferably composed of our active yacht clubs from coast to coast.

We have been reminded of Canada's past records in shipbuilding when her sailing ships were to be found on every ocean; the fame of her Nova Scotia fishing fleets; the extent of her merchant marine; and her record past and present in building and racing yachts; it is held that all these form a most proper background for the development of a national yachting spirit.

These and other considerations in dictate the desire in many quarters to have some so-called "national authority" to be representative of Canada as occasion may require, and to provide means for acting in behalf of her yacht blubs. Such an association presumably would be incorporated by charter of the Dominion government, and would seek recognition from the International Yacht Racing Union as Canada's representative body for national purposes.

It has been suggested that it should adopt as official and racing rules agreed to by both the N.A.Y.R.U. and the Y.R.A. so that these rules should acquire a status in Canada that is now lacking because no sufficiently representative Canadian body is in existence to sponsor them.

It would not interfere in any way with existing racing associations which already control local and district yacht racing. If it could succeed in fostering a Canadian yachting spirit; in establishing the status and authority of a uniform racing code; in sponsoring entries for international racing event and providing the machinery for selecting such entries, and in general serving as a medium for the Canadian yacht clubs to work and act together for the advancement of the sport, it should be well worth while.

The Royal Canadian Yacht Club is taking the liberty of bringing this matter to the attention of our Canadian yacht clubs in the hope that they will give it full consideration, and that they will favor the club with their respective views.

Should the project meet with the widespread support necessary for its success, the R.C.Y.C. would gladly offer its services to initiate such further steps as may be required to get the movement under way.

Any suggestions as to the basis on which such an organization might best be formed would be most welcome. In the meantime, for the purpose of giving a lead to such suggestions we attach a memorandum outlining a few features that have been proposed as a structure for a constitution.

Respectfully submitted,
Geo. H. Gooderham,
Commodore, Royal Canadian Yacht Club.

With this letter, Commodore Gooderham also encloses a tentative list of articles proposed for the constitution and suggests that the organization be called "The National Association of Canadian Yacht Clubs."

The clubs communicated with by Commodore Gooderham are as follows: National Yacht and Skiff Club, Toronto, Ont.; Oakville Club, Oakville, Ont.; Parkdale Canoe Club, Lakeshore Blvd., Toronto, Ont.; Quebec Yacht Club, Louise Basin, Quebec, Can.; Queen City Yacht Club, Sunfish Island, Toronto, Ont.; Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, Belleville, Ont.; St. Andrews Yacht Club, St. Andrews, New Brunswick; St. John's Yacht Club, St. Johns, Quebec, Can.; Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Dorval, Lake St. Louis, Quebec, Can.; Toronto Canoe Club, Dowling Ave., Toronto, Ont.; Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, Vancouver, B.C.; Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Uplands, Victoria, B.C.; Bras D'Or Yacht Club, Baddeck, Nova Scotia; Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Centre Island, Toronto; Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club, Sydney, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia; Chester Yacht Club, Chester, Nova Scotia; Cowishan Bay Yacht Club, Vancouver Island, B.C.; Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, Hamilton, Ont.; Royal Kennebeccasis Yacht Club, Millingeville, N.B.; Kingston Yacht Club, Kingston, Ont.; Royal Lake of the Woods Yacht Club, Winnipeg, Canada; Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

BUTTER AT 10 CENTS A POUND DAIRY PRODUCTS HELP LITTLE

Saskatchewan Farmers Get But Third of Former Price For Eggs.

HEART-RENDING TALES.

By Wilfred Eggleston.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1931.)

HAZENMORE, Sask., Jan. 27.—In the fifty-mile stretch of prairie between here and the Montana boundary there is probably more destitution than in any area of similar size in Saskatchewan.

A train of disaster which began with a series of frightful hailstorms in 1927 wiping out vast acreages of wheat, culminating in the drought of 1930 and the present unprecedented low prices for farm products, explains the extreme penury of this region. There are aggravating circumstances peculiar to this area also.

It was opened up more recently than the country to the east, and the settlers are not so well established. Many farmers are forty and even fifty miles from the nearest railway station, and hauling costs have been a heavy burden. Drought and hot winds were so severe this summer that even vegetable gardens were a failure, and the farmers have no stores in their cellars. The country is bald prairie, with no natural fuel, and not a stick of timber nearer than a hundred miles.

Some farmers with a couple of cows and a little flock of chickens were congratulating themselves in the late fall at the prospect of being able to buy groceries throughout the winter with their butter and eggs, but the latest quotation for dairy butter is ten cents a pound, and eggs are only bringing from 15 to 20 cents a dozen at the store. A year ago butter was 30 and eggs 50 to 60. Even with cheap feed, butter costs the farmer more than 10 cents a pound to produce.

A collector for a farm implement company called on a farmer in that area this fall hoping to get something on a note which was overdue. The farmer explained that he hadn't a cent but invited him in to dinner. The implement collector found the family sitting down to a table on which there was only a pot of soup made out of Russian thistles, a common weed of this locality. They had not even flour in the house. The implement collector talked no longer about a payment on the machinery note. Instead, before he left he pressed a five dollar bill into the farmer's hands, and told him to buy groceries with it.

Boiling Gophers For Food.

Before I reached Hazenmore I had been told of families in that district boiling gophers for food. Now this, I should explain, is not a new tale on the prairie. As a boy, reared in country very similar to that south of Hazen more, I had heard stories of gopher eating during particularly 'hard times', but I had never come into actual contact with such practice. The gopher is more closely allied to the squirrel than the rat, and except for his cannibal ways there is no reason why he should not be palatable. I questioned Mr. Spicer very closely on this point; he said that he also had only hearsay evidence; he had been told of a family which had been killing them and packing them away in salt for the winter.

"I know personally of families subsisting on a very limited diet," he said. "Bread and syrup, with a few potatoes for variety, is not uncommonly the whole menu for days at a time."

Pastor Rondeau related to me some of his personal experiences. Driving south of Woodrow after the bad snow storm of last October, he had seen children wearing nothing warmer than a gunny sack into which holes had been made for arms and legs.

"A woman came driving into Woodrow alone with a horse and buggy a few days ago," Mr. Rondeau went on to relate. "She had been driving from early morning till late evening, a distance of 30 miles. She had left her husband, who was lying sick in bed, and her eleven children, to come to Woodrow in search of clothing which she had heard was being distributed by the United Church. The pastor at Woodrow, Mr. Dawson had already been acquainted of her case, and the women of the church had laid out a variety of garments for her. The delight of the woman when she saw clothing suitable for the whole family was really pitiful to see. Tears came into her eyes and she almost broke down. Next morning she set off joyfully for her home 30 miles away, with one big bale in the back of a buggy, and another piled up beside her in front."

Extreme hardship, according to Mr. Spicer, is much more common than is generally realized. 'Most of these people are reduced for the first time in their lives to ask for help, and only the direct necessity drives them to it," he observed.

Here, also wealthy farmers have been reduced in two years to penury. Mr. Rondeau recited the case of a farmer whose home had cost $15,000 and was the wonder of the countryside. Back in 1927 when hail struck the land, and church finances were seriously affected he came forward and increased his usual church subscriptions from $275, to $400. To-day that man is bankrupt. Another successful farmer came down from Bateman to Woodrow a few years ago, paid $5,000 cash on a $14,000 farm. He has just been foreclosed upon, and with his wife and child is on the street."

Pleased With Boat

Following a trial trip in the speedboat, 'Miss England II," Kaye Don (above), famous English automobile driver, evinced his satisfaction and approval of the reconditioned boat which carried Sir Henry Segrave to his death last year. After the trial spin, when the boat travelled at more than 100 miles an hour, Kaye Don departed for home to prepare for his trip to Buenos Aires.

DO NOT PROFIT BY EDUCATION

So Declares Micmac Indian Discussing the Problems of His Race.

MONEY IS WASTED.

TRURO, N.S., Jan. 27.—Claiming that "trapping, basket and axe-handle making" are the natural trades of his people, an Indian of the Truro Reserve, writing under the nom de plume "Glooscap," expressed his views in the letters To the Editor Column of The Truro News on the proposed Indian College to be built at Shubenacadie, N.S.

"Not very long ago," the letter states, "I was asked what I thought of our some thousand dollars Indian College at Shubenacadie where the final touches of our long drawn 'civilization' is to be given, where everything 'Indian' is to be forever obliterested or cast into the Bottomless Pit. I was told, in less than ten years' time, some smart young Indians can become priests, doctors, and lawyers, young squaws, school teachers, stenographers and salesladies llust like the Whites to-day.

"Remembering my own experience of the effects or consequences of White Man's education upon an Indian and knowing how unchangeable Lo The Low Indian is, I had to utter one of my great-great Grand Father's grunts and prayed to our old Father Glooscap to come and save us which I hope he will do, for to be an Indian is to be forever in constant state of being nothing more than a looker on, longing for the good things of this world which he sees but never can get. It is nearly forty years since the Indians schools were introduced in all our Reservations in Nova Scotia. Millions and millions of dollars have been spent to educate 'The Indian.' To-day we have not one single Injin who can earn his bread and butter through or by the use of his pen.

"As some one said three months after an Indian Priest is ordained and Indian Doctor and Italian Lawyer graduatesyou will find the three working together at baskets and handles.

The modernism instead of improving the condition of Micmac Indians in Nova Scotia, is playing havoc with them, and everything else 'Indian.'

"Our last Christmas in our Reserve here was a modern one. Go to Church in the morning. Go back to your own house, enjoy your own dinner. If any Indian did it sixty years ago no prayers could have saved his lost soul.

"For sixty years ago an old Indian Christmas was all 'Indian,' all saucy whites, including Priests were excluded from the Holy of Holies where feast upon fests raged from a day before Christmas until New Year. A New Year was always a reconciliation and kissing day. So our modern Indian Christmas here was a mere shadow of our former ones."

FIND MOONSHINE NEAR COBOCONK

Two Men Arrested on Charges of Having Liquor Illegally.

BOTH BEEN UP BEFORE.

LINDSAY, Jan. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Otto and Roy Weaver of Coboconk, who a year ago were arrested on charges of operating a still, have again been arrested on charges of having liquor illegally. The arrest was made by Excise Officer T. R. James and Canadian Mounted Police Officer Jennings of Peterborough.

It was while looking for a still, which the authorities believed was the property of the young men, that they came across the moonshine—five gallons in all. The officers failed to locate the still after an extensive search. The accused will come before Police Magistrate Jordan on Friday morning.

GROUND PLANS ARE COMPLETED FOR THE CAIRO-CAPE AIR ROUTE

27 Main Air Stations Down African Continent Ready for Opening of Great Empire Line.

SPECIAL PLANES

LONDON, Jan. 27. (By the Canadian Press)—The first weeks of 1931 will see the launching of one of the greatest enterprises in the history of commercial aviation—the establishment of the world's longest organized airway over 8,000 miles of route between London and Cape Town. Early in the new year Imperial Airways propose to open first sections in Africa of this great new trunk air line, which will connect at Cairo with the present England-India air mail service. Big land and marine air liners will ply regularly over the deserts, great lakes, rivers and jungles of the vast African continent. For the first few months the aeroplanes are scheduled to fly from Cairo as far as Mwanza, on Lake Victoria of Kenya Colony and Tanganyika Territory.

The entire Cairo-Cape airway, measuring 5,700 miles and spanning Africa from extreme north to farthest south, will be in operation from midsummer next year. Passengers will then be able to get from London through to Cape Town in 11 days, as compared with 17 days by the swiftest combination of organized land and water transport. In the first phases the airway is to be operated only by day, but after a few months of regular flying the air-liners should travel back and forth by night and day and the most up-to-date forms of night flying equipment are installed at the landing grounds along the route.

27 Air Stations.

Between Cairo and Cape Town 27 main air stations are established, linked by about 30 intermediate landing grounds where regular calls will not be made but which will be instantly and always available for use when needed. At several of the main stations hotels have been erected for aerial travellers, and ground organizations at each station includes aeroplane hangars, workshops, wireless and weather offices, and quarters for the airway staff. Seventeen main stations have full wireless equipment, ensur ng that all along the route the air liners will never be out of wireless touch with one of these stations. Long and short wave communication is to be used and messages between air-craft and ground stations will be sent both by telegraphy and telephony.

The Handley Page (Type 42, largest passenger-carrying land 'plane in the world, has continued successful trial flights at Radlett Aerodrome, Hertfordshire. This immense biplane, built to be fitted with luxurious accommodation for 38 passengers in two large saloon cabins and with capacious holds for mails and urgent freight, has risen with ease from the ground carrying its full designed load, the weight of machine and burden being nearly 13 tons. Even under this great weight the big 'plane rose from the ground after an astonishingly short run and handled easily and well in her evolutions over the flying ground. These machines, eight of which are ordered by Imperial Airways for the operation of their European routes and of the trunk airways to India and South Africa, are likely to prove the most economical big aircraft yet constructed. Tentative calculations show cost of operation of a few cents a mile for each passenger carried.

The Type 42 (also styled "Hann bal") measures 25 feet from the ground to the highest point of the upper plane. The length from nose to tail is 86½ feet, while the span of the upper plane is equal to the aggregate span of five light aeroplanes. The landing wheels are 21 inches wide, seen from the front, and five feet in diameter. The weight of the machine, fully laden, is 28,500 pounds in the Western Type (intended for flight in the European routes with spcae for 38 fare-paying passengers) and 27,250 pounds in the Eastern Type, which has the passenger adccommodation cut down to make room for additional mails and baggage.

With four air-cooled radial "Jupiter' motors of 490 h.p. each the machine cruises at 95 miles an hour and attains a top speed of 116 miles an hour. Rate of climb at sea level is 677 feet a minute and the service "ceiling," the greatest height which the 'plane can reach in practical flying is 12,450 feet. The replacement of these engines in some of the planes by four 555 h.p. "Jupiter" motors, equipped with superchargers, increases the cruising speed by 10 miles an hour, raises the maximum speed to 129.5 miles an hour and the rate of climb at sea level to 828 feet a minute.

The Type 42 is designed to fly level at 6,000 feet on the power of any three motors. Risk of forced landing caused by failure of one motor is, therefore, small and, when flying on established routes, the air liner should never fail to reach an aerodrome or emergency landing ground. The safety factor of the huge machine is further improved by a comparatively low landing speed of 50 m.p.h. while even with the low-powered engines the machine is able to clear an obstacle 65 feet high after a take-off run of 500 yards. These figures mean that the biplane, in spite of its great size, may be flown off and into any ordinary aerodrome without difficulty.

Arrives in New York

LAVAL LINES UP CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Pierre Laval, who has been working several days to assemble a new French Cabinet, succeeded definitely in lining up his Ministers at 1.30 o'clock this morning.

The action of the Radical Socialists make it certain that if M. Laval was to succeed, his Ministry must be formed on the Centre and Right, and would thus be similar to that of Andre Tardieu, which was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies on Dec. 4.

Much Benefit Derived From I. T. Publicity

Another example of the service and promptness of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce in answering enquiries has been brought to the notice of the Examiner. An American who owns a summer home, and property, on Belmont Lake, wrote in asking for the whereabouts of a boat building company in a village on Stoney Lake by the name of Laveville or Lakefield. The following is a reply to the information gratuitously given by the Chamber:

"I wish to thank you for your assistance in locating a boat builder at Lake field, and also in supplying the names of other builders there. It is most pleasing to know that your free service is so promptly given. I thank you, and shall place an order in your locality.

Yours very truly, ——"

And so it is not only this city that benefits by the publicity and information service of the Chamber and the Trent Waterways-Iroquois Trail Association.

In a recent letter received by the Chamber of Commerce, it was learned that Walter Darling and F. G. Lovett of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations would be in Peterborough on February 3.

A noon meeting will most likely be held, though nothing definite has been arranged as yet. However, Mr. Darling will address the employees of the city in the evening.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green ALL-BRAN package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

SHOULD THE CHILDREN EAT IT

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is far more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food now seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about those advertisements first.

Chest COLDS

—yield to this double-action salve

When colds reach the bronchial tubes it is important to start Vicks double-action treatment at once.

Vicks begins its twofold relief the moment it is rubbed on the throat and chest:

(1) Like a poultice or plaster, it acts through the skin, thus relieving tightness and soreness.

(2) Its healing ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat, and breathed in direct to the inflamed parts.

This method of treating colds originated with Vicks. Today, the whole trend of modern medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

SOCIETY ENJOYS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

East Peterborough Agricultural Society Officers Re-elected at Annual Meeting.

NORWOOD, Jan. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The annual meeting of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday in the Council Chamber, when the financial report, which was most encouraging, showed that there was a balance on hand of $8509, after paying out the largest sum in the history of the organization for prizes, which amounted to $2,047.

The officers of the previous year were all re-elected and two new directors were added to the Board in the persons of H. McLaughlin and George Would.

Much disappointment was felt among the officers when Wellington Burgess who was recently appointed secretary, announced that he had decided not to accept this office. On motion, it was decided to advertise for applications for the position.

Y.W.A. Meets.

The first meeting of the year of the Norwood Presbyterian YWA was held at the home of Miss Grace Dean on Thursday evening when the program was in charge of Miss Dean. The scriptural lesson was read by Miss Rhoda Ennes and Mr. John Rogers contributed a solo. The topic was taken by Miss Annie Ferguson and included a chapter from the study book, "Over the Seas to China," also a chapter from "Ambassadors of Good Will."

Miss Lean Rogers gave a reading and at the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Manuscripts of the novels "Lotnair" and "Endymion," by Disraeli, were sold in London recently for $10,250.

REV. G. E. DOWNING ELECTED PRESIDENT

Norwood Horticultural Society Holds Annual Meeting in Public Libray.

NORWOOD, Jan. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. G. E. Downing was re-elected president of the Norwood Horticultural Society at the annual meeting held on Friday in the Public Library.

Rev. Mr. Downing occupied the chair and gave an outline of the work accomplished during the year. Many improvements have been made in different places which, before the society decided to plant flowers and shurbs, were most unsightly, indeed. One especially worthy of notice was the filling in and beautifying the corner of Queen and Colborne streets, opposite the Presbyterian church.

The members decided to continue this splendid work during this year, by making a new triangle flower bed opposite the Metcalfe block and at the Public Library.

The Society decided to plant and keep the flower pot in the cemetery as a memorial to the late J. E. Roxburgh, who was the promoter of this spot and maintained it for the past few years. A letter of appreciation was received from Mrs. Roxburgh for the floral tribute sent by the Society.

J. E. Thompson, secretary, reported cash on hand of $93.72. The grant last year from the Government was $94 as compared with $34 the previous year.

Rev. Mr. Downing and J. E. Thompson were appointed delegates to the Horticultural convention at Toronto on February 12 and 13.

The following are the officers for 1931: President, Rev. G. E. Downing; Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, 1st vice; Mrs. H. Keefer, 2nd vice; J. E. Thompson, secretary; directors, Mrs. E. C. Squire, J. F. Elliott, D. Tucker, Mrs. J. E. Roxburgh, Mrs. D. B. Cutcliffe, R. G. Lawlor, B.A., G. A. Brethen, Rev. O'Conor-Fenton, Miss Pauline Weir and Mrs. P. M. Grover.

Buttered Whole Wheat Toast

Hot Raspberry Biscuits*
Chase & Sanborn's Tea

For afternoon tea, there is nothing nicer than these same Raspberry Biscuits, shaped daintily with a tiny cutter—split, buttered and served piping hot, with a cup of perfect tea!

Miss Caldwell says: "Magic Baking Powder is easy to use because its uniform, high quality never varies. I use and recommend Magic because my experience has proven that it always gives consistently better baking results."

Look for this mark on every tin. It is a guarantee that Magic does not contain alum or any harmful ingredient.

Try Miss Caldwell's Recipe for *RASPBERRY BISCUITS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons shortening
⅔ cup milk
Tea-cubes of sugar
Raspberry juice or syrup

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cut the hard, cold shortening into them with a knife, using a quick, short, chopping motion; or reduce the hard cold fat to tiny particles with a pastry blender or a steel-pronged fork. When the mixture resembles a very coarse meal, add the liquid, mixing quickly and lightly. Turn out the dough on a slightly floured board; pat it down lightly or roll it to a thickness of about one inch. Shape with a small cutter or cut in squares with a floured knife. Dip the small lumps of sugar into syrup from canned or fresh raspberries . . . Press a lump into each biscuit . . . forcing it well down into the dough so that it will not run down the sides when melted.

Place the biscuits on a greased pan or baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven, 450° F., 12 to 15 minutes.

Rector of Gore's Landing Has Exciting Experience on Rice Lake.

NARROW ESCAPE

PORT HOPE, Jan. 27.—Feeling the ice giving under his car which he was driving after nightfall from Bewdley to Gore's Landing over the frozen surface of Rice Lake, Rev. Maurice Kingsford, M.A., rector of Anglican churches in both villages stepped on the accelerator and got partially clear before the rear wheels of the car dropped through the broken ice.

Mr. Kingsford then walked back to Bewdley from opposite Pine Tree Point, a distance of over a mile, to get assistance, although he was not sure that he would find his car when he returned.

The rescue party, however, found the car and were able to draw it on to firm ice. The rector, unshaken by an experience which might easily have ended in a tragedy then continued on his way home.

Rev. Mr. Kingsford was an officer in the Royal Air Force during the Great War, and his experience on Rice Lake is but one incident in a career marked by many adventures.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

When one talks about pop corn, the mind generally goes forward to Hallowe'en, because it is then, more than at any other time, perhaps, that it is eaten.

* * * * * * *

Pop corn is also used very often to decorate the Christmas trees, but there are a number of other ways in which it can be used.

* * * * * * *

The woman who wishes to serve something that is a bit unusual can do so by using popcorn in some of the several ways suggested below.

* * * * * * *

This food is nourishing, dainty and has a nutty flavor that adds relish to a dish, or to a meal if the popcorn is served without combining it with other ingredients.

* * * * * * *

Salted and toasted popcorn, with kernels carefuly selected so that each is of downy whiteness, can be served instead of salted nuts.

* * * * * * *

Over the hot kernels pour a little melted butter and sprinkle lavishly with salt. Stir lightly, but briskly so that every kernel gets its due share of the butter for to this, the salt clings.

* * * * * * *

Spread the kernels on a shallow pan, and set in a very hot oven, or place under the flame in the broiler pan. Let the corn get very slightly browned.

* * * * * * *

Pile in nut dishes and serve hot between courses. Or put on the table for persons to help themselves. The hot toasted corn is preferable as well as being more unusual.

* * * * * * *

Add fluffy popcorn kernels to an ordinary custard pudding and bake in the usual way. The corn will rise to the top and give a dainty appearance as well as a delicious flavor.

* * * * * * *

Put fluffy kernels of freshly popped corn through the food chopper using a medium or fine blade. Add a good proportion to the cream filling for chocolate creams.

* * * * * * *

The kernels ground with a course blade can be added to a cake mixture as you add ground nuts. Sprinkle fine ground kernels over chocolate filling and frosting or any colored icing.

* * * * * * *

Put a spoonful over homemade vanilla ice-cream first covering it with fudge sauce. The popcorn takes the place of ground nuts.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Everybody has pity for the crippled child, and anything and everything that help him is willingly done, despite the time and cost.

And yet most of these crippled children are victims of that dread ailment, infantile paralysis.

Whenever it begins to spread in a district, parents are almost terror stricken as they think of the possibility of their loved one being attacked. Now, just as in cancer, heart disease, or tuberculosis, great things can be done if the ailment is recognized early, so also with infantile meningitis. If the serum is used with the first forty-eight hours, the attack is so lessened in severity that most cases escape any paralysis or deformity.

The thought, then, for all parents is that they do not become alarmed and fearful when infantile meningitis is in their neighborhood, but that they watch their children closely for the first signs of any kind of sickness.

When a child becomes greatly prostrated although the temperature is not very high, with flushed face, and anxious expression, throat red and sore, pulse rapid, trembling of the limbs and body, the head tilted slightly backward, stiffness of the spine as he attempts to bend forward, your best plan is to call it infantile paralysis orpoliomyelitis, as it is officially known.

Get your family physician at the first sign of any prostration, if there are any cases in your neighborhood. If he is in doubt, tell him you'd sooner that he used the serum than have any delay. He will be quite willing to do this, as there is not likely to be any serious reaction from the serum, even if the child does not have the disease.

This serum, which can now be secured from government or state sources when absolutely necessary, has taken most of the tragedy out of these cases.

Under proper treatment at least 90 per cent of the deformities which used to occur before the serum was discovered are now prevented, and deformities as an after result should entirely disappear. And even where deformities do result, the skill of the orthopedic surgeons has been able to correct most of them.

Infantile paralysis seems to be fairly common this past year, so parents should guide themselves accordingly.

MAMMY'S LI'L' WILD ROSE

Zero weather was forgotten by the large assembly in St. James' Sunday School Hall, on Thursday evening, when they were transported to a sunny corner of the Virginia mountains where the thrilling story of "Mammy's Li'l' Wild Rose" was unfolded.

The Kings Own Class were the producers of this Comedy Drama in three acts which had all the elements of popularity, being replete with comedy and strong situations.

Mr. Earl Eakins was the able director of the play and is to be congratulated upon its signal success.

The cabin door yard of Uncle Joe and Mammy Celie formed a realistic and fitting backgroundwith its log cabin, among the trees, with wild roses rambling everywhere.

The play possesses a fascinating and dramatic plot, which offers numerous opportunities for the expertly drilled cast to exchange their sparkling dialogue.

Rose's mother and "Aunt Hester" were born in the mountains and left orphans. Hester was the elder and made a loving protector for the little sister of whom she was so proud. Sacrificing herself in every way she spent her money to send little Prue to the Valley schools to be educated, but it resulted in her elopement with a city man who had won her love. Aunt Hester never forgave her sister, but became austere and prematurely aged. Love-starved and repressed she affects coldness to everyone and everything in life.

This difficult role was played by Mrs. Alvin Davis, whose clever characterization makes Miss Hester one of the outstanding characters in the play.

Prue's husband who was somewhat wild, was killed and she ,heartbroken and chilled by his wealthy family, returns home to find a closed door. In desperation she goes to the cabin of Old Mammy where Li'l' Wild Rose is born. Prue with her last word gave Rose to Old Mammy, who kept and loved her till she was five years old. Then Aunt Hester saw her and took her home where she has remained till the opening of this story.

To the part of L'il' wild Rose, Mrs. E. Williams lent her own witchery and enchantment, enabling her to give a delightful deliheation of the lovely Southern girl, who was surrounded by lovers, both from the mountains and from the city. In her naive preference for Daniel French, to whom she at once surrenders and admits her love, Rose is consistently true and outwitting all plans arranged by others for her future.

As Daniel, Hector Thompson contributes a polished and effective portrayal being the ideal sweetheart, the quiet student and writer of books, as well as a man of the world.

Lester Van is the unscrupulous friend of Daniel and also his rival for the hand of Rose. Percy Van Ness, in this role, gave his usual clear cut performance with ease and versatility.

Next in line for Roses' hand was Wade Carver, an unwelcome suitor, who did not hesitate to buy her consent by cancelling the mortgage on Aunt Hester's home.

This blustering and uncouth native of middle age was admirably acted by Sid Turner.

Lettie Van had come to the mountains with her brother and his friends. Here she met and fell in love with Daniel, trying to win him from Rose, but with all her attributes of city culture, beautiful gowns and education, she failed. Miss Greta Welborm took this part with the touch of the true artist.

As a foil to Letty came Daniels' sister Peggy, an attractive city girl whose role was cleverly enacted by Mrs. Bannon.

No Southern play would be complete without its negro element, which in this instance was supplied by the beloved old Mammy Cole and Old Joe "dat's a fac' ". Stan. L. Hagerman as Old Joe recalled many old darky strains to the accompaniment of his banjo. Both Mr Hagerman and Mrs. Norman Dunbar as Mammy, gave a fine interpretation of negro life in its own setting.

A delightful bit of comedy was introduced with consummate skill by Orpheus Jackson, a native Romeo and his sweetheart, Babe Joan, played by Mr. and Mrs. M. Drysdale, whose splendid acting won for them repeated applause.

The closing act was marked by rare tenderness in the confession of loneliness by Rose's wealthy grandmother, Mrs Courtvane in a pathetic little scene with Mrs. John Freeman playing the part.

The manner of the denouement was highly interesting and romantic and all that could be desired by the genuinely pleased audience.

During the intermissions an excellent musical program was provided, including a vocal solo "Out of the dusk to you," by Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, with piano and violin accompaniment played by Miss Olive Prest and Cecil Searles.

A delightful innovation was the ukelele trio, by Misses Ruth Allen, Verna Huffman and Alice Davis.

In vocal solo Miss Edith Smith rendered "Love'sOld Sweet Song" with Miss Aileen Rose accompanying.

Another greatly enjoyed number was the violin solo by Cecil Searles, accompanied by Miss Prest.

FAMILY PRESENT AT DOORN.

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 27 (C.P.).—His once Imperial Majesty, William Hohenzollern, to-day celebrated his seventy-second birthday quietly at Doorn House in the Dutch village of his exile.

Many messages of congratulation came from Germany and a number from American friends. Here, where the former Kaiser lives like a country squire, he worked as usual in his rosarium, digging and chopping wood like one of his Dutch laborers.

His daily constitutional through the village was part of his birthday routine. Most of his family were present except Prince Oscar, who has been operated upon and is recuperating in a Berlin hospital.

The contract was signed recently after the company was assured that the government would build a new graving dock [illegible] to accommodate the mammoth liner. The British government is taking a portion [illegible] of insurance necessary.

The building of the 60,000-ton vessel will have an immediate effect on more than 300,000 workmen in many trades throughout the world points out the Manchester Guardian's special correspondent. Almost every industry in this country will be able to employ more men during the two or three years which will be occupied in building and furnishing the largest ship in the world.

Marble will be imported from Italy and Norway to be shaped into decorative pillars, floors, swimming baths, ordinary baths and lamp fittings. Something like 300,000 pieces of silverware and 60,000 pieces of cutlery will be required, and there will be more than 200,000 pieces of earthenware, china, glass, and other vessels.

The largest order will probably be given to the electricity industry and something like 100 miles of cables will be threaded through the vessel. The ventilation system, run by electric power, will be very elaborate and every cabin will be so fitted with ventilation power that filtered air, warm, medium or ice-cold can be turned on at a moment's notice.

There will be rooms in the Adams style, Chippendale, Louis XVIth., Renaissance and Georgian, and the furniture will be original in almost every respect.

About 20 wireless operators using separate wireless installations will also be used to deal with messages. Shops will also be provided on the promenade decks, and the tailoring industry will be called in to provide uniforms for the crew of 1,200.

It is computed that at least $15,000,000 will be distributed for the building of the ship among the trades of the world. The other $15,000,000 will be wanted for the building of the hull. The keel plates have already been laid and some of the hull plates have been cut and are now waiting to be pieced together.

Now that the building of one ship has at last been definitely decided upon, the directors of the Cunard line will doubtless consider whether a contract for the construction of a second ship shall be given out. Whether the second ship will be a sister vessel has not yet been announced but the Cunard Company have on previous occasions favored the building of sister ships. There is much economy in this method as articles can easily be duplicated. Both Newcastle and Birkenhead have urged their claims, and there is much unemployment among shipyard workers in both places.

Free, Mr. Elmhurst, T. Baker, W. Wood, A. Hatfield. Sunday School appointment, M. Sargeant, Jr.; Choir, Mayor J. M. Bygott; Willing Workers, Mrs. F. Linton; W. A.: Mrs. J. P. Archer.

Parochial tribunal: S. H. Neale, W. Wood; Cemetery Board: J. P. Archer, F. C. Bonnycastle. Auditors: N. Alex MacColl, S. H. Neale. Synod Representatives: by the people: the wardens and J. P. Archer; substitutes, Messrs. N. A. MacColl, S. H. Neale, Haighington.

Opening the meeting the rector gave his report for the year 1930. This covered the following points: Baptisms, 9; confirmations, 11; marriages, 2; burials, 9; visits to individuals and families, 127. Eleven families had presented flowers for the altar and gifts presented to the church included a silk veil and burse from the Junior W.A., an electric motor for the organ from the choir, and a sedilia from Mrs. N. C. Wallace.

The church attendance for the year showed an increase over the previous year. At Easter this registered 274, with 128 communicants; at Christmas 137 with 82 communicants. The average attendance at morning service for the year was 61 and at evening worship 67, making a combined average of 64, an increase of two over 1929.

In presenting this report Mr. Wallace thanked all the officers and organizations for their splendid support. Touching on the work that had been done on the grounds and rectory, he specially thanked Mr. Bedford for the time, 120 days, that he had devoted to this service and also to Max Lloyd, Harry Bennet, R. Gleeman, M. Dunstan, who also contributed their labors to this cause.

He also drew attention to the fact that a revision of the parish list was necessary and stressed the point that the children do not attend the Sunday School as they should.

Financial Report

In regard to the matter of finance, Mr. Wallace stated that there had never been a proper canvas of the parish, or a proper pledge given and that the missionary account was going back.

He praised the good work that was being done in the Sunday School by the teachers and especially the labors of M. Sargeant, the secretary. In the matter of the cemetery fund, the rector suggested that it was time that an endowment fund was created as plots were getting scarce and in his consideration too cheap. He also asked that the congregation make a special effort to attend all services during the season of Lent. Mr. Wallace concluded his report by stating that he hoped that the parish would continue the upward progress it had started, as every department showed a gain.

The financial report for the year was presented by Major Linton and is as follows:

J. V. Bedford, People's Warden.
A. T. Linton, Rector's Warden.

This report came under discussion for some time, but when put to the question was passed on motion as accepted as read.

The next order of business was the adoption of the warden's parochial estimate for the ensuing year. This was read by Mr. Bedford and showed that an expenditure of $3,426 was necessary with only a sum of $2,546 to cover this amount. This matter came up for discussion and it was thought that the parish had been living beyond its means for the past few years.

Speaking on the question Mr. Bedford pointed out that the rector had done much to lower the expenses this year by devoting half of his holidays in collecting the sum of $1,100 from sources outside the parish. He also spoke of the influence that the rector had used with the result that the church was benefitted by the Miss Alderdice legacy.

When put to the question as to the passing of this report, an amendment was moved that the report be submitted to the next meeting of the advisory board for consideration and reported back to the vestry. This motion carried.

In conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Major Linton to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace for their gift of sedelia to the church and to the choir and the Willing Workers for the installation of the motor for the organ.

LIQUOR IS FOUND ON GUARD CUTTER BY SEARCH PARTY

Claim Bottle of Champagne Was From Contraband Cargo of Josephine K.

GUARDSMAN DRUNK.

Skipper Forced to Draw Gun to Prevent Raiders From Stealing Bottles.

U. S. COASTGUARD BASE 2, STATEN ISLAND, Jan. 27.—A bottle of champagne from the contraband cargo of the Canadian motorship Josephine K. was found here by an official searching party in the hold of the United States Coastguard Cutter 180, the boat which brought to shore the rum ship's Captain, William P. Cluett, mortally wounded Saturday by a Coastguard shell.

The discovery occasioned an immediate order to clear the docks of newspapermen and to challenge any civilian entering the base, as the search, ordinarily a routine matter, was renewed with vigor.

Chief Boatswain's Mate James F. Axel, skipper of Cutter 180, refused to comment.

Forced to Draw Gun

Axel was forced to draw a revolver on Coastguards of the cutter 145 in an attempt to stop them from stealing bottles of the seized liquor, according to the story which guardsmen who participated in the capture of the Josephine K. told.

"I'll shoot the bottle out of any man's hand that grabs it," they said he warned. "And I might miss the bottle and his somebody; so lay off."

One Coastguardsman was drunk, they said, and Axel knocked him to the deck unconscious. They thought this Guardsman had "planted" the bottle and hit somebody; so lay off." and there was no more of the contraband liquor stolen.

Captain Cluett remained conscious all during the time he was in their care, these Guardsmen stated. His last words on the cutter, they said, were: "It got me, I'm dying. They've killed me."

HOW DOES DAISY SPELL HER NAME?

Daisy De Boe Has Had Her Name Spelt Three Different Ways.

MUCH IN LIMELIGHT.

There is a steely-eyed, flaxen-haired girl in Los Angeles who for the past week has had her name on front pages of newspapers across the continent because of her lurid tales of Clara Bow's private life —stories she has related while on the witness stand in her own trial on 35 charges of theft from the "It Girl".

How to spell the girl's name seems to be the difficulty that has stumped editors. Newspaper are generally correct but in the matter of spelling of this girl's name some are certainly wrong, because almost all are clinging to a different spelling. The Examiner along with the Canadian Press and the New York Times has continued to print it Daisy De Boe, despite the fact that the Mail and Empire and New York American spell it Daisy De Voe, and the Toronto Star and Detroit Times continue to prefer Daisy Devoe. It seems to be a matter of choice, but anyway the girl has sure given her former friend Clara, a great deal of undesired publicity.

Peterboro Victory Creates Second Place Tie

PETES WINNERS OF 4—2 BATTLE AT BOWMANVILLE

Result Leaves Teams in Tie For Second Place in Intermediate Group.

LITTLE COMBINATION.

Maudsley and Calladine Are Successful Goal-getters For Winners.

BOWMANVILLE, January 27 (Examiner Staff Reporter). — It was a case of do or die when the Peterborough Intermediate hockey team came here to fulfill the engagement with Bowmanville, their Lakeshore League rivals last evening, and in deciding to "do," the Petes got the best end of a 4-2 decision. They are now tied for second place with Bowmanville, and will thus be called upon to play two more games, one at home and one away, to decide which of them shall play off with Oshawa for group honors.

Throughout sixty minutes of play the fans, quite a portion of whom had come down from Peterborough, were kept in a state of expectation, and were cheated out of nothing in the nature of thrills. Despite rough ice, which made the going heavy for the players, the game was on the whole fairly fast, but somehow lacked finish. This was particularly noticeable in the first period, when the game opened in a wildly erratic manner. Later, however, both teams settled down to a fairly good brand of hockey, until in the final stages the Bowmanville squad became mildly unmanageable once again, in their frantic effodts to even up the score, and apparently lacked the cohesion which marked the efforts of the local men throughout the more stressful periods of the play.

Starring for Peterborough, Maudsley played a wonderful game, and put up two counters to his team's credit. Calladine acquitted himself in a manner none the less creditable, and while he only had one goal to boast of, he centred his main efforts on defensive play and performed some splendid checking. In goal Gillespie proved himself an able custodian, and while Lady Luck was with him on several occasions, it was due in large measure to his coolness when repeatedly pressed by the enemy forwards that the opposition did not register a counter until sixteen minutes after the opening of the final stanza.

James, the Bowmanville custodian, on the contrary seemed to be inclined to lose his head when pressed hard, and several times imperilled the chances of his team by rushing from the mouth of the net, and leaving it unprotected. Fortunately for him the Petes missed their opportunities on such occasions, but only by very narrow margins. Seventeen minutes after the commencement of the game, for instance, a scrimmage ensued at the Bowmanville goal. James rushed out in an effort to force the puck out of danger, and had his line of retreat cut off by two of his own players. Meanwhile, Utronki seized the rubber, and hitting it for what seemed to be a certain goal, missed. Shortly afterwards in the first period, Hatton fired an aerial shot at the enemy goal. James, seeing the puck sailing straight for him, threw caution and also his stick to the winds, caught the puck, and threw it out of play. The puck landed on the other side of the boards.

The Line-ups.

Peterborough — Goal, Gillespie; defence, Lackey and LeBarr; centre, Maudsley; wings, Hatton and Creighton; subs., Jarvis, Calladine, and Utronki.

Bowmanville — Goal, James; defence, Cameron and Hooper; centre, Candler; wings, Brining and Piper; subs., Chartran, Rundle, and Jackman.

Referee — A. W. Armstrong, of Oshawa.

Summary.

First period—

1—Peterborough, Maudsley, 6 minutes.

2—Peterborough, Calladine, 12 minutes.

Penalties—None.

Second period—

3—Peterborough, Maudsley, 5 minutes.

Penalties — Bowmanville, Brining; Peterborough, Creighton.

Third period—

4—Peterborough, Utronki (Jarvis), 15 minutes.

5—Bowmanville, Piper, 1 minute.

6—Bowmanville, Jackman, 2 minutes.

Penalties—Peterborough, Calladine, Creighton, LeBarr; Bowmanville, Cameron.

When Referee Armstrong's bell announced the opening of play, Maudsley and Candler faced off to the puck, and almost immediately afterwards it was steered down towards the visitors' goal by Candler, who made a nice pass to Hooper, who come close to beating Gillespie. It remained for Maudsley, however, to register the initial tally of the game in the favor of Manager Coursey's squad. He made the goal unassisted, but it did not result from brilliant strategy; rather was it due to fortune. The shot, made from long range, was delivered with force and precision, howeevr.

Good combination effort was noted between Maudsley and Creighton of Peterborough and between Piper and Brining of Manager W. A. Edgar's team at this stage, and then followed Utronki's misplaced effort when he failed to make the best of his advantage before an unguarded enemy goal. As if avenging himself for this tough break, Calladine bulged the twine for the Petes' second counter, eighteen minutes after the commencement of play. Then came some further determined effort on the part of "Red" Hooper and "Dub" Piper, who on a nice combination play, got in a near range shot at goal, which was smartly turned aside by the custodian.

Piper was back to the attack again a few seconds later, and was the cause of a great deal of anxiety to the goalie, who was continually kept on his toes by the determination of the assaults made upon his territory. Piper probably put up as good a display throughout the game as any of his fellow-teammates. His play was at any rate marked with a certain refreshing consistency, and it earned him a goal in the third instalment.

Creighton, on the left wing, worked hard, but did not display his usual form. Just before the end of the first period, he accidentally caught Candler in the face with his stick, and although he drew blood, did not inflict any injuries of consequence.

LeBarr, with customary coolness, was content in the opening stages to play a lone hand. Penetrating the enemy forward line, he made a close shot at goal, but was staved off by James, who made a brilliant save. Lackey was also playing admirable hockey, and displayed speed and strategy in making individual rushes, and in checking.

Maudsley Scores Petes 3-0.

The first few minutes of the second episode, the play centred around the hometowners' goalmouth, with "Scotty" Cameron, Piper, and Brining working overtime.

Subsequently the first penalty of the game was made when Referee Armstrong ordered Brining to the penalty box for boarding. Creighton followed a few seconds lated for holding a players' stick.

Within five minutes the score had been tripled for the Lift Lock squad through a long shot by Maudsley, which found its mark with apparent ease. Bowmanville was now commencing to regard affairs as being too one-sided, and exerted every effort to score. They were outclassed by the splendid work on the Petes' defence line. Two subs, Rundle and Jackson, were now out on the ice and returned time and time again to harass Gillespie, who just refused to let them score.

LeBarr and Utronki, forcing the play to the opposite end of the rink, met tough opposition from Rundle, Hooper, and Cameron, and although they combined well on the passes, they drew blanks. It was at this period of the play that James again came right out of his area, placing his team's chances in jeopardy, and it was left to Calladine on a pass from Utronki to give the goalie a scare by showing him just how close a shot could come without actually landing in the net.

Final Period.

Creighton and Maudsley again on the warpath kept James fully occupied for the first minutes of the final stage of the game, with attacking tactics of a fierce and determined nature. Jarvis and Calladine were backing them up, checking and double checking in great style. It was Bowmanville's turn agan now, and Cameron, encouraged by the yells of his club's supporters, kept the Petes in a state of bewilderment for a short time, through his bold bids for a count in the hometowners' favor.

Off a perfect pass from Jarvis, Utronki put the puck in back of the custodian for the Petes' final goal, and a minute later Piper sent the puck past Gillespie at the opposite end of the rink for Bowmanville's initial tally. The crowd yelled with delight, and two minutes later Jackman followed suit, and registered the second goal for his team.

With two men off the ice, penalized for tripping, the Petes realized that their opponents would make the most of their advantage, and accordingly they braced themselves for the counter attack. It came, and Cameron off a pass from Hooper, attempted to give a demonstration commonly termed "netting the puck." He came close to succeeding. The crowd held its breath, but the expected did not happen. By merest good fortune the rubber disk was deflected from its course and the crowd and Gillespie could breathe freely again.

As the game rapidly drew to a close, the Bowmanville men started to shoot wildly, without success, of course, while Maudsley also finished up true to the form which he showed throughout last night's game.

COMBINES BEAT LAKEFIELD 2—0

Norwood Maintains Position as Close Threat For Honors in O.H.A. Junior Race.

SCORE IN FIRST.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27.—The Havelock Combines maintained their position as a close threat for honors in the district Junior O.H.A. race by defeating Lakefield here last night, 2 to 0. Both goals came in the first period, and from then on, the teams raced along at top speed but the goalies, displaying great form, were impregnable.

Webster, between the posts for Lakefield in place of Stewart, who is still out of the game through injuries, gave a great performance, and the ones that beat him in the first period were difficult shots from close in. Beavis, in the opposing nets, was outstanding for his club. In the first period, when the Combines won the verdict, the Lakefield team had more shots at Beavis than did the Combines at Webster, but Beavis kept the rubber out.

Both clubs iced their regular lineups and the play was a close, hard-checking affair that gave the few loyal fans plenty to cheer about. The Combines showed a smart, well-balanced club that at times hit up great speed. Both teams attempted combination but the rushes did not get away much owing to the close-checking. It was one of those fast contests between young teams, free of roughness, only four penalties being handed out by Referee "Chubby" Blewett, that delight hockey fans.

For Lakefield, Wingett, the starry defence man, was perhaps outstanding. The "kid line" of Emsley, Wanamaker and Kennedy, worked most effectively and these three gave much promise for the strength of future Lakefield teams.

Arthur Turner, who with his brother, the late H. Turner, introduced to the public the Crimson Rambler, the popular climbing rose, died recently at Slough, England.

Campbellford Loses Out 4 to 1

Bill Whitty's Red Shirts Dominate Play From Start of Tangle.

1,100 SEE TUSSLE.

Smoother Team Work on Part of Visitors Accounts For Leaders Win.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 27.—Stirling entrenched its position at the top of the Trent Valley League by defeating Campbellford here last night 4-1 in a game that practically packed Charlie Davidson's arena with a crowd of more than 1,100 fans from all parts of the district.

Bill Whitty's Red Shirts dominated every period, leading at the end of the first by 2-1, holding this margin through the scoreless second frame and tacking two more in the final by way of making a complete night of it and ruining any lingering doubts and alibis. And the determining factor was the smoother, shiftier team work and combination play of the visitors, as against the individual thrusts and the occasional flashes of brilliant solo rushes by Campbellford's Maroons.

Ege In Goal

Stirling also had the edge on the goal-minding, Doc Morton blocking two or three difficult shots that smoked with danger, especially in the last period when the Maroons unleashed their final reserve of speed and skill.

Bill Whitty's team last night disclosed its full strength. Their forward line pivots about Ken Davis, their star of last year who seems to be going as effectively as ever with Ty and Bud Little on the wings, and Harry Ingram and Les Beatty on the defense, a smart, fast-stepping team in the capable hands of the veteran Whitty. Their win here last night puts Stirling in front with five victories and only one defeat, and also one tie game, with Madoc in second place with four wins and one loss, and Tweed third with four wins and three losses.

Had Campbellford finished in front last night they would have set Stirling back to even terms with Madoc, and apparently that North Hastings team must be reckoned with before the T.V.L. trophy finds its resting place for this year.

Old Unity Lacking.

The Maroons plainly disappointed their friends in last night's game, as they had hundreds rooting for them from Hastings, Warkworth, Norwood and other sections of their own district. On paper Campbellford should be as good as last year when they won the championship. They have almost the same team, but they seem to lack the old spirit of 1930, the enthusiasm and cohesion behind their speed that carried them through the long, hard grind of last winter.

Buster Whitton at centre appears to be back in top form, and it was certainly not his fault that Stirling won on Campbellford ice last night. He played a whale of a game, and wore himself almost to exhaustion. Jack Cowell and McArthur on the defence were the steadiest and most consistent pair of performers on the local team. They not only bore the full brunt of the defensive tactics, for the front line's back-checking was negligible, but they also contributed t othe attack by frequent forays into Stirling territory. Fred Ingram apparently has all the qualities of weight and speed and stick-handling ability, but would probably be more effective back on the defence. The team presented another change in its line-up last night with the absence of McKay, who with Whitton and Horkins comprised the regular forwards last winter. The team has just as much power as in their championship season, but it lacks the unity that made it the splendid machine that brought home the T.V.L. trophy in 1930. There were also signs of peevishness in their play last night, and Stirling was similarly affected by a sharpness of temper that probably aggravated by the sticky condition of the ice as the game progressed. Nearly all the way through the second period Campbellford had a man in the penalty box, and at the opening of this period three of the squad were roosting on the penalty perch.

Plenty Of Thrills

The game provided plenty of excitement, particularly during the first and last cantos, but the second period was just as much a washout as its lack of scoring might suggest.

Jack Cowell and Harry Ingram handed out some hefty bodychecks and didn't back away from each other. The individual stars were the opposing centre men, Davis and Whitton. On last night's form Harry Ingram shows decided improvement over his last season methods. Several times he side-stepped the Maroons' defence with clever footwork, and he and Beattie make a stout guard around the Whitty goal. For Campbellford, Whitton, Cowell and McArthur were the only players who recalled the generany effectiveness of last year's team. Al Smith's rushes caught the eye of the home fans.

The line ups:

Referee—Max Board, Peterboro.

First Period.

Stirling, Ingram, 3.02 mins.
Stirling, Ty Little, 2.54 mins.
Campbellford, F. Ingram, 16 mins.
Penalties—Stirling: Bud Little, Davis, Ty Little; Campbellford: Whitton.

Second Period.

No score.
Penalties— Stirling: H. Ingram, Davis; Campbellford: Horkins, F. Ingram, Cowell.

Third Period.

Stirling, Bud Little, 8.34 mins.
Stirling, Bud Little, 6.29 mins.
Penalties—Stirling: Davis, Beatty, H. Ingram; Campbellford: Horkins 2, Al Smith.

The Ingram-Whitton-Horkins trio leaped into the battle opening the initial session with a burst of speed and combination that promised well for the Maroon lads. However it took just a minute or so and the invading front line squad of the Little Brothers and Davis cut loose and for a few minutes the speed bounds of both aggregations warmed up, Whitton and Horkins getting in some especially nice combination —fact one of their rushes displayed one of the only really nice passings of the evening for the Mill Towners —and then it came: Harry Ingram snaring the disc in front of his own nets, bored down through the works with a dazzling bit of speed and stick handling that ended with the rubber behind Saunders. That was just three minutes after play had started. Two minutes later Ty Little doubled the count for the Red and Whites in a rush combining with his wing mate Bud and Davies. The key man rode through the centre of the defense, slipped the disc to Ty who whooped it into the twine.

Buster Whitton in an effort to even the matter up put down his head and started on a rush that boded ill for the Whitty boys, when Bud Little upended him near the blue line and took a rest for the deed. Ingram came through with a nice solo effort, and McArthur returned for a shot that was close enough to graze the post and bounce out.

Ty Little and Davis got together for an effort that landed the rubber inside the net line but Referee Max Board said it was off-side and the crowd agree, making it unanimous; off-side it was. Ackers walked through and in a general scramble the puck was batted perilously close to the tally line several times and only the nice work of Saunders saved the day. Davis took a trip to the side lines for dumping Whitton on one of his drives, and a few dashes after Ty Little followed him for slashing.

The "One and Only"

Things were looking rather black for the Maroons and with the clocks ranging on the three-minutes-to-go mark Fred Ingram turned loose in one of those whirlwind dashes of his that split the Ingram-Beatty guard and from a range of fifteen feet drilled the disc past Doc Morton for his only let-down of the evening and the Maroons' lone tally. Whitton closed the round by taking the bench for mixing it with one of his rivals in a scramble.

Second Period

A feature of the second period was its opening. Whitton was still doing time. Horkins joined him for a slash at Harry Ingram, and Fred Ingram followed almost immediately to the pen. Three Campbellford men behind the railing looked bad, but Whitton came on before any damage was done, and when the Maroons attempted to kill time, Referee Board brought the play out to the blue line. Cowell broke up a Stirling combination. Horkins was released from the box, and Fred Ingram returned shortly afterward. Fred Ingram drew another penalty and Davis went off for tripping Whitton. The pace dragged in spots. Whitton manoeuvred one of the real scoring chances of the session, taking the puck from Ty Little and dodging around the defense, but he lifted the rubber over the net.

Stirling Get Two More

Early in the third period Whitton laid two neat shots on the Stirling goal, one on a pass from Horkins from a corner, and the other was when he hooked the rubber from Harry Ingram and rammed it at Morton who blocked both attempts. Davis of Stirling got the gate for a trip and Horkins followed for a high check. Davis took a lot of the steam out of the Maroons by a clever goal on a pass from Bud Little, putting Stirling up 3-1, with eight minutes of the period gone. Beattie was benched for tripping, and with the Red Shirts one man short Campbellford quickened the pace. Play hummed around the Stirling goal, and Fred Ingram got through for a clear shot which whizzed over the net.

Stirling's fourth goal was the result of a combination by Harry Ingram and Bud Little with nine minutes still to go. Little scored on Ingram's pass. Horkins was off when the goal was scored. Smith and Fred Ingram threatened for Campbellford but Ingram's shot missed the net. Jack Cowell and Smith returned the attack, and Morton booted the puck out on a great save. Saunders stopped a hot one from Ty Little and the game ended with a penalty to Smith for chopping.

LEAFS MAY CUT CANUCKS' LEAD AS HABITANTS IDLE TO-NIGHT; TORONTO MEETS AMAZING AMERKS

Maroons Have Equal Chance of Staying by Defeating Detroit Falcons.

SMYTHE MEN INJURED.

Victory For Montreal Plus Defeat For Leafs Will Place Them on Equal Footing.

(By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer)

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27.—Montreal Maroons and Toronto Maple Leafs renew their dispute for second place in the Canadian section of the National hockey league tonight, but the scenes of battle carry them far apart. The Maroons travel to Detroit while the Leafs encounter the Americans in New York.

Only two points separate the teams. The Leafs are holding the second berth, four points behind the leading Montreal Canadiens in the three games played this season with the Amazing Amerks. Lorne Chabot, lanky Toronto goal guardian has kept his citadel inviolate, but at that the Queen city squad have won only one game from the Gothamites, that by a 2 to 0 count. The other two games ended in scoreless draws.

Since Jan. 10 the Toronto team has been travelling in fine style winning seven out of a possible eight points. Canadiens and Maroons have been among their victims, but owing to injuries the team may strike a snag in Madison Square Garden.

"Ace" Bailey, leading scorer was out of the game against Ottawa on Saturday due to injuries. He will return tonight but may not be up to par. "Hap" Day, speedy defenceman, is suffering from a splintered bone in his leg, but as "Red" Horner stands automatically suspended, Day will play. Horner incurred his third major penalty of the season against Ottawa and will be out for one tussle.

Maroons have met the Falcons three times before and have beaten them twice, 3 to 2 and 6 to 1, while the third tilt ended in a 2-all stalemate. The latter contest was played at Detroit where the motor magnates lose few contests.

Victory for the Maroons plus a defeat for Toronto will enable the Munrowmen to draw up even with the Leafs in the standing. A defeat, however, coupled with a Toronto victory will leave the Montrealers well behind. They are four points in front of the fourth place Americans, who will be making a real bid for the third rung against the Leafs.

Bruins Will Add

Philadelphia Quakers, hopelessly mired in the basement of the United States division, meet the leading Bruins in Boston in the third scheduled fixture. The Bruins have already taken six points in three games with the Quakers and are smacking their lips in anticipation of another pair which will give them a five point lead over their nearest rivals, Chicago Blackhawks.

In the first tilt with the Bostonians the Quakers were shellacked 8 to 0, but in the last two games the score was closer, 4 to 3, and 4 to 2. Maroons and Leafs are the only teams the Quakers have managed to defeat to-date and while these were surprise victories a triumph over Boston in the Hub would prove nothing less than a sensation which few expect to occur.

SKI CLUB RUNS

Skiing in and around Peterborough is going ahead rapidly. Never before has so much interest been shown around here in this sport. With ideal weather prevailing, more and more enthusiasts are joining the local Ski Club.

Sunday afternoon some two hundred skiiers hiked to Nassau and had a thrilling afternoon on the Nassau Hill. Close to a hundred spectators lined the "runs" and several ground out motion-pictures of the proceedings. It was the most successful day of the club so far.

To-morrow night, another "run" will be made from the starting point at Park Hill road and Water street at seven o'clock to the club-house at Nassau. From there the skiiers will have a "run" over the trails marked out for them, returning later to the club-house where refreshments will be served. All the members will be supplied with club-pins.

Other skiiers wishing to join this club may do so through any of the members, or at the club-house. Information will be gladly given.

ST. PAUL'S GIRLS BEAT "Y" ELEMENTARY 16—6

Saints Outscore Opponents in Both Periods, Losers Offer Stubborn Resistance.

MAISIE COWAN STARS.

By playing a smart passing game and grasping every scoring opportunity, the St. Paul's entry in the Ladies' Basketball League defeated the "Y" Elementary team 16-6, on the Y.W.C.A. floor last evening.

St. Paul's outscored their opponents in both periods, but the Elementary squad offered stubborn resistance in the opening half and made the Saints work hard for every tally.

For the winners Maisie Cowan was high scorer, being credited with five baskets and fed her other forwards nicely with smart passes.

"Toady" Patterson appeared to have an off night, and shot after shot rebounded off the boards, only two finding the twine. However, she covered herself with glory by playing a clever defensive game, breaking up many opposition attacks.

Arleigh Comstock and Jeannette Allin worked hard for the cause, the latter in particular being all over the floor.

The losers had a nice passing attack, but appeared lost when they worked close to the baskets. The entire forward line worked hard, but their best efforts were smothered by Edna Morrow and Sybil Jackson on the Saints' rearguard.

Sybil Ecobichon carried the brunt of the Elementary attack, scoring the first basket of the evening, but inaccurate basket-tossing ruined her many fine scoring chances. "Pat" Patterson and Jean Howson made a Herculean effort to hold back the invaders, but the Presbyterian forward line proved a little too much.

Opens At Fast Pace.

Play opened at a fast pace and the 'Y' Elementary drew first blood when Sybil Ecobichon scored a nice basket from the defence line. St. Paul's came back strongly, and Maisie Cowan scored twice on nice combination efforts by Arleigh Comstock and Jeanette Allin. The "Y" team would not be denied, and Edyth Lynch scored on a close-in shot for their last marker of the period. The Saints retaliated with three counters before the half ended, Maisie Cowan getting two and Arleigh Comstock one. The half-time count was 10-4 for the church team.

Starting the final half, Clara Patterson was given several fine chances to tally, but drew blanks each time, but was finally awarded a basket on a nice combination effort of the Saints.

The "Y" team took a hand in affairs again, and Gertie Crawford broke through the defence to score a close-in one and bring her team's total to 6. Play was resumed at a much faster clip after this score, and the Elementary pressed hard, but it was St. Paul's who scored, Maisie Cowan and "Toady" Patterson registering in quick succession to close the scoring for the evening and give St. Paul's the game 16-6.

The teams:

St. Paul's—Forwards, M. Cowan, C. Patterson and J. Allin; centre, A. Comstock; guards, G. Comstock, E. Morrow, S. Jackson, M. White.

"Y" Elementary — Forwards, S. Ecobichon and M. Simpson; centre, G. Crawford and E. Lynch; guards, P. Patterson, C. Millyard, J. Dawson and L. McGee.

Referee—Joe Cooper.

H. C. JUNIORS ALL SET FOR CRUCIAL TILT

Combines' Defeat Lakefield Last Night Makes Victory Necessary For Hockey Club.

TEAM RESTING.

Game Promises to be Choicest Local Hockey Tangle of Year For Fans.

While St. John's took a stiff workout last night in preparation for the big game to-morrow night at the Brock Street arena with the Peterborough Hockey Club, the Hockey Club rested. Manager Jim McMartin is running on the theory that his blue-shirted ice athletes have been partaking of too much hockey of late and what they need to put them on edge for the Wednesday night clash is a holiday from skates. Several of the blueshirts were showing signs of staleness but with the four-day rest the whole team should be in top form for the game with their city rivals for the district Junior. O.H.A. crown.

The Havelock Combines' defeat of Lakefield last night puts it even more strongly up to Jimmy McMartin's crew to take St. John's. If they fail then they will practically fade from the picture. Last time these fast-stepping local teams met the Hockey Club smothered St. John's under a 6 to 0 score and the wearers of the blue are confident that they can again win.

St. John's are still smarting from the 6-0 setback and they will be out to win back their own esteem by defeating their fast-stepping rivals.

The game promises to be a sweet morsel for hockey fans, and the rink will be packed when the teams face-off at 8.30 to-morrow evening.

Bachelors And Benedicts Of Examiner Staff Hook-up Once Again In Ice Battle

Thrills and Spills Aplenty as Ancient Rivals Renew Annual Dispute for Supremacy—Weight and "Marital" Experience of "Domestics" of No Avail Against Spectacular Rushing of "Never-weds."

DUGAN-OUTRAM FEUD BROUGHT OUT OF BOOKS; SOMETHING NEW IN 1931 HOCKEY "DUDS" SHOWN

(By Jeanette)

The major sporting event of the season, as far as The Examiner is concerned, took place last night, when the Benedicts and the Bachelors, all members of various departments in The Examiner establishment, met in fine form at the Brock street rink. The score is claimed to be 4-2, in favor of the Bachelors, but there are rumours of dirty work at the crossroads, and a recount may be ordered, or even a play-off. It is said that Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis is to be appealed to, as a reliable authority on all fistic encounters, and that Mr. Scates, a well-known member of The Examiner's personnel, is the chief villain in the piece. (For the benefit of readers, we might say, that if they have time to wade through this article, they will find the reason for the above cryptic sentences in the final paragraph. Having perused various mystery stories within the last decade or so, we have discovered that the sting of a story, like that of a rattler, is always in the tail).

At any rate, at the moment of writing, Manager Fred Craig of the Benedicts, and Manager Harold Robson of the seeming victorious Bachelors, both of whom managed their teams by remote control, as it were, the former being immured in the mazes of Amos 'n' Andy during the progress of the conflict, and the latter hieing himself to far Bowmanville in pursuit of the elusive news item, are both to be interviewed at ten minutes past twelve tonight, as to the exact method of procedure in trying to unravel the terrible disgrace which attaches itself to this game and that is casting, so to speak, a stigma over the fair name and fame of The Examiner, on account of the conduct of the aforesaid Mr. Scates, or, we hasten to add, just to protect ourselves the "alleged" conduct.

"I'M LAYING FOR YOU, SCOOPIE," SAYS WINDY DUGAN.

In attempting to write this game up in a manner that will do it justice, the letter "f" suggested itself to us, after viewing the bill which advertised the event on the Examiner's abovestair bulletin board. This bill said that the game would be a "fracas", and the term so appealed to us that we immediately took the trouble to consult a dictionary for other words pitched in the "f" note, as it were. It was certainly fast and fleet. Who that witnessed the fervour with which Mr. Taylor and Mr. Outram pursued that puck over yards of slithering ice could doubt that it was also flamboyant and flaunting? Then there were the floppish touches of wearing apparel; in Mr. Johnston's stocking cap and horizontal stripes; in Mr. Baker's magpie up-to-date touch in modest black and white; in Mr. Max Glover's nifty breeks. How firm were Mr. Scates' efforts to keep Mr. Baker from moving the goal-net, when the latter essayed every device to get that puck inside; how fervid were Mr. Gray's attempts to stand on his head at various sections of the game, and how flaring and glaring were Mr. Dugan's interferences. It was also facetious, fretful and frolicsome—in sports.

It was fervid and feverish, fiery, furious, fierce, ferocious and fearless—anything with an "f", as we said before.

"Now it can be told," as the poet says. In secret conclave the Benedicts foregathered prior to the encounter and took for their slogan: "If you can't hit the puck, hit anything else in sight, without fear or favor", while the Bachelors, on the other hand, made a little variation in the old sea chantey, by singing, under their breaths, as they sped to deed of dering-do: "Chop the man down." And there were many of them bit the ice, rather than the dust, in their noble efforts to uphold the dignity of the married or the unmarried men, of the Examiner personnel.

Mr. Collins made a fine referee whose aim seemed to be "Don't wear out the bell. Somebody else may need it later." Mr. Dormer had evidently read the item regarding the army that had to win battles on its stomach, and essayed to follow out that ruling several times when he hit the ice too suddenly. Mr Gray was the sole casualty of a spectacular nature, he being compelled to retire quickly from the arena for several minutes, while he staunched the flow of blood oozing from his nasal appendage, after a well-meant blow from a stick had injured it.

A careful checkup of The Examiner's stock of mucilage is being made today, as a large quantity must have been expended on Mr McCurrach's skates, he preferring to stand on one spot for so long that the gallery of ladies who shooed the knights on by their loud enthusiasm, finally decided he was doing a pose for a potrait sketch.

Mr. Butcher, temporarily indisposed by reason of a large cut on his nose, sustained in another hockey combat of recent date, encouraged the players by means of advice shouted through a large megaphone. The bleachers were filled, not heavily, but with a select crowd that showed great discrimination and booed the penalty artists at the proper moments.

"APPEARANCES DECEIVING," REMARKS "COUNT" TAYLOR.

Your scribe understands (and hastens to avoid legal quiddities by saying this is written in the spirit of "Errors and Omissions Excepted," just as they say on mercantile invoices) that Mr. Outram and Mr. Dormer were responsible for two goals apiece and Mr. Max Glover and Mr. Gainey for one each.

The line up was as follows:

Benedicts — Mouse Dormer and Eight Cylinder Naish, goal; Turnkey Richardson and Bull McCurrach, defence; Mouse Dormer, center; Weasel Gray, left wing; Big Noise Dugan, right wing; Naish and Windy Cullen, subs. Manager: Fred Craig.

Referee: Ponzi Collins.

Excuse us, we nearly forgot the meat of the mystery. It is rumoured, with excellent reason, that Mr. Scates put on so much clothing that he nearly filled the goal net, and it is also said that this conduct on his part caused the Benedicts, all happily married men, to lose the game and then go home in very bad humour to quarrel with their respective wives. The ladies have asked that Mr. Scates be penalized for this action, and the fact remains that he did appear to be terribly well clothed. His avoidupois was tremendous, to say the least. He must have placed at least six sweaters about his manly torso his head protected by a crimson woollen tam that lingered lovingly over one ear, and his nether limbs were carefully encased in spreading shin pads. Being fond of Mr. Scates, strictly in a business sense, of course, we are sorry to see him get into such a mix-up, but his conduct is unquestionably contrary to the best canons of goal-keepers, as elucidated in that little manual entitled "How to Keep the Puck Offside."

MARK STREET WINS 3 TO 2 HOCKEY TILT

Junior Game in Church League is Packed With Plenty of Action.

SWAMP KNOX 7-1.

Trinity Squeezes Out 4-3 Decision Over St. Paul's in Juvenile Section.

Bang-up hockey marked three of the four Church Hockey League games which kept a fair crowd of leather-lunged fans on their toes last night at All Saints' rink. Only the second game was one-sided and it was not so slow either. The ice was fair and the action rapid, but comparatively few penalties were dished out.

In the opening game, Trinity Midgets were forced to bow to St. Paul's 3-2, but they made it a fight. The game was fast all the way, and even for the first two periods with both teams countering once each period. However in the last, the winners looked stronger and threatened several times, the players stickhandling through but shooting from too far out. Midway through the period, they fooled Freeman for the final counter, and then played defensively till the bell.

The teams.

Trinity—Goal, Freeman; right defense, Martin; left defense, Thurber; centre, Sutherland; right wing, Huffman; left wing, A. Ward; alternates, Kent, J. Ward and Cruickshanks.

St. Paul's—Goal, McIntyre; right defense, Kirkwood; left defense, Pulkinghorn; centre, A. Clark; right wing, G. Clark; left wing, Clifford; alternates, Leith and Currie.

Referee—H. Rehill.

SWAMP KNOX 7-1.

In the second midget affair, Mark Street pasted Knox with a 7-11 defeat. The knock swent to Knox in the opening frame, with the heavier East City boys skating faster and combining better to run in five goals. In the second, they netted two more while keeping the play away from their own citadel. But in the last chapter, Knox took the offensive, scoring once and shooting often. Burton for Mark Street played nice hockey, but little "Micky" Williams, living up to the family tradition, played a sparkling game for the losers.

Referee—H. Rehill.

TIGHT WIN FOR TRINITY.

Trinity squeezed out a 4-3 win over St. Paul's in the third game. The winners were very fast in the first, counting twice early in the frame. St. Paul's kept working away and tied it up just before the bell. Both teams got one in the middle session, and both goalies had to save spectacularly time and again. The play was fast and rough in the third, with Trinity finding the target in the last two minutes of the game. The losers sent four men up the ice, but couldn't knot it again.

St. Paul's — Goal, McIntyre; right defence, Malst; left defence, Rowan; centre, Ruitor; right wing, Clark; left wing, Wiley; alternate, McElroy.

Referee—H. Hall.

PLENTY OF ACTION.

The feature battle of the evening was that staged by the junior teams, Mark Street and St. Andrews, with the former scraping out a 3-2 victory after a hammer-and-tongs fracas that was packed with action. Softening ice kept the play mostly individual, but the boys skated fast and checked hard all the way. Mark Street got one in the first, but St. Andrew's balanced that in the second. Early in the third, the latter took the lead, and it looked to be over. But half-way through, Lipsett went through them all on a beautiful bit of stick-handling and lifted the rubber into the corner for the equalizer. A few minutes later, the same player took a long shot which was deflected off one of the Saints' skates into their own goal, and the game was packed away. It was a tough one for St. Andrew's to lose.

St. Andrew's: Goal, Allison; right defense, Westbye; left defense, H. Waddell; centre, Richardson; right wing, Weir; left wing, Cathcart; alternates, B. Waddell and Dearborn.

Referee—H. Hall.

TECUMSEHS FAVORED FOR DETROIT WIN

London Club Likely to Start Off on Second Winning Streak To-night.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 27 (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer).—Bent on hanging up another record-breaking winning streak, London Tecumsehs entertain the sliding Detroit Olympics in one of the two fixtures programed in the International Hockey League tonight. Cleveland Indians travel to Buffalo for an encounter with the league leading Bisons in the other contest. The Syracuse at Pittsburgh match, originally scheduled for tonight has been postponed until Feb. 7.

A seven-game winning streak chalked up by Tecumsehs ended in Windsor last night when the Bulldogs nosed them out, 1 to 9, but after resting since then the Londoners are confident of their ability to resume another victory dash which they believe will carry them to the front of the standing.

Last week they scored the first victory a London team has registered in Detroit since the latter city entered the loop, then known as the "Can-Pro." Of course Tecumsehs have "taken" the Olympics at home frequently enough and with undisputed possession of second place at stake to-night Manager Roy Brothers' hockeyists have little doubt as to the outcome.

While the Tecumsehs are on the crest of the wave the Olympics appear to be in the most disastrous slump a Motor City entry has ever suffered. They are now in second last place and a double defeat over the week-end did not help their play-off prospects any.

The Indians, holders of the title, do not appear destined to improve their position against the Bisons. The latter are not in the best of shape at present owing to injuries and sickness. The loss of little Sammy Godin was a hard blow to Coach Mickey Roach, but he has secured a capable performer in Marty Lauder.

When the Bisons went to the front at the start of the season, many predictions were made they would soon burn out. As International squads go, the Bisons are a light outfit, but fine teamwork keeps them at the top despite their lack of weight.

ELECTRICIANS WIN FROM UTILITIES 6-3

Sparkling Displays of Ice Game Being Played in Industrial Hockey League.

The Industrial Hockey League gave residents about the Sacred Heart rink some more fireworks last night, when Grant & Thorpe won a 6 to 3 win over the Utilities. Spargo in goal for the Utilities men gave a sparkling display in keeping out the pucks the Electricians hurled at him during the fracas. Ash was outstanding in leading Grant & Thorpe's attacks.

Other games in this league this week are scheduled for the same rink: On Wednesday, between 7 and 8, Silverwoods and Peterborough Canoe clash, and at the same time Friday evening the Brinton Carpet sextet and Grant & Thorpe's will take up the fray.

The teams:

Utilities—Goal, Spargo; defense, Hammond, Dobson; centre, Trotter; right wing, Worsencroft; left wing, Seabrooks; subs., Tremaine, Clarke.

City League Junior Games Are Postponed

The two City League games which were scheduled for to-night at Brock Street rink have been postponed on account of soft ice. Dates for the games will be announced later.

GOPHER TAIL RACKETEERING ENDED IN WHEAT PROVINCE

Many Ways Found to Get Double and Triple Bounty For One Animal.

CULTIVATED RATS.

(Special to the Examiner.
Copyright, 1931.)

REGINA, Sask., Jan. 27.—There's no longer a price on the head of the gopher, for 25 years the most thoroughly unpopular pest on Canada's wheat lands.

Since Saskatchewan became a province some hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in an effort to rid the plains of the gopher. Rural municipalities offered bounties of from one to five cents for each gopher tail and the provincial government at one time observed such a practice.

With such an incentive the gopher hunters finally ran short of targets. The gopher-hunting industry became a racket. Tails were cut in two in order to get bouble bounty on each gopher. And bounties were collected two and three times on the same gopher by peddling the necessary gopher tails in two or three rural municipalities.

A rural council might pay out bounties for gophers killed wothin the municipality and then quietly send the gopher tails over to the next municipality and collect there as well.

From that it was only astep to "gopher ranching". That didn't necessarily mean that farmers started breeding gophers like foxes or badgers. There was no need to. They simply let the gophers multiply for a year or two and then made a killing.

Rural councils have finally called a halt and say the farmer will have to find protection for himself. From many parts of Saskatchewan come reports of the end of the bountny system.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FROZEN TURNIP

Uncle Wiggily stood on the steps of his hollow stump bungalow, twinkling his pink nose as fast as he could.

"Because if I twinkle it too slowly," said the rabbit gentleman to himself, "my pink nose may freeze. This is a very cold day!"

Indeed, it was, as Uncle Wiggily could tell, not only by the way his ears felt, quite chilly so to speak, but because he could see his breath. Every time he breathed out a white cloud of vapor, like fog, formed in front of his mouth.

"What makes it so you can see your breath in winter when you can't see it in summer?" asked Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit who was on her way to say her lessons to the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School. "Why can you see your breath in winter, Unkie Wig?" And having used all the "baby talk" she was allowed, Bunty blew out some more of her breath to look at.

He found a turnip near the path.

"Your breath is warm, coming as it does from inside you," exclaimed the rabbit gentleamn, "and your breath is moist or wet. When you blow it into the wintry air the air is so cold it freezes the water in your breath and turns it into snow. It is really snow that you see and not your breath."

"Really, truly snow?" asked Baby Bunty making many clouds of white vapor in front of her mouth by breathing out fast

"Yes, it is real snow, but the flakes are so tiny that they don't fall to the ground. Perhaps it would be more correct to say that the breath you see in winter is cold steam, or fog, instead of snow," went on the rabbit gentleman. "Though, if you were at the North Pole, where it is very cold, you might call your breath snow."

"Oh I like to make breath snow!" cried Baby Bunty, puffing out more little white clouds of cold fog. Snow, as you children know, is just rain that freezes into white flakes. "Where are you going, Unkie Wig?" went on Baby Bunty. "But don't tell me—let me guess!" she begged.

"You are going adventuring, aren't you?"

"Yes," answered the rabbit gentleman, "I am."

"May I come with you and blow snow?" asked Bunty.

"No," Mr. Longears kindly answered, "you must go to school. When you come home, after doing your lessons, I'll tell you the adventure."

"Thank you!" said Bunty. "I'll run and show the Lady Mouse Teacher how I can make snow fog with my warm breath in the cold air."

So she hopped along to the Hollow Stump School and Uncle Wiggily skipped over the fields and through the woods, looking for an adventure.

"Well, here is the start of one, anyhow!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman as he found a turnip lying near the path. "This must have dropped off some farmer's auto. It was a good turnip once, but now it is frozen from having been too long out in the cold. But if I take it home and thaw it out slowly by my fire it may yet be good for me to eat."

Uncle Wiggily put the frozen turnip in his pocket and hopped on. But he had gone not much farther before, all of a sudden, out from behind a big rock leaped the Fox, th Wolf and the Bob Cat.

"Grab him!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Hold him!" howled the Wolf.

"Nibble him!" barked the Fox, who was almost like a dog.

"Don't nibble him here—it's too cold!" chatted the Bob Cat. "Let's take him to your den, Foxie, and nibble him there!"

"Sure!" howled the Wolf. No sooner said than done! Uncle Wiggily was pulled by the three Bad Chaps to the den of the Fox, where Mrs. Fox had made a blazing, hot fire.

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily as he sat before the crackling flames, "I suppose you Bad Chaps are going to nibble me, aren't you?"

"Sure!" said the Fox, and the Bob Cat and Wolf echoed: "Sure!"

"Before nibbling me, "begged Uncle Wiggily politely, "will you please let me eat this turnip I found?"

"That will do no harm," said the Fox. "Go ahead eat your turnip," he invited. And to the other Bad Chaps the Fox whispered: "Let him eat that turnip. It will make him all the fatter."

"Sure!" said the Bob Cat and Wolf.

Uncle Wiggily took the turnip from his coat pocket and started to eat it, when, all of a sudden, he said:

"Wait a minute, Bad Chaps! I have just thought of something I want to tell you!"

Clover Leaf Packers Use Latest Equipment

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—Each of the forty-five canneries of the Clover Leaf Salmon Packers, extending from Vancouver Island to the Northern boundary of British Columbia, make extensive use of the very latest type machinery, according to a statemeent made today by Clifford Thomas, Production Manager of the Clover Leaf Salmon Packers.

"This not only makes it possible for our organization to pack vast quantities of salmon during the brief period of the run, but adds to the quality of the product by ensuring that the salmon are sealed and cooked while they retain their deep-sea freshness," said Mr. Thomas.

"Nothing is added to the fish except sufficient salt for seasoning. The processing employed in packing 'pinks' is in all respects the same as used on the more expensive kinds. Pink salmon is, therefore, equally wholesome."

Pneumonia Left Her With a Terrible Cough

Mrs. A. W. Power, 591 Jane St., Toronto, Ont., writes:—"Eight years ago I had a very serious illness. I had a bad attack of pleurisy and pneumonia and was six months in bed. This illness left me with a terrible cough. I tried several cough medicines, but they did not seem to have any effect. One day my mother brought me home a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after I had taken several more I noticed my cough gradually leaving me. BRIDGENORTH, Jan. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church was held recently, when all departments of the church gave favorable reports of the year's work.

The pastor, Rev. M. Wright was chairman for the occasion and Allen Mann acted as secretary, when after a brief devotional service, the reports were received.

Special mention was made of the Sunday School and B.Y.P.U. which carried on during the month when the church was without a pastor. The Mission Circle and Ladies Aid also did creditable work during the year.

The treasurer of the church gave a splendid resume of the finances, showing a small balance on hand. The officers for the previous year were re-elected for the coming year. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Mabel Paul, organist, and Mrs. J. Young, choir leader for their splendid work during the past year.

(Examiner Correspondence)

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Jan. 27 — About one hundred and ten Zion League members and visitors from English Line, Burnbrae and Campbellford attended the Hard-Time Social evening held at the home of Mr and Mrs. Lindsay Watson on Thursday evening. The entertainment committee, Misses Laura Watson and Elsie Forde and Rev. F. G. MacTavish provided a real treat for the crowd with various games and contests and a short program consisting of community singing led by Fred Barnum, readings by Miss Thelma Stollery and Miss Clara Perry; orchestra music by Zion group; piano duet Misses Verna and Ruth Tinney; piano solos, Dorothy Watson and Evelyn Barnum; vocal solo, Fred Barnum; music, Gladys Simpson and Gladys Petherick. Music by Cora Petherick.

The admission charge was according to height and the president of the league, Roy Fry, wielded the measure stick in a worthy manner. The secretary Gladys Simpson kept count of those present while Fred Barnum and Mrs. Albert Petherick viewed the dresses and levied fines. A few who came in ordinary evening attire paid fines almost equal to the admission fee. The proceeds of the evening were almost $27.00, which goes to finish the M. and M. allotment for the past year.

Prizes for children's costumes went to Johnnie Petherick, for ladies to Mrs. John Murray and for men to Thomas Fry. The judges were Mrs. Thomas Watson, Mrs. Fred Barnum, Mr. Thomas Wetherall and Mr George Anderson.

At a recent sale of rare stamps for the benefit of a London hospital $2,500 was realized.

Senator Would Forbid Titles For U.S. Citizens

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (CP)—Senator Hefflin of Alabama has introduced a bill in the Senate providing that it "shall be unlawful for any United States citizen to accept any office or title of any kind whatever from any King, Prince, or Foreign State". In the preamble of his resolution, Senator Hefflin stated that the constitution forbade any person "holding any office of profit or trust from accepting such foreign honors. The great American principle here set forth has been applied in my bill with an equal force to all American citizens" he said.

INCREASE IN REVENUE IS NOTED AT ST. JOHN'S VESTRY MEETING

Progress is Shown in Every Department of Church's Life.

TOTAL REVENUE $10,185.27.

The annual Vestry Meeting of St. John's Anglican Church was held last evening in the Parish Hall, and the reports of the various organizations were read and adopted. The reports showed progress in every department of church life.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, the rector, occupied the chair.

The financial statement of the church was read by W. Roy Thompson. It was pointed out that there was an increase in the revenue of the church amounting to nearly $1,000, and although the year closed with a slight deficit, this will be more than offset by the payment of arrears in subscriptions and pew rents. Church expenditures amounted to $10,557.25, while the revenue totalled $10,185.27, thus making a debit of $371.98. Money raised for extra-parochial objects amounted to $1,651.06. The following are funds, etc., which show a favorable bank balance.

Centenary Fund.—Credit, $696.25; debit, $667.25; balance in bank, $28.00.

Dickson Mortgage—Credit, $5,800.00; debit, $300.00; balance in bank, $5,500.

Organ Fund.—Credit, $2,240.27; debit, $1,874.70; balance in bank, $365.57.

Denham Legacy.—Balance in bank, $435.00.

Cluxton Legacy.—Credit, $1,095.33; debit, $150.00; balance in bank, $945.33.

Mrs. Packenham presented the report of the Women's Friendly Bible Class. The sum of $569.27 was realized, and expenditures totalled $311.68, leaving a bank balance of $257.59.

Harold Lang noted the increase in membership and attendance of the Sunday School, which was gratifying to the officers and congregation. The school took in $435.95 and spent $364.51, thus having a balance in the bank of $71.44.

The report of the Evening Branch W.A. was delivered by Mrs. F. D. Craig. The sum of $206.69 was collected, $141.49 spent, $65.20 left as balance in bank.

Mrs. T. M. McCulloch reported receipts of the Church Women's Association amounting to $906.65, and expenditures to $703.90, leaving a bank balance of $192.75.

The St. John's Boy Scouts have reached their quota number of troops, and splendid work has been done during the past year. Receipts for the year totalled $78.28, and expenses $46.98, giving a balance on hand of $31.30.

R. M. Stuart gave a verbal report of the Men's Club, which showed a balance of $20.20.

The report of the choir's finances were given by Miss R. Quartermaine. The sum of $269.09 was collected, $215.93 expended, and a balance of $53.16 left in the bank.

A short account of the Chancel Guild was given by Dr. Blagrave. The Guild ended the year with a balance on hand of $60.42. Mrs. F. R. Bridge reported a bank balance of $20.77 for the W.A.

The A.Y.P.A. activities were mentioned in Miss Horn's report; $256.51 was collected, $243.41 disbursed, and $12.10 left in the bank. The Junior W. A. work was reported on.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne gave a review of the envelope system as conducted by the Envelope Committee. J. B. Horn reported briefly on the work of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew's.

Dr. Blagrave asked F. M. Dela-Fosse to again act in the capacity of rector's warden, and W. Roy Thompson was re-elected by the Vestry as people's warden.

J. A. Aylmer read the Nomination Committee report as follows:—

Advisory Board.—J. A. Aylmer, E. S. Martin, W. J. Kent, Dr. G. S. Cameron, Major S. T. Medd, W. C. Ackerman, Col. A. Stevenson, A. W. Turner, J. J. Howden, Wm. Sangster, B. D. Hall, F. D. Representatives — H. A. Morrow, Nicholl's Hospital Board; Miss E. Denne, Protestant Home; Alex Gibson, Hall Trust.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and A. L. Stedham were re-elected auditors.

The work of the church's sexton, R. R. Ford, was highly commended, and his splendid interest and painstaking praised.

The Nomination Committee remained the same, in preparation for the next Vestry meeting: Dr. Blagrave; the Wardens; Messrs. Aylmer, Kent and Hills. Rev. E. R. James spoke a few but well chosen words of eulogy upon the work and achievements of Dr. Blagrave during his ten years' service as Vicar and one month as Rector.

REMODELLING OF SUNDAY SCHOOL SUGGESTED AT VESTRY MEETING

All Saints' Congregation Holds Annual Vestry Meeting.

DELEGATES NAMED.

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held last evening when reports of the Church wardens showed an increase over last year in spite of the local conditions which cut off many subscriptions.

All the organizations making reports showed healthy conditions and much good work done, with considerable cash balances carried forward into 1931. A special report on the state of the Church was presented by R. J. Bolton, on behalf of a committee of ex-Church wardens consisting of C. Lacheur, B. Ottewell, T. Pitchford and R. J. Bolton, chairman. The most interesting feature of the report called for the remodelling of the Sunday School. It was felt that a whole evening should be devoted to the discussion of this report and the meeting adjourned until Tuesday of next week.

The Rector announced that G. B. Richardson had been appointed warden for another year and Hector McLeod was elected people's warden. Lay delegates to the Synod are H. G. E. Choate, J. Price, W. L. Howden, B. Ottewell, T. Pitchford and Gordon Dobbin. L. G. Dobbin was appointed to serve on the Nicholls Hospital Board, Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholme on the Protestant Home Board, R. J. Runnett on the Charity Board and Mrs. Connolly and C. Cheverill on the committee of the Bible Society.

A pleasing feature of the Vestry meeting was the tendering of congratulations to Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., on his elevation to the rectorship of St. John's Church.

JANUARY MEETING OF 57TH CHAPTER

Several Communications Read to Members — Relief Work Report.

The January meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter was held in the Armouries with a good attendance.

The Regent, Mrs. I.W.H. Young presided and after the opening ode, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. F. Miller. This was followed by the reading of the correspondence, which consisted of letters of thanks for flowers received and from a new settler, whom the Chapter had interested themselves in and assisted, also letters from the Provincial Chapter regarding the proposed endowment fund.

The card party to be held on Wednesday afternoon, February, was announced. Mrs. W. G. Hall to act as convenor assisted by Mesdames H. Gilgour, W. A. Greenslade, G. Nelson and F. Hill.

Miss M. Rogers gave the financial report. Mrs. Sharpe for the sick and visiting committee reported seventy calls made since the November meeting. Mrs. W. Gordon Hall for the Relief work gave a very detailed list of work she had done. At Christmas time she had sent out a number of baskets of Christmas cheer besides baskets of groceries, bags of vegetables, new and used clothing and toys for children. She also read a number of letters of thanks from the recipients. It was moved and seconded that letters of thanks be sent by the secretary to those outside the Chapter who had assisted in this benevolent work.

She was also given a further donation from the Chapter to carry on her work. It was decided to give a grant of $25.00 to the Well Babies' Clinic.

This being the nomination meeting of the Chapter a unanimous vote was passed that the present officers be returned by acclamation. The councillors were then nominated for the ensuing year, the election to take place at the February meeting when the annual reports will be received.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

HEARING POSTPONED.

NEWARK, N.J., January 27 (C.P.).—Hearing of a suit of five stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Company seeking the return of more than $30,000,000 paid to the management of the company and to restrain further payments, was indefinitely postponed to-day.

ST. LUKE'S HOLDS VESTRY MEETING

J. A. Mason and W. C. Hughes Are Appointed Church Wardens For Year.

LAY DELEGATES NAMED.

One of the best attended vestry meetings for several years was held in the Parish Hall on Monday, January 26, commencing at 8 p.m. The rector, Rev. George J. Bousfield, B.A., presided. The churchwardens' report showed the current account to be in a healthy state. There was a deficit for missions. The report of the Building Committee consisted of a summary of the work accomplished in enlarging the Parish Hall and the amount received to date. The method by which the amount still owing should be met was decided upon.

Encouraging reports were read by the following organizations: Woman's Auxiliary, Woman's Guild, Junior Auxiliary, Sunday School, A.Y.P.A., and Chancel Guild.

The rector appointed J. A. Mason to be one churchwarden and the vestry elected W. C. Hughes to fill a like position. Mrs. Parsons was appointed to the Board of the Protestant Home. J. J. Turner to the Board of Nicholls Hospital for a term of three years. The rector was asked to be the representative on the Charity Board.

E. A. Peck, M.P., and Frank Adams were appointed auditors for the ensuing year. R. H. Parsons was elected vestry clerk.

After votes of thanks to officers of the church and the various organizations the meeting was adjourned. This was immediately followed by a meeting of the congregation for the election of lay delegates to the Synod of the Diocese. J. J. Turner, J. S. Mason, and R. H. Parsons were appointed.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 56 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The boat that had attracted Jane's attention as she stood guard upon the Kincaid's deck was also seen by Rokoff and by the beasts of Tarzan on the opposite river bank. At the Russian's shouts the little craft turned shoreward and, after a short parley with him steered directly toward the Kincaid. Before it had gone half way however, a rifle spoke from the ship's deck, and a sailor in the bow of the little boat crumpled over into the sea.

After still another of their number fell a victim to the girl's rifle, the boat put back to shore, there to wait for nightfall. Jane realized this would be but a temporary respite for her, and so determined to make a bold and final stroke for freedom. Calling the two sailors she had imprisoned in the forecastle, she forced their consent to her plans. With revolver ready to compel obedience, she let them come above deck.

Then she set them to work cutting the cable which anchored the Kincaid. The ship was well stocked with provisions and water, the seasons of storms was over, and she hoped that by drifting into the open sea the Kincaid would eventually be sighted by some passing vessel. The night was deeply overcast, a perfect one for her purpose. Her enemies could not see the activity aboard or know the ebb-tide was carrying the ship seaward.

As the last strand of the cable parted the Kincaid drifted rapidly with the current. Then suddenly up the river came the rattle of musketry and a woman's scream! Startled, Jane for a moment was thrown off guard. The two men instantly leaped upon her and bore her to the deck. Was her struggle for freedom to fail after all? As she fell Jane saw, outlined against the gloom of the ocean, the figure of another man clamber over the Kincaid's rail.

ELECTION ISSUE BE PROHIBITION

Claims U. S. Referendum In 1932 Not Be Fair Due to Confusion by Party Loyalty.

HOOVER AT HEAD.

WASHINGTON, January 27 (By Kenneth S. Clark, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — Prohibition will be the issue in the Presidential campaign in 1932. If President Hoover maintains the stand which he took in transmitting the report of the Wickersham Commission upon Prohibition to Congress, he will head the dry forces of the Republican Party, to which will be drawn the out-and-out dry Democratic candidates standing on a wet platform. The election in a sense, therefore, will amount to the referendum upon Prohibition demanded by those dissatisfied with present conditions.

It will not be a fair referendum, inasmuch as party loyalty will confuse the issue. Further, the economic condition of the county in 1932 will have a good deal to do with the adherence or disaffection to the Republicanism of those who vote in 1928 for Hoover and prosperity On the whole, however, present indications are that it will be the best test Prohibition has had since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment eleven years ago.

Results Of Examiner Dollar Day Contest

The Examiner Dollar Contest created more interest than on any previous occasion. The extra prizes offered possibly was responsible for the added interest. The number of will be paid on Saturday next if no was 9,762, and two estimates were on the exact number. The winners are as follows:

W. J. Mann, Bridgenorth, and Donald Delahay, 891 Water Street, divide first and second prizes, each estimating 9,762. Barbara Dawson, R. R. No. 11 Peterborough, with 9,763, wins $4.00 third prize. Fourth and fifth prizes of $3.00 and $2.00 were won by George Simpson, R R. No. 2, Peterborough, and R. C. Heard, 891 Water Street, whose figures were 9,765, and each win $2.50. Sixth prize goes to M. D. Sherin, 220 Simcoe Street, with 9,767, and the seventh prize to Mrs. J. Elliott, 522 Rogers Street, with 9,754, each winning $1.00.

The Special Prizes.

The Examiner Office made a blind estimate and sealed it up, and while it was some hundreds away from the proper figure, W. W. Dawson, of R.R. No. 11, Peterborough, gave the exact figure in one of his estimates, and won the set of dishes.

The first extra prize to the lady paying the largest amount was won by Mrs. R. Dale, High Street, who is awarded the chair, and the second extra prize to the gentleman paying the largest amount was won by Norman Woods, McGill Street, and he receives the table.

The above awards are made and kernels of wheat in the pint sealer protest has been entered in the meantime.

The Examiner contests have always provided added attractions for Dollar Days, and others to follow will be no exceptions.

In Police Court

Proceedings against Frank Hooey of this city, relating to a charge of reckless and negligent driving, arising out of a motor accident on November 18th last in which James Lang sustained such severe injuries, that he was recently readmitted to hospital, were this morning adjourned for another week by Police Magistrate O. A Langley.

Defendant appeared on remand yesterday morning, at which time it was stated the trial would proceed today, accordingly the defence had three witnesses present, one from Toronto and two from this city. Crown witnesses were also present.

On application of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C., His Worship suggested a further adjournment of one month, stating as his reason that he was advised the material witness Lang, was in such a condition that he was unable to give any account of the accident and that he was not prepared to hear partof the evidence that day and await the remainder of the evidence indefinitely.

B. H. Park, who legally represented the defendant lodged a strong protest and would not consent to a month's adjournment. He stated his client was going to Niagara Falls, and had already consented to repeated adjournments. He wished the case to proceed this morning.

His Worship again pointing out the difficulties which existed, decided to adjourn the hearing to Tuesday, February 3rd.

BAIL SET HIGH FOR PRISONERS IN FATAL RAID

U. S. Attorney Claims 12-mile Treaty Violated—Josephine K Found Inside Limit.

CREW'S ATTORNEY DIFFERS.

Hearing For 21 Men Taken By Coast Guards Set For Febraury 10.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A dispute as to the position of the Canadian rum-runner Josephine K. when she was shelled by the Coastguard, Saturday night, and her master fatally wounded added to the international complications to-day.

At the arraignment of the crew before United States Commissioner Cotter yesterday, Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Watts demanded high bail on the ground that the vessel was sighted within the 12-mile limit, in breach of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States. He was corroborated in this by Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

In contradiction, Louis Halle, the crew's attorney, said: "The acts complained of were not within the treaty limit. These men are guilty of no crime. And there is no master on this vessel—he has already put up the highest bail."

21 Prisoners

Commissioner Cotter held 21 prisoners—crews of the Joseph K., the scrow Brooklyn, and the tug Dauntless 6—all of which were captured, in bail ranging from $7,500 to $500 each. Hearing was set for Feb. 10. The charge was conspiracy to smuggle liquor in violation of the Prohibition and Customs Laws.

Captain W. P. Cluett, Master of the Josephine K., was wounded fatally by a one-pound shot fired from Cutter No. 145 after a five-mile chase in New York Bay. The vessel was spotted about four miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship or 9½ miles off the New Jersey coast, the Coastguard reported, and ignored warnings to heave to for search.

Leadership is essential in any community and the Chamber of Commerce develops leadership.

Father And Six Children Perish In Fire

MOTHER ESCAPES WITH HER BABY AND 9-YEAR SON

Engineer on Passing Train Sees Flames, Blows Whistle in Vain.

GIVES ALARM AT STATION.

Roof on Williamsport House Crashes in on Victims as Help Arrives.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., January 28 (C.P.). — Clyde Smith, 53, and six children, ranging in ages from 4 to 17 years, were burned to death when fire destroyed their home at Powys, seven miles north of this city, early to-day

The mother escaped, badly burned, with a two-months-old infant, while another son, 9, also made his way to safety.

The dead, in addition to the father, are Frederick 17, Marian 16, Darfida 14, Catherine 11, Max 6, and Gerald 4.

Engineer Sees Flames.

The fire was discovered by Engineer O. M. Rigby, when his train passed the house, which is located close to the railroad. He blew the engine whistle in an effort to arouse the family.

When the train reached Trout Run, a short distance north, the train was stopped and S. L. Oughterson, telegraph operator there, was notified, and he drove to Powys. Just as he reached the burning house, Mrs. Smith, with the infant in her arms, stumbled from the front door, the son, Howard, aged 9, was with her.

The mother's night clothing was burned from her body and the baby was also burned,

No trace could be found of the remainder of the family, and as the neighbors reached the scene the roof of the house crashed in, making any efforts at rescue impossible. It is believed the father and the other children were trapped and overcome by smoke in the two bedrooms upstairs.

Free Trade Battle Seen By Lloyd George

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George and his daughter, Megan dropped in at the National Liberal Club this afternoon where the Earl of Beauchamp was being welcomed home from a tour of Canada and the United States and Australia, and stayed just long enough for the Liberal Leader to predict the greatest free trade battle Britain ever has known.

"One of the essentials of good generalship," he said, "is to fight your battles on your own ground. That may explain the course of the last few days. Our enemies have said in effect 'come on out and be killed'.

This was thought to be a reference to the action of most of the Liberals in supporting the Labor Government's policies and as an indication that Lloyd George is ready to challenge for control when the opportunity is ripe.

The Earl said he had come home as ardent a free trader as ever.

Frills of Eighties Make Appearance At Paris Salons

(By Adelaide Kerr, Associated Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The frills and furbelows of the elegant eighties, combined with the daring sleekness of the twentieth century, paraded through the flower decked salons of one of the leading Parisian couturiers last night as an illustration of what smart sophisticates will wear this spring.

From lace decked petticoats showing inches below dark crepe daytime frocks to transparent black lace evening gowns minus an underslip below the knee, the collection contrasted diffidence and sophistication of fifty years ago and today.

The trim lines of today were exhibited with rich furs and golden silks of fifty years ago before a throng of American buyers and style writers who jammed the salons to watch the show.

CANADIAN CREW GIVE TESTIMONY DURING INQUIRY

All Claim Boatswain Was Intoxicated When He Boarded Josephine K.

DRANK ALL NIGHT.

Reports That Vessel is Owned in United States Not Taken Seriously at Ottawa.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (C.P.).—Testimony that Boatswain Schmidt of the OG-145 was intoxicated when he boarded the Canadian power boat Josephine K., following its capture on Saturday, and that he continued to drink during the night in the forecastle of the Josephine K. was given before the Coastguard inquiry to-day by members of the crew of the Canadian vessel.

Seven members of the crew of the Josephine K., accompanied by counsel and a representative of the British Consul-General, appeared before the inquiry board. The Josephine K. was captured after a solid shot struck her wheelhouse and killed the master, William Cluett, Lunenburg, N.S.

First Witness.

William Selig was the first member of the crew to be questioned. He said he was an able seaman and gave his address as Halifax, N.S. He said he saw Schmidt shortly after the Josephine K. was boarded.

"He seemed to be very intoxicated," Selig testified.

It was brought out that Selig was in the forecastle at the head of a small table when he saw Schmidt, and that at no time did he get close enough to the boatswain to smell his breath.

"Schmidt staggered," he said in reply to a question.

"Much?" he was asked.

"Quite a bit."

Selig said later that all members of the crew of the Josephine K. were in the forecastle at one time or another during the night, and all saw Schmidt "drunk," and that he saw Schmidt drink "six or more" bottles of ale and "a couple of whiskies."

Asked where the liquor came from, he said the crew of the Josephine K. had a case of ale and a bottle of whiskey in the forecastle of their own.

Selig was asked what Schmidt said when he came into the forecastle. "I could not understand what he said", Selid replied adding that the boatswain's talk appeared incoherent. However, he understood one sentence and that was, "It is too bad the captain got shot."

Members of the board of inquiry brought out that Selig might have had some difficulty in understanding Schmidt's speech, the coastguardsman speaking with a marked German accent.

Continuing his testimony Selig said Schmidt pointed a revolver at Alan Falkenham, a member of the rum-runners crew, saying that Falkenham was not listed on the Josephine K's papers and that as a result he (Schmidt) would have to shoot him.

Louis Helle, counsel for the Canadian crew and T. Gerald Chapman,

Kaye Don Goes for Trial Spin

Kaye Don, pictured above with his Miss England II., which he took out on Lough Neagh, Ireland, a few days ago for the first of a series of trial spins preparatory to his projected assault on the world's speed record at Buenos Aires in March. The day after this picture was taken the intrepid British driver sent Miss England II. on a speed trial in which he exceeded 100 miles an hour. This is slightly better than the existing world's record which the late Sir Henry Segrave established, but was not timed officially.

HOOVER URGES PARLEY ON FALLS

Expresses Hope Senate Will Soon Pass Proposed Treaty Delayed So Long.

PRESERVE BEAUTIES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. — As a result of the recent rockslides at Niagara Falls, which left an indentation 130 feet long and 40 feet deep on the United States side, President Hoover has directed Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of War Hurley to suggest to the Canadian Government a meeting of the special International Niagara Board to plan measures for the preservation of the scenic beauties of the great cataract.

In stating that he asked the Secretaries of State and War to suggest the meeting of the International Board to Canada, Mr. Hoover said that he hoped the Senate would soon ratify the proposed treaty between the United States and Canada which covers the preservation of the falls. He adds that his action had been prompted by frequent inquiries as to the effect of the rockslide on the falls which he had received.

The International Board, the President stated, was appointed some years ago by the Governments at Ottawa and Washington to determine how the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and the river rapids could be maintained and its impairment by erosion or otherwise prevented. The board also was to determine, consistent with the preservation of the Falls, what quantity of water additional to that permitted in the treaty of 1909-10 might be diverted, either temporarily or permanently.

Captain Christiansen said that the ship's course would be by way of Madeira, Cape Verde, the Canary Islands, Natal, and Rio de Janeiro. Stops enroute for fueling are planned.

PROFESSOR LEITH DIES IN LONDON

Death of British Cancer Expert is Big Loss to Science Forces.

IN 53RD YEAR.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 28. (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—Professor Archibald Leith, one of the outstanding British cancer experts, died to-day at the age of 52 years. He was director of the Research Institute of the London Cancer Hospital and Professor of Experimental Pathology in the University of London.

Prof. Leitch was the recipient of many honors from foreign countries. He was in charge of a Mobile Bacteriological Laboratory in France during the war, retiring with the rank of Major of the Royal Army Medical Corps. He combined immense learning and experience with a beautiful simplicity of character, and his high courage and kindness were never affected by the terrors of the diseases among which he worked.

His death at a comparatively early age is a heavy casualty to the forces of science in their battle against cancer.

REGINA ASSURED OF WATER NEEDS

Area Favorable For Drilling Located By Geological Survey.

NEAR MOOSE JAW.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28 (C.P.)—As a result of investigations by the Geological Survey Branch of the Dominion Department of Mines, the City of Regina is assured of an abundant water supply and an area favorable for drilling has been located near the site of Moose Jaw.

An official report issued here today comments that the investigations into water resources may later have an important bearing on the agriculture industry of Southern Saskatchewan. "It has long been held that a solution of the wheat situation in the West lies in the adoption of mixed farming on the Prairies," the report continues. "A pre-requisite of such type of farming is a large available source of water supply."

Nearly 500 tons of tacks were exported from the United States last year.

CONTINUE FIGHT STATES GANDHI TO NATIONALISTS

Mahatma States Activities of Congress Party Cannot Be Stopped.

PICKET LIQUOR SHOPS.

Leader Heads For Allahabad to Confer With Pandit Nehru.

BOMBAY, Jan. 28.—Leaving behind him a message to India's Nationalist millions that their fight for independence must go on, Mahatma Gandhi to-day speeded by train toward Allahabad, Central India city, where are gathered most of the Nationalist working committee.

At Allahabad, India's "City of God," located on the sacred Ganges, he will visit the bedside of one of his dearest friends, the aged Pandit Otilal Nehru, father of Jawaharlal Nehru, President of the All-India National Congress, and discuss with him Britain's offer of an eventual qualified Dominion status for India.

He faces in Allahabad, when he arrives there to-night, a welcome probably as enthusiastic and frienzied as that which tens and hundreds of thousands gave him here yesterday at dawn upon his arrival from eight months in Yeroda prison. In the crush which centered about his frail 96-pound body here, one woman was trampel to death and 31 persons were injured and sent to hospitals.

Congress Must Continue

"We can suspend judgment on Prime Minister MacDonald's statement to the Round Table Conference at London," he declared just before parting from here, "but we cannot suspend the activities of the All-India National Congress," the organization which has sponsored the National civil disobedience movement.

"Even if after our conference with the delegates coming home from the Round Table Conference, it is found that the Prime Minister's statement affords sufficient ground for the Congress to suspend its non-co-operation movement, the party cannot abandon its right to picket liquor shops and drug shops and those selling foreign cloth, nor can the right of India's starving millions to make their own salt be given up."

Judge's Ignorance Of Undertakings Occasions Surprise

Rev. D. N. McLachlan, Answering Coatsworth, Claims Board of Evangelism and Social Service Conducts Redemptive Agencies in String of Homes Across Canada.

MINISTERS WORKED WITH OTHER DENOMINATIONS IN CONDUCTING DIVINE SERVICES IN PRISONS

TORONTO, Ont., January 28 (C.P.). — Responsible officers of the United Church of Canada to-day emphasized the preventive and redemptive measure which have been already put in effect, in reply to the statements of Judge Emerson Coatsworth last night, that the church is failing to do anything for the men and women in penal institutions in the Province.

Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, Secretary of the General Council, expressed surprise at the Judge's "ignorance of actual undertakings," and joined with Rev. D. N. McLachlan, Secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, in enumerating the activities of the church in this regard.

"The board conducts redemptive agencies in a string of homes across Canada, where trained workers give their whole time to reform of unfortunate persons" stated Dr. McLachlan. "In addition, in some of the penitentiaries of Canada The United Church through her ministers has conducted clinics. The United Church ministers have taken their place with all other denominations in conducting divine service in the prisons. In one penitentiary an evangelistic mission was held for ten days and at the close the holy communion was administered."

Secretaries Give Much Time

Dr. McLachlan also said his Board had given much of the time of its secretaries, Rev. John Coburn, to assist prisoners before commitment and after discharge, and was now bringing one of its secretaries from the West to give a large share of his time to this work.

The church was also working hard for policies for the unemployed which would minimize crime, Rev. Dr McLachlan said.

Stay at Havana to be Short—Princes Will Not Leave Ship.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 28. — (C.P.).—The Prince of Wales, visiting this lovely British colony for the first time in ten years, stepped off the steamship Oropesa at the Tuckerstown dock to-day and was greeted by a smiling crowd, which had been looking forward to his arrival for weeks.

The steamer hove to off the island in a crimson dawn and picked up the pilot for the short run past the coral reefs to the anchorage off the naval dockyard.

The Prince and his brother, Prince George, who are on the way to Buenos Aires for the British Trade Exposition next March, were astir early watching from the deck as the boat moved slowly through the sunshine past Bermuda's beautiful coastline.

Flew Over Channel.

This trip of Great Britain's greatest salesman and his able understudy began with a flight across the English Channel to Paris. They went by train to Santander, but were held up by a train wreck ahead of them, and part of the trip had to be made by automobile. They boarded the Oropesa which sailed on January 18.

Storms on the way over delayed their arrival a day.

This afternoon they will be back aboard the Oropesa, heading for Havana.

The visit to Cuba will be brief, and the Royal tourists do not plan to go ashore at all during the hour or two the Oropesa is in the harbor of Havana.

Only four persons will be permitted

FISHERMEN LOSE HOME IN BLAZE

Twenty-five Men Forced to Flee—Officer gives Alarm.

$40,000 DAMAGE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 28.—Twenty-five fishermen were roused from their slumbers and driven to the street early to-day when fire swept the Fishermen's Institute and the police court buildings with loss estimated at $40,000.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman John Garland, who ran to the scene when he heard a hot air explosion, and found smoke and flames pouring from the upper stories of both buildings.

Garland rushed into the Institute building and awakened the 25 fishermen asleep on the upper floors, then sounded an alarm.

Firemen were unable to determine in which building the fire started, and two additional alarms were rung before the blaze was brought under control.

Peace River With Its Splendid Crops Suffers the Same as Drought Centres.

FREIGHT RATE HIGH.

(By Wilfrid Eggleston. Special to The Examiner. Copyright 1931)

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 28—The most absurd result of the demoralized grain markets of the world is surely to be found in Alberta's frontier land,—the Peace River country. The wealth and promise of that "Last Great West" has been as thoroughly advertised by its enthusiasts that the name has become in parts of Western Canada, almost synonymous with "The Promised Land." When drought converted a large section of Alberta into a virtual desert in 1910, the cry on the lips of many pioneers as they climbed into their covered wagons and shook the dust of their abandoned homesteads in the short grass country from their shoes was "On to the Peace." That cry was heard again in 1914. It was echoed in 1918, and again in 1921. To-day "The Peace" is settled beyond the dreams of the first pioneers.

Nor has Nature failed them. Grande Prairie and the sweeping plains on every side have seldom suffered from the drought which has time and again swept the far south or from hail which has persistently cut wide swaths in the Foothill country and

The seized distillery in which a 10,000 gallon still was operating when the agents burst in, consists of two buildings — four story brick structures, on the corner of Hone and German streets, Kingston.

REEVE GEORGE HOOTON OF CAVAN NEW WARDEN OF UNITED COUNTIES

Smokes His Way Past His 100th Birthday

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 28.—Well along in his hundredth year, Patrick McDonald of Welsford, N.B., concluded that never again would he be able to find tobacco worth smoking. So he quit the weed. But not long ago a friend induced him to try a plug which met with some measure of approval, and when Mr. MacDonald reached the century mark on January 13 he was as heavy a smoker as ever. Furthermore, he embarked on another year in the best of health, with good eyesight, and a keen interest in community affairs.

Mr. McDonald was born in what was known as Portland, North End St. John, on January 13, 1831. In 1868 he took a sea voyage around the Horn to California and returning to visit his old home four years later, decided to stay in New Brunswick. Seven of his eight children are living.

Hurley Offers Plan To Boost U.S. Trade

CHICAGO, Jan. 28. — Edward N. Hurley, who was a member of the Great War Foreign Debts Commission, said in an address prepared for delivery before the Chicago Association of Commerce to-day that the debtor nations of the United States should cut their war budgets and the United States should simultaneously reduce their war debts.

Hurley, who was war-time chairman of the United States' Shipping Board, said his plan would reduce unemployment and improve business conditions.

He said the debtor nations were formerly the best customers the United States had, and that if this country reduced the war debts the same countries would return to United States markets for goods causing a profitable resumption in industry and export markets.

IL DUCE DENIES KILLING CHILD

Claims He Never Toured Italy With an American Citizen as Charged.

U.S. GENERAL TO EXPLAIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Premier Mussolini, in a cablegram to the Italian Embassy, denies charges of having run over and killed a child while motoring recklessly with an American in Italy, which charges were reported to have been made in an address at Philadelphia on Monday by Major-General Smedley D. Butler of the Marine Corps.

"I have never taken an American on a motor-car trip around Italy," Premier Mussolini said; "neither have I run over a child, man or woman."

Following a protest by Ambassador De Martino against the General's remarks, Secretary Adams asked for an explanation from General Butler, who is at the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

UNITED CHURCH TAKEN TO TASK BY COATSWORTH

Claims Nothing Been Done to Aid Inmates of Penal Institutions.

CANADA BEHIND U. S.

Social Work in Child Stage Would Do Much to Reduce Crime.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28 — The United Church of Canada was taken to task last night by Judge Emerson Coatsworth for what he saw as its failure to do anything for the men and women in the penal institutions of this province.

Speaking to the Sunday school teachers and officers of Westmoreland United Church on the necessity for greater effort on the social side in the prevention of crime, he voiced shame and regret that in all his association with the jails and prisons of Ontario as a member of the Parole Board he had never come across a representative of the United Church aiding prisoners.

Nothing Done

"I am sorry to say that I have never seen the United Church doing anything for any of the men and women in those institutions" said the magistrate. "The Salvation Army and a few other organizations are doing what they can, but the church is falling down in dealing with the crime problem.

"I am ashamed to say that I have never seen anyone from the United Church doing anything for the prisoners," he reiterated. Leading officials of the United Church could not be reached for comment last night.

The crowded condition of those institutions he attributed largely to the lack of effort on the social side of the problem. Development of that side of the question here was as far behind that of the United States as Canadian courts were superior to theirs, he declared.

From his 20 years' experience on the bench he believed intensive work from the social angle, dealing with criminal propensities in the childstage, would greatly reduce the increasing amount of crime. While splendid work was being done with boys and girls by such organizations as the Rotary Club and the Big Brother Movement, there was not enough of it, he contended.

Civilization was very backward in solving the crime problem, he asserted. It had progressed now to the stage where it was called a disease, a cancer on the body politic.

But apart from some changes in methods, the general system was the same as it was 100 years ago—a man was arrested for a crime, he was tried, found guilty and sent to prison. The prisons might be a little better, but there was no advance towards a solution of the situation. The jails and prisons were overflowing in Canada, with prisoners being forced to sleep in the corridors of the Don Jail and many other Canadian prisons.

SIMON SWEEPS DISPUTES BILL IN BITTER STYLE

Noted Lawyer Leads Liberal Group in Attack on Government.

TILT WITH LLOYD GEORGE.

Measure Described as Worthless on Definition of Illegal Strikes.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—From the front Liberal benches the tall, slim figure of Sir John Simon rose in the House of Commons last night to sweep the Trades Disputes Bill with a merciless analysis.

Sir John faced a house packed to the doors. It was a great occasion with the Government tomorrow facing the critical vote.

"A great speech", was the comment heard afterward. "Such a speech has not been heard in years."

Sir John Simon faced the running fire of Labor interruptions with his characteristically lofty style. He did not seek to conceal the fact that the great majority of the Liberals differed from him and would prefer to see the Trades Disputes bill get its second reading.

"I am a supporter of humane slaughter," he said, whimsically. "My friends behind me believe in the death of a thousand cuts."

TIMBER MEN KICK AT PULP IMPORTS

Eleven Prominent Owners in Maine Ask Washington For Embargo.

HURTS CANADA'S TRADE.

BANGOR, Maine, Jan. 28.—Eleven Maine timberland owners have appealed to F. X. A. Eble, United States Commissioner of Customs in Washington, for an immediate embargo on Russian pulpwood and pulp, now being imported into the United States.

In a letter to Eble, the group said it understood that the Russian product was being produced in the Soviet convict settlement of Solovetzk and along the borders of the White Sea. They described alleged "frightful" conditions in the settlements, which, they said, showed that those who buy this timber and pulpwood are really paying the "price of blood."

Referring to the economic situation, they said the domestic market had been unsettled by causing depreciation in the value of timberlands and farm woodlots. Unemployment and depreciation in land values endangering huge investments secured by the land were also cited.

Importation of the Russian pulpwood and pulp was being sponsored, the latter said, by certain paper companies which were desirous of forestalling any movement by the Canadian Provinces to limit the cutting and exporting of timber from Canada.

COUNTY TREASURER ESTIMATED DEFICIT FOR YEAR AT $25,000

Financial Condition of Peterborough County is Strong States Treasurer.

LOW DEBENTURE DEBT.

That Peterborough County's expenditures last year exceeded appropriations by at least $25,000 was the news given the Council yesterday afternoon by Clerk Ed. Elliott. Expenditures were greater than the Council had expected, in many departments, including mainly Education, Administration of Justice, Old-Age Pensions, and Roads and Bridges, explained Clerk Elliott, in giving the councillors some idea of where the debt had been built up.

When the Council struck the tax rate last year, he said, there were many expenditures for the year that could not be properly estimated upon. These were mainly Old-Age Pensions, Education, and Administration of Justice, and were due to recent changes made by the Provincial Government. The amount of bridge-building had also far exceeded the Councils first plans, and Clerk Elliott cautioned the councillors to decide this year before the end of the January session just how much bridge building is to be accomplished this year.

Just how great the deficit will be Mr. Elliott could not state definitely, but he estimated it at about $25,000.

"It is a pretty big debt, but it was thoroughly beyond the control of the Council," commented the County Clerk. He pointed out that there was so much bridge construction that the chairman of the Bridge and Roads Committee could not have a chance to keep within his budget.

"Notwithstanding this the county is in a fine financial condition. The debenture debt is small. It amounts to less than $100,000 as compared with ten times that much in the county south of us." Mr. Elliott said in conclusion.

The financial statement was given by the auditors, who are V. W. Squire and Ray Williams.

The report of the Old Peoples Home for 190 was read by Reeve Coons as follows:

"We are confronted with difficulties as were our predecessors. The pump that drives water from across the road has weakened, but with the initiative having been taken in 1929 your Commission were able to partly ascertain the defects and you may look forward to satisfactory results in the near future.

"Referring to the inmates. There has only been one death in 1930. As you all are aware old people require attention that can only be obtained at a hospital for certain troubles unless an expensive provision were made at the House that would not only cost considerable to install but also costly to maintain.

"For hospital treatment of the patients sent there in 1930 there was paid the sum of $360.60 and a further sum of $313.35 paid since the close of 1930, but as you will notice an item of $1,187.60 liabilities the $313.35 being included in same therefore charged to 1930 inmates. If operations must be met by the county then so much more cost; but I am under the impression that the Act now provides that it has not to be met by the county. I think they will be dealt with as other indigents. Your Board are pleased to state that there is in evidence an attachment between inmates and staff that indicates kind treatment by the superintendent and matron which is a strong factor in the management of an institution of tha kind.

"The stock are in prime condition indicating tat they get proper care. The Old Age Pension Board must be credited for the procuring of the pensions for the older inmates realising $2,497.33 receipts from that source which after charging 20 percent to maintenance leaves at net receipt of $1,997.87.

"I but repeat the expressed regrets of all when I refer to the loss this county has sustained in Mr. Clark ceasing municipal activities and his broadminded, sympathetic advice in House of Refuge matters are not forgetting strict regulations will be missed, that was in a large measure conducive to the success of the institution.

Total receipts were $3,497.97 and total expenditures, $6,512.99. There were 26 inmates at the beginning of the year and during the year six more were admitted.

Letters were received from members of the Council who this year retired from long service to the county.

One from John Clark, ex-Reeve of Galway and Cavendish, and former dean of the Council read as follows: "In retiring from municipal affairs although somewhat lonesome, it is gratifying to realise that in my successor, Mr. Jackson, you will find a capable and upright representative. During the fourteen years that I was one of the County Council it not only afforded me great pleasure but was a constant source of education.

"The financial standing of the county is an outstanding evidence of the legislative abilities of the various councils that previously were responsible for the conduct of county expenditures. All parts of the county received unbiased attention and I must say that Galway and Cavendish was treated as one of the family. I will not say good-by in the ordinary way, for if spared I will be constrained to visit you in session as council.

"I have not words at my command to express as I would desire my appreciation of the courteous manner you always assumed toward me, and the patience and forbearance at all times exercised. I will feel highly honored to have a visit from the roads committee any time they are inspecting bridges in Galway. You will find the door of our Home open and your old colleague standing in such doorway with open arms.

"I sincerely trust that success will continue to attend every effort to advance the conditions of the county."

Another letter was received from Robert Tedford, former Reeve of Norwood and chairman of Roads and Bridges. It read:

"Although I am not a member of the County Council for 1931 my heart and my sympathy are still loyal to the County of Peterborough and good old Norwood.

"You will have a representative from Norwood that the majority of you have sat in Council with and I feel satisfied that he will not spare any time in order to fulfil the office which he now holds, and I earnestly solicit the same assistance that you so freely gave me.

"In the capacity of Chairman of Roads and Bridges I can never forget the encouragement and assistance of you all. I know that the reeves interested in the bridge work of last year will report all that was accomplished.

"I look forward with pleasure to avail myself of the opportunity of spending an hour or two with you at some of your sessions. When in Norwood look up Bob Tedford and he will be proud to be the recipient of a visit that will bring back pleasant recollections of former occasions.

"I can never repay you for your assistance and courtesies and the most I can say, there is a warm spot in my heart for you all."

Those who voted for Reeve Herbert McCaughey were: George H. Barkwell, of Laxton, Digby and Longford; John W. Elliott of Verulam, and R. I. Moore, of Lindsay.

Warden J. W. Elliott has been Reeve of Verulam Township for three years, and for nine years previous to that was on the township council. Last year he was chairman of the good roads board, an important position on the council.

Besides serving for seven years in various positions on the county council, Reeve McCaughey saw eight years' service on the Dalton Township Council.

2,000 BUSHELS

other afflicted areas. The world's finest wheat has been produced more than one season by Herman Trelle, a few miles from Wembley. This summer, when southern Saskatchewan for the second time was parched almost to barrenness, the Peace River country was a smiling oasis. It shared with a strip of country running from central Saskatchewan to Edmonton and beyond the honor of enjoying the heaviest crops in Western Canada.

With what effect? The spectacular descent in grain prices coupled with unfavorable fall weather and assisted by a scale of freight charges which the present isolation from ocean ports makes inevitable, resulted in such ridiculous returns that the Peace River farmer is stunned into taking it all as a stupendous joke.

There was a strong deputation from the Peace River country at the U.F.A. convention, and from their spokesman I heard something of their plight.

I happened to be chatting in the hall with a rare old-timer of that district, who first visited Calgary in the '80's, and went to Peace River a few years later, when Premier Brownlee came by. He shook hands with Mr. Bredon, looked quizzically at me, and then, joining in our discussion on conditions in the Peace, said:—

Half Cent a Bushel

"I had a letter yesterday from one of the grain companies informing me that at Grand Prairie, Wembley, Hythe and Dunsdale they're paying one-half cent a bushel for oats. Think of it,—two thousand bushels bring the farmer of that region the magnificent sum of ten dollars! Tell that to the readers of The Examiner." The Premier then smiled another quizzical smile and made for the door.

I. V. Macklin, U.F.A. director for that area (Peace River North) came to dinner with me to-night. Like so many more of the leading spirits of Alberta's big co-operative movement, he hails from Ontario. "I was born near Cobourg," he confessed, "but I've been 20 years in the Peace. Had to drive 250 miles to get in, too. No railways, then. I went there originally because of my health. I had been told to get into an outdoor life for a couple of years. I like it so much, I've stayed."

"In those 20 years I've had my ups and downs. I got a bad set-back in the depression of 1921, but this is far worse. To tell you frankly, it has got so bad that most of the fellows up there take it as a joke."

"We're so far from our markets that the freight rate at the present time reduces the value of our grain almost to zero. Take wheat at to-day's prices. It was 53 cents a bushel Winnipeg for No. 1. Our average grade is No. 2 tough, which is nine cents less, or 44 cents a bushel Winnipeg. Deduct 21 cents for freight, leaving us 23 cents net at the elevator.

"Now follow that a step further. In our country we can't thresh for less than 12 cents a bushel. Deduct that, and you have 11 cents to cover harvesting, hauling, twine, seed, seeding operations, plowing and cultivating, not to speak of taxes, hail insurance, interest, depreciation of machinery, oil and gasoline.

"I happen to be only a mile from town. But twenty per cent. of our farmers live more than 20 miles from town. Motor trucks haul most of the grain. If it's done by contract it costs half a cent a mile. If a farmer 22 miles out of Grande Prairie sent No. 2 tough to town to-day he would get 12 cents a bushel after paying hauling, which would exactly pay threshing expenses, and leave him nothing to pay anything more.

"As for the coarse grains, they're quite out of the question. It would be money out of pocket for most of our farmers to ship them. They can't afford to ship them, if you like to put it that way."

"Still, we could be worse off. We have lots to eat, yet, and we can't borrow any money, so we can't get into debt. We had good gardens, and most farmers have a few cows and chickens, and hogs enough for their own pork. Happiness is a state of mind, I always think, and just as possible when we're hard up as when we're rolling in wealth—perhaps more so. It won't hurt us to go back a while to the simple life."

WEDDINGS

MINICOLA—HUGHES

TWEED, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—A quiet wedding took place at St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, on Monday morning, January 26, at 6.45 o'clock, when Miss Evelyn Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hughes, became the bride of Victor Minicola of Tweed, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Minicola of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Cullinane.

The bride wore a brown georgette dress with fox fur, brown felt hat trimmed with straw, and shoes and stockings to match.

Miss Cecilia Whalen attended the bride, wearing brown dress and fox fur, hat to match. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Joe Minicola.

After the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride. Just the near relatives were present. The young couple left for Kingston, Peterborough and Toronto by motor. On their return they will reside in Tweed.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.— Reports of drought surpassing in places the severity of last yera's disaster, carried grains upward yesterday. Central Illinos advices said creeks and springs never before known to have gone dry had failed, and that more wells were empty than at any time last summer. Unusual absence of moisture was noted over the spring wheat belt in addition to dearth in winter crop sections.

Corn advanced faster than wheat, and closed unsettled 5-8 to 1 1-4 cents higher, wheat at 1-8 to 7-8 grain, oats, 1-4 to 1-2 up, provisions unchanged to 10 cents off.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 28. — Preference shown abroad for Canadian wheat an an excellent export business yesterday further boosted values on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Final wheat quotations were ⅝c to ½c higher than the previous close.

Total business worked for foreign account overnight totalled 750,000 bushels. Rumors were current that Germany would modify her milling regulations owing to the rapid disappearance of wheat and rye stocks. This would stimulate demand for Canadian wheat.

Cash wheat trading was slow, with spreads generally unchanged. Coarse grain demand was fairly good and values held in sympathy with wheat.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 28—Steady prices with a strong undertone continued to feature activities of the local butter market yesterday. Dealers were able to secure 31½c for No. 1, 30½c for No. 2, without much difficulty, though the general range of prices had a low of 31¼c for No. 1 and 30¾c for No. 2. The demand was fair to good and movements of solids were substantially larger than during the past three weeks. Most of the dealers were optimistic as to future conditions, many feeling that prices would have to go higher. The Montreal market has been showing strength and it is the general opinion that the demand will force prices up.

Cream

Cream prices were steady at 30c to 31c for special, 29c to 30c for No. 1, and 26c to 27c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

The cheese market continued strong, with prices to country shippers at 14c to 14¼c for new large, 14¼c to 14½c for twins and 14½c to 14¾c for triplets. Retailers were offered new makes at 15½c for large, 15¾c for twins and 16c for triplets.

Eggs

Egg prices held their own, both to the trade and to country shippers and brokers were quoting steady prices, with the recent increase at 29c for extras, 24c to 25c for firsts and 20c to 21c for pullet extras, graded and in free cases. Receipts were fairly light in comparison with previous weeks, but the general demand was just ordinary. Some dealers reported a good clean-up of storage eggs and sales yesterday were made on firmer basis at 18c for extras and 15c for firsts, to the trade.

Country shippers were quoted 23c for extras, 20c for firsts, and 16c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies at 32c to 33c for extras in cartons, 30c to 31c for extras loose, 28c for firsts, 23c for pullet extras and 21c for seconds loose.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1931

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL SHOULD ACT.

The Examiner would be derelict in its duty to the public if it did not take this earliest opportunity to condemn the leniency of the sentence imposed upon ex-Constable Leonard Matthews by Judge O'Connor yesterday, and to point out that the whole case calls for the consideration of the Attorney-General of Ontario.

When all the circumstances of this unpleasant episode are taken into review the sentence meted out appears to the public intelligence as a travesty of justice.

Here was a police officer who had taken his oath to protect the property of the people of this community, who was a trusted member of society, and who proved himself false to that oath and that trust by systematic burglary stretching over a period of two years, an officer who, sent out at night to shield the money and goods of the public, deliberately launched out on a career of crime, and persisted in that career until he was trapped and caught.

For over two years his unlawful conduct has resulted in heavy losses to citizens, and has caused a reign of terror that has involved many people in a cloud of suspicion and mistrust; it is no exaggeration to say that for a score of citizens at least the past two years has been a period of distress, worry and misery because this officer of the law, false to his oath and his obligations, had by his thefts thrown suspicion upon them.

The Examiner says this with no desire to be vindictive toward the prisoner; his conduct as a police officer before he slipped into his double role of constable and burglar had earned him respect, and this paper shared the general opinion of him as an efficient and courageous officer.

But consideration for his previous good reputation and the sympathy that should always be felt for one who gets away from the straight and narrow path cannot be allowed to becloud the real issue.

In this case there was no question of the guilt of the accused; it was admitted by a plea of guilty to the whole eleven charges, and amplified by the statement of prisoner's counsel that other charges of similar nature might have been laid. There were no extenuating circumstances—it was patently not a case of yielding to a sudden impulse, of giving in to an unexpected temptation. The robberies involved in the most part substantial sums; they began over two years ago and were continued until last Friday night; they might, it is safe to assume, have gone on indefinitely if the activities of Chief Newhall had not brought them to a sudden halt in the early hours of Saturday morning.

The duty then of the learned judge was to deal with this offender in a manner consistent with the ideals of British justice, to deal out a punishment consistent with the heinousness of the offence and having regard to the deterrent effect the sentence might have.

The sentence of nine months in the reformatory, in the opinion of The Examiner and of the people of this whole community, utterly fails to serve either of those ends, and is so misguidedly lenient as to bring the whole administration of justice into contempt.

When it is contrasted with the punishment handed out as a matter of course day after day in our police courts and elsewhere, when it is compared with sentences recently given first offenders on much less serious charges, it is no wonder that there was an audible gasp of astonishment in the crowded court-room yesterday, or that the surprise of the public generally should be expressed in such emphatic terms.

Judge O'Connor, in passing sentence, declared that if the prisoner had been of a criminal type he would not have hesitated to have sent him to the penitentiary for a long term; it will be a difficult matter for the public to understand, however, how it is possible for a police officer to take advantage of his position and to commit burglary after burglary during a period of many months and still remain out of the criminal class.

For a postal employee who proves derelict to his trust and, yielding to a sudden temptation, steals a few cents from a letter there is no such consideration—the law automatically sends him to penitentiary for three years.

And yet a police officer whose responsibility is rightly regarded as more serious, whose duty as a guardian of public property is so clear, admits his guilt in answer to eleven counts of burglary and escapes with a sentence such as most magistrates would hand a poor beggar who confessed to stealing an overcoat.

The public sense of justice is affronted by the failure of the machinery of the law to deal adequately with this case, and it is plainly and obviously the duty of the crown attorney to call the attention of the Attorney-General of Ontario to the facts, and plainly and obviously the duty of Hon. W. H. Price to appeal against the verdict of yesterday's court.

THE NEW WARDEN.

The election of Reeve Charles Tanner, of Lakefield, as warden of the county of Peterborough will be pleasing to a large proportion of the citizens of the county, who realize Mr. Tanner's fitness for the position and have confidence in his ability to contribute useful service in the interests of the public generally.

The reeve of Lakefield has been a valued member of the County Council for some time, and his judgment on the various issues that have come before that body has always been valued by his colleagues.

His experience as a business man and his training in public service, both in his own community and in the county arena, fit him admirably for the responsible position to which he was yesterday elevated by his fellow-councillors.

Like other municipal bodies, the County Council at the present time finds the seas ahead of it none too smooth, but with an experienced and trustworthy skipper, such as Warden Tanner, at the helm should have a successful voyage during the year 1931.

WELL WORTH TRYING.

There was considerable comfort and much food for thought in the address of Dr. Christie, head of the Ontario Agricultural College, to the local Rotary Club and their farmer guests yesterday.

While economic conditions generally are bad, there is solace in the thought that the lot of our people in this part of Ontario is probably better than that of the residents of other sections of the Dominion, and it is gratifying to learn from a recognized authority that Peterborough district farmers have been working on a sound basis.

Dr. Christie's suggestion that the citizens of Peterborough and the farmers of the surrounding district should co-operate in a mutual buying program, is well worthy of serious consideration.

Undoubtedly there is much along that line that might be done to the benefit of this whole section; urban dwellers have been none too careful in the past about buying the products of the nearby farms, and farmers, on the other hand, have been equally neglectful, in some cases at least, of the desirability of buying from their logical shopping centre.

As Dr. Christie points out, this is an abnormal situation and it merits an unusual effort to cope with it; our urban service organizations and our farmers' clubs might do worse than strive to carry out the program laid down by the principal of the Agricultural College.

RADIO, AN ALLY OF CHURCH.

The bishops at the Convocation of Canterbury have given their approval to the broadcasting of Sunday religious services. No doubt the broadcasting would continue whether or not they approved, but it is more comforting all around to know that they endorse the radio as a method of sowing the good seed. A committee appointed to investigate the effects of Sunday religious broadcasts reported, among other things, that it has brought the habit of family prayer back into the home. This is a considerable achievement as the cry of ministers of various denominations has been that family prayer or worship has been rapidly disappearing from the homes. Until the radio came to their assistance they appealed largely in vain for its restoration. They held that the gathering of the family together in prayer was one of the most effective means of enabling the various members to lead Christian lives. Hence the radio has justified its entry into the religious field by the incentive it has provided for a return to family worship.

This fact proves that the people do not regard the religious broadcast as just so much entertainment. Evidence of this is also found in the report of the bishops' committee, which declared that there was no evidence that people took the religious broadcasts casually, and smoked their pipes while listening. On the contrary, the Bishop of Ely, chairman of the committee, said that they gave reverent attention, which no doubt explains the return to family worship.

A noteworthy feature of the report was the statement that the people had not given up church-going because of the broadcasts. No doubt this conclusion was reached after comparing attendance statistics before and after the advent of the religious broadcasts. The fact that there has been no decrease in attendance indicates that the radio is reaching those who were not in the habit of going to church and reaching them most effectively. Instead, therefore, of the radio being a rival of the church it is a valuable ally, multiplying its appeal a hundredfold. It reaches those who are not accustomed to go to church and is a blessing to the shut-ins, who because of physical infirmities are not able to attend.

We believe that church members, if able, should strive to attend church as often as possible, whether or not there is anything special on the program. The Lord's House should mean something to them. It is the proper place for worship and provides the blessing that comes from common communion. But there are many church members and others who apparently are not impressed with this view of public worship, and it is to these that the radio, with its religious message, appeals as with the voice of conscience and conviction.

The bishops' committee concludes that "the radio is a powerful factor in the recreation of family life." There is no doubt that the radio can be a wonderful power for good, but it must not be forgotten that it can also disseminate influences not so elevating as the religious broadcasts. For this reason efforts should be made to put it on as high a plane as possible and keep it there.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

PRISON DISCIPLINE.

Disturbances and insubordination on the part of inmates of the Toronto jail were perhaps not as serious as the reports might lead the casual reader to believe. Yet at the same time such occurrences remind the public of the necessity of guarding against the development of conditions that might make possible in this country prison outbreaks like those which have caused fearful tragedies in United States institutions in recent years. Not that there appears to be any immediate danger of murderous prison riots becoming the fashion in this country. Canada's system of criminal justice has been kept almost entirely free from the evil influences which have given the United States so much concern and trouble. These have introduced even into the administration of their prisons incompetent officials, political intrigues, favoritism, extreme schemes of so-called prison "reform," and other factors, leading in some cases to an almost total lack of control over the inmates of the jail by the governor and his staff.

No one will fail to sympathize with prisoners who have real grievances, which no doubt occasionally occur, and it must be admitted that not every Canadian jail, according to the Ross Welfare Commission, can boast of sanitary accommodations and other conditions which every human being, even though convicted of crime, has reason to claim and expect. But when it comes to a question of discipline, the public will be equally unanimous in supporting the jail authorities in determined suppression of insubordination, violation of rules, and all sorts of irregularities and disturbances on the part of prisoners. So long as prison is calculated to act as a deterrent upon those who may, for various reasons, be criminally inclined, it must be expected that houses of detention will not be conducted along lines making them as attractive as the average man's own domicile. Rules will be enforced that will deprive the convict of those privileges and luxuries which he has forfeited for the time being by his own offense against society. If, rather than submit quietly to such rules, some of the more reckless prisoners take physical action, necessitating physical suppression and punishment, their plight is not likely to arouse any great wave of sympathy on the part of the law-abiding public.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if once more it will be necessary to page the Attorney-General of Ontario.

One feature about Government-owned radio is that we could write to our local member about it if the programs failed to please.

The illness of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is regretted. He is rightly regarded as one of the strong men of the present Government.—Brantford Expositor.

BOLSHEVISM.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

The highest dignitaries in the Catholic Church are now bending every energy to combat Bolshevism. We can see how serious the Russian gesture has become when yesterday the Archbishop of Montreal caused to be read in all his churches another and still more serious warning against the Russian methods of industry, agriculture and morals.

Bolshevism (originally a word from the Greek, meaning ballo, I throw, and intended to refer to the overthrow of the present world-wide systems of religion and industry) is a very simple thing to understand. It can best be explained by an illustration.

The government of Ontario owns and operates a hydro system. It finds employment there for a certain number of people. Extend that system to every branch of industry and agriculture and you have Bolshevism. Soviet means a council, commune, or district (all the same) and the aim of Bolshevism is not to make socialism a system administered by one central government but by a number of provincial (soviet) systems each elected by the people and each running its own show. Bolshevism further believes that the Christian religions and all forms of supernaturalism are unwarranted and that they impede the growth, freedom and happiness of the people. The weakness of this position logically, of course, is that religion cannot possibly interfere with the liberty of the people if the people themselves choose it. Nor, of course, can any normal human being reasonably declare that the hope of a glorious resurrection and all that leads up to that hope and all the pious virtues and charities or benevolences connected with it do not tend to elevate the human mind and to raise humanity above the narrow prison walls of this earthly life in which Bolshevism wishes to confine us.

Do not make the mistake of supposing that Bolshevism is the triumph of the people. It is the triumph of the central committees. As a matter of fact, it is the present world system with a reshuffle of the cards into the hands of the few. Democracy may rush to the polls to do wonders as it did last summer but it usually fails to do them. It is impossible that the least informed should undertake to rule the rest. The spread of Democracy has made the world far worse than it ever was for the people themselves. The crowd always wants its own way and always wants one of its own to lead it no matter how useless he or she may really be. That sort of thing is running the world into chaos. It is against all this madness that the clergy are protesting. If the Russian "people" could think they would see that after all the natural is supernatural. It was not made by man, however it was made.

A Thought

SYMPATHY

"The supreme need of the world is human sympathy" says an esteemed contemporary. "It is better than riches, better than place or power, for, in the hour of direct need it binds up the broken-hearted comforts the sorrowful and lifts the fallen. A kindly word is often better than financial aid, if it puts a man on his feet when fallen, and opens possibilities for escape from dire disaster. The primal purpose of fraternal societies is to encourage human sympathy. At our altars the tie of sympathy and helpfulness is forged and every good man is a manlier man, and every good woman is a more womanly woman because of sympathy.

GROWTH OF CANADIAN NEWSPAPERS.

The first issue of the Halifax Gazette, Canada's first newspaper, was printed on a half sheet of foolscap. Some of the Saturday and weekly editions of present-day Canadian newspapers require 60 to 100 pages, 8 columns wide and 28 inches deep, in which to give the desired information to the people.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

HANDS OFF

When she had fled upstairs to her room, after the horror of Rickey's revelation, Virginia had thrown herself across the bed and with clenched hands and burning cheeks had faced what was before her. Nothing could be as it had been. Her sense of shame in Rickey's inexcusable attitude towards Michael was overwhelming. She felt herself smirched by it. Soiled . . . !

She had sent finally for Rickey, and when the door had shut him in with her, she had demanded, "What did you mean when you said you owed Michael McMillan a thousand dollars?"

He had said, sharply, "Who told you that?"

"I heard you talking to Mr. McMillan. I was behind the screen in the library."

"Eavesdropping?"

"You know I wasn't. Tell me all about it, Rickey."

"You needn't take that tone—" but he told her, sullenly—of the night by the river, the game with Lute Carney and his cronies, of the meeting with McMillan the conversation that followed.

"And you promised him the manuscript?"

"Yes."

"And now you are not going to give it to him?"

"He doesn't want it, does he?"

"Even if he doesn't, you shouldn't have said the things you did, Rickey."

"Why shouldn't I say what I think? I'm not McMillan's lackey—to lick his boots—"

As Rickey had stood leaning against the foot of the bed, cheeks flushed, eyes bright, his tongue a little thick, it had seemed to Virginia that for the first time she saw him without the veil of illusion in which her love had wrapped him. She had known his faults, but had refused to admit them. All at once it had swept over her; the realization of his weakness, his selfishness, his neurotic obsession as to his own importance.

"I think," she said, slowly, "that you owe Mr. McMillan an apology."

"Then you can think again," he blazed "What do you take me for, Jinny?"

"A gentleman, Rickey."

She had been sitting upon the bed in her gold lace gown, her hair disordered, her cheeks stained with tears. But something in Rickey's face as he had bent above her, had made her afraid, and she had risen and put a chair between them.

"I am a gentleman," he had raged, "and I dare anyone to say I'm not. As for Michael McMillan," he had seemed to cast him aside with a gesture, "I'm with him. And you needn't think you can boss me, Jinny. I'm my own master. I'm going to do as I please. I'm not tied to your apron string. And one of the things I am going to do is to accept an invitation from Marty Van Duyne to go to Florida on her father's yacht. He's taking a party of friends. And I shall write a book about her."

She had stared at him, not comprehending, then she had said, "You're not yourself, Rickey."

"You mean I've been drinking?"

"Yes."

"What if I have? My mind is clear enough."

"Then—you are planning to—leave me—alone?"

"Why not? It's the opportunity of a lifetime, Jinny. And they haven's asked you."

"No," slowly, "they haven't asked me."

"And I can't afford to miss it. And I don't intend to miss it. I'd follow Marty Van Duyne to the end of the world—"

"Rickey—are you—in love with her?"

He had flung up his head. "I'd rather not put it that way. She's a wonderful creature. A star high in the heavens."

She had known then it was hopeless to go on with it. Rickey in his exalted moods was beyond reason, beyond anything but his absorption in his own point of view.

So she had said, with beating heart, "How long will you be gone?"

"Six weeks."

"But—can you afford it?"

"I'm going to afford it. It will be ina sense an investment."

"We are spending our money so fast, Rickey."

"I'll be making more."

A long silence. Then, "When do you leave?"

"The day after New Year's."

"Have you thought what—I shall do?" "You can live right on in our rooms. You might ask Mary Lee to stay with you, she'd love it."

Virginia had had no words for that. She had been stunned by the knowledge of his indifference to her welfare—Oh! she had thought he loved her . . .

"I shall not ask her to stay with me, and I shall be leaving here early in the morning, Rickey."

"Leaving?"

"Yes. I can't stay on."

"Why not?"

"After—all this."

"All what? Nobody knows—but McMillan. And Tony will be furious—"

"Let him be furious. I'm not going to marry him. He knows it, and you may as well know it, Rickey."

"You needn't be so up-stage. It would be a very good thing for you."

"It wouldn't be a good thing for me," all at once her self-control had vanished, "it wouldn't be a good thing. I can't marry a man for his money, and I won't. So that's that, Rickey. You are having your own way about running off to Florida with Marty Van Duyne. Well I'll have my own way, in this! You say it is hands off with you? Well, then, it's hands off me, too, Rickey."

He had been sobered by her vehemence, "Oh, well, you needn't take it that way—"

"What other way can I take it?" She had begun to sob, and suddenly he had bent over her and had said in a softer tone, 'Don't Jinny."

Her arm had gone about his neck and for a moment they had clung together. "I'm a brute," he had whispered, with his cheek against hers, "but I've gotto go!"

After he had left her, she had taken off the gold lace gown and had put on a simple blue negligee which she had made for herself. With her bright hair braided and down her back, she had looked like one of the ladies of Arthurian legend.

She had known what she had to do and had gone to the desk and got out pen and paper. The paper bore the Bleecker coat-of-arms, and was very thick and fine. The words as she had written them to Michael had looked very clear-cut and cameo-like on the white surface. She had written steadily and without hesitation, had sealed the envelope and set the letter aside. She would sent it downstairs in the morning.

She had said her prayers in a methodical fashion, kneeling by the bed, with her face in her hands. She had known that she ought to pray wildly, but she couldn't. Her petitions had been cool and conventional. For many nights she had been saying, "Dear God, be with my Michael, and bless him—" But now why pray a prayer like that? He was no longer her Michael!

She had crept into bed, and between the covers had thought about it. No, Michael was no longer hers. She must not think of it. She had not been quite sure why she had decided it so quickly, nor why she had held so firmly to her decision. Perhaps pride had had a lot to do with it. To have Michael mixed up in a sordid thing like this—to havet make excuses for Rickey, to have to make them again and again. For Rickey would be coming back—some instinct told her that Marty Van Duyne wouldn't want him—and when he came back, he would have to be reckoned with. Virginia couldn't cast him off, and neither could she burden Michael with the problem of Rickey's future.

She had slept at last, and had waked at dawn. Wrapped again in the blue negligee she had looked forth from the windows, and had seen the sky illumined only by the stars, had heard the wind blow across the dead gardens of Derekdale, and had known it was Christmas morning. Lighting the candles on her desk, she had written another letter which she had addressed to Tony. Then, dressing rapidly, she had gone downstairs and had asked her way to the nearest church.

The long walk had refreshed her, and when she had come to the little sanctuary and had found there a simple rector tending his flock at the early service, she had prayed with a clearer mind than on the night before. She had prayed for Michael, in a gesture of renunciation—"Wherever he may be, dear God, go with him."

She had returned to Derekdale, composed and sure of the way before her. She had asked if she might see Mrs. Bleecker and had been received by her hostess in bed.

Jane had looked younger than ever in a rose-colored bed-jacket, with her hair tied with a wide pink ribbon. She was having tea and thin toast. She adored hot chocolate and muffins at this hour, but she had to think of her figure.

"My dear child," she had said as Virginia entered, "what gets you up so early?"

"I've been to church."

"Oh, really?"

"Yes, and I am having to leave you this morning, Mrs. Bleecker."

A light had come into Jane's eyes. "Why are you going?"

"Unexpected things have come up which I must look after."

"Will your brother go with you?"

"No."

"What does Tony say about it?"

"I haven't told him."

It had been plain that Jane was puzzled. "Are you running away from him?" she had demanded.

"Oh, no. I've written him a note."

Jane had seemed to make a sudde decision. "Sit down," she said, "we might as well have things out. I know that Tony wants to marry you, and I'd like to know what you are going to do about it."

"Nothing. I'm not in love with him."

"And you won't marry him unless you are in love?"

"No."

"Some women might think of the advantages."

Virginia's eyes had met the older woman's, and the scorn in them had burned like a flame. "You mean the money? Marriage with me could never be a—contract. You needn't be afraid, Mrs. Bleecker. Tony is perfectly safe."

Then Jane had shown herself as crude as a fishwife: "Of course," she said, "there's someone else. You wouldn't throw away millions unless you were in love with another man. That's your real reason though you aren't telling it."

The humor of the situation had suddenly struck Virginia, so that she had smiled as she answered: "You don't want me to marry Tony. Why should you care whether I love anyone else?"

Jane had been a bit sullen about it, "I don't care." But Virginia had seen in that moment that Jane's pride was hurt. She had wanted Virginia to suffer, not Tony. Who was this girl that she dared put aside with a gesture the Bleecker fortune?

Because of this knowledge which seemed to set her above and beyond all Jane's petty irritations Virginia had been able to hold out her hand and say, with calmness, 'I must be running along. And I haven't wished you a 'Merry Christmas.'

"Fat chance," Jane had said, inelegantly, "that I'll have a merry Christmas with Tony raging." But she had taken Virginia's hand, and had had the grace to be a bit ashamed of herself, "Perhaps I shouldn't have spoken with quite so much frankness."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," Virginia had found herself again smiling down at the rose lady among the pillows. Why be troubled in any way by pretty prejudices. Jane was not worth the hard thoughts that one might otherwise have wasted upon her.

When Virginia had at last said, "Good by," she had gone downstairs to find old Anthony in the breakfast room. He had risen at once: "How does this happen? No one else is up."

"I'm going home."

"You're not!—" his tone had been dismayed.

She had made her explanation. "I must—matters have come up—"

His shrwd eyes had questioned her, "You're not telling me the whole truth. Sit down and have breakfast with me and talk it over."

She had sat down with him at the end of the long table and been served with fruit and coffee. "I'm not hungry."

"But you didn't eat any supper last night. They said you weren't well and had gone upstairs. But I knew you couldn't stand the racket. I feel, my dear, that I should apologize."

"It wasn't your fault."

"Perhaps not. But it made you unhappy—"

"Yes. That and other things." Her eyes had met his steadily. "I can't tell you all about it—and I must go."

"Have you told Tony?"

"I've written him."

"I'm no end sorry. But you've a good head on your shoulders. You know hat you're doing, so I'll let it rest there.'

As she had risen from the table, Wells, the butler, had handed her a tiny parcel. "Mr. McMillan left this for you when he went out."

Virginia had taken it and had tucked it into her bag, and had said calmly, "Thank you, Wells." And how could wells know that her heart was beating wildly at the sound of Michael's name.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The Attic Room.

And now at last in the train Virginia was opening the parcel Wells had handed her. Old Anthony had driven her to the station, and had said, with a touch of emotion before he left her, "My dear, if you ever need a friend, you'll let me know?" And she had promised him and had added, 'Oh, I wish I loved Tony. It would be wonderful to have you for a father."

But all that was for otten, everything was forgotten, as she untied the string and found in a white kid box a carved moonstone set round with diamonds. The figure on the moonstone was of Diana, and Michael had written on a card the lines her ancestor had given to the lady of the Dutch spoons:

If east or west,
Or north or south,
Be my direction,
This silver tov
Will show me Dian's face,
And thy reflection."

He had written, too, "To my own Dian—with love—forever."

The pendant hung from a slender platinum chain. A beautiful thing, but Virginia knew she must not keep it. Or was she foolish not to take her happiness when it was at hand?

What To-day Means To You

"Aquarius"

If January 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to midnight.

A romantic atmosphere will be engendered by the planets on this date, and young people will probably fall in love and be happy within themselves in consequence—disillusionment will follow, however. The mind will be more than usually centered on social life and entertaining.

Children born on this January 28th will have bonny natures and considerable individual charm. They will make friends easily, and through their unselfishness, will keep them. They will take an interest in literature and history, but will dislike the science of mathematics.

You are ambitious, and you have something to offer the world besides the mere strength of your hands. You have an avid mind, and one which you will not allow to remain untrained. You believe in preparedness, and have vision, so that your opportunities do not find you napping when they knock at your door. You have courage without being foolhardy; you have self-confidence without being conceited; you have optimism without being too hopeful. You like to be busy, and busy at something worth while—you are not a time-waster, and each day's slate is usually wiped clean. You are not always fair to your body and mind. You try to run at high gear under all conditions, and unless you let up, you are due for a breakdown.

As a rule you have an even temperament, although, due to nerves, you sometimes show signs of irritability and touchiness. You are not one to harbour resentment or hate, and are always ready to pardon or forgive. You do not ened or desire constant companionship for complete happiness—you can enjoy periods of solitude, alone with your own thoughts and actions. You try to avoid crowds, and greatly dislike noise and confusions.

Your heart will remain whole for many years of your life, but it will finally be given to the man or woman of your choice to whom you will give your best loyalty and devotion.

AUSTIN URGES MIXED FARMING

Canada Has Suffered Depression Less Than Any Other Country, Says Dominion Bank Head.

ANNUAL MEETING.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28.— (By the Canadian Press.) — "Notwithstanding ,all adverse happenings Canada has suffered less during the past eighteen months than almost any other country and will recover more quickly," said A. W. Austin, president of the Dominion Bank of Canada in the course of his address at the sixtieth annual meeting of the shareholders of the bank held here to-day.

Mr. Austin referred to the soundness of the Canadian banking system and the adaptability of branch bank service to the Dominion's limited and scattered population. The president dealt exhaustively with agricultural conditions, especially in the prairie provinces and urged the extension of mixed farming operations.

C. A. Bogert, vice-president and general manager, in his address, dealt with the cause of shrinking grain prices and referred to the return of Russia as an exporter. The speaker pointed out that the shrinkage of grain prices was largely due to the policy of European countries, formerly importers increasing their own output and placing prohibitary tariffs on foreign wheat.

Dealing with the question as to whether gold storage is the root cause of the world's difficulties as many authorities assert, Mr. Bogert said "undoubtedly a shortage exists and the accumulation of over 50 per cent of the insufficient total stock in the hands of two countries works to the detriment of others."

Parliament Defeats Divorce Amendment

LONDON, Jan. 28 (C.P.) — The House of Commons to-day defeated a bill which would modify the English Divorce Law to make insanity a ground for dissolving the marriage contract.

The vote was 148 to 114 on an application for introduction of a measure making insanity for a period of five years a cause for divorce.

LIST DECLINE CONTINUES ON TORONTO CURB

Nickel Sells Under 15 While Brazilian Was Down to Slightly Above 23.

IMPERIAL OIL OUT.

Abitibi and Atlantic Sugar Two Issues to Feature the Advance.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28. (CP)— The decline which began with the first of the week continued its slow way during this morning operations on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Leaders slipped off fractionally, not so much because of pressure, but rather because buyers are waiting for stock rather than seeking committments and the action of Wall Street favored them in this regard.

Nickel sold under 15, Brazilian was down to slightly above 23, C.P.R., Ford of Canada, Consolidated Bakeries lost less than ½ point.

In the oil group, B.A. Oil, Imperial Oil and International Petroleum were the only issues out the first couple of hours. The first two were off a point.

Liquor stocks were dull, Walkers unchanged at 8 1-8.

Two issues featured on the advance, Abitibi and Atlantic Sugar. Abitibi jumped more than 2 points to 11½, while Atlantic Sugar staged another strong advance, to-day selling up 2 points to 25, the highest point in a long time. Deforest Crosley, a cur. issue, was firmer above 13.

Board Room Gossip.

The Brookmire Analyst in reviewing Canadian conditions states that looking back on the year 1930, they conclude that industrial conditions in Canada were not as severely affected by the present world-wide depression as they were in the United States. On first thought this appears surprising, since Canada depends more largely on outside sources for a market than does the United States. But Canada is a younger country and the long-time rate of growth is fast. Comparisons of actual 1930 results with those of 1929 make a more favorable showing in Canada than in countries where developments have reached a higher state and the long-time rate of growth is slower.

In view of the above, it is rather illogical to find the Analyst saying that they are not yet prepared to recommend the purchase of Canadian common stocks. We, in Canada, are not looking for any immediate boom in the stock market, nor do we think such is warranted at the present time. But the majority are certainly convinced that the leading securities have seen their lows and discriminating purchases made right now will prove very profitable over a period of time.

It is rather interesting to note that whilst in 1930 a large number of Canadian corporations found it necessary to revise their dividend rate downward or omit disbursement altogether, yet the total for the twove months of that year was well in excess of the corresponding months of 1929. Initial payments, extras and bonuses and increased rates more than balanced reductions to enable the year 1930 to establish a new high mark for dividends by Canadian corporations.

Sentiment in Wall Street at the moment is quite cheerful. Because the market was able to move ahead last week those who had been on the side lines were encouraged. This resulted in advices to pick up the pivotal shares on a scale during any further good setback. Longs were being told to accept profits during rallies because it was the belief that stocks could be replaced at more reasonable levels on the technical reactions.

A trader of many years' experience recently pointed out to Financial Service that it is only in exceptional cases that a leader of a bull market that has terminated ,ever repeats in a new bull market. Should history repeat itself, it is clear that traders will have to look for new leaders to show the way in the next bull market, and many have been scanning the list in the hope of picking the right ones.

One enterprising Montreal trader has decided to purchase 100 shares each of six Canadian stocks selling at 5 or under. His total commitment would amount to $3,000. This trader takes the view that out of his six stocks, two may remain at the vanishing level for several years. He points out that should only one of these six stocks make good, that is, record an advance to 30 in the next two years, his 100 share investment in that issue would repay him for his total outlay, and besides he would have five hundred shares of stock that are bound to be worth something. This trader feels that those who have the means to speculate in this manner and give some consideration to their choice, will be well rewarded in a couple of years. It is evident, of course, that considerable patience will have to be exercised, and this manner of speculation is only for the one that is entrenched financially and can disregard intermediary market fluctuations.

India's Disturber Of The Peace Released

Mahatma Gandhi, the so-called "Savior of India," who has been kicking his heels in an India jail since last May, is to be released this week with many other political prisoners. The Maharajah of Patalla (lower inset), at the Indian Round Table Conference, requested the British Government to consider releasing some of these political prisoners and Lord Irwin (top, inset), gave the necessary permission this week. The picture above of Mahatma Gandhi shows him in typical attitude squatting before a spinning wheel.

SYLVANITE INCREASES VALUE OF COMPANY'S ORE RESERVES

Reported to Have Been Breaking Very Rich Ore of Late— Averages $10 Per Ton.

MINING NEWS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28. (Special to Examiner.)—Noranda featured a strong mining market to-day, with the Rouyn producers stock meeting unusually brisk demand in New York. Reports of high gold recoveries for December and January are held partially responsible for the renewed strength, while the fact the Montreal Refinery will be ready for operation next week has resulted in increased interest.

According to information over brokers' wires Sylvanite has increased the value of ore reserves during the last four months by $1 per ton, if value of broken ore in stopes averaged $9 per ton formerly, it is now valued at $10 per ton. The company is reported to have been breaking very rich ore of late. It is said that there has not been a month in which the mine didn't increase reserves.

It is understood that recent buying of McIntyre-Porcupine for New York account was the result of an investigation made by a financial group in that city. Engineers of a prominent American engineering firm were recently in Canada conducting the examination and their report to their principals is known to have been favorable. Most of the stock purchased has been at prices in excess of $20 per share.

Denial of a report that production in the new Dome mill had been reduced to 1,000 tons per day because of high tailings losses and mechanical difficulties is contained in a communication received from the mine by a local mining man. The mill it is stated is running at capacity of 1,500 tons per day with excellent extraction. Slimes are now passing through the new patchuca tanks which should reduce loss in tailings considerably.

Imports of copper in Manufactured form by the United States amounted to 21,895 metric tons in December against 22,844 in November and 30,459 in October, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Great Britain imported 11,024 tons in December against 10,877 in November and 16,399 in October. Exports of refined copper from United States aggregated 24,170 tons last month compared with 31,478 in November and 26,251 in October.

Talkies In London To Stay Open Sunday

LONDON, January 28 (C.P.). — Despite the decision of the Court of Appeals that Sunday movies were illegal under an eighteenth century statue, London's film fans will continue to enjoy Sunday talkies and other screen entertainments for the present, it appeared to-day.

The city's cinema exhibitors to-day unanimously passed a resolution to continue Sunday opening until official notification is received to close.

It was emphaszed at the exhibitors' meeting that in their view the decision of the Court was not so much that the cinemas were illegal as that the London County Council's method of giving permission for them to open was contrary to the law.

SUSPENSION RESCINDED.

WELLAND Ont. Jan. 28.—(C.P.)— The Fonthill Public School Board at a meeting last night rescinded their order of suspension against Holland McCombs and Edward Seeber.

They were also warned that further infractions of the school rule would inculcate their expulsion.

ENGLISH INDUSTRIES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(CP)—Announcement is expected shortly of a working arrangement between two noted armament and general steel firms—Thomas Firth and Son and John Brown and Company, both of Sheffield. Such an amalgamation would result in one of the biggest coal and steel combines in Great Britain, the present authorized capital of the two companies aggregating $35,000,000.

John Brown and Company have constructed many of the most important vessels of the Royal Navy at their Clyderbank works, including the biggest warship afloat, the battle-cruiser Hood, 42,100 tons.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP)—The condition of Bishop Fallon, who has been seriously ill for some time, remains unchanged it was stated this afternoon by Dr. W. J. Tillman the attending physician.

WORLD HEALTH IS AT STAKE, SAYS WRITER

Reduction in Payments Due United States in Nation's Economic Interest.

Treaties As War Burdens.

Tells Wisdom of Relieving Foreign Debtors of War Expenditures.

By Thomas W. Woodleck.

It is but fair to correspondents who have objected to the views of this writer on the subject of "equating" foreign debts to the lower commodity price level that they should be "heard" on the subject. There is much logic in their position, and perhaps a good way to get them and their case into the record is to state that case as strongly as it can be stated and then see what, if anything, can be urged against it. Mr. Isaac Marcosson, it so happens, in a recent article in the "Saturday Evening Post" undertook to state that case and did so with much force. It will, perhaps, be fairest to let him speak for that side, and his argument is summarized as follows:

At the outbreak of the World War the entire debt of the United States was less than $1,000,000,000. On Armistice Day it stood at about $27,000,000,000. Of the increase, about one-half was loaned to the Allied nations. The money was provided by sales of Liberty bonds to our citizens. Not all the money borrowed was spent in the 'common cause" of war. A substantial portion was borrowed for other purposes, some of which were commercial in character. The loans were business transactions and not gifts. Further, we have always refused to recognize any connection between those loans and German reparations. The loans are debts by the Allies to the United States; Germany's debt to the Allies is an entirely separate matter. Germany's debt to the United States is also entirely separate. By authority of Congress we fixed the debts as they now stand at a considerable reduction from the original amounts ,and in doing so took into account the ability of our debtors to pay. The present value of those debts at 5% is about one-half the original figure. They call for an annual payment of $233,700,000 (roundly) in 1931, $243,700,000 in 1932, and $267,000,000 in 1932. France is better able to pay than when we fixed her debt. There is no reason to suppose that our other debtors are not able to do so. And we have our own troubles now with the fading of our "prosperity." The debts are just debts. They were equitably adjusted when settlements were made; why should they not be paid?

The Lesson of History.

All true—every word of it. And it may further be added that, as between nations, there can be no such thing as "friendship," and that those considerations which bulk so largely cementing human friendships can have no lasting influence in international relations in which there is little or no room for "sentimental" considerations. International "friendships" can rest only upon definite common interests and only so long as those interests are really common. Which being so, what possible argument can there be for our reducing those debts? How can it be to our "interest" to do so?

For the answer one must go to history When, following the execution of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, the Allies declared war upon France, the French nation went to war. The great German poet, Goethe, was with the Prussian forces at the battle of Valmy, and, on the evening of that day, to the Prussian officers smarting under the day's defeat at the hands of the French, he pointed to the "new thing" that had come into the world—a nation, a people at war. It was the first time in the history of modern Europe that this phenomenon had appeared, and Goethe's intuition had recognized it. The Italian historian Ferrero, has pointed out its appalling consequences.

Treaties as War-Burdens.

A war between princes or kings, he says, is usually a limited affair which can be stopped at any time by a marriage, a subsidy or a piece of territory under a negotiated treaty, after which normal relations are resumed. But a war between peoples once started cannot in fact be limited, but must go to the bitter end, the completed vanquishment of one party by the other. Further, the "treaty" which marks the cessation of hostilities in such a war is certain to be an "imposed" and not a "negotiated" treaty—and an imposed treaty, unless marked by great generosity on the victor's part, while it may stop the fighting does not end the war. If either continues it or breeds a new war. The treaty of Vienna was the last really "negotiated" treaty of major consequence in Europe. The treaty of Frankfort was the first really "imposed" treaty of major importance in Europe. It cemented undying hostility between France and Germany. The treaty of Berlin seven years later, was the next treaty of the same sort, for it was "imposed" by Europe (acting through Disraeli and Bismarck) upon Russia, and it created the Balkan witches-brew. Out of the treaty of Frankfort and the treaty of Berlin grew the World War of 1914, and out of the World War came the treaty of Versailles.

That treaty—the first fruits of "open covenants openly arrived at"—combined the "best features" of the treaty of Frankfort and the treaty of Berlin. It was "imposed" at the point of the sword. It was designed to "enslave Germany. It was an earnest attempt to "Balkanize" the Continent of Europe. One has but to compare it with the treaty of Vienna—which not so long ago we were taught to abhor as a monstrosity of "secret diplomacy"—to see how far we have "progressed" in a century. Europe had after 1815 one of its longest periods of unbroken peace; we have had since Versailles a virtual continuance of war, so far as Germany is concerned, and a situation in Europe generally which is only a little short of that. And it is that situation which is at the bottom of the world's economic troubles to-day. It is statecraft and not "business' that has failed—miserably failed. But it is the economic condition of the world that contains the immediate threat to peace.

To Our Interest to Cut Debt.

Taxes laid in times of low commodity prices rest more lightly upon people's shoulders as prices rise; conversely, taxes paid in times of high prices press heavily as prices fall. The world's taxes to-day were fixed more or less at war-time prices, and this year threaten to become a leaden burden upon many of the European peoples. War takes money, we are commonly told, and people who are poor cannot make war; the world's very poverty is a guarantee of peace. This is a shallow view and ceases to be true when poverty reaches a stage where it becomes intolerable—especially when we have an unstable combination of political units—some ten more of them than we had in 1914. And of all the burdens that rest upon the shoulders of taxpayers in the principal nations of to-day the debts to us stand out in bold relief—not that they constitute the heaviest part of the load, but they gall not merely the shoulders but the pride of the debtors.

Now the argument—if it be one—for the readjustment by us of the payments due to us is not that it will cause our debtors to "love" us any more—or "hate" us any less—than they now do. It is not that the amount of taxes abolished by such a readjustment will relieve the actual European tax burden to such an extent as to make it easy to carry. It is not that we should be "altruistic" in our dealing with the world. It is simply that it is to our interest to throw into the economic scales at this time this small weight in the belief that it may help to turn them, for our own well-being depends as never before upon the health and the peace of the world around us. More things threaten that health and that peace than at any time since Europe became Europe. And what is our "bond" worth if that health be not restored and that "peace"—such as it is—be really broken?

That, the present writer humbly submits, is the argument as he sees it for a readjustment of our foreign debts. With which he rests his case.

NORANDA GAINS ON MINE MART

Price Moves Above 17.00 For Gain of Three-quarters Over Last Night's Close.

MAJORITY OF ISSUES HOLD.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28. (CP)— Noranda was a feature of a stronger mining market in the forenoon to-day, price moving above 17.; for a gain of three-quarters over last night's close. Balance of the list still displayed a somewhat irregular appearance but majority of issues were holding at mid-day.

Dome moved up 5 to 10.50 and Vipond and Granada a couple a piece to 1.20 and 18.50 respectively. Wright Hargreaves, a late strong spot yesterday, eased a couple to 2.26 on profit-taking. In the lower-priced golds Columario was four higher at 22, Siscoe up 3 to 53 and San Antonio and Bunker Hill Extension slightly above last night. Kirkland Lake gold, Howey and Federal eased a cent each.

Hudson Bay and Waite Ackerman both firmed 5 to 4.80 and 1.75 respectively, and Pend Oreille advanced a like amount to 80. Oils were dull, Ajax Oil easing a point to 1.54, Home Oil 3 to 1.62 and Acme a cent to 20¾.

HOUSE CROWDED TO HEAR DEBATE

Disputes Bill Will Be Voted on by English House at 11 P.M.

LONDON, Jan. 28 (C.P. Cable). — The House of Commons was packed to capacity this afternoon as the debate was resumed on the Government's bitterly-contested Trades Disputes Bill.

Members of all parties crowded into the historic chamber, summed by the "three-line" whip order which may be ignored only in cases of serious illness.

The division will be taken at 11 p.m. Most observers regarded the defeat of the Government as only a remote possibility, but still a possibility in the feverish atmosphere which prevailed.

It was generally expected that enough Liberals would abstain from voting to carry Premier Ramsay MacDonald safely past the crisis. Sir John Simon, however, will lead a small Liberal group in voting against the Government.

Thinks Vote Will Be Close.

DETROIT, Jan. 28 (C.P.). — The British Labor Government would be "fortunate" if it escaped defeat in the House of Commons, admitted Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Labor member of the Commons for East Middlesbrough, addressing the Women's City Club here last night. If a general election had been held last November, she said, the Conservatives would have been victorious, "but conditions are somewhat better for us now," she added.

ICE CARNIVAL HUGE SUCCESS

Variety of Costumes Seen as Event is Held Under Ideal Weather Conditions.

PRIZE WINNERS

ROSENEATH, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual carnival was held at the Roseneath skating rink on Friday night and proved fairly successful.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed and the ice was ideal. So numerous were the entries in each class that the judges, who must have wished that the prize list had been longer than it was, were not envied their task of choosing the winners.

Only one prize awarded to each class, that many were worthy of winning a prize, and would have received one had the list permitted.

The ice was ideal and splendidly lighted, presented a real picture of gaiety and color. There were many good costumes on the ice including The Henpeck Husband, Indian Costumes, Amos 'n' Andy, Brides and Grooms, Gold Dust Twins, Chinaman, Cowboy, St. Patrick, Clowns, Before and After, and other various costumes for the occasion.

Music provided by the Alderville Band added greatly to the pleasure of both skaters and spectators. The judges were Mr. Fred Norris, Mrs. E. Clark Davey, of Rochester, who is a visitor in the village, and Miss Gladys Wellwood; while Messrs Bart Thackeray, C. W. Varcoe, Milton McMillan and M. D. Brown were the directors in charge.

The following is a list of the prize winners: Fancy dressed couple, Clayton Butters and sister, Miss Floris Butters, as Chinese. Original dressed couple, Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. Delbert Brisbin as "Before and After." Best costume, man: Art Newman; Best costume, lady: Miss Kathleen Barrie as "Maggie." Best costume, school girl: Myrtle Hogg dressed to represent a rabbit. Best dressed school boy, Frank Moir. Best clown, Dave McGrath.

Races

Open race, 10 laps: Edgar Carew.

Couple race, 4 laps, Edgar Carew and Bessie Turner.

School boys' race.—Arthur Beaver, Alderville.

School girls' race.—Bessie Turner.

Ladies' Race.—Bessie Turner.

The door receipts amounted to about forty-five dollars, which is duly appreciated by the society.

Immediately after the skating, a dance was given by the same society, in Orange Hall, with music provided by home talent orchestra and was exceptionally well rendered and appreciated. This being their first appearance in public, it is a pleasure to hear so many nice comments on their playing; so keep it up, boys!

SCHOOL BOARD HOLD SESSION

C. Weston Appointed to Library Board to Replace H. W. Lapp.

INAUGURAL MEETING FEB. 4

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The regular meeting of the Campbellford Board of Education was held on Monday evening in the Public Library with Dr. H. O. Richardson, chair, G. A. Kingston, Dr. O. C. Watson, W. M. Stephens W. Cock, W. Henson, J. A. Loucks and J. C. Anderson present.

Dealing with the correspondence, a report was read from one of the public school teachers calling attention to the misbehaviour of one of her pupils. This matter was considered, and left to the internal committee to handle.

The chairman also brought a complaint forward. This was in connection with children coming to school before nine o'clock and having to stay outside. Mr. Haig, the principal, pointed out that on stormy morning the children were allowed in the boiler room. The trouble was however that the large boys as a rule crowded the smaller ones out. It was impossible to let the children into the class rooms before the proper time. This matter was also left to the internal committee to deal with.

The appointment of a representative to the Library Board was next brought forward. This appointment was to replace H. W. Lapp, who had left the town. On motion, it was decided that Clifford Weston be elected to fill this position.

Dr. Watson, speaking on behalf of Dr. B. Longmore, who was absent, brought forward the matter of many of the children of the school suffering from sore throats. It was thought that this was due to the fact that there was no moisture in the heat, as many of the children, after absenting themselves from school for a few days, became well.

The chairman, speaking on this question, said that the matter was being taken care of. He stated that a water system had been installed by Mr. Henson which it was hoped would overcome the trouble. Part of the trouble was due, however, he thought to one of the teachers having the temperature of her room up to 80 and insisting on the windows being open, thus making it very hard to regulate the heating.

Mr. Haig, the Public School principal, asked the board if it was not in order that he be in possession of keys of the schools, as at present he did not have them. This request was granted and on motion it was decided to arrange that the principal be in possession of the school keys.

At the conclusion of the meeting the chairman pointed out that the inaugural meeting of the 1931 board was slated to be held on Wednesday ,February 4, at 7 o'clock. It was however decided on motion that the time be altered to 7.30 p.m. of the same evening.

Accounts amounting to $583.51 were presented and on motion passed.

Mrs. Andrew Black, Harcourt, N.B., writes:—"I had been troubled with smothering and fainting spells and everything in front of me would turn black, and I would fall down in a faint and be unconscious for several minutes. I did not know what to do, until one day I was reading where Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had helped so many people and decided I would give them a trial. I used four boxes and found they help me wonderfully."

CANADA'S FURBEARERS

Taking an average of the eight years prior to June, 1928, the muskrat stands first in order of value of raw fur production for Canada as a whole, but in several of the provinces it yields place to other kinds of fur bearers. In each of the Maritime Provinces, the silver fox leads; in Quebec and British Clumbia the beaver is first; in the Northwest Territories, the white fox; and in the Yukon, the lynx. In Ontario and the Prairie Provinces the muskrat is of chief importance.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

CAMPBELLFORD BOY GAINS AMBITION

Wesley Cochrane Works Hard to Gain Degree in Accountancy.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Canada offers many opportunities to those who are willing and ready to forge ahead and nowhere more than in Ontario are these opportunities offered to the youth of the country who are willing and determined to grasp their chances as they meet them and use their time and energy to further their advancement.

An example of this is readily seen in the achievement of Wesley Cochrane of Campbellford. Born February 19, 1911, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Cochrane he passed with honors from the principal's room of the Campbellford Public School in June, 1925. Starting his High School course in the same year, he met with an accident in December necessitating a stay in Kingston Hospital where he was forced to undergo an operation.

The following year Wesley went to Simcoe, Ont., where he worked for one year in a woollen mill.

During his stay there he attended night school taking up a course in accountancy, passing with honors in all his examinations.

Following this he was employed as a book-keeper in a garage for seven years. He is now an accountant in an office in London, Ontario and is taking a course at Queen's University to obtain his degree.

CONGREGATION HONORS PASTOR OF HASTINGS CATHOLIC CHURCH

Presentation and Address Tendered Rev. Father McGuire at Farewell Service.

THREE YEARS IN VILLAGE

HASTINGS, Jan. 27. — (Examiner Correspondence). — Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church was filled at the 10.30 mass on Sunday morning, it being the occasion of the farewell Sunday for Rev. Father McGuire, who has been assistant at Hastings parish since April, 1928, coming during the illness of the late Rev. Father Brethreton. Immediately after mass, T. A. Coughlan read the following address and Felix Convey made the presentation of a substantial purse of gold:

"Rev. and Dear Father McGuire,—

"It is with sentiments of love and sorrow that we are gathered to-day to bid you good-bye. Your going was not unexpected, and yet when the definite word has come that you must leave us, our hearts are filled with sadness at the loss of a good and kind friend.

"During your comparatively short stay with us—three years in a priest's life is not long—we have seen exemplified in your work and have learned to value and admire the qualities that make of the priest another Christ, 'Sacerdos alter Christus.' It was upon you we depended for the continuing in our midst of the one unending and spotless sacrifice. You broke bread for us at the communion rail, your devotion to duty, your solicitude for the sick and patience with the erring have won our deepest respect. And we are not unmindful of your unfailing kindness to our late beloved pastor, Father Bretherton, during his long illness. For this we are most grateful.

"We regret your departure, but we know that, like the soldier, you must go at the word of command where work is to be done. You carry with you to your new field of labor the esteem and affection of the people of the parish of Hastings. And we ask you to please accept this small offering as a mark of our appreciation and regard.

"Signed on behalf of the congregation of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Hastings, Ontario —P. L. Doherty, R. J. Walsh, John Coughlan, James Convey, Daniel Cleary, John Gorman, John Noonan."

Although taken by surprise, Father McGuire expressed his deep appreciation to the people of Hastings parish for their gift and the kindly sentiments expressed in the address. He assured them of the affection which he had for every member of the congregation and heartily thanked them for the great kindness and loyalty they had shown to him during his short stay in their midst. "I came to you a stranger," said Father McGuire, "and have received kindness on all sides. If I have been 'another Christ' to you, if I have been the means of helping even one soul onward in the path that leads to the feet of the Master, then that is my reward."

In conclusion, Father McGuire assured the congregation of his abiding friendship and bespoke for Rev. P. J. Kelley the same kindness, cooperation and loyalty which they had shown him.

SIMON SWEEPS

a strike was being discussed. Sir John blandly suggested that Mr. Lloyd George might be cross-examined on his primary motive in not opposing second reading.

"The little Welshman"—as he used to be called—was on his feet in an instant. "I have no objection to being cross-examined on my primary motive," he said, "if my right honorable friend is willing to be cross-examined regarding his own."

At this reply the House cheered and laughed.

Sir John Simon described the bill as worthless in its definition of illegal strikes as those which were "absolutely indefensible." He repeatedly pressed the question as to whether, in the opinion of the Government, such a general strike as that of 1926 would be illegal if the bill became law. He quoted a statement by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald that the general strike was not entered into for political purposes.

The Laborites here interrupted with cheers.

"If that view is right," Sir John retorted, "then the cheers demonstrate what I have always suspected: that the honorable gentlemen on the opposite side of this House do want, by this Act, to legalize a general strike."

I Would Advise All Women To Use Them

Says Ontario Lady of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. G. T. Hartwick is Very Satisfied with the Results Obtained by Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Palmer Rapids, Ont., Jan. 28. —(Special).—Advice is often wasted because it is given free. Mrs. George T. Hartwick, a well-known resident here, offers some good advice that ought to be taken heed of because it concerns your health, and what is a more valuable asset than good health? Mrs. Hartwick writes: "I used Dodd's Kidney Pills before my second child was born and I found them such a help. I had no trouble with sore back and felt quite strong. I was able to do all my own work. I would advise all women to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are safe and give quick relief."

Mrs. Hartwick is not repeating what someone has told her, but something she knows, from her own experience. She feels that she owes it to other sufferers to tell them how Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved her.

Directors Hold Most Successful Fair in History of Board Last Year.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

TWEED, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of Tweed Agricultural Society was held in the Council chamber, when the president, T. S. McCrea, occupied the chair and in the course of a short address, stated that last year's fair was one of the best in the history of the society, both in the quality of the exhibits and the number.

Mr. McCrea took occasion to thank the directors for their co-operation in helping to make the fair such a success. J. W. Kingston, treasurer, presented his annual report which showed a deficit of $143.90. It was decided to employ five departmental judges for 1931.

The secretary was instructed to forward the usual application fee of $2 to the Ontario Fairs' Association and the Central Ontario Fairs' Association. A motion was passed that all exhibitors in classes other than horses, cattle, sheep and swine, must be bona fide residents of Hastings County.

A committee composed of T. S. McCrea, J. W. Kingston and T. C. Graham was appointed to meet a committee from the Park Association regarding the grounds. G. H. Stokes and J. W. Kingston were appointed delegates to the Central Fairs' Association at Belleville and C. R. Brown was appointed a delegate to the Ontario Fairs' Association, which meets in Toronto on February 5 and 6.

The following are the officers for 1931: T. S. McCrea, president; E. Moynes, 1st vice president; J. L. McGowan, 2nd vice president. The board of directors for last year was re-elected with the exception of G. H. Stokes and the Reeves of Tweed and Hungerford were added.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, C. R. Brown was appointed secretary and J. W. Kingston, treasurer for the coming year. J. W. McGowan and J. W. Kingston were appointed a committee to meet the township and village council regarding grants for 1931. T. C. Graham and F. J. Hunter were appointed auditors.

Air service between the Isle of Man and England is to be inaugurated.

ALPINE CLUB OF CANADA

In the history of the Alpine Club of Canada which holds its annual camp either in the Selkirks or the Rocky mountains in July or August, the twenty-third annual meeting (1928) was the first and only camp which did not experience a single storm. Mountaineers from all over the world journey each year to Canada to take part in this celebrated concourse. Last year (1930) the Maligne Lake district in Jasper national park was the rendezvous.

INDIGESTION NEARLY DROVE HIM WILD

until TANLAC came to his rescue

What a train of misery follows constant indigestion. The poor, weak stomach cannot digest food properly. Gas causes cramps and bloating; the pressure of gas distends the walls of the stomach and presses against the heart, causing fluttering and excessive nervousness. Because food is not digested, the body is not nourished and there is a steady loss in weight and strength.

As Mr. Henry Shoier, 175 Edinburgh St., Peterboro, Ont., writes: "Often I was so weak and miserable that I had to stop work before quitting time. But good old Tanlac came to my rescue when heartburn, palpitation, headaches and nervousness almost set me wild. Tanlac seemed to build me up all over again and now I have not a complaint in the world. I would not swap Tanlac for all other medicines put together."

You'll agree with Mr. Shoier and 100,000 others who have endorsed Tanlac after giving it a trial. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day. More than 35 million bottles sold.

RELIEF ASSOCIATION PROMISED CITY WIDE SUPPORT IN ITS WORK

General Committee Meet to Discuss Plans—Rooms Are Opened.

KINSMEN TO ASSIST.

That the Peterborough Relief Association is getting into its stride in earnest and that it has the wholehearted co-operation, not only of the City Charity Board but also of the churches of the city, all of which are engaged in relief work in some form, was evidenced last night at the general meeting held in the City Council Chamber, presided over by James Dutton, president of the organization, and called for the purpose of reporting on the activities to date of this new society which was formed for the augmentation of existing relief work in Peterborough.

A happy note of city-wide support and offers of co-operation was sounded throughout the entire meeting.

A. B. Cunningham, to whose energetic assistance the Peterborough Relief Association is deply indebted, is also a member of the City Charity Board. He said that the new organization will do much work that, of necessity, is immpossible to the Charity Board, such as providing clothing and other help, and remarked that the need in the city will be great before the winter season closes. The Charity Board and the Relief Association will co-operate in every possible manner to see that the situation is dealt with in the most satisfactory way.

The meeting was representative, with members of various relief societies and of the churches present. Offers of co-operation were received from the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, for St. John's Church; from Miss Fanny Dixon and Mrs. J. Forbes Allan and Mrs. G. H. Roper, representing St. Andrew's Church; from Mrs. D. Jordan and Mrs. J. Garbutt, representative of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; from Mrs. Myles Henry, representing the Catholic Women's League which works throughout the city; from J. Garside, representing Park Street Church; from Mrs. W. H. Andrews, representing St. George's Church; from A. B. Cunningham, representing Trinity United Church; from Adjutant Jones and Feltham of the Salvation Army.

General Committee

James Dutton, president of the Peterborough Relief Association, gave a brief report, outlining in his usual concise and clearly-worded style the progress to date of the new society and emphasizing the fact that the organizations which suported its inception are regarded as a general committee and that it was to report to this general committee that this meeting was called.

Mr. Dutton spoke of securing two rooms for distribution of clothing, above the offices at 435 George street. These are now opened to the public with a telephone installed. The rooms, which were provided through the kindness of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, have been made ready by Mrs. Ada Craig and several other ladies, with Mrs. W. R. Morris in charge of the Women's Section. A. B. Cunningham did a great deal of carpentering work in the way of providing racks, etcetera. Parker's Dye Works and Lansfield's gave hangers for the clothing, and the McDonald Lumber Company gave the necessary lumber.

Referring briefly to the finances of the new society, Mr. Dutton said that plans for raising money had not yet been completed.

He also mentioned a conference with the City Charity Board, at which the Board expressed its hearty appreciation of the work being undertaken by the Peterborough Relief Association.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, head of the Women's Section, also gave a brief report of the work being carried on in the distribution bureau, where several young women have volunteered their services in a clerical capacity and ladies are assisting with the taking in and giving out of clothing.

Mr. Dutton read a letter from R. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, outlining the conditions under which relief is given by the Central Charity Board, as follows:

'A request for relief, under the rules of the Board, should come before the Board for decision, but the Chairman and Relief Officer have authority to grant relief between meetings of the Board, such grants to be reported at the next meeting.

"Relief is given where it is found to be needed, and is furnished by orders on merchants for necessary provisions or fuel, and when needed, an order for burial. At times a railway ticket is given to a person who applies for relief and belongs or wishes to go to another municipality. Some old people who have no home are sent to the Protestant Home. It is very rarely that any other form of relief is given."

City Relief Report

A. Metheral, City Relief Officer, on request, said that, during the first three weeks of this year, the sum of $1170 has been expended in the city's relief program, with 191 families taken care of and 18 single men. About 15 cords of wood have been sawn for which $2 a cord is offered. Some men absolutely refuse to cut wood, especially the single men.

Mr. Glover said that each existing relief agency should go ahead and function as it had been doing, all that the new organization asked was for support and co-oupertion in the way of checking lists of names, so as to prevent overlapping, if possible.

It was announced that men working for the city and then having recesses of a fortnight were obliged to skip one week without relief and could claim assistance from the city for the second or third week, while unemployed

Mr. Glover read a letter received from the Kinsmen Club, as follows:

"Dear Mr. Glover,— We are informed that there will be a meeting of the Central Relief Organization this evening and we, as members of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club, wish to offer our assistance in any work undertaken by the organization.

"Just now we are busy putting on the play "Hay Fever," the proceeds of which will be devoted to charity and service work in the city. If these efforts meet with financial success we intend to assist the Relief Organization financially, as we have looked carefully over the ground and believe that it is more deserving of our co-operation that any other activity in the district.

"Wishing you every success and assuring you of our willing assistance at all times, we are, Yours sincerely, The Peterborough Kinsmen Club, R. O. Honey, president."

Members of the Ways and Means Committee of the Peterborough Relief Association are as follows: G. A. Gillespie (chairman), E. F. Mason, C. A. Salmonsen, J. R. Marshall, R. Abbott, W. R. Morris, J. E. Sullivan, Dr. J. F. O'Brien, J. J. Duffus, James Dutton, Andrew Brown, F. D. Kerr, K.C., J. Wells Fraser and R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, treasurer.

The personnel of the society is as follows: James Dutton, president; Mrs. Myles Henry, vice president; executive: Mrs. W. R. Morris, president Women's Section, Mrs. W. O'Brien, Mrs. Ada Craig and Miss Cathleen McCarthy, A. B. Cunningham, R. M. Glover, F. Sutcliffe, Jas. Juby and Alderman G. A. Macdonald.

Representatives to confer with the Charity Board are Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. Myles Henry, E. F. Mason and R. M. Glover.

At a meeting of the Central Charity Board held on Monday night, a deputation was present from the Peterborough Relief Association, composed of Messrs. James Dutton, R. M. Glover, E. F. Mason and Mesdames W. R. Morris and M. Henry.

They discussed with the members of the Charity Board certain work which the Relief Organization proposes to do, and asked if they made an appeal for funds would the Charity Board approve of it.

It was resolved on the motion of Mr. Cunningham, seconded by James Abraham, "That this Board endorse the proposals of the Relief Association for funds."

Diversified Farming Is Urged By Cutten

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 28 (C.P.).—A champion of diversified farming, Arthur W. Cutten, world-famous grain trader and financier, in an interview here, declared steps should be taken to discourage acreage of wheat and more attention given to the raising of beef, dairy cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry.

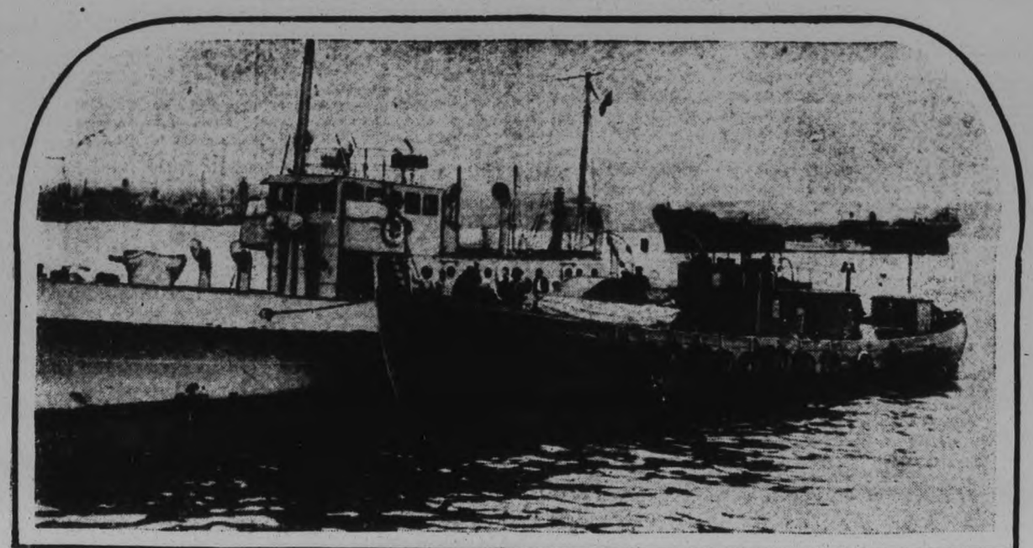
The present world-wide depression is only temporary, declared this noted grain authority. "I have closely followed the development of the great Western wheat fields of this country," he said, "and I am familiar with the hardships and disappointments resulting from this world-wide depression, which, however, promises to be only temporary."

GOVERNMENT TO RECONSIDER RACE ENTRY

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Indication that the British Government will reconsider its decision not to finance the defence of the Schneider seaplane speed trophy was forthcoming from Premier Ramsay MacDonald, after Lady Lucy Houston of Jersey had offered financial support for the event.

Shortly after publication of the offer of Lady Houston, known as "Lady Bountiful," because of her many gifts to charity, the Premier told a delegation of Members of Parliament at the House of Commons that he would be willing to reconsider the Government's stand.

Canadian Motorship And U. S. Coastguard



When the Canadian motorship Josephine K. was fired upon by the United States coastguard cutter No. 145, allegedly off Ambrose lightship, New York, within the tewlve-mile limit, her skipper, William P. Cluett of Lunenburg, N.S., was morally wounded. Reported finding of liquor aboard Coastguard cutter No. 180, seen above with the Josephine K. after she had brought her into port, is said to have precipitated an immediate investigation by United States authorities. In background at right may be seen garbage scow Brooklyn, on which Josephine K. was alleged to have been unloading liquor cargo when surprised by coastguards.

PRICE TO ANSWER LIBERAL ATTACKS

Expected to Lay Record of Department Before West Hamilton Gathering.

AVOID SUB-JUDICE.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—In his first public address since Opposition charges against his department were made, Attorney-General W. H. Price to-night will answer criticism levelled at him, at a meeting in Hamilton in the interests of Alderman Argue Martin, Conservative candidate in West Hamilton by-election.

It was indicated in Hamilton last night that Col. Price will place the record of the department before the public rather than deal specifically with matters which he holds are subjudice, and which are involved in the charges made by Elmore Philpott, Liberal candidate in West Hamilton.

In his address it is anticipated the Attorney-General will deal with the Government's program for the next session of the Legislature and more particularly with the legislation concerning his department.

The meeting will be held in the I.O.O.F. Temple and a capacity audience is expected to hear the Attorney-General fire the opening Conservative gun in the by-election campaign. C. W. Bell, K.C., M.P., West Hamilton, will introduce the speaker.

COCA-COLA COMPANY.

The following analysis of a corporation with local interests, taken from a current survey by the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, is one of a series which will be published from time to time.

Foremost domestic manufacturer of soft drinks, having one well-known product — Coca-Cola. Distributes throughout United States and in 75 foreign countries, bulk of gallonage going to jobbers who supply soda fountains; remainder is taken by distributing companies which sell to bottling concerns. Company and subsidiaries have 13 syrup factories in United States, Canada and Cuba, with aggregate daily capacity of 177,750 gallons. Production of carbonic gas and by-products is carried on by one subsidiary.

Net income has increased substantially each year since 1923. Indications are that 1930 was best period in company's history, earnings for first 9 months amounting to $10.25 per common share, compared with $9.26 one year earlier. On this basis, share results for the full 12 months probably reached $11, against $10.25 in 1929, $7.19 in 1928 and $6 dividend requirements. Prospects are favorable for at least an equally good showing in 1931. Has no funded debt, capitalization consisting of 2 issues of 1,000,000 shares each of no par common and of $3 cumulative class A stock. Latter issue is callable at $52.50, and expectation is that it will be retired; annual report for 1929 stated that about 30 p.c. had been bought in, and it is reported unofficially that purchases were continued last year. Strong financial and earnings positions indicate maintenance of policy of increased or extra dividends from time to time.—Standard Statistics Co.

23-Year-Old English Boy Been Missing For Six Weeks—Worked Near Lakefield

Complete mystery shrouds the disappearance of Edgar Turner, 23-year-old Englishman, at one time employed by Stanley A. Northey of Lakefield and who has been missing since leaving his last known place of work at Thamesford, after having expressed the intention of returning to his home at East Mosley, England, shortly before Christmas-tide.

Through Provincial Constable David Sylvester of this city, the boy's father, John Turner, an architect in the Old Country, makes an urgent plea for any information which will lead to the tracing of his son's whereabouts. The young man is described as follows:

Edgar Turner, age 23. Quite fair with wavy light brown hair; blue eyes. Height 5 feet 6 to 7 inches. Weight probably around 137 pounds.

Edgar Turner, it is stated, came to this country about three years ago. He was not built physically for rough work and had told his employer, Mr. Northey of Lakefield, that he had come to Canada more or less to satisfy his longing for adventure. He was a popular young man with the Northey family, and discharged his duties to the utmost satisfaction of his employer. He left Lakefield on October 16th, and went to Thamesford, near London.

Leaving the latter place shortly before Christmas, he expressed the intention of going back to England, since which time all trace has been lost of Turner.

Mr. Northey of Lakefield has for the past six weeks been doing all in his power to trace the young man's whereabouts, and either he or Provincial Constable Sylvester will welcome any information concerning the apparent mystery of his disappearance.

ton and other joined them in the decisive result.

The initial nominations were as follows:—

G. H. Hooton, by Reeve George T. Hancock (Port Hope), and J. H. McGill, Deputy-Reeve of Cavan.

W. H. Carruthers, Reeve of Bowmanville, by Deputy-Reeve E. C. Rehder (Bowmanville), and Reeve C. Quinn (Cramahe).

Reeve Frank L. Rickard of Newcastle, by Reeve J. N. Stone (Campbellford) and Reeve James Smith (Haldimand).

Reeve M. J. Holman (Clarke) by Deputy-Reeve F. B. Lovekin (Clarke) and Reeve Gordon Parker (Alnwick).

Reeve Bert Richardson (Manvers), by Charles McNeill, Deputy-Reeve of Manvers and Reeve F. R. Whitton (Brighton village).

After the councillors were polled six times, Major MacNachtan declared an adjournment of twenty minutes.

Upon resuming the preliminary of election, the same five candidates were again proposed. The councillors registered their ballots on the open vote plan another six times and a ten-minute intermission followed. And so it went until Reeve Richardson retired from the fourth nomination and the nineteenth poll of the council ended the protracted business of electing the Warden for 1931.

The first ballot resulted as follows: Hooton 12; Rickard 12; Richardson 8; Carruthers 7, and Holman 2.

On the third ballot, Hooton received 11 votes, on the fourth 15.

The first polling after the second nomination gave Hooton 16; Rickard 11; Richardson 5; Carruthers 5; Holman 4. The third poll showed Hooton 14; Rickard 13; Carruthers 6; Richardson 5; Holman 3. And the fifth went: Hooton 13; Richardson 10; Carruthers 8; Rickard 7; Holman 3.

Members switched their votes as they fulfilled promises of support, or probably cast friendly gestures that might be eventually reciprocated in some need or other. These passing preferences were shown on divisions that appeared to be safe.

The sixth balloting on the third nomination gave Hooton 17; Rickard 19; Carruthers 5; Richardson 6, and Holman 4.

Then came the fourth nomination with its finality. Those who voted for Warden Hooton were Reeve W. J. Baker (Percy), W. J. Corbett (Cobourg), P. R. Darling (Cramahe), W. Davey (Hamilton), T. A. Davidson (Hamilton); J. H. Davidson (Cobourg), F. K. Denyes (Brighton township), W. A. Goodfellow (Brighton township), N. Green (Cartwright), G. T. Hancock (Port Hope), N. R. Hartt (Murray); G. H. Hooton; R. Innes (Seymour), N. A. MacColl (Campbellford), J. H. McGill (Cavan), Charles McNeill (Manvers), G. Parker (Alnwick), B. Richardson (Manvers), E. P. Sanders (Port Hope), P. Stinson (Millbrook), F. R. Whitton (Brighton), Dr. W. E. Wilson (Hastings), W. C. Wood (South Monaghan).

Urges Retrenchment.

After his induction by George Hancock and J. H. McGill, the members who had nominated him, Warden Hooton thanked the Council for the honor conferred upon him by his election to the highest position in the gift of the United Counties.

"Our counties hold a fine reputation in every department of the Provincial Government," he continued. "We hold second place to none in that regard. Our officers have all done their duty well and faithfully. I realize the responsibility you have entrusted to me, and I ask the co-operation of every member in the work of carrying this year's business to a successful end.

"It is up to us to retrench as far as possible in order that our taxpayers will not be burdened, but we should avoid false economy. We should not leave undone the work which we should do this year. By leaving it two or three years it might cost us far more in the long run. The men who have preceded me in the Wardenship were outstanding in their ability and thought, and they will be hard to follow. With your support I will do the best I can, so that those who come after us will say we did our duty carefully and efficiently. If I can be of any help to members of the Council this year, I promise you that I will give all the assistance I can."

Large Attendance.

Rev. A. J. Jackson, of St. Peter's Church, Cobourg, conducted an appropriate religious service of prayer and dedication at the opening of the session. The public section of the chamber was crowded and many visitors from both counties were present, among them being the former Wardens, Fred Bowen, M.P., Mayor M. J. Elliott, Bowmanville, C. H. Davidson, Campbellford, John McCubbin of Percy Township, James L. McCamus of Cavan, and W. H. Nelson of Percy, who was Warden last year.

Sixth Year at Cobourg.

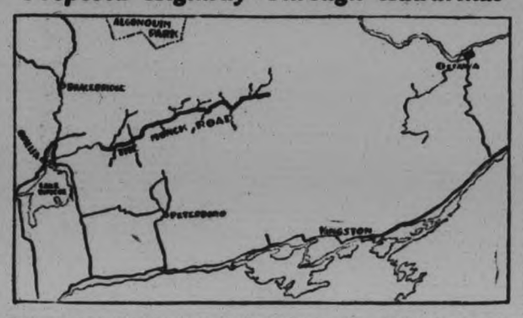
Warden Hooton has been a member of the Counties Council five years, two of them as Deputy-Reeve of Cavan in 1926 and 1927, and three years since then as Reeve. He has been a member of his Township Council thirteen years. His home is on the 13th Concession, west of Scott's Corners and north of Fairmount.

Warden Hooton is well known in Peterborough and is a member of the Peterborough Exhibition Board. The distinction which has rewarded his public service will be pleasing to his many friends in the two counties and also in Peterborough.

NINE CANADIANS HELD.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 28 (C.P.).—Eugene Kessler, in charge of the Immigration Patrol Service in Florida, said nine citizens of Canada were being held here awaiting deportation, but that they are not subjected to hardships. Canadians are keeping his force busy these days, he declared. They evade the border patrols along the international boundary and motor as far south as possible, looking for work. They usually end up along the southern coastline without funds, he added.

Proposed Highway Through Kawarthas



Opponents of the Algonquin Park highway are proposing that the old Monck Road survey from Orillia to Ottawa, Ont., be revived as an alternative cross-province highway to the one being promoted some miles north of this location. This highway would serve Orillia, Bancroft, Kinmount and many other towns along the northern part of the Kawarthas and Rideau lakes.

Appeal is Made by the Deputy Attorney General of Ontario.

HEARD IN TORONTO.

Crown Considers the Sentence to be Insufficient and Inadequate.

An appeal against the sentence of nine months in Reformatory with in indeterminate term of one year imposed by His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor in County Court yesterday, on Leonard Matthews, ex-constable of the City Police Force, who pleaded guilty to 11 charges of burglary, has been filed by the Deputy - Attorney - General E. Bayly, K.C., and will be heard before the Court of Appeal in Toronto, intimated Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., this morning.

While no date has yet been fixed for the hearing, it is probable that it will be heard almost immediately. The appeal is made on the grounds that the sentence was insufficient and inadequate.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., stated to-day, in discussing the appeal by the Attorney-General's Department of Leonard Matthews' sentence, that if the Attorney-General had been half as zealous in prosecuting Solloway, Mills and other thieves who robbed the Ontario people of millions of dollars as he is in prosecuting an appeal of the sentence imposed on an underpaid policeman the Attorney-General would have a greater degree of confidence of the public.

Mr. Gordon intimated that when he got before the Court of Appeal in Leonard Matthews' case he would quote some precedents, which he hoped would lead to some inquiry into the activities of the administration of law from Toronto.

From far-away Berlin, Wisconsin, comes an echo back to Peterborough, in the brief account of the career of one of the city's sons, Mr. J. W. Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Carroll of 173 Stewart Street. The article says: "A chance meeting in America's farthest outpost, thousands of miles out in the Pacific Ocean, determined J. W. Carroll, publisher of the Berlin Evening Journal, to enter newspaper work.

"This fact was revealed Monday when Mr. Carroll addressed the Berlin Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon in the Hotel Whiting.

"Mr. Carroll related that, after spending his boyhood in Canada, he was unable to go on through college and decided to enlist in the United States Army. He attended the United States Army Finance School at Washington, D.C., and was assigned to duty in the army finance office at Manila, P.I.

"The government offices are open only in the forenoon in the Philippines and Mr. Carroll, desiring to work in the evenings, through a friend met the city night editor of the Manila Bulletin and was given a position as reporter and held this position till he returned to the United States some two years later.

"On returning to San Francisco, Mr. Carroll obtained a position on the San Francisco Bulletin, and has been in the newspaper business since."

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I know a lady in Peterborough who has as her maxim, "Don't take things out if you have not time to put them back."

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you think that is not necessary, but it is. I know a number of housewives whose homes are always cluttered with articles lying about, when there is really a place for them elsewhere.

• • • • • • •

In accomplishing a task, getting the needed things out that are to be used is essential. Putting them away should be essential also, for unless the tools, utensils and left over materials, etc., are put away, a portion of the job is left unfinished.

• • • • • • •

The confusion of articles left about and out of place is often so disturbing to the mind that it offsets the benefit of getting the task done.

• • • • • • •

Then if the worker does not clear up, someone else has to, which brings extra work on another member of the family.

• • • • • • •

There are times, of course, when a homemaker must do certain things regardless of the temporary confusion that must be permitted to remain onger than wished.

• • • • • • •

But you know leaving things out gets to be a very bad habit in housekeeping.

• • • • • • •

Some kitchens feel the effect of making a cake for quite a time after the cake is baked and out of the oven. The sugar canister, the flour sifter, baking powder can and various utensils are in evidence to show what has been going on.

• • • • • • •

Of course sewing materials must be out while the sewing is being done, but immediately one stops, then is the time to put away all traces of it

• • • • • • •

I know a number of housewives who do persist in leaving spools and scissors lying about after they have finished sewing, with the result that when they come to take up the tasks sometime later on, this equipment s generally misplaced and much time is lost in locating them.

• • • • • • •

And leaving things about does not apply to housekeeping. In every profession there are those who do the same thing and there are those who leave things about without being blamed for being a poor housekeeper

• • • • • • •

It is the homemaker who gets the blame and the name when the home looks in confusion, just as it is she to whom the credit belongs when the house is in order and well run.

SPRING STYLES DROP 30 YEARS

Parisian Salons Display Dresses With Trains and Puffed Sleeves.

SKIRTS TIERED.

PARIS, Jan. 28.— (A.P.)— Time rolled backward 30 years yesterday in Parisian dressmaking salons where Spring styles are being shown.

The finery of 1901 is being dished up for the Miss of 1931, puffed sleeves, ruffled flounces, sweeping trains and pictures hats with crowns so shallow that they seem almost flat were paraded before style writers and buyers.

Ribbon bows and double ruchings of chiffon and intricate embroidery are all used to recall the fashion days of the early nineteen hundreds.

More than one evening gown is made of satin almost stiff enough to stand alone, while others of moire and lace sweep into trains that swish.

Lavender-flowered chiffon, reminiscent of the mauve decade, is shown in a flounced design trimmed with double ruchings of grey chiffon. A silver grey satin ball gown made on fitted lines with graduated tiers is worn with a three-quarter length grey satin coat pinched in at the waist and trimmed down the back with a garland of white gardenias.

Afternoon dresses of complicated cut made of dark flower-patterned silks are designed with puffed short sleeves, Bertha collars and tiered skirts.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

VARICOSE VEINS. ULCERS AND ECZEMA.

One of the unfortunate little habits that many of us possess is that feeling of doubt, of skepticism when anything new or unusual is brought to our attention.

Naturally this same habit of doubting, of being skeptical, about new methods or new discoveries in medicine, is found in many physicians, with the result that there is often a delay of months, even years, before they are willing to accept these new methods and discoveries, and then only after the weight of evidence is beyond the slightest question.

For instance during the war it was our habit to send recruits afflicted with varicose veins to the hospital and have these veins removed by the knife. It meant ten days to three weeks in hospital and no marching or heavy duty for three months, during which time they were of no use to their unit.

Similarly with hemorrhoids or piles nothing but operation would enable these recruits to get into the army.

And yet the injection of veins in various parts of the body had been done for years previous to the war, but owing to this doubting or skeptical attitude it had not come into general use.

Now the results of the injection method in varicose veins in legs, or varicose veins of the rectum which are called piles, is giving the most brilliant results and it is now the method in use in the majority of cases.

The solution used is quinine hydrochloride and urethane in distilled water.

What is the effect of this solution on the veins?

It so irritates and inflames the lining of the vein that the drainage therto automatically clots the blood and that portion of the vein injected—a number of inches—is destroyed. Four or five of these injections, one every five or six days for a month, will destroy the usual number or amount of veins in any individual.

And the big thing about it is that the patient walks into the physician's office and walks out; he loses no time from his occupation whatever.

In the case of varicose ulcer--those old chronic sores of past years—destroying the veins near it will result in quick healing of the ulcer. Similarly with old eczema adjoining varicose veins.

Varicose veins, hemorrhoids or piles, varicose ulcers, and chronic eczema due to varicose veins are all so common, and cause so much distress and loss of time, that those suffering therefrom are unwise if they do not consult their family doctor and get the benefits of this proved effective method of cure.

GREENS IN ONION CUPS.

Six large onions, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 hard-cooked egg, 2 tablespoonfuls drippings, ½ cupful water, 2 cupfuls cooked greens, ½ cupful dry breadcrumbs, ¼ teaspoonful pepper.

Cook onions until tender, scoop out the centres, and mix the scooped-out portion with the greens, seasonings, and the egg chopped fine. Fill the onion shells, place the crumbs on top, and pour a little of the drippings, melted, over each. Arrange the stuffed onions in a pan, add the water, and bake in a hot oven of 425° F. for twenty minutes. Serves 5.

ONION SOUP.

Peel and cut four onions in thin slices. Brown them in one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter or drippings, add one tablespoonful of flour and let it brown then add one pint boiling water, stirring constantly, that the result may be smooth. Cook for fifteen minutes, then add another pint of boiling water, one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of salt, and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Serves 6.

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN CHURCH IN SOUND FINANCIAL CONDITION

Rev. J. L. Hughes Addresses Congregation at Annual Vestry Meeting.

WARDENS RE-ELECTED

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church was held on Monday evening in the church basement, with Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector, presiding.

After opening with prayer and the reciting of the Apostles' Creed, the rector gave his report, dealing with the statistics and pastoral duties in connection with the church for the past year. "In view of the fact that we are passing through a period of financial depression," said the rector, "the finances of our church are in a creditable condition. Yet we were not to rest satisfied, contented, when we consider the amount spent on material comforts and pleasures. What is our return to God who gives us power to get wealth? A true perspective of this will change the financial attitude in our religion." He spoke of the necessity of reading church literature if we are to take an intelligent interest in the church's work, recommending the "Living Message," "Church Messenger" and "Canadian Churchman." In conclusion the rector referred to the greatest need of the church—consecrated lives for service—Jesus only.

The warden's report was presented by Ernest Tucker, people's warden, and showed the finances to be in a healthy condition, a small balance remaining at the end of the year. A good percentage had also been paid on allotments for missions. The retiring wardens, G. L. Martin, rector's, and E. Tucker, people's, were re-elected to office. Sidesmen elected were as follows: Messrs. A. Cuff, H. Ferguson, J. Dossett, A. Knott, A. Sims, R. W. Butler, R. King and W. Stephenson. Lay delegates appointed to the synod were Messrs. A. Cuff, also K. K. Mackenzie and J. R. Cleverdon, of Toronto.

Encouraging reports were read and presented, as follows:

For Sunday School, by Mrs. W. H. Andrews; Women's Auxiliary, by Mrs. A. Sims; Junior Women's Auxiliary, by Mrs. E. Tucker' choir, by Mrs. J. McWilliams; Ladies' Guild, by Mrs. H. Wood; Men's Club, by Mr. R. King.

Notable items in the reports were the providing by the Ladies' Guild of paint and other materials for renovating the exterior of the rectory last summer, in addition to a contribution of $70 in cash to the church warden's fund. The Sunday School had contributed $40.25 to the missionary work of the church. Gifts to the church for the past year included a cedar chest for altar linen from Miss Grace Tucker and a violet colored burse and veil from the choir.

A property committee was appointed, consisting of the wardens and Messrs. A. Cuff, R. W. Butler and Mrs. W. H. Andrews. Mrs. F. McBride and Mrs. Andrews were appointed representatives to the Peterborough relief committee meeting.

On the motion of R. W. Butler, seconded by E. Tucker, a vote of sympathy was extended to Mrs. Hughes in the death of her sister.

Mr. Butler acted as secretary for the meeting. Through the kindness of the wardens, light refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a social time enjoyed.

CHRISTMAS GREETING

The following poem which appeared in January 20th issue of The Examiner under the date of Warsaw should have read under Keene date line.

Roy Bolin, son of Mr. Patrick Bolin, wrote the following poem when in a reminiscent mood and posted it as a Christmas greeting to a former school teacher. Although a resident of Winnipeg for many years he has not forgotten the beauty spots of his native village:

Like roses from the garden
Are the friends of childhood days.
The hands of time are backward turned,
On bygone scenes we gaze.

Down winding lanes of memory,
Once again we fondly roam;
Through cherished fields we wander back
Again with friends from home.

The present from the canvas fades,
We live in days gone by,
We tread again the old time paths
That deep in fancy lie.

We see the lazy river
As it winds on past the mill,
To mingle with the placid lake
That laves the wooded hill.

The old frame village school house,
Where hopes and aims are born,
Before life's sterner truths we face,
Or cares our brows adorn.

This picture old friends bring us
That around the heart entwine,
As with joy and friendship greet you,
For the sake of Auld Lang Syne.

The Man Who Stole Her Gems

This the Glass This the Mark This the Man

He Left His Mark

A society woman in a Western city left her home one afternoon. A robber entered and stole her jewels — from a safe. He appeared to have left not a mark or clue. Whatever he touched, including the safe, had been rubbed or washed. But he forgot one thing, as robbers always do. A carelessly placed drinking glass on the sideboard showed he had taken a drink. The glass revealed a thumb-print.

The police had that thumb-print on record, with a picture of the man. He was quickly found, and the jewels were discovered in his room. The owner got all of them back—the man got a prison sentence. All because of a finger-print touch.

So Do You—on Foods Dangerous Finger-Prints

This true story shows how you leave finger-prints on everything you touch. They will not incriminate you honest people, but they often do some fearful damage. Those prints are germladen. Life Extension Institute lists 27 diseases which may be conveyed by such imprints on food.

These germs come from touching things which other people touch. People who have colds, perhaps, and have coughed or sneezed in their hands. People with other troubles. We cannot dodge those germs if we mingle with people, and handle what they touch. In a card game, for instance, every card may convey some dangerous germs to you.

The safe way is to wash your hands often, and always before you eat. Not with ordinary soap, but with Lifebuoy Soap. That contains a germicide so powerful that no active germs exist after its use.

Wash your hands with Lifebuoy often. Teach the habit to your children. Health is too valuable to risk. Millions of people are warding off millions of troubles in that way.

But Lifebuoy is not a medicinal soap. It is an exquisite soap, based on two palm oils. The world has never learned a way to make a better beauty soap and bath soap. No perfume, save the scent of health. And you will come to think it the finest odour on earth.

Your nearest dealer sells Lifebuoy. Why not buy a supply and test for yourself its remarkable qualities?

Maroons Share Second Place Honors With Leafs

TORONTO LOSES CLOSE TUSSLE TO AMERICANS

Primeau and Blair Score Leafs Goals as Smythemen Drop 3-2 Decision.

"SURPRISE" AT BOSTON.

Goal By Stewart of Maroons in Detroit Game May Be Protested.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan 28 (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer).—Apparently tired of being a stepping stone for other teams in the National Hockey League, the Philadelphia Quakers astounded the hockey world last night by their fine display against Boston Bruins, which ended in a 3-all tie, but to hold the Bruins to a tie in Boston was a feat clearly entitling the Quakers to their claim for a moral victory.

It was the first time this season that the American group cellar occupants have succeeded in snatching a point from a team in their own section, although they have taken five from Canadian Division clubs.

The two other matches resulted pretty much as expected. The crippled Maple Leafs bowed to the Americans at New York, 3 to 2, while Montreal Maroons maintained their unbeaten record against Detroit Falcons by beating the Motormen, 2 to 1.

While the game had no material effect on the group standings, the Maroon victory coupled with Toronto's downfall has again created a deadlock for the second perch in the Canadian divisions between the Leafs and Munromen. The teams have 31 points apiece, four behind the pace-setting Canadiens.

The Maroon victory is not yet completely assured, as a disputed goal from the stick of Nels Stewart may require a judgment by President Frank Calder as to its eligibility. The tally was the first of the game and was scored by the crafty Maroon centre after, it is said, the timekeeper had sounded the gong, indicating the finish of the opening 20 minutes. The officials in charge of the game declared they had not heard the gong until after the puck had entered the net. They included the incident in their report to the president.

Carson Cooper, Detroit's "shovel-shot" expert, knotted the count in the second session, after accepting a pass from Ebbie Goodfellow, league leading marksmen, to skate right in on Goalkeeper Davy Kerr, for an easy tally.

Smith Scores Winner

Hooley Smith, fiery wingman, notched the winning marker with barely a minute remaining to play in the final frame. It was an artistic goal which followed a brilliant bit of stick-handling by the temperamental one who worked his way clean through the Falcon defense to easily outguess Dolly Dolson, Detroit net minder.

The American triumph came at a most opportune time, as defeat would have made it difficult for them to remain in real contention behind the Leafs and Maroons.

Playing without Red Horner, defence player, the Leafs' small staff was further weakened when "Ace" Bailey, their leading sharpshooter, was forced out of the tilt through a recurrence of an old injury during the first period.

George Massecar put the Amerks in the van half-way through the opening frame on a pass from "Red" Dutton. Billy Burch increased the lead after 13 minutes had elapsed in the second session, and then Joe Primeau put the Leafs in the hunt four minutes late on a pass from Harvey Jackson.

Flashy Normie Himes practically salted the two points away for the Star-spangled hockeyists early in the final chapter, when he took Johnny Sheppard's pass to blaze a short drive past Goalkeeper Lorne Chabot, who had not been scored on by the "A's" in their three previous encounters with the Torontonians. Andy Blair, elongated centre player, wound up the scoring some 10 minutes later by netting a long shot.

First Ice Carnival Held At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The initial carnival of the season was held on the Cosmos rink on Monday evening, with a large number of skaters on the ice, the point of outstanding remark being that very few came in costume.

The 'carnival spirit,' however, was quite strongly in evidence, and plenty of enjoyment was provided by the races, skating competitions, etc., music being supplied by means of a large victrola.

Bernice Smith, who came daintily outfitted as a French doll, was awarded the prize for the ladies' best costume, a pocket size manicure set being handed her by the judges; for the men's comic costume Sherin Brown carried of the prize, a pack of playing cards.

The honors for the best skating couple went to Walter Sayles and Kathryn Donnelly, who each received a box of chocolates. Reg Edmunds won the race for boys under twelve, his prize being a book, while George Harkness and George McKnight came off victors in the obstacle race, and again chocolates to each contestant was the award. Dalton Brown won the senior boys, race' his prize being an eversharp pencil.

B. B. Dawson, treasurer of the Cosmos Rink Company, distributed the prizes, the other officers of the organization being: Douglas Sheppard, manager; J. A. Deyell, caretaker; C. B. Sutton, secretary. Directors: A. H. Jeffrey, B. L. Richards, W. H. Jordan, R. I. Fallis, H. W. Hutchison, and S. R. Eakins.

MAYBE YES AND MAYBE NO

The boxing business is tangled up like it has never been before. The heavyweight title is in the possession of a fighter who won it on a foul and who, like former champions, intends to choose his own opponents regardless of what the boxing commissions tell him. Gotham sport writers are predicting that should Stribling meet Schmeling at Chicago, Stribling will come out of the fray with the title. These experts even go so far as to say that Stribling will do the trick in the first few frames. Another prediction is that if Maloney and Carnera meet it will be Maloney who hits the canvas and stays there. If Sharkey and Mickey Walker meet the decision probably unpopular, is already picked to go to the Boston Tar. The best fight of them all should be a meet between Young Stribling and Carnera and I am inclined to pick Stribling to win over the great big man from Italy.

STEVE ROCCO WINS IN EXCITING BOUT

Toronto Flyweight Star Extended to Defeat Louis Carpentero.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28.—(C.P.)—Steve Rocco, local aspirant to the Canadian flyweight championship, outpointed Louis Carpentero, speedy little Phillipino from Toledo, Ohio, in the 10-round feature bout on the Shamrock Athletic Club's boxing program here last night. The winner scaled 113 and Carpentero 114½.

"Red" Bragan, local welterweight, who has been more or less of a sensation in recent bouts, lost his first decision in several starts in the semi-final tussle. Lloyd Hybert, durable New York city welter took his measure in a torrid six rounder. Bragan had previously beaten Hybert, but after Referee Lou Marsh imposed a fine of $10,000 for illegal tactics in the second round, "Red" lost much of his effectiveness. Hybert weighed 148¾, one pound more than Bragan.

JUNIORS MUST WIN TO-NIGHT

Saints Are Sure of Place in O. H.A. Play-offs Regardless of Result.

LAKEFIELD AT NORWOOD.

To-night's game between the two local junior teams and the battle at Norwood between Lakefield and the Combines have a great bearing on the group race. Regardless of whether they win or not tonight, of course, St. John's are "in"—that is they can drop to-night's fixture and still be sure of a place in the group play-offs, for they have a total of eleven points to their credit, which assures them of at least second place. Hockey Club on the other hand must win to-night or beat Lakefield in Lakefield to make sure of a play-off, provided Havelock repeat their win over the Northerners in their clash to-night. A win for Havelock and a loss for Hockey Club will put the Combines in second place and eliminate Campbellford, whose only hope of making the grade is to have both Hockey Club and Havelock lose tonight, with themselves to beat Lakefield and Hockey Club to lose to the same outfit in the games remaining to be played. It's developed into quite a race. Here's the standing:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
St. John's	5	1	1	11
Hockey Club	4	2	0	8
Havelock	3	3	1	7
Campbellford	3	4	0	6
Lakefield	0	5	0	0

Games to-night—St. John's at Hockey Club; Lakefield at Havelock.

Postponed games—Campbellford at Lakefield; Hockey Club at Lakefield.

CRUCIAL SERIES IN INTERMEDIATE LOOP

Petes Meet Bowmanville in Rubber Town on Saturday—Return Game Here.

Peterborough Intermediates will again clash in battle royal with their Lakeshore League rivals on Saturday night at Bowmanville, and will send down the same line-up that ensured a 4-2 victory on Monday night, last. This arrangement is definite, Manager James Coursey having approached the O.H.A.

Tentative plans have also been made for the Bowmanville squad to fulfil a return engagement here, either on Tuesday, February 3, or the next day, Wednesday.

Unusual interest is being shown in sporting circles in the outcome of these two battles, as on them depends the decision as to which of these teams, shall play off with Oshawa for the group honors.

Judging by the form which the local team displayed at the Bowmanville arena at the beginning of this week, their prospects of success are decidedly rosy. However, "J.C." is taking no chances and has ordered a workout for Thursday night at Brock street rink.

He was well pleased with their showing on Monday. He had reason to be too, for the squad certainly did merit the goals they got and in taking into consideration the roughness of the ice and its heaviness, they played a game which outrivalled that of their opponents, who be it understood can line up no mean team.

Latest news and views of the Golfing World

By RALPH H. REVILLE

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1931.)

The annual meeting of the Royal Canadian Golf Association is scheduled for next month in Toronto, the date being Saturday, February 21st. It is understood that the Annual Reports will be of a very satisfactory character, the association notwithstanding the 1930 business and financial depression having had a successful year in all departments of its varied activities.

The report of the Nominating Committee, names the following as the officers for 1931:—President, Alfred Collyer, Montreal (for a second term) Vice-Presidents, to be elected by the new executive committee —(last year they were W. H. Plant, Toronto, and H. Milton Martin, Edmonton) Secretary-Treasurer, to be appointed by the new executive committee, (Mr. B. L. Anderson, has held the office for several years.) Executive Committee, British Columbia, Kenneth McLennan; Alberta, H. Milton Martin; Saskatchewan, N.C. Byers; Manitoba, C. W. Jackson; Ontario, Gordon T. Cassels, W. M. Plant, L. M. Wood; Quebec, G. H. Forster, Adelard Raymond, N. M. Scott; Maritime Provinces, Hugh McKay.

Under the constitution the member clubs of the Association had until December 20th to place in nomination any other name. There were no nominations in the Provinces of Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, the Maritimes and Saskatchewan, so in these provinces the nominees of the Nominating Committee go in by acclamation. In Ontario however, Mr. W. P. Dobson, Toronto, has been nominated by the Weston Golf and country club and the Summit Golf and Country Club so in this province there will be a contest.

It is understood that at the Annual Meeting the question of inviting the British Ryder Cup team of professionals who will be in the States next summer to extend their tour to Canada will be considered. In 1927, the British pros. played against the Canadian pros in Toronto and Montreal and the fixtures attracted large galleries.

In Great Britain, there is a strong feeling developing against the Royal and Ancient of St. Andrews the governing body of golf in the old country. No objection is made to the headquarters of this impostant Association being retained in historic auld St. Andrews although it is thought London should be the headquarters but it is argued that it is conducted althogether along too aristocratic and autocratic lines. It is even urged that the professional and trade interests should be represented on its august committees. Unless, the R. and A. reforms itself the threat is made that many clubs and golfers will join together in forming a rival association. It is to be hoped that such a radical step will never be taken. The R. and A. is one of the traditions of the game and its golfing world. It does seem however, that its officers and committess should be elected by the clubs at large as in Canada and the States and not by a small and privileged coterie, which more or less has been the method in the past.

The new lighter and larger ball which came into play throughout the United States on January 1st, is being subjected to all kinds of tests on different courses and by different experts.

One of the most thorough and interesting of these tests was tried out at Pinehurst, N.C., under the supervision of the famous golf architect and former professional Donald J. Ross. He chose two star amateurs, two good amateurs and two average "85 to 90" men for the experiment. From four balls driven by these players the two best drives were counted. George T. Dunlop, Jr. and Forbes K. Wilson, the Princeton and Yale captains, were the two star amateurs. Richard Chapman of Greenwich and William S. North of Chicago, Williams and Harvard golfers, respectively, were chosen as the "good" amateurs, while A. B. Jenks of Manchester, N.H. and Charles S. Stroud of Biddeford, Me., consistent better-than-average veterans, represented the average player. The following were the results of this very fair test:

Player	Old	New
Dunlap	249	238
Wilson	249	236
Chapman	231½	225½
North	222½	224
Jenks	193	183
Stroud	184½	180½

It will be noticed that the long-hitting Dunlop and Wilson drove respectively 11 yards and 13 yards less with the new ball than with the old. Chapman lost six yards whilst North actually added one and a half yards to his best drive with the new ball. The average players Jenks and Stroud suffered a loss in distance of respectively 10 yards and 4 yards.

As a result of this test it would seem that the long-hitting amateur players will suffer more in length from the new ball than will the average player—a contention which has been made from the start by the sponsors of the new ball, who claim that the use of this larger and lighter ball will really be to the advantage of the average player when pitted against low handicap opponents.

It must be remembered that this Pinehurst experiment was made without any appreciable wind. Against the wind, the new ball it is admitted will suffer from 15 to 20 yards in length. So far the top-notch professionals have demonstrated that with no wind the driving distance of the new and larger ball is only penalized a couple of yards or so. The next few weeks in the big tournaments in the Southern States the scores of the leading players will be watched with keen interest. That will be the acid test of the new and lighter official ball of the U.S.G.A. and will tell the story as no experiments can hope to do. In the meantime it should once more be stressed that this new official U.S. ball is not the official ball in either Canada or Great Britain although it can be used if preferred, by players in both these countries in any matches or championships.

Already a large number of Canadians have left for Bermuda to enjoy Golf this winter on the many beautiful courses to be found on the "Isles of Fairyland." The first big Open Tournament is to be held there January 27-31. The ladies championship is scheduled for February 16-21 and the mens' championship, March 3-7. There are also Collegiate and other fixtures. Many Canadian golfers will compete in all these events. On more than one occasion Canadians have won Bermuda Championships. Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto and Mr. A. N. C. Gosling, of Toronto, of recent years the Ladies' and Mens' Championships respectively. Mr. Gosling annexed the Qualifying Medal in last year's championship which was won by P. Perkins former British Amateur champion.

The Islanders and visitors alike are all agog over the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales and Prince George who will spend a day in Bermuda on their way to South America. The Royal party is scheduled to land at St. George's early on January 27, and will enjoy a round of golf at the famous course at Tucker's town. Their Highnesses will be entertained by the Colonial Government at a luncheon party at the club house, and in the afternoon a reception will be held at Government House, to which the acting governor, E. W. Evans and his wife, have invited 500 guests. The Princes will then drive through the streets to the wharves where a launch will be waiting to return them to the Oropesa the ship on which they are travelling. It is ten years since Bermuda last saw the Prince of Wales and the greatest interest is being taken in his forthcoming visit and that of his brother Prince George.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced this week the dates of the 1931 Canadian Open Championship. They are Thursday, Friday and Saturday July 9, 10 and 11 and at the Mississauga Golf and Country Club one of the most beautiful courses in the Toronto district, recently lengthened and greatly improved. This is the first major championship ever to be staged at Mississauga which in addition to a sporting course has a particularly charming club house. The U.S. Open Championship is to be held this year at the Inverness Golf Club, Toledo, Ohio, July 2, 3 and 4, so this gives the U.S. professionals and amateurs four or five days interval before coming on to Toronto for the Canadian Open—an admirable arrangement. The Canadian Amateur Championship will be held at the Royal Montreal Golf Club in August, dates yet to be decided upon.

Madoc High School Defeats Tweed 3—2

MADOC, Jan. 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Tweed High School hockey team played their return game at the Madoc Arena on Monday evening against the Madoc High School team with Rev. W. L. Wright as referee. Thomas Moffatt of Tweed Consolidated School as manager of the Tweed boys and J. B. Hough of Madoc High School, manager of the Madoc team.

The teams seem to be pretty evenly matched, and the game might have been anybody's at different periods of the evening. Madoc opened the scoring by a good combination play terminating in a pass from Ross to Akey, who secured the first goal for Madoc to the delight of the Madoc spectators. Penalties were few in this period for everyone was playing hockey. To Tweed was handed out two penalties, and to Madoc, one. Tweed proved unable to score in this period.

At the beginning of the second period, West secured the second counter for the home team by a lone rush, shot through the defence, and hit the net for another counter. Madoc earned one penalty in this period, but though Tweed tried every variety of combination, they were unable to beat Madoc's well-tried defence and the vigilant goalie.

The third period found Tweed determined to place a counter, and for some time the rubber was passed from one end to the other, neither side making much headway. After several minutes of rough give and take Tweed's men placed a goal, to be followed quickly by another, thus tying the game. Penalties were much more frequent now, often resulting in a man from each side going off together. After one such brief rest, Akey succeeded in securing the puck from a scramble, and made sure to secure a counter, leaving the final count 3-2 in favor of Madoc's High School hockey team.

Line ups:

No Changes in Individual Scoring Leadership of National Hockey League.

ROCKBURN IN OLD BERTH.

Quakers Hand Out Surprise of the Season By Holding Bruins to 3-all Tie.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28 (By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Sports Writer).—Philadelphians rubbed their eyes and looked again when they saw the sport pages this morning. It seemed almost too good to be true. Last night their hockey team invaded Boston for a scheduled National Hockey League fixture. The Quakers didn't win, but they did manage to hold the American section leaders to a three-all tie, thus furnishing the greatest surprise of the current season. The result didn't mean a great deal to the Bostonians, who are still two full games ahead of Chicago, but it was certainly encouraging to Philadelphia, who had now won two games and tied two out of the 28 played.

In the other two games scheduled, both reached a foregone conclusion. Maroons had been favored to whip Detroit, and just managed to do so 2—1. The Maple Leafs dropped one to Americans, which was rather expected, since the Torontonians were playing with a battered-up aggregation of players. In addition, Horner, their utility defence man, was out of the game via the three-major penalty rule. The loss brought Toronto fron an undisputed second place into a tie with Montreal Maroons for that position.

As matters stand now, Canadiens are leading the Canadian group, two games in front of Toronto and Maroons; Americans are two games further back, while Ottawa is still in last place. In the American section, Boston are two games in front of Chicago, who, in turn, are three games ahead of Detroit. Rangers are one game behind Detroit, and Philadelphia is still away below.

There were no changes the individual scoring leadership. Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit, has scored 19 goals and 12 assists for a total of 31 points, with the Cook brothers of Rangers second and third. Howie Morenz leads the Canadian loop with 19 goals and 8 assists, while Bailey, Toronto and Stewart, Maroons, are four points behind the Canadian star.

Harvey Rockburn, Detroit, managed to annex a couple of minor penalties last night, and is still far in front of the penalty collectors with 92 minutes spent in the pen. Alex Smith, Ottawa, leads the Canadian section with 65 minutes enforced rest.

The leaders:

Dragoons Romp Off With 10-6 Victory

Snappy Fielding and Timely Hitting Feature of Garrison Softball League Fixture.

Two games in the Garrison Softball League were played last night at the Armouries. Snappy fielding and timely hitting featured both struggles, and there was little to choose between any of the pitchers. What the spectators lacked in numbers, they more than made up for in noise—the second game especially keeping them excited from start to finish.

In the first contest, Dragoons galloped off with a 10-6 victory over "O" Company, but they were never sure of the game till the end. Bunching their hits in the first, second and third innings, the winners playing smart ball defensively kept their opponents trailing them.

The batteries:

Dragoons—Stuart and Sloan.

Rangers, "D" Company—Trennum and Smith.

The game between Machine Gunners and "C" Company was a peach, with the former getting the range toward the end to beat the Rangers 14 to 13. Both teams put up a great battle offensively and defensively, and only the Gunners' strong attack late in the game gave them the win. The twirling in this contest was very even throughout.

Rangers "C" Company— Simmons and Griffin.

Trenton Blanks Whitby In O.H.A. Junior Game

WHITBY, Jan. 28. — Trenton's O.H.A. Junior entry nosed out the local team in a listless game here last night by 2 to 0. Neither team was able to show much in the way of combination play, due to the sticky condition of the ice. Trenton notched both counters in the second period and successfully staved off the best efforts Whitby made to even the score.

Heard and Bye were best for the locals, while Chalmers in the net for Trenton saved his team any number of times. On the offensive, Mattis and Bohan were prominent and scored their team's goals. The lineup:

Whitby.—Goal, Holliday; defense, Thompson and Scott; centre, Heard; wings, Brown and Rowden; subs., Hall, Hodge, Mayne and Bye.

Trenton.—Goal, Chalmers; defense, Colverson and York; centre, Bohan; wings, Mattis and Dolan; subs., Bigin, Kidd and Jordan.

PORT COLBORNE BEAT NATIONALS

Emerge Victors Over Queen City 3-2 After 30 Minutes Overtime.

SEVENTH VICTORY.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Jan. 28 (C.P.)—A determined band of "sailors" representing this town in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series resisted the powerful thrusts of Toronto Nations in a thrilling 30 minute overtime clash here last night and emerged victorious over the Queen City all-star collection, 3 goals to 2.

The victory was the seventh in nine starts for the Ports, who are leading the group with 14 points, with Hamilton Tigers second with 10 points. Tigers, however, have played two games less and the champions can tie the locals by winning their remaining games, while the Ports lose to Toronto Marlboros who play here next.

Considered two of the strongest aggregations gathered together in the O.H.A. for some years, Marlboros and Nationals are tied in the standing with six points apiece, and their chances of entering the play-offs appear decidedly slim.

Last night's game was one of the best seen here this season. A record-breaking crowd thronged the arena and saw the Ports take the lead in the first frame, only to be overtaken and again in the first overtime period when the Sea Fleas again knotted the count. Cuthbert's pretty goal in the third overtime, however, settled the issue.

NEW HAVEN OVERWHELMED.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28. — The Philadelphia Arrows rode roughshod over the New Haven Eagles last night in a Canadian-American Hockey League contest at the Arena, winning 8 goals to 1, and setting a new record for scoring during the current campaign.

By their victory the Arrows went into a tie for third place in the league standing with Boston Tigers, while New Haven was shunted down into the cellar position.

Garrett scored three of Philadelphia's goals, Murray two, with one each to Hudson, King and Andrews. Himes scored for New Haven.

GREAT BRITAIN TO SEND STRONG REPRESENTATIVES TO OLYMPICS

Newly Formed British Empire Games Will Have No Effect on Teams.

28 NATIONS ENTERED.

LONDON, Jan. 28 (By The Canadian Press)—Substantial assurances are forthcoming that Britain will send strong, representative teams to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles in 1932. Any belief that might have been held regarding the effect upon the Olympic Games of the newly instituted British Empire Games, opened at Hamilton, Ontario, last August and scheduled for every four years, is largely unfounded. Lord Rochdale, leader of the British Olympic Games movement, says Britain will be adequately represented at Los Angeles.

Lord Rochdale spoke strongly on the matter at a recent meeting here of the Olympic council, says Sporting Life. He pointed out that since the first Olympiad at Athens in 1896, the United States had loyally supported the Games, no matter where they took place, to the utmost of their resourses, "and it would be base ingratitude on our part not to do all in our power to help them to make those at Los Angeles as big a success as those in London in 1908."

There is no question that the 1932 Games will be on a different scale altogether to those in 1904 at St. Louis. The Olympic movement at that time was, as it were, in its infancy, and many nations which now regularly participate had then not the least idea as to the value of athletics towards national efficiency. This had the result of making the St. Louis Games practically an all-American affair, for the European nations were practically unrepresented, and the consequence was that with the exception of the 56 lb. weight secured by a Canadian, all the track and field events were competed for and won by U.S. athletes. Two of the victors on that occasion, Rose and Sheridan, repeated their successes in throwing the discus and putting the shot at the London Games four years later.

"While it is not necessary for us to attempt to send to Los Angeles the vast number of athletes and officials who represented us in post-war days at Antwerp, Paris and Amsterdam, it is all the more necessary that Great Britain should make an impressive appearance, inasmuch that already no fewer than 28 nations have accepted the invitation of the United States to compete, while others have intimated their intention of doing so if at all possible," Sporting Life added.

"The Americans are hoping that the tenth Olympiad will surpass all its predecessors in every possible way. If enthusiasm and superb organization can accomplish this they will doubtless attain to their ambition. The honor of holding the celebration has come to them only after really admirable persistency. In 1920 the United States International Olympic Committee sent William May Garland—a sportsman to whom Los Angeles is the real centre of the universe—to Antwerp with an invitation to the International Olympic Committee to hold either the 1924 or 1928 Games in the Californian capital.

"Unfortunately for them these had been pledged to Paris and Amsterdam respectively, but Mr. Garland was informed that there was a possibility of the 1923 Games—at that time unassigned—being secured if the committee were satisfied with the suggested arrangements.

"From that moment Mr. Garland did not leave them alone, and at every opportunity he urged the claims of Los Angeles, with the result that at the meeting of the International Committee in Rome in 1923 the United States was unanimously selected as the nation to which usual thoroughness, the Americans immediately went to work. The Governor of the State of California appointed a Commission, composed of leaders in the sporting, civic, business, and industrial life of the United States itself at once communicated with the nations of the world to the effect they would regard it as a 'friendly gesture' if the Games were supported.

"The result has been really remarkable, for never before so far in advance of the Games has such a response been made to the invitations, and the fact that, at least on this occasion has inspired the organizing committee to supreme efforts.

"The preparations are already practically complete. The stadium will seat well over 100,000 spectators; the track has been remodelled to suit the requirements of the Olympic Committee, and the accommodation for everyone and everything is on an elaborate scale.

"Not only this, but the programme itself has already been arranged, and, extending over 16 days and nights, this includes athletics, 'Soccer' football, rowing, boxing, gymnastics, wrestling, weight lifting, fencing, swimming and water polo, equestrian sports, cycling, hockey, rifle and pistol shooting, and the modern pentathlon."

Teuton Boxer Denies Derogatory Remarks

NEW YORK, January 28 (C.P.). —His broad fact beaming, black eyes shining with pleasure, Max Schmeling moved into New York to-day, genuinely happy to be back in the land that voted him heavyweight champion of the world.

The youthful German, with the features of a young Jack Dempsey, sailed into Brooklyn late last night on the liner Europa, accompanied by his trainer, Max Machon, a dozen pieces of baggage, and a cute little Daschund named Cecille, third in the line of Teuton dogdom aristocracy that is rapidly becoming the favorite pet of the New York box fight writers fraternity.

Max appeared to be in splendid physical condition, eager to get to work on preparations for his title battle in June with "Young Bill" Stribling, Georgia's challenger for the heavyweight crown. He was anxious to explain that, regardless of statements in the paper, he has never made derogatory remarks regarding either the new York State Athletic Commission, which recently stripped him of his title, or the German Boxing Federation with which he has been tilting. Over and over again he insisted that he wants to fight Jack Sharkey, feels sure that eventually he will face the Boston Sailor in a prize ring.

New highways opened in the United States last year had a total mileage of 7,952, while those constructed in Canada covered 8,083 miles.

OLYMPICS SHUT OUT TECUMSEHS

Detroit Team Strengthened By Acquisition of Players From New York Rangers.

BITTER PILL FOR LONDON.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28. (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer)—Strengthened by the acquisition of Sammy McAdam and Jack Kenney, forward and defenceman, respectively, from New York Rangers, of the National League, Detroit Olympics scored a surprise, 2 to 0 victory over the powerful London Tecumsehs last night. In the other scheduled International league fixture, the league leading Buffalo Bisons downed Cleveland Indians 2 to 0.

As a result of Tecumseh's defeat the Bisons increased their lead at the head of the pack to seven points, leaving the Londoners and Windsor Bulldogs deadlocked in second place and far behind.

Detroit's victory was a bitter pill for the Tecumsehs who were battling for undisputed possession of the second rung. It was the Londoners' second straight loss since establishing the season's consecutive winning streak of seven games.

McAdams showed a liking for his new surroundings by opening the scoring late in the final period by hoisting a long shot which the London goalguardian misjudged. Just one minute later he teamed up with Leo Goldsworthy, former Londoner, for the Olympics' second tally. McAdams engineered the opening and Goldsworthy topped it off with a pretty goal.

The titleholders outplayed the Bisons during most of the game but they failed to beat Goalkeeper Taughter, who played brilliantly to register his eighth shutout of the season.

Al Gauthier, recruited from the Ontario league, notched the league leaders' first tally on a pass from Cahill late in the first frame. Ronnie Martin clinched the verdict late in the last 20 minutes by breaking fast and outdistancing the Indian checkers who had been concentrating on the offensive and pelting the puck into the Clevelander's cage.

Only one contest is carded tonight. Syracuse Stars travel to Windsor and Bulldogs may get the jump on their London rivals in the battle for second place as the Tecumsehs do not play until Friday and they will be weakened somewhat then as the Chicago Black Hawks have recalled Doc Romnes, a useful forward.

Theodore Planning Financiers' Session

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 28.—(C. P. Cable via Reuters).—One of the first acts of Hon. E. G. Theodore, who has returned to the Cabinet as Commonwealth Treasurer will be to call a conference of outstanding financiers, bankers and business men for the purpose of formulating a "forward" financial policy. Mr. Theodore believes the banks have the power to alter or control the present critical situation in some degree.

Meanwhile the Commonwealth Labor Party remains split over Mr. Theodore's re-entry into the Cabinet at the request of Premier Scullin, and Hon. J. E. Fenton, former Minister of Trade, declines to withdraw his resignation, which he made in protest against the Prime Ministers' attitude.

Not one case of parrot disease (psittacosis) has been reported in England since May 20, when importation of the birds was banned.

Speed and more speed. The world of science and mechanics is again striving to break present speed records. The death defying velocity of 250 miles an hour on land still does not satisfy the craving to flash across distance in almost incalculable time. Four men have driven these giants of speed cars at over 200 miles an hour and only one lives to talk of his experience. He is Capt. Malcolm Campbell who is going to try and break the present world's record of 231.447 miles an hour established by the late Sir Henry Segrave in 1929. In his next attempt Capt. Campbell will drive a new monster of unique design more than half again as powerful as the late Sir Henry Segrave's famous Golden Arrow. It has been named the Bluebird. It is said that one of Campbell's chief aides during the coming speed trials will be H. J. Prance of the R-101 disaster in Egypt who was one of the few survivors of Capt. Campbell's sister car.

AT THE CAPITOL

MARLENE DIETRICH IN "MOROCCO"

Well, here she is at last—the lady who is rumoured to be putting Miss Garbo's nose out of joint. She is a very colorful person, but she isn't quite as ethereal as the exotic Greta. However, she can put it all over the Swedish actress when it comes to letting herself go. Perhaps that is the notable difference in their technique. Greta Garbo gives the impression of acting—every minute. When she simmers up, it looks as if she did it just because the director told her to, or else because her temper got the best of her. But this Dietrich lady does it with every ounce of personality behind it—just as if she had held herself in for so long that the result is absolutely inevitable. She scorned the women who followed their men into the desert—over hot and burning sands, the rearguard of a rapscallion, daring army. And then—she weighed in the balance a Rolls-Royce car, a gallant and wealthy suitor, an assured position and ropes of pearls, against a tall lad with a "Come hither" look in his eye and a sidewise smile. Which of them won? You had better see the picture and find out.

Color and atmosphere give the proper setting to this new and compelling actress. Morocco, with its lights and shades, its dusky walks and its veiled women—the desert sand, white and burning—an African cafe on a typical African night, smoldering, heat-filled—they all have their way in this glamorous picture that centers about the new lady of the screen. She says her sentences carefully. It is related that she was coached in her English words with much attention, and that her vocabulary is very limited in the English language, for she comes from Germany. Perhaps that is why her little sentences are so clipped and brief. Anyway, she is an interesting person, with her somewhat tough ways and vivid personality. She is quite at home in the setting of burning African nights and torrid sands.—Jeanette.

Hockey Notes.

Soft ice necessitated the postponing of four scheduled South-End City League games at the Sacred Heart Rink last night. It was late in the afternoon when it was decided to call off the hockey for the evening, and many of the players turned out only to be disappointed. Dates for these games will be announced later.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TURNIP TRICK

Uncle Wiggily sat before the fire in the den of the Fox. That Bad Chap was close behind the rabbit. On each side of Uncle Wiggily was another Bad Chap, the Bob Cat on his left and the Wolf on his right.

In one paw Uncle Wiggily held a large turnip which he had picked up on the path as he hopped through thewoods a short time before. And soon after picking up the turnip the three Bad Chaps had caught Mr. Longears and had taken him to the den of the Fox to nibble him.

"Well, what have you thought of?" asked the Fox, for just then the three Bad Chaps had been going to nibble the rabbit Mr. Longears had asked them if he might eat the turnip he had picked up. They said he might thinking it would make him fatter for nibbling and then Uncle Wiggily, looking at his turnip, had said:

"Wait a minute. I just had a thought.

"Go on. Tell us!" snapped the Fox.

And be quick about it!" ordered the Wolf.

Uncle Wiggily sat before the fire.

"For we are getting hungry!" mewed the Bob Cat with his silly little tail, of which he was so ashamed that he sat on it nearly all the time. "We are very hungry!" purred the Bob Cat.

"As you know," said Uncle Wiggily holding up the turnip, "I asked you to wait about nibbling me until I had a chance to eat this."

"And I sadi you might," spoke the Fox. Leaning over the to other Bad Chaps. "It will make him fatter," he whispered again.

"Sure!" agreed the Wolf.

"Nothing could be better!" snarled the Bob Cat.

"Bur," went on Uncle Wiggily, "I'm sure you wouldn't want me to eat this frozen turnip, would you?"

"Is the turnip frozen?" asked the Fox, suspicious like and sanitary.

"Feel for yourself," invited Uncle Wiggily, holding out the yellow vegetable, for this was a yellow turnip of good size.

"Yes, it's as hard as a rock!" said the Fox, feeling of the turnip.

"Frozen solid!" agreed the Wolf and Bob Cat.

"Well, what next? Do you want us to eat that frozen turnip for you?" asked the Fox and he wasn't very polite about it either.

"No, I don't expect you to eat this frozen turnip for me," said Mr. Longears. "I can eat my own turnips, thank you!"

"Then why all this talk and delay?" howled the Wolf. "Come on, Wiggy! Eat your turnip and get done with it, and then we can nibble you. Go on—eat it!"

"No," spoke the rabbit, 'I would rather not eat this frozen turnip. It might give me the toothache and you know as well as I do that it is no fun nibbling a rabbit with the toothache, is it?"

"No, indeed!" answered the Wolf.

"He has the right of it!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Well, if you don't want us to nibble you until you eat that turnip and if you aren't going to eat it when it's frozen, what are we going to do about it?" asked the sly and cunning Fox.

"What I would like to do," went on Uncle Wiggily, "is to put this turnip down in front of the hot, blazing fire, where you are all three so cozily gathered around. The fire will thaw out the turnip then I can eat it and thae—"

"Then we can nibble you!" chuckled the Fox. "Oh, boy!"

"Yes, I suppose so," sighed Mr. Longears. "Well, now to thaw out my frozen turnip," said Uncle Wiggily aloud. And to himself he whispered: "I think it will be quite a trick, too." He put the hard, frozen turnip on the hearth near the blaze. The Bad Chaps sat waiting for the vegetable to thaw so the rabbit could eat it and then they would nibble him. But Uncle Wiggily knew more about frozen turnips than did any of the Bad Chaps.

The rabbit knew that turnips are nearly all water. The water in this turnip was frozen and if it was thawed out too quickly the aater would turn into steam and blow up, just as if you stopped the spout of the tea kettle and clamped down the lid and then boiled it. But don't ever try that for the kettle will explode. And that's just what the frozen turnip did.

As soon as the hot fire had turned the water in the frozen turnip to steam —"Bang! Bung! Bing! What an explosion there was!" Uncle Wiggily being at the back of the den did not get hurt. But the Bad Chaps were banged on their noses, toeses nga pawses by the flying, bursting turnip. And they were so surprised that the rabbit ran out and got safely home to his bungalow before they knew what had happened.

"Well, it's a good thing I thought to play that turnip trick," chuckled Mr. Longears, "It saved me from being nibbled."

"We like it!"

said IVOR and DONALD

• aged 8 and 10

● Have you discovered this pleasant-to-take form of cod-liver oil?

GREAT news, mothers! You don't have to hound your children into taking cod-liver oil—for they like it, this emulsified way.

Here's real proof. When the Scott's Emulsion reporter recently called on Mrs. E. M. McMullin of 176 Jarvis St., Toronto, he found that she didn't believe anything could make her two sons, who are pictured above, take cod-liver oil. Neither of them liked the flavor of plain cod-liver oil. So naturally she wanted to see how Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil would appeal to the boys.

They each tried some for us . . . "Say, I like it!" said Donald. "It tastes fine!" grinned Ivor.

Pleasanter to take—but that isn't all

Pale, thin, run-down children need cod-liver oil. Give them the pleasantest form—Scott's Emulsion. Scott's Emulsion hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest Norwegian cod-liver oil in a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest. Assimilation is complete. You get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It contains minerals that help form sound bones and teeth. So Scott's Emulsion is fine for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

Get Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil to-day. See youngsters gain new weight and vigor. At your nearest druggist, in large home-size and small traveling size bottles. Sales Agents: Harold F. Ritchie & Company, Limited, Toronto.

Thousands Rendered Homeless By Mexican Earthquake

Above shows a scene in Oaxaca, thriving town of 28,000 population, near Mexico City, which was nearly razed by a recent earthquake that took a toll of over a hundred lives and imprisoned many of its inhabitants in its mass of fallen debris. The photographer shows a general view of the damage, which has rendered thousands homeless and has stricken the surrounding district in a series of tremors, the worst since 1912.—Associated Press photograph.

BENNETT TO VISIT CAPITAL OF U.S.

Expect St. Lawrence Waterways Will Be Discussed With Hoover.

LEAVES THURSDAY.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 28 (C. P.). — Premier R. B. Bennett will leave for Washington to-morrow, going via New York. While the primary object of his visit is to examine the Canadian Legation in the United States Capital, much interest will be centred on the conference between the Prime Minister and President Hoover, when doubtless such problems as the St. Lawrence Waterways development will come up.

The Government had under consideration the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington, and many are of the opinion an announcement will be made soon after Mr. Bennett's return. Last night Col. Hanford MacNider, United States Minister to Canada, and Mrs. MacNider were guests of honor at a Government banquet given by the Prime Minister. This formal welcome had been somewhat delayed owing to the change of Government, the emergency session of Parliament, and the Imperial Conference, but it was none the less wholehearted when leaders of the Church and State united to do honor to the U.S. Minister and his wife.

URGE NEW DATES FOR HUNT SEASON

Favor Commencing Shoot on October 20 South of Temagami Reserve.

MEET IN NORTH BAY.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 28. (CP) — A change in the dates for the opening of the deer and moose season in that portion of the Province north of the French and Mattawa Rivers south of the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and east of station of the Canadian Pacific Railways at Strollach was suggested at the annual meeting of the Ontario Tourist Trade Association held yesterday. It is proposed to ask the Government of Ontario to set the dates for this section earlier, commencing on Oct. 20 south of the Temagami forest reserve and Oct. 10 for the other portion of the territory. The meeting also opposed any action by the Government in entering into the business of providing accommodation for tourists. It was reported to the meeting that the Government was preparing to build a camp at Martin River on the Ferguson Highway in direct opposition to an already established camp.

DOUKHOBOR KING FORGETS ABOUT EXODUS TO MEXICO

Son of Famous Peter the Great Returns to Alberta—Given Hearty Greeting.

"SON OF FREEDOM" TOO

(Special to the Examiner. Copyright, 1931.)

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Jan. 28.(S.N.S.) Peter Veregin, the second, "king" of the Doukhobors of Canada is at present at the Cowley community, west of this City. The leader, son of the famous Peter the Great, arrived at the head of an auto caravan in the middle of the present week, and with him a retinue of singers and speakers. For days the Cowley colony had been watching the trail for the arrival of the leader and had almost despaired.

His greeting was hearty and at once the conference opened in the "big house" or community hall. For hours the people stood—Doukhobors stand during these services—as Peter addressed them.

Just what he said is not reported, but to te surprise of all not a word was said with respect to the reported exodus of the Doukhobors from Canada to Old Mexico nor, as later reported to Southwestern Siberia. Intermingled with the orations were the plaintive chants of the Russian Choir, the part singing in a solemn, minor strain being quite impressive.

Just prior to the arrival of Veregin, Paul Vatkin, a strange figure with streaming locks and homspun clothes, arrived in Cowley. He proved to be an emissary of the "Sons of Freedom," notorious in British Columbia for their nude parades and burning of school houses. He met nothing but hospitality among these Alberta Doukhobors, who finally locked him up until the next train came along, when he departed.

Just how long Peter Veregin will remain is not known. He is busy now in pouring over the accounts of the colony.

SLIGHT FOOD CHANGES AFFECT THE BODY TREMENDOUSLY.

My grand niece weighed less at eight months than at birth, due to "Infantile eczema." Was plastered with ointments and unbathed for seven months—entire household exhausted from lack of sleep. I added vegetable juice to each bottle feeding, nothing more. After two days she slept fourteen hours without waking. Ointments then discontinued, baths resumed. No rash, no itching in four years since. Why? Vegetable juice alkalinized her blood, killing the acid-caused eczema. Alkaline Roman Meal has kept her blood alkaline since.

Alkaline Roman Meal also saved my life when the great Osler told me twenty-two years ago I could not live four months. Now at 72 not two per cent. of men 30 have muscles, strength or endurance equal to mine, built up out of alkaline Roman Meal. I'll send you a free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," and other literature, also sample of Roman Meal and Kofy-sub, the new alkaline beverage, if you'll write for them to ROBT. G. THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 57 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A few hours before Jane's heroic dash for freedom seemed to have failed, and when with a stifled sob she gave up the unequal struggle with the Kincaid's sailors, the beasts of Tarzan might have been seen disappearing into the jungle. The snarling, savage pack were directed in their pursuit of Rokoff by the black warrior, Mugambi, chief of the Wagambi. Only he knew which might be a friend or foe of their lost master, Tarzan.

If they could have reached either the canoe filled with Rokoff's men or the Kincaid, they would have made short work of any whom they found there. But the gulf of black water intervening shut them off from further advance. Sheeta, the panther, especially hated water. He leaped over the small streams. Now Mugambi knew something of the occurrences which had led up to the landing of Tarzan on Jungle Island.

He knew his savage master sought his wife and child, who had been stolen by the wicked white man whom they had followed into the interior and now back to the sea. He believed also that this man had killed the great white giant whom he had come to respect and love, and so in the wild breast of Mugambi burned an iron resolve to catch this wicked one and wreak vengeance upon him for the murder of the ape-man.

When he saw the canoe come down the river and take in Rokoff, then watched it make for the Kincaid, he realized that only by possessing a canoe himself could he hope to transport the pack within striking distance of the enemy. With this definite purpose in mind, he led the pack quickly back into the jungle, where moored to the bank of a small tributary of the Ugambi, he soon found a canoe and piled his hideous fellows into it.

KNIGHTS VISIT COBOURG.

About thirty of the local Knights of Columbus motored down to Cobourg last night for a game of hockey with the Cobourg Knights, but were doomed to disappointment as the ice was much too soft. There was also about twenty-five knights from Oshawa there for the occasion, and they all stopped at the K. of C. Hall for an evening of cards.

Arrangements will be made for playing the game when the weather is more seasonable. The Peterborough knights expect to stage a game here in the near future.

Five prizes will be given and half the proceeds of the tournament will be turned over to help the unemployed.

SERVICE STATION ROBBED

Some time during the early hour of this morning, burglars paid their second visit within a period of six weeks to the store and service station of a south George Street merchant, and stole candies and groceries to the approximate value of $150. Entry to the store was gained by breaking a large plate glass panel in the door.

CANADIAN CREW

representing the British Consul General, objected at stages of the questioning to the manner in which queries were being put to the witness and some confusion developed. Both Halle and Chapman declared they had come before the board with the members of the crew in the belief the seamen would have a fair hearing.

Threats Made

The board was informed to-day that one member of the crew threatended vengeance for the killing of the master, Captain William P. Cluett, who was slain by a Coastguard shell.

The threat, the Board was told, came from Alfred Cluett, aboard the Josephine K. and brother of the captain.

The testimony came from Bennett Walker, cook of the Coastguard cutter 161, which arrived at the scene of the shelling in the wake of cutter 145, the boat which made the capture.

Walker told the Board the threat was made while Captain Cluett was being taken to a hospital on Staten Island and while the crew of the Josephine K. was herded in the forecastle.

"If our captain dies, your skipper will die, too," he quoted the brother of the mortally wounded captain.

Walker was the first Coastguardsman aboard the Josephine K. He was assigned to guard the members of the crew. He was equipped with a revolver, he said, and so far as he could tell there were no firearms aboard the rum-runner.

New Angle Up

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28. — While despatches intimating that the Josephine K. is owned in the United States have aroused some interest here the feeling appears to be that the point is not one of major importance at present. The vessel is registered in Canada and was flying the Canadian flag, according to information so far obtainable. The view is expressed here that it devolves upon a country to protect her registered shipping sailing under her flag. That, it is stated, is a generally accepted principle. It is regarded as very unlikely that the officer in command of the United States coast guard vessel which fired upon the Josephine K. and killed her master, made any inquiries as to the ownership of the boat.

The Department of External Affairs here is still silent pending receipt of a report on the circumstances surrounding the incident. This report, it was stated today, may not be received until after the Board of Inquiry has completed its investigation and furnished the United States Government with the evidence adduced there. In the meantime the department declines to make any statement based on new despatches.

It will be recalled that the "I'm Alone" case became the subject of debate in the Parliament of Canada. It would not be surprising if the case of the Josephine K. achieved the same distinction during the coming session of the Canadian House.

Admiralty Reduces Sentence Given Men

LONDON, Jan. 28 (C.P.)—The Admiralty informed the House of Commons to-day that sentences imposed on several members of the submarine depot ship Lucia for a disturbance on the vessel were to be reduced. The captain, the executive officer and a divisional officer are to be relieved of duty and the Lucia is to be outfitted with a new crew and officers.

Greatest Thrill In The World

Charlie Daly, 19, of Toronto, and until recently a pupil of Humberside Collegiate, is at present out of the parachute-jumping game after having established a junior record of 16,200 feet. But he says it provides the greatest thrill in the world and that if anyone at any time suggests a game of follow-the-leader with a high-flying aeroplane as the starting point, he'll be ready to be the first man overboard.

MOOSE INCREASES IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Animals Transported From New Brunswick a Few Years Ago Rapidly Increasing.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Jan. 28 (C.P.)—Reports from sections of Newfoundland as widely separated as Gander Lake, in the northwest of the island, and St. George's at the southwest extremity, indicate that descendants of the moose transported to the Oldest Colony from New Brunswick a few years ago are steadily increasing.

The Daily News, however, takes issue with Bonnycastle Dale, who in a recent magazine article describing the capture of the animals' progenitors in the Valley of Bartibog, indicated that these were the first moose to be set free in Newfoundland.

In the early seventies, The News says, Smith McKay, discoverer of the Tilt Cove copper deposits, induced the government to authorized him to introduce moose on the island. A bull and two cows were liberated near Notre Dame Bay. Later on Mr. McKay visited the neighborhood, and his host volunteered to kill a caribou, so that some venison would be available for food. Enough steak was obtained to supply the guest until the costal boat came to take him back to St. John's. It was then that Mr. McKay got inside information that the venison he had enjoyed was from imported moose. The bull had been slaughtered to supply him, and the cows later came to the same end.

The second attempt, however, was more successful. A guide named Connel undertook to capture the moose alive, and with his associates succeeded in enclosing a "yard" of the animals by felling trees around their winter herd when the snow was at its deepest. A couple of cows were lassoed with difficulty, and a big bull was also roped. The story goes that the bull was not pacified sufficiently to warrant transportation out of the woods until Connell had applied a chloroform-soaked sponge on the end of a pole to the animal's nostrils. Later on they were shipped over the five hundred miles of land and the hundred mile water stretch to Newfoundland.

NEW REGULATION ON MAPLE SUGAR

Hereafter Word "Maple" May Not Be Used Where Product is Imitation.

WEIR TO SEEK APPROVAL.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28.—Regulations for the enforcement of the Maple Sugar Industry Act, which was passed at the last regular session of Parliament, have now been drafted and will shortly be presented by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, to Cabinet Council for approval. Announcement that regulations had been worked out came to-day from Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, following a conference with those interested in the industry.

The Act, which becomes effective as from February 1 through an order-in-council, has as its purpose the protection of the buying public from adulterants. Hereafter the word "maple" may not be used where the product is an imitation or contains adulterants. In addition, articles of food having an artificial flavor must be described as containing an imitation. This applies also to food served in public eating houses.

SLEIGH RIDING ACCIDENT ENDS FATALLY

U.S. Government Apologises To Mussolini

ACTION OUTCOME OF SPEECH MADE BY GEN. BUTLER

Secretary Adams Orders General Court Martial For Marine Corps Officer.

CONFINED AT HIS POST.

Claimed to Have Stated Il Duce Ran Down Child and Never Stopped Car.

WASHINGTON, January 29 (C.P.). — The United States Government apologized to-day to Premier Mussolini of Italy because of a recent speech in Philadelphia by Major-General Smedley D. Butler, of the Marines, in which remarks derogatory to the Premier figured.

Secretary of State Stimson, in a note handed Italian Ambassador de Martino, formally apologized to Signor Mussolini and the Italian people for the remarks made by Butler.

Court Martial Ordered

Secretary Adams to-day ordered a general court-martial for Major-General Smedley D. Butler of the Marine Corps.

The action followed receipts of a letter from Butler to the secretary in which he gave his version of a recent speech in Philadelphia in which he criticised Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Major General Fuller, Marine Commandant, to-day informed General Butler of the order, and told him to confine himself to the limits of his station at the marine barracks, Quantico, Virginia. General Butler was in Philadelphia last night.

What the General Said.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29. — The remarks made by General Smedly T. Butler which today brought an apology from the United States to Premier Mussolini of Italy and resulted in the issue of a court martial order against the General were contained in a story told by the General here.

General Butler, according to a local newspaper said that the Duce's car recently killed a child while travelling at a high rate of speed. The Premier ordered the chauffeur to drive on remarking to a companion "What is one life in the affairs of a state?"

The General is also alleged to have said "mad dogs are about to break loose in Europe and Mussolini is one of those fellows waiting to start another war."

RICHARDS LOSES DAMAGES ACTION

Judge Claims Man Been Ill Advised in Case By Friends.

SCORES CHILDREN'S AID.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29. (CP)—Dismissing with costs the action brought by George Richards, ex-farm boy and ward of John A. and Sarah Mackenzie of Lucknow, Bruce County in a claim for $15,000 damages for neglect, ill-treatment and breach of indenture of adoption, Mr. Justice Jeffrey to-day said it was very unfortunate that the action had been brought.

"Very serious charges of cruelty, and neglect have been made" His Lordship pointed out. "The plaintiff is now a man of 26 years and the father of two children, and I find that he failed to prove that he was illiterate as his charges claimed.

His Lordship said undoubtedly Richards had been a backward boy, but there had been a home-like atmosphere in the evening efforts of John Mackenzie to help him with his homework.

Falsehoods in Evidence

His Lordship described the evidence as plaintiff as a tissue of falsehoods and malicious statements.

"The boy has been ill-advised, not by his solicitor but by his friends, so-called, in bringing this action" said the court.

The Children's Aid Society of Toronto came under Mr. Justice Jeffrey's fire at the conclusion of evidence yesterday afternoon. His Lordship declared that responsibility for the action rested with the society, whose ward Richards had formerly been.

If there had been any fault on the part of the Mackenzies in the treatment of their ward and in the alleged neglect of his education the society should have known of it, His Lordship said.

YOUNG MURDERER PAYS FOR CRIMES AT HANDS OF MOB

North Dakota Youth Being Held For Slaying Six in One Family.

LYNCHERS WELL ARMED.

Masked Men Raid Jail, Overpower Sheriffs, Hang Victim From Bridge.

SCHAFER, N.D., January 29 (C.P.). — Charles Bannon, 22, confessed slayer of six members of the A. E. Haven family, was lynched by a mob here early to-day.

Overpowering a deputy sheriff, the mob broke into the Schafer jail, took Bannon to a bridge two miles east of here and hanged him. James F. Bannon, father of Charles, also held in connection with the Haven slayings, was not molested.

The mob arrived at the jail about 1 a.m. surrounded Deputy Sheriff Peter S. Hallan and tied him to a chair. Taking his keys, Members of the crowd took the younger Bannon from his cell and spirited him away in automobiles.

Sheriff F. A. Thompson, aroused by the commotion, was seized and also tied up.

The crowd indicated that the elder Bannon would not be harmed and he was not taken from the jail.

Although the mob was intent only on getting Charles Bannon, the latter pleaded that his father be not harmed. "Save my dad," he urged. He was told that the elder Bannon "would be given a chance" with the courts and would not be harmed by them.

Reaching the bridge, a one inch rope was produced from a car. It was fastened to the railing and a slipknot placed around Bannon's neck. He was pushed off the rail and dropped about twenty feet.

No Shots Fired.

The mob dispersed. No shots were fired and save for the Sheriff and his deputy being tied up, no one else was bothered.

Sheriff Thompson who lives two blocks from the jail, was seized when he came to investigate the noise of the timbers breaking down the doors.

Young Bannon was brought to the McKenzie jail here several days ago from the Williams county jail at Williston, N.D., where he had been held for safekeeping since his arrest. He and his father were to have been arraigned here to-morrow on first degree murder charge for the Haven slayings.

Prosecution at Once of Cases Pending Under Combines Act Promised by Price

TORONTO, Ont., January 29 (C.P.). — "All cases which were being prosecuted under the Combines Act will continue immediately," Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, said to-day when he was informed of the dismissal of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association's appeal by the Privy Council."

"If the Act has been declared valid we will immediately take up the prosecution of all cases which we were hitherto prevented from prosecuting, because of your contention that the Act was ultra vires," Mr. Price added.

An early ruling is also expected at Windsor on the question of whether Louis E. Singer, K.C., Commissioner of the Amalgamated Builders' Council, W. L. O'Connor, K.C., and 31 members of the A. B. C. have been guilty of price fixing in restraint of trade.

DOMINION COMBINES ACT VALID IS DECISION PRIVY COUNCL MAKES IN DISMISSING APPEAL OF P.A.T.A.

One of Most Important Canadian Judgments Handed Down in Years.

CLIMAXES 4 YEAR BATTLE.

Immediate Action By Province Expected Against A.B.C. and Electrical Contractors.

LONDON, Jan. 29. — (CP) —The Privy Council today dismissed the appeal of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association of Canada.

In one of the most important Canadian judgments handed down in years, Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council therefore decided that the Dominion Combines Act was valid.

The P.A.T.A. appealed from a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, which ruled unanimously that the Combines Act was valid.

The Quebec and Ontario Governments supported the contention of the P.A.T.A. that the Dominion Act was ultra vires.

The case was argued before the Privy Council in June, 1930, W. N. Rowell K.C., and F. P. Varcoe, K.C. represented the Dominion Government. W. N. Tilley, K.C., represented the P.A.T.A., Edward Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General of Ontario represented that Province, and Aime Geoffrion, K.C., represented the Province.

End of Long Battle

To-day's judgment was the climax of a legal battle that started four years ago. The decision upholding the Dominion Combines Act clarifies the situation and validates a number of highly important investigations into alleged combines that have been, or are being carried out, in Canada.

Thus, it is expected, the Province of Ontario will now proceed with prosecution of the members of alleged combines in the electrical contracting trade and the plumbing trade in that Province. Other investigations concern the moving picture industry in Canada, the distribution of radio receiving sets, the question of wheat, flour and bread prices, and many other highly important matters.

The operations of the P.A.T.A. were investigated in 1926. It was decided by the Commissioner investigating, that this association of wholesale and retail druggists and manufacturers, established to fix minimum prices of proprietary medicines and toilet articles, constituted a combine. A rehearing continued through 1927 and again it was reported a combine.

The Association contended the Dominion Combines Act was ultra vires. The Supreme Court of Canada, however, upheld the Act, passed in 1923 to replace an Act of 1919 that had been declared invalid by the Privy Council. Consequently the Association

SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED

CORK, Irish Free State, Jan. 29 (C.P.)—The Department of Health to-day closed all the national schools because of an epidemic of influenza which has continued for the past two weeks. It is a comparatively mild type, however, and there have been comparatively few deaths.

Europe is Swept By 'Flu Epidemic

LONDON, January 29 (C.P.). —Influenza has been spreading like wildfire over Europe in the past two weeks, and although it is generally of a mild type, the epidemic shows no indication of abatement.

The most serious recent report came from Spain, where 12 persons were reported to have died in the past week.

An epidemic of much the same type has raged through the United Kingdom, and to-day all the national schools at Cork were ordered closed. In London many business firms are running with skeleton staffs, and reports from Belgium and other countries indicate that conditions are similar.

Siamese Twins Are Born in Kitchener

KITCHENER, Ont., January 29 (C.P.). — Siamese twins were born to Mrs. Emerson Krauter at Linwood, Ont., yesterday, but because of the manner in which the two little bodies were joined it was a physical impossibility for them to be born alive. The twins, both boys, were fully developed in every way, weighing six and seven pounds. They were joined face to face from the neck to abdomen. Dr. T. M. Robinson, of St. Jacobs, the attending physician, stated they were the first Siamese twins he had seen in his 45 years of obstetrical experience. Mrs. Krauter is the mother of three other children. She is about 26 years old.

PERJURY CHARGE IS LAID AGAINST SAMUEL HENSON

Criminal Action Follows Civil Court Case Heard on October 23.

BAILED FOR TRIAL.

Civil Action Was Dismissed in the County Court—Appeal Filed.

Samuel Henson appearing on remand on a charge of perjury was this morning bailed for trial in his own recognisances of the sum of $500 after the evidence of four Crown witnesses had been heard before Magistrate O. A. Langley.

The charge against accused arises out of a statement which accused made on oath at a County Court action before the County Judge on October 23rd, last Irwin and Clemett vs. Henson, in which he had denied being in Omemee in the year 1929. The County Judge dismissed the action on the grounds that plaintiffs had no contract with Henson. Appeal has been filed and is to be heard on February 2nd.

A lengthy legal argument between Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., and accused's counsel J. F. Strickland, K. C., M. L. A. preceded the formal opening of the case. Mr. Strickland submitted that in view of the appeal in the civil action, the Crown should withdraw, to take up the charges at a later date if it was considered that such action was warranted.

Such a course was strongly opposed by Alexander L. Elliott of the firm of Gordon and Elliott, and whose status in the court was questioned by Mr. Strickland, who asked is it usual to bring in an assistant counsel.

Mr. McElderry replied that Mr. Elliott submitted a letter from Macdonald and MacIntosh of Toronto in which they had stated that Mr. Chief Justice Latchford had let the appeal stand over until February 2nd, during which time he hoped the perjury charge would be dealt with.

The Magistrate upheld that such a notice did not constitute a fiat from the Appeal Court, by which he should be guided.

Mr. McElderry was also of the opinion that it was a notice of which the Magistrate's court should not take into account, and thought that the proper thing to do was to withdraw criminal proceedings until after the Civil action had been disposed of.

Mr. Elliott would not consent to such a course, and the Magistrate went on with the proceedings.

Harley L. Overholt, sheepskin tacker, called by the Crown said he remembered the trial of the civil ac-

OFFICERS ELECTED.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 27, the first meeting of the Peterborough Welsh people opened its doors in the council room of the Chamber of Commerce.

Between 30 and 40 Welsh people attended and each person voiced their opinion strongly in favour of forming a society to be called the St. Davids Welsh Society. They propose to hold these meetings regularly in order to keep alive the traditions and ideals of their Welsh forefathers, especially its literature and Esteddfodan for which Wales is noted.

The meeting took form of election of officers. The Rev. J. L. It was decided to hold the next meeting on Tuesday evening Feb. 10th, in the same place at 8 p.m. when all other Welsh people who were not present are cordially invited to attend. The meeting then adjourned with the singing of "Hen Wlad" by Nhadau and other favourite Welsh songs.

Small Girls Hit Truck, One Killed Other Is Injured

Audrey Morgan, Aged 8, Dies in Nicholls Hospital Following Collision With Truck on Water Street While Sleigh-riding Last Evening.

HAZEL REYNOLDS, AGED 9, IN CRITICAL CONDITION SUFFERING FROM SEVERE INJURIES TO HEAD

Girls Were Riding Down the Anson Street Hill While the Truck Was Proceeding North on Water Street—Hope is Held That Injured One Will Recover.

While sleigh riding down Anson Street hill on to Water Street in the north end of the city at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two littl girls, Audrey Morgan, aged 8, and Hazel Reynolds, aged 9, were grievously injured when they speeded under the wheels of a truck. Audrey Morgan died in Nicholls Hospital at 9.10 last night of a fractured skull, and the other girls is in a critical condition with severe head injuries suffered in the accident.

The children were riding on one sleigh. They had coasted down Anson Street, the first street north of Hilliard, and were racing across Water Street, almost at the end of their thrilling ride, when struck by the truck owned by Brewer's Garage, and driven by Reginald McKeown, 745 Water Street.

The truck was proceeding north on Water Street and was partly over the Anson Street crossing when the driver saw the sleigh, carrying the two excited children, speeding toward him. McKeown states that he swerved the truck quickly to the right and almost ran into the ditch in trying to avoid crashing into the sleigh. The sleigh streaked across the road like lightning, he states, and went under his left front wheel.

Both children were knocked unconscious, and suffered severe head injuries. They were conveyed at once to the hospital and attended by Dr. Murray Fraser.

Somewhat Brighter

Medical science could not save Audrey Morgan, but this morning it was reported that Hazel Reynolds was somewhat brighter and there are some hopes for her recovery.

Another little sleigh-rider, Helen Liddell, aged 9, 2 Anson street, was an eye-witness of the tragedy. She said the truck was going up Water street. Riding in the truck with McKeown was Dolora Johnson, 543 Edison avenue.

The roadway was very slippery, Constable Jack Stevenson who investigated the accident said, and the truck went sixteen yards after its brakes were applied.

The dead girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morgan, 929 Water street, and Hazel Reynolds is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds, 863 Water street.

GOV'T TO ENTER SCHNEIDER CUP SEAPLANE RACES

Premier Macdonald Makes Announcement Before House of Commons.

WILL PREPARE AT ONCE.

Decision Made After Assurance of Necessary Funds is Given By Private Sources.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Government, yielding to wide popular demand, has changed its mind about holding aloof from this year's Schneider cup race and Great Britain will participate.

There was an indication earlier in the week that the Government might reconsider its decision to stay out of the race because of the expense entailed and Premier MacDonald told a delegation from the House of Commons that he would be willing to reconsider.

Lady Houston Saves the Day.

This development came shortly after Lady Houston, some times called "England's Lady Bountiful" because of her generous gifts to charity, had offered to foot the bills of a British entry for the seaplane trophy if they ran over an amount guaranteed by Sir Philip Sassoon who had previously said he could find part of the expenses.

The Premier told the House today that the deputation with which he conversed had told him the money would be raised by private sources. The Government is now prepared to authorize a defense of the Schneider trophy by the Royal Air Force, provided assurance be given immediately that the necessary funds will be available from such sources.

BLASTS IN SEWER ALARM DISTRICT

Residents of Eastern Ottawa Flee in Panic to Streets—No Damage.

FELT FOR TWO MILES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 (CP)—Residents over a two-mile area in the eastern section of Ottawa were thrown into near panic yesterday when explosions in sewers rocked the district and shot manhole covers high in the air.

A rumbling, thunder-like noise, accompanied by the popping of the sewer covers, sent residents of Sandy Hill extending from the Government driveway to the Rideau River, and of Eastview. Overbrook and Hurdman's bridge, which line the river's eastern shore, into the streets, fearing a repetition of the serious sewer explosions of May, 29, 1925. Then one woman was killed, another badly injured and three houses were destroyed by fire, but, this time little damage.

No fires were started and no one was injured.

JOSEPHINE K IS MATCHED IN RACE AGAINST U.S. COAST GUARD CUTTER

Board Would Learn if Rum-runner Can Be Overhauled Without Resort to Shelling.

COVER 2-MILE COURSE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (CP)—The Josephine K. Canadian rum-runner captured off Ambrose Lightship Saturday night after her master had been killed by a Coast Guard shell, steamed down the bay to-day to race with the CG-145, the ship which shelled and seized her.

The purpose of the race, which was arranged by the Coast Guard Board of Inquiry investigating the shelling, was to determine whether the cutter had speeded enough to overhaul the rum ship without resorting to direct fire.

This question was injected into the investigation by the British Consul General in New York, who is participating at the request of the Canadian Government.

Commander J. I. Bryan, officer presiding over the inquiry into the seizure, announced that newspapermen would not be allowed to witness the speed trials.

Press Allowed to Watch

Reporters covering the hearing immediatly protested to Captain Randolph Ridgely, Jr., in command of the New York division of the Coast Guard, and he ordered that they be permitted to watch the speed contest.

The two vessels, one of them known as one of the fleetest craft in the rum service, the other designed to cope with just such speedsters, were to cover the same two-mile course they raced over Saturday night. Only this time there was to be a starting gun instead of a finish gun.

ACCUSES PHILPOTT AND HEPBURN OF ATTACKING HIS DEPARTMENT FOR PURPOSES OF POLITICAL GAIN

Attorney General Asks What His Opponents' Prohibition Policy is.

DEFENDS RECORD.

Says Brokers Were Prosecuted Soon as Department Had Evidence.

(By Jack Hambleton, (CP) Staff Writer)

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 29. —Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, was in a fighting mood last night, when addressing electors of West Hamilton in support of Argu Martin, Conservative candidate for the riding. In a fiery and impassioned speech, the Attorney-General accused Mitchell Hepburn, M.P., Provincial Liberal leader, and Captain Elmore Philpott, M.P., Liberal candidate for the constitutency, with attacking his department for political purposes accused them of impugning his honor and veracity, and threatened to retaliate in no uncertain terms.

"My coat is off, no one is going to impugn my honor and veracity without getting one on the jaw. I thought they were too small and I was too proud to fight—I am right on the job from now on." Col. Price declared.

Issues Challenges

He challenged Mr. Hepburn and Captain Philpott to come out and tell the electorate just where they stood on the prohibition question. The Liberal candidate had been a strong supporter of prohibition, while Mr. Hepburn was said to favor "beer by the glass." He twitted his opponents on this issue, asking if Captain Philpott was in favor of the Liquor Control Act or prohibition, and if he was satisfied with the leadership of Mr. Hepburn.

Col. Price defended his administration of the Attorney Generals Department, quoting figures to show that Ontario had far fewer murders in ten years than one United States city, Detroit. He declared that brokers who had been prosecuted for conspiracy to defraud, had been prosecuted just as soon as his department had collected the necessary evidence, and that care had been taken to prevent any panic among investors.

He denied the Province had any responsibility in not prosecuting companies which were under Dominion jurisdiction, and asked why the Province aimed principally at the G. A. Stimson Company, of Toronto which is now in receivers hands. In 1926, Stimson's issued a prospectus Measure Goes to Committee For Study Clause By Clause.

LONDON, Janury 29 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — In a packed and excited House of Commons, the Government last night got through the second reading of the Trades Disputes Bill by a majority of 27.

The Government majority was larger even than had been expected. Only seven other Liberals voted with Sir John Simon in opposition to the Bill, and with the Conservative Opposition. One Liberal supported the Bill by his vote; the rest abstained from recording their opinion.

The vote was 277 to 250.

Another Attack.

As soon as the result of this vote was announced, Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative Chief, moved that the Bill be referred to a committee of the whole House.

Again the House divided. This time, however, the majority of the Liberals voted with the Government, and the MacDonald majority rose to 62. The net result is—in the parlance of Westminster—that the Bill will go "upstairs" for committee consideration, clause by clause. The committee stage will be passed in a standing committee, instead of the Committee of the Whole, where the possibility of a Government defeat on a matter of detail is always present. The second vote was 306 against 244.

JUDGING CLASS IS HELD AT FARM OF ALEX HUME AND SONS, SEYMOUR

Many Speakers Address Gathering of Farmers on Various Agricultural Subjects.

MUCH DISCUSSION HELD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—A very interesting and instructive afternoon was spent on Tuesday at the farm of Alex Hume and Sons, Seymour, when a goodly number of farmers and friends gathered there to indulge in a judging class. Mr. Hume has been for many years outstanding as a breeder of Ayshire stock, and is keenly interested in the advancement of agriculture and the dairy industry in the district.

The class, which was more than enjoyed, brought out many differences in opinions in the placing of the animals, Messrs. Alex Hume, John Lock, F. H. Rutherford and J. Wilson taking a premier part in the discussions.

Many visitors addressed the gathering on subjects pertaining to the industry. J. Wilson, agricultural representative of Stirling based his remarks on the milk per acre contest, stressing the fact that the best contestants kept about one cow per five acres of land. The production was from 5,000 to 7,000 pounds per cow in six months, some of the farmers feeding grain the year round. In the matter of reducing the cost of production, he advised the feeding of more ensilage clover and peas which are rich in protein. The first winner in the contest obtained $89 per cow. Good farming methods should be used and the best authorities on feeding allowed.

Conditions in England

S. H. Neale, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Royal Bank addressed the gathering giving them a survey of farming conditions in England. He pointed out that the Ayrshire herd was the most popular in that country for the dairy product, although some fine herds of Holsteins are to be seen. He spoke of the change in farming conditions in the Old Land since the war, stating that now, more modern machinery is being used to work the land. As far as horses are concerned, Mr. Neale said that the English and Scottish farmers had the best in the world, most of them being Clydesdales. They are never used off the

COBOURG WANTS $3,500 AS RENT FOR BUILDINGS

Special Committee of the County Council Named to Deal With Question.

SHARPLY OPPOSED.

Committee Chairman For Year Named By United Counties Council.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—The Counties Council again faced the fact yesterday that their present occupancy of Cobourg's old town hall and court house temporarily continues upon the sufferance and probably the expectations of the town council.

With the recent turn of the year the rental agreement, signed a decade ago, expired. Under its terms the Counties paid $2,000 annually for their lease of the quarters used as offices by Judge L. V. O'Connor, Sheriff Nesbitt, J. T. Field, Clerk of the County Court; E. L. MacNachtan, Counties Clerk and Treasurer; the council chamber, and committee rooms, and also the main court room.

In the meantime the "landlord has raised the rent" to $3,500 a year, and apparently only the Cobourg representatives are willing to accept the COUNCIL TO ASK GOV'T TO BEAR 90 PER CENT. OF HIGHWAY COSTS

Old Age Pension Board is Reappointed for the Year 1931.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

Peterborough's County Council will petition the Ontario Government to bear ninety per cent. of the cost of construction and maintenance of Provincial highways and fifty per cent. of the cost of Township roads. This was the decision unanimously passed yesterday afternoon by the Council and in order to press their claims and secure the support of other counties, a delegation representing this county's council will attend the Ontario Good Roads Convention in Toronto next month.

Reeve McIntyre, of Otonabee, chairman of the finance committee, in whose committee this matter was discussed declared that the farming community was up in arms over the matter of the gasoline tax. "If they can't pay the full cost of Provincial highways let them refund the gas tax, he declared. "We must do something about it right away," he later affirmed.

The Council was in hearty accord with this view and the motion to petition for a 90 per cent of highways costs resulted.

Seeks $5,000 Damages.

The County is involved in a civil action in which it is being sued for $5,000 damages. F. I. Mahood, former caretaker of the court house building, is the claimant and in his statement of claim he says that five years ago, while discharging his duties he suffered a grievous injury to his eye when a piece of coal struck him and he has been rendered almost totally blind. He states that he did not bring the action sooner because of ignorance of his rights.

E. A. Peck, M.P., county solicitor, advised the Council to fight the suit.

The Council was asked by F. T. Barrett to sign a petition requesting that the government make this county a game preserve for seven years. He pointed out the value of game to the county and stated that game was in a fair way to being exterminated here. The matter was left to the committee of petitions.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 29 (C.P.).—Twelve arrests have been made in connection with bombings two weeks ago of three Buenos Aires railway points, resulting in a number of deaths and injuries. Some of the city's morning papers link those arrested with politicians affiliated with the deposed Irigoyen regime who now are living in Montevideo, Uruguayan capital.

Police raided a printing plant and found evidence that subversive pamphlets circulated a few days prior to the explosion had been printed there.

SCRAP BOOK REVEALS HISTORY OF OLD TIME BELLEVILLE CITY

Bert Johnson Possessor of Clippings Dealing With Early Happenings.

IS WELL KNOWN.

Belleville's handsome and well equipped public library, one of the many monuments to the memory of Senator Harry Corby who saved Belleville the necessity of appealing to Andrew Carnegie, the Laird of Skibo, for one of his model libraries scattered so plentifully over the land as the result of profits made by Dour Andrew in the steel business, is far removed from its humble beginnings the "Mechanics' Institute," which may be remembered by old timers.

Memories of the old Mechanic's Institute were awakened by a perusal of an old scrap book brought to the editorial office by Bert Johnson, entertainer, well known from coast to coast as a magician whose both hands were always quicker than many eyes. The scrap book was started by his father, E. M. Johnson, once a resident of Belleville, connected with the Mechanic's Institute and conductor of a gymnasium where the young folks were taught how to make their bodies strong and vigorous. E. W. Johnston was an interesting character, claimed the general all-round athletic championship of the world and had many medals and parchments to prove it. In his day in Belleville Chief of Police McKinnon was a great athlete and was never bested at putting the shot, Duncan Ross was another local athlete of continent wide renown, and with E. W. Johnston the trio made athletic history in Canada and the United States, sponsoring and taking part in athletic events in many towns and cities.

E. W. Johnston conducted a hotel at Lindsay at one time and the scrap book contains one leaf of the guest register with the autographs of Madame Janauschek with her company which included the well known actor Tyrone Power who is still going strong in the movies. Madame Janauschek toured Ontario about the year 1880 and appeared in Belleville.

E. W. Johnston was the father of Bert Johnston, present owner of the Johnston scrap book which is full of interesting reminiscences of the long ago. Bert Johnston will be remembered for his magic show which toured canada for years from coast to coast. Now Bert has transferred his wand and magic lore to his son, who is touring Ontario with his own company and meeting with great success.

Bert Johnston, the original magician, takes great store by his father's own scrapbook, especially since the death of his father a few years ago in Hamilton, and he likes to visit Belleville where his father once lived and spent many happy days.—Belleville Intelligencer.

COBOURG WANTS

increase. It was discussed by Reeve N. R. Hartt's finance committee last night, with the result that a special committee was appointed to interview Cobourg council to-day, in the hope that the proposed new rental might be whittled down under reconsideration to a sum that conforms more closely with the decreased incomes of the farmers of the two counties.

This special committee is composed of Reeves J. N. Stone, chairman; G. T. Hancock, Robert Innis, F. L. Richard, Percy Stinson and N. R. Hartt.

A Polite Letter

Cobourg Council's letter, signed by Mayor Wilmott was polite enough, but peremptory enough in its notfication that the rent was to be jacked up $1,500 a year, and in the event of recourse to arbitration Cobourg reserved the right to ask for more than $9,500 a year.

In the committee discussion Second Deputy-Reeve W. J. Corbett explained Cobourg's reasons for the new demand. The revenue from the Counties was in adequate and out of proportion with the large section of the municipal building occupied by the Counties, and it was also out of line with main street rentals generally. The A. and P. Store was paying $1,800 a year for its premises.

Reeve Stinson argued that no persuasive comparison could be made between a mercantile property on the main business street and the town hall, designed for its special municipal and court purposes.

Reeve Parker of Alnwick said he had not changed his mind since December. The increase of $1,500 was sharply opposed by farmers whose produce brought the lowest prices that had been paid for years. Many farmers found it difficult to make ends meet, and some of them were abandoning their farms.

Reeve Hancock again invited the Counties to transfer their headquarters to Port Hope.

Within the last month Cobourg has put forth the suggestion of withdrawing from the United Counties because of the big increase in the equalized assessment fixed by Judge O'Connor, a fact that reminds rural representatives of the comparatively low assessment which has been a great financial advantage to the counties town for about thirty years.

Contract Not Let

Tenders for a new heating system in the registry office at Port Hope were opened, but were set aside until June. In the meantime the special property committee will decide whether a new heating system is necessary. They will report at the June sessions.

Purchase of additional filing cabinets for the records of the counties' clerk was left to the special property committee.

Committees Chairmen

The chairmen of the 1931 standing committees were appointed as follows:—

Roads and Bridges.—W. H. Carruthers.

Finance—Frank Rickard.

Schools.—W. C. Wood.

Property.—N. R. Hartt.

Legislation—J. N. Stone.

Agriculture.—F. R. Darling (deputy reeve, Cramahe).

Contingencies.—W. Davey (deputy reeve, Hamilton).

Would Suspend Paving

Reeve Parker suggested in finance committee that the counties this year should suspend their five-year paving program which has been under way two years. Reeve Wood of South Monaghan supported this proposal, which was intended as an expression of sentiment in motion form for the council's consideration.

Paving last year centered in Northumberland, and 1931 promised permanent highway improvements in Durham, particularly around the Bowmanville district.

MEMBERS' WIVES ENTERTAINED BY HOMETOWN CLUB

Pleasing Pogram Presented at Annual Rotary Ladies' Night in Campbellford.

COMMUNITY SINGING.

Captain Rev. N. Rossan, of Brampton, Ontario, is Guest Speaker for Occasion.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9.— (By Examiner Staff Correspnodent)—The annual ladies' night staged by the Campbellford Rotary Club was held last evening, when the club entertained their wives and friends in the St. Lawrence Hotel, where a splendid banquet was served and a program presented. The president, H. N. Carr, occupied the chair for the evening, the program being under the direction of Ellc Brunelle.

Community singing was featured, led by Albert Hasell, numbers being interjected into the program. Guest artists were Mrs. O. J. Windrim, who in her usual splendid voice sang two numbers, receiving an enthusiastic encore. Mrs. J. Black was also greeted with hearty applause when she delivered two readings, one in the French Canadian, and responded to encores. Albert Hasell sang a tenor solo and was well received. Accompanists for the evening were A. Hasell and E. E. Dolman.

Capt. Rev. N. Rossan.

The guest speaker for the evening was Captain Rev. N. Rossan of Brampton, Ontario, who through ninety minutes of oratory held his audience in close attention. Speaking on the subject, "The Making of a Soldier," he took his hearers from the realm of laughter to the depths of pathos, emphasising the humor and nobleness of the World War and forcing on his audience some of the humane lessons that war teaches.

Capt. Rossan, who en listed from Canada in 1914 as a private soldier and finished up an officer, having served in France and Russia, commenced his address by complimenting the ladies on the fact that it was the one great night in the liven of their husbands, the night when they had to take their wives out, congratulated the president on his brain power and added sundry complimentary remarks about the club and the town.

Giving a word picture of his enlistment and his experience with army doctors and army mules, he took his audience with him across the water to Blighty. Here he described the real hospitality of the homeland people, stressing the fact that many Canadians had harboured wrong conceptions of the Old Land until they had come in contact with it and the people.

Speaking on the oft-asked question, Who won the war? the speaker emphatically declared that it was not the man who fought, for theirs was the glory of action, but it was the women at home, the wives and mothers, who had waited and prayed, and told of his own mother whom the war had aged beyond recognition because of her three sons overseas, stating that he had never realized what mother meant until he had to leave her for active service.

He late paid a glowing tribute to the women of Britain, who had really sacrificed and suffered, and described the food shortage that had existed in the Old Land, and how the women had faced the situation and had yet spared much for the entertainment of the Canadian troops who had billeted with them. Captain Rossan also stated that one Christmas in England he had arranged for 40,000 Canadian troops to be entertained for the day with private families.

The speaker deplored the fact that some people decried war, stating that although no sane person wanted or liked it, the men who had fought objected to having their deeds belittled. He pointed out that war had its humorous and humane side and a glory all its own, apart from its awfulness and filth.

In conclusion Capt. Rossan declared that the ills of the world would never be cured with peace conferences and disarmament or the exploration of any such channel, but only when the love that overcomes all barriers, races and creeds is experienced and practiced by men will peace prevail. He failed to believe that Jesus of Nazareth had failed in life, for he declared that men had never tried to live up to Him, and made a plea that men should put as much time and energy into religion as they do into their business to make a success of it. "He has never been given a chance," the speaker declared. The only security for world peace I know is to practice the brotherhood of man as exemplified by the lowly Nazareen" and stated that although he had been proud to wear the King's uniform, he was prouder still to wear the garb of a humble ambassador of Christ.

President Carr welcomed the visitors in a few complimentary remarks and introduced the speaker of the evening.

OBITUARY

MARY P. FOWLDS.

HASTINGS, Jan. 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The entire community was greatly shocked on Sunday when word was received of the sudden death in Toronto of Miss Mary P. Fowlds. The late Miss Fowlds, known to everyone as "Polly," was the youngest daughter of the late Henry M. and Victoria Campion Fowlds, very highly respected pioneer citizens of Hastings.

About a year ago the deceased suffered a very severe attack of influenza, which had weakened her system to a great extent. Being always anxious to do something for a good cause, or to help someone else, she overtaxed her strength during the past year, which brought on further trouble, which necessitated an operation. At first there were hopes for her recovery, but she passed quietly away on Sunday morning in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto.

There are left to mourn her loss, two brothers and three sisters: James C. of Oshawa, Walter M. of Hastings, Louise V. and Grace I. of Toronto, and Mrs. James Fraser of Outlook, Sask.

The funeral, which arrived by motor from Toronto about 2 o'clock, went to St. George's Anglican Church, where services were held at 2.30. The services were in charge of the rector, the Rev. Francis Battersby, assisted by Rev. D. A. Thomson, D.D., of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bearers were Messrs. G. R. Fowlds, J. C. Fowlds, W. M. Fowlds, H. Fowlds, W. R. Learmouth and A. Wilson.

The very large crowd at the church showed the esteem by which deceased was held by all who had the pleasure of knowing her.

Interment took place in Trent Valley Cemetery.

DOMINION COMBINES

Action Promised

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29.—"In the event of the Dominion Combines Act being sustained," Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, explained some weeks ago, "The Province of Ontario will proceed to prosecute at once," referring to the actions against the members of the Amalgamated Builders Council, and the Electrical Contractors Association.

"There are cases at present before the magistrates at Windsor and London which have been adjourned from time to time, awaiting the decision of the Privy Council."

If the act had been adjudged ultra vires, both the Attorney-General and Deputy Attorney-General (Edward Bayly) pointed out, then prosecutions would be a matter for the Dominion Government and in that event there was a possibility all the cases would go by the board. Nullification of the act would have meant the Dominion Parliament would again have to frame new legislation.

FIRE DESTROYS CARSON HOME

Farmer Residing East of Millbrook Village Sustains Heavy Loss.

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 29. (Examiner Correspondence).—H. L. Carson suffered a severe loss last night when his farm residence, east of the village, was totally destroyed by fire. The origin of the blase is supposed to have been a defective chimney as Mr. Carson, who was alone in the house at the time, was roused by the sound of crackling, and found the upstairs room on fire. The owner was sleeping in a room downstairs, and it was at least two hours past midnight when he was awakened by the smell of smoke and the noise of the flames.

Mr. Carson was obliged to go to his nearby neighbors, J. Thompson's and rouse them in order to telephone for help, and though the farmers round responded readily to the call for assistance, the fire had made such headway only a few articles of furniture were saved. Fortunately the wind was from the north, so the barn and other outbuildings escaped without injury.

There is some insurance. The house was a frame building, and not large.

outlining details of the Commerce and Transportation Building. A copy of the prospectus was filed with the Secretary of State at Ottawa. The prospectus stated there were no mortgages on the building, but later developments proved there was a mortgage of $850,000. Several officials of the companies are now under arrest.

Recently, Captain Philpott stated that Col. Price knew the facts in the Stimson case, but made no efforts to prosecute.

One of His Efforts

Through his own efforts, the Attorney-General said, the Security Frauds Act had been passed, and this act had enabled many investors to obtain redress from vendors of fraudulent stock.

Discussing his refusal to meet Captain Philpott in public debate, Col. Price concluded with a scathing denuciation of the Liberal candidate. "I tell Captain Philpott this, as you did this dastardly trick, as you told untruth after untruth in assailing my record; you'll have to talk with friends. You cannot debate with me on any public platform." He charged Captain Philpott with having maligned, and insulted him, and said the latter wanted to hold the joint meeting just "to attract public attention to himself."

In introducing Col. Price to the audience, C. W. Bell, K.C., M.P., challenged Captain Philpott to tell where he "got his inside information on Stimson affairs" and said F. G. Johnson, president of the concern, was a "strong contributor to the party chest" of the Liberal party. Mr. Johnson, he said, had been a Liberal candidate for election in Toronto, while President of the Stimson Company.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1931

"CANADA, 1931."

A most interesting hand book, covering Canadian conditions and the story of Canadian progress, prepared in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, has been issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce under the title, "Canada, 1931."

In a foreword Hon. H. H. Stevens points out that as a result of the growth of the Dominion and the increasing complexity of its institutions, "there is an increasing need of an official hand book of Canada, dealing with the whole range of its economic and social institutions and giving a succinct and popular account of its problems and progress, while devoting special attention to the facts of the existing economic situation."

There is no doubt of the existence of such a need, and a study of the new publication goes to show that it should admirably serve the purpose for which it is created.

Both to the outsider who wants to learn something of Canada and to the Canadian who is interested in a better basis of information for dealing with the business problems of the present year, "Canada, 1931" should be of very material assistance.

It represents a successful effort to survey the Canadian situation as a whole in reasonable space, and to present the information so gained in an attractive form and at a cost which will make possible a wide distribution.

THIS SHOULD BE USEFUL.

Plans announced to assist the farmers of Ontario to secure better seed will strike most people as a very useful piece of Government assistance.

Obviously, under the present conditions of world over-production, the country that is able to better the quality of its products and at the same time to lower the cost of their production is going to have a material advantage over its competitors in the world markets.

This scheme, aimed at giving Ontario farmers a chance to market better grain at a lower cost, involves financial assistance for agriculturalists of the Province in installing and equipping power seed-cleaning plants.

The Federal and Provincial Governments are co-operating in the plan, and together will provide grants amounting to fifty per cent. of the cost of these useful cleaning machines in districts where satisfactory cleaning units have not already been established.

This assistance is in line with the general plan that is being followed by the Federal Minister of Agriculture, who hopes when his program has been completed to improve the quality of Canadian livestock, poultry and field crops—in fact, of everything produced on Canadian farms, so that the improved product with a lowered cost of production will have a much better chance to compete in the markets of the world.

WHY NOT IN ONTARIO, TOO?

The Manitoba Government, according to the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Legislature, proposes "to further lessen the burdens of the farmers and of the municipalities."

It is to be hoped that the new Premier of Ontario, Hon. George S. Henry, has not failed to note these words.

So far there has been no hint from Queen's Park as to any program of relief from taxation of the farmers and municipalities of this Province.

In fact, Premier Henry stated a few days ago that no change in the gasoline taxes or other levies was contemplated so far as the coming session of the Legislature is concerned.

Inaugural meetings of county councils reveal, just as did the inaugural meetings of urban municipal bodies, that the burden of municipal taxation is growing heavier, and more than that, the chief increase is being brought about by expenditures laid upon the municipalities by the Ontario Legislature and over which the municipalities themselves have no control.

There is such a thing as trying the patience of municipal taxpayers to the breaking-point, and Mr. Henry would be well advised to follow Manitoba's example and provide some relief before that situation develops in Ontario.

Otherwise, it may ultimately bring about the destruction of the administration over which the new Premier has but recently assumed control.

SOMEONE THREW A GRAPEFRUIT.

The world has gone wrong. We have always disputed that fact before, but yesterday morning we stood and watched with our own eyes while a story came in the telegraph machine telling that Rudy Vallee had been the target for two over-ripe grapefruit while crooning in the Metropolitan at Boston. The marksmanship was not particularly good, and one of the missiles hit the drummer.

When Mr. Vallee finished his song he made an address and said if there were any folk in Boston who didn't like his crooning then they need not attend the show; they could stay away and save their money. Now that's quite an idea. It works out that way on the radio, too, because when Rudy Vallee starts to croon we always shut him off. So his logic was good—if people don't want to hear him they are not forced to. That principle is embodied in the Declaration of Independence, we believe, and Rudy has caught the big idea.

The alarming thing is that these over-ripe grapefruit should be hurled in Boston, a place which admits without pressure that it is the seat of learning and culture of the Eastern States. It was also the place where the British tea business was sadly interfered with when Boston folk of other years heaved a cargo into the harbor, a wasteful act, of course, which may have something to do with the present depression.

This business of throwing grapefruit is new, and that in itself is an indication that the creative genius still lingers and seeks adequate expression in Boston. Should the practice be extended to political meetings and gatherings in general it may yet prove the means of vastly improved business for that section of the community which putters around growing grapefruit.

Tomatoes and eggs have hitherto enjoyed a monopoly of the trade as the media for giving outward and visible evidence of untamed disapproval, and it must be admitted they have done valiant service. But come to think of it, this grapefruit projectile business opens up a new door; it has an aesthetic touch to it which could not possibly be incorporated in such lowly articles as eggs and tomatoes. Mr. Vallee should not grieve; his picture may yet be included in the coat-of-arms of the grapefruit growers' association.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

WHAT CAN HE PROMISE?

Reports from Ottawa indicate that Premier Bennett will probably meet James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, when he goes to New York, on the way to Washington at the end of the week.

Mr. Farrell, it is reported, wants to talk to the Canadian Premier regarding the developments which may take place at the plant of the Steel Corporation at Ojibway, which has been standing idle for years, although millions of dollars were put into its construction in the first place. Recent information from Windsor has stated that as much as $60,000,000 is still to be expended there.

As far as it can be learned it is believed Mr. Farrell wants to have some assurance from Premier Bennett about the tariff before going ahead with the project at Ojibway. No doubt he desires to know just what he can count on before making his plans. That seems to be reasonable enough, as there would not be much use spending a great deal of money if there were not going to be any degree of permanence attached to the tariff under which operations were going to be carried on.

Premier Bennett may be able to assure him that as far as his Government is concerned, certain conditions will be created, and he can probably go to the length of promising that there will be no adverse change as long as his party remains in power.

* * * *

Beyond that he cannot go, and right there is one of the weaknesses in tariff manipulation. There may be a change of government; such events do take place quite frequently, and it might be that another government would be in favor of a general lowering of the tariff, and there could be no immunity guaranteed to the United States Steel Corporation or to any other industry.

That must be a hindrance to a good many industrial concerns. It may be possible to go ahead and build up an industry under one set of tariff laws, and then comes the change, and that change may be of such a nature that it makes it very difficult to keep the plant in operation.

It would be much fairer to industry to work on a plan where a tariff would remain a definite thing unless it were shown that there was an unfair advantage being taken of that tariff to soak the people who were forced to buy in the protected market.

As long as an industry is playing fair with the customers at home, there is nothing to be gained by making it subject to the tariff desires of those who may know very little about the practical operation of the business.

We would imagine it would be much easier to secure capital for investment in Canadian industry were we able to work out some plan whereby we would avoid tariff changes when there is no good reason for making them.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

THIRD-CLASS TRAVEL.

In the Western States, where competition with motor buses is sharp, the railways are about to introduce third-class accommodation at the rate of two cents a mile as opposed to the present rate of three and three-fifths cents per mile. It is felt by them that possibly the lower rate may prove attractive to people who have been patronizing bus lines to the exclusion of the passenger trains and that they may thus regain some of the traffic that they have lost.

All of which serves as a reminder of the fact that on the Montreal-Toronto line of the Canadian National Railways it is still possible, under an arrangement dating from early Grand Trunk days, to procure third-class transportation, and that advantage is occasionally taken of this circumstance by people short of the cash needed to purchase first-class or even second-class accommodation.

The late W. F. MacLean became aware of the clause in the charter of the Grand Trunk that required the railways to furnish transportation at "a penny a mile," and through pressure exerted in Parliament, in his newspaper and in the courts, made the management of the company carry for years obsolete third-class coaches at the tail of its mail trains between Montreal and Toronto that rarely sheltered passengers. When Mr. MacLean passed out of the parliamentary and journalistic picture, the third-class coaches went to the scrap-heap where they belonged, but the railway is still bound to issue "penny-a-mile" tickets for use on its mail trains, and sometimes does so.

It is a question, however, if the institution of third-class transportation would prove of much assistance in meeting the competition from the buslines. Third-class coaches are considered quite good enough in Great Britain and on the Continent for even members of the nobility to patronize. Indeed, the great bulk of passenger traffic over British and Continental lines is third class. But the third-class coaches that operate there are vastly superior in their equipment to even the second-class coaches on this continent. People demand a certain standard of comfort when they travel by rail, and if the third-class equipment that the western American railways purpose placing in service is no better than the third-class coaches that used to run over the Grand Trunk, they are not likely to receive much patronage.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITIORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if Mahatma Gandhi might better have been left in jail. The Indian leader shows no sign of compromise.

Hon. Leopold Macaulay has asked young lawyers to enter politics. But surely there is no lack of representatives of the legal profession in the parliaments of this country.

Toronto relief organizations are planning to educate the unemployed as a preparation for the post-depression period.

The United Counties Council had to take nineteen ballots to elect a warden. Victory after such competition should be all the sweeter to the successful aspirant, Reeve George Hooton of Cavan.

Sault Ste. Marie must keep in the public eye, even if it requires an epidemic of smallpox to turn the trick.

Wellington County councillors outdid the United Counties body in the length of time required for the selection of a warden. Thirty ballots were necessary before one of the candidates could secure sufficient support for election.

BOY CHORISTERS NOT ORNAMENTS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

No doubt the old choir boys of St. John's Church made an appearance that was pleasing, but appearance was part of the training the boys underwent.

The boys could sing both in volume and tone equal to most boy choirs of the present day. They were trained in a very strict manner, not just for appearance, but to give every ounce of their efforts to their every musical number.

Such training was enforced as to allow any boy of the some twenty-four to be singled out for solo work. The boys' voices were on numerous occasions said to send out a very sweet and clear tone voluminous enough to fill the church of which the boys were a part.

It was widely known that each boy taking his place in the choir was able to read music. Both contralto and soprano voices were among the young choristers.

Had radio been more widely known at the time when they sang as boys, they, too, may have given the people of the air, music as sweet as is produced by most boy choirs to-day.

A number of boys then singing are following this as a career, still giving to the world what is appreciated in good music. Part of the boys training was discipline; each boy while in practice or during service knowing what is meant by discipline and only such training as this can be secured best results in boys' voices.

Thus it was not for ornament or to look nice that these boys were present in St. John's Choir, but to give all that was in them for fine, sweet, clear an enjoyable music.

What To-day Means To You

"Aquarius"

If January 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., from noon to 2 p.m., and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

History, in some form or other, will repeat itself on this date, and you will be confronted with an old annoyance or problem. Those in poor or failing health will find a change for the better. In the business world, there will be a tendency to slack and drift.

The child born on this January 29th will have enough vanity, or righteous pride, to make it wish to be "somebody" in this world, and enough energy to make it work for its goal. It will have a solid, but brilliant mind, and will be "slow but sure."

The strength of your character lies in the sweetness and sincerity of your smile, and not in the stiffness of your back. You are a diplomatic persuader, but a poor forcer. You use passive methods for getting your way, but they are none the less effective, and you are usually a popular victor, with many friends, and few, if any, enemies. You are a little inclined, however, to pass the buck, if it is to your benefit to do so. It is difficult for you to forgo popularity or admiration, even for the sake of squaring the other fellow. You are a better fair weather companion, than you are in times when self-sacrifice, and red-blooded fighting are needed.

You will always shine more in a social than a business way. If you be a man, much of your material success will be attributable to you being a good mixer, and to the assistance and generosity of your friends. You are not loath to take advantage of a "pull," or to throw yourself with those who can do you good. You are always ready, however, to help another, if you can do so, without hurting your own position or pocket-book.

You have a vivid imagination, one which needs control, however, or it will carry you astray. You have brain storm many of which are truly brilliant in their conception, but most of them need to be "slept upon before acted upon.

FOUR MEN WOUNDED

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (CP)—In a spectacular gun battle that followed the attempted robbery of the Baskin Clothing store on Michigan boulevard, four men were wounded yesterday and the two Negro hold-up men were captured.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

When she reached New York she found the streets of the city wearing their empty holiday air. As her taxi whirled downtown, it passed churches out of which streamed those who had come to worship in memory of the Babe of Bethlehem. There were wreaths tied with red ribbons in the shop windows, and such pedestrians as there were had their arms heaped high with gifts.

When she reached the old house, there was no one to greet her. The little Scotch dog and the primrose cat had been left in care of the Barlows. Theday was dull and no sun shone through the honey-colored curtains. The taxi driver had set her bags down in the middle of the floor. The big room was chilly, the fireplace black. And she had come away from a house that was all glow and color and laughter—for what?

Because two men had wanted to marry her!

No—no—that wasn't the reason. She had come because of Rickey. She had wanted to hide her head. It was better to be here—alone, than there with things that made her shudder and shiver! She wanted to cry, but she wouldn't. What good would it do to weep and wail? The way to get things out of life was to march with one's head up. Of course that wasn't modern philosophy. One did not according to that, march. One stumbled along, and finally fell by the wayside.

Well, she wouldn't, she wouldn't, she wouldn't! She found herself making a time of it she went about building a fire, lighting her lamps against the dullness, and finally running down to ask the landlady if there were any letters.

There were, Mrs. Leonardi emphasized not only letters but boxes and bundles. She brought them out, more than she could carry. "Tommaso shall take them up for you. We did not know you would be here. We are having a Christmas—I am cooking the dinner."

It was very evident from the pungent odors that the dinner was cooking. Virginia had eaten nothing but fruit and coffee since the day before, and the fragrances were tempting. She had not thought of her own Christmas dinner—she had thought of nothing except to get away from Derekdale.

Mrs. Leonardi going up the stairs asked hospitably, "And you? Will you come and have some Christmas withus? We are very plain. But there is plenty."

Virginia, knowing that about her landlady's board would be all the cousins and the aunts and the uncles and the grandfathers of the Leonardis, declined the invitation. "It's dear of you to ask me—but I have other plans."

She was not sure what those plans might be, but they were slowly crystallizing. Among the boxes was a big one from her father and mother. It was filled with tropical fruits and cans and bottles and boxes of dates and olives and figs and apricots and prunes stuffed with nuts, and strange delicious candies. "For my darlings," was the card in her mother's fine script.

Well, she would make her Christmas! She would set her tables and light her candles and have a feast, and she would forget Derekdale and the great banqueting hall—and the women all shine and glitter, and the men holding their glasses high—!

She looked at the clock. It was just noon. She had left Derekdale at nine. It did not seem possible that so much could have happened in three hours. Yet how long the hours seemed since she had seen Michael.

She found herself running up the stairs. When she reached the top floor she knocked at Mrs. Barlow's door. When the little woman opened it, she gave a cry of delight. 'Miss Oliphant! Roger, it is Miss Virginia!"

There was a whirlwind of welcome—the child in her arms, the little dog wild with excitement, the little cat waving an ecstatic plume of a tail. "What made you come back," what made you come back?" little Roger was demanding.

"To ask you all to Christmas dinner."

"But we're having one—"

"Now?"

"In a minute. It's cooking. Isn't it, Mother?"

"Yes. Perhaps Miss Oliphant will share it."

"I will, if you'll come to my party to-night?"

"Oh—are you going to have a party?"

"Yes, for you and for me and for your mother, and Weenie and Prim, and Miss Mary Lee Logan, if we can get her."

Mrs. Barlow said, with flushed cheeks, "Our dinner is very simple, Miss Oliphant."

"It's a lovely dinner," Roger's voice was eager, "you told me so yourself, mother."

She smiled at him. "It's lovely because we make it so. You see, Miss Oliphant, there isn't a turkey, because it takes such a big family to eat a turkey, and it isn't a chicken because a chicken is so extravagant for two. But it's a wonderful bird all made of beef and its got stuffing and skewers for drumsticks, and we are going to stick cranberries on them—and every time we open the oven—"

Roger took up the tale, 'Every time we open the oven we baste it with butter and I do it myself, Miss Virginia. You let me show you—and you'll see it."

It was delightful to watch them playing the game, the little mother and her child, making a feast out of simple food. "There's pleanty for everybody," Roger was saying, "for Prim and Weenie and you—"

The two women talked alone for a moment before the meal was served. "I came back unexpectedly," Virginia said, "and I thought it would be fun to have a party—at supper time. I'll have a tree—"

"I had trimmed a tiny one for the child," Mrs. Barlow said, "it was to be a surprise. But yours will be better."

"We'll have both of them."

So they ate their dinner and had the little tree, and the presents which Virginia and Rickey had left with Mrs. Barlow for herself and the child. And after dinner Roger and Virginia opened the window and fed the pigeons on the roof. "I have to do it every day now," the child told her, "since the people moved out next door."

"Do you mean," Virginia asked him, "that they've given up their rooms?"

"Yes, haven't they, Mother?"

Mrs. Barlow who was clearing the table said, "They moved two days ago."

"Has Mrs. Leonardi the key?"

"Yes."

Nothing more was said about it, but in the back of Virginia's mind as she went downstairs to prepare for the party was the thought of those upper rooms. A place for a bed in one and a desk in the other! And with Rickey away, why not?

She called up Mary Lee and found her at home. 'Tis be over at once," was the rapturous response to the invitation, "I'm bored to death. And where's Rickey?"

"Making love to Marty Van Duyne? Has something happened? And why are you back so soon?"

"I'll tell you later," Virginia hung up the receiver, and pending Mary Lee's arrival, sallied forth to the delicatessen at the corner. It was open and furnished all the food she would need for a real collation. She bought salad and sliced breast of turkey, a frosted cake. There would be hot chocolate and hot biscuits—she would like to make biscuits. She wanted to be busy—busy—! She also found a fat fir tree and some glittering things to put on it. She wondered if she were being extravagant. Well, if so, she would pay the piper.

When she got back she met Mary Lee on the doorstep, and the two went in with their parcels together. Mary Lee was pale and there were dark circles under her eyes. "Oh, Jinny, Jinny," she said, "if you could know how I've wanted you."

Virginia's arms went about her. She knew that Mary Lee wanted Rickey, as she herself wanted—Michael.

They busied themselves for a time with their holiday preparations, then as the afternoon waned, sat down by the fire to rest. "Tell me all about it, Jinny," Mary Lee said, "tell me about—Rickey—"

"He's going on a yachting trip—to Florida—"

Mary Lee's voice had a note of fear in it. "Whose yacht?"

"The Van Duynes'."

Mary Lee flung up her hands. "I knew it," she cried with a touch of wildness, "and she'll make him unhappy."

Virginia said, with a touch of sternness, "Perhaps he needs—unhappiness—"

Mary Lee stared at her, "What do you mean?"

"I can't tell you everything—only Rickey isn't being a good sport. He ought to stay here and work."

"Did you tell him that?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"That he would get atmosphere, and he was going to write about Marty Van Duyne."

"What's he done with the other book?"

"Burning Beauty?"

"Yes."

"He—isn't going on with it." Virginia's voice was very low, her hands were clasped tightly in her lap. Mary Lee reached forward and laid her own hand on the clasped ones of her friend. "Can't you tell me?"

"I wish I could, Mary Lee—but I can't—"

She went on to speak of her plans. "I'm going to sublet these rooms if I can and take the two next to Mrs. Barlow."

Mary Lee was incredulous, "But they aren't comfortable."

"They'll do well enough for me, and I shall have Roger and his mother for company."

"It seems a shame to have you leave all this." Then, after a moment, "If you're hard up for money, why not let me help?"

Virginia's eyes were wet. "You're a darling, but I can't borrow. And I want the rooms upstairs because I don't want people—to know—where I am—"

Mary Lee stared at her, "You're going to hide? From whom?"

"Tony—Michael McMillan. I shan't see anybody—except you and the Barlows—"

"Most women would jump at the chance of marrying Tony Bleecker."

"Because he's rich?"

"No, because he's great fun and good-looking. And you'd have a marvelous life as mistress of Derekdale."

There it was again—mistress of Derekdale. Virginia felt once more that shiver of apprehension. Well, no one could make her do it. No one!

"If it wasn't that I cared for Rickey," Mary Lee stated, "I'd try to cut you out—" she stopped, and went on presently with quick breath— 'But I do—care for Rickey. And when Marty Van Duyne gets through with him I intend to make a man of him."

Virginia's cheeks were flushed, 'I wouldn't want a man if he loved another woman.'"

"I know," said Mary Lee, simply, 'but I haven't your pride, Jinny, and Rickey is worth saving."

Virginia sat gazing into the fire, giving herself up for the moment to a mood of deep depression. What hope was there for Mary Lee's happiness. Rickey had no thought of wanting her. The things that Rickey wanted were illusions will-o'-the-wisp pursuit and mad worship.

She roused herself presently, and got ready for her guests, and when Roger and his mother came down, there was the tree shinging between great windows and hung with gold and silver balls, and red and green and blue and purple lights, and with festoons of tinsel from its tip to the ends of its branches.

And under the tree were all the things that Mary Lee had brought, and that Virginia had bought, and little Roger was speechless with content.

Mary Lee played Santa Claus, having pinned herself into a costume of red crepe paper and white cotton from a druggist's package into some semblance of the jolly saint. She was extremely funny, and so feverishly gay that no one would have guessed that her heart was broken.

Virginia had bought a lot of amusing toys—things that you wound up and which ran around the floor, animals that danced, a clown on a stick whose bells rang when you pulled a string.

And it was while Mary Lee was ringin all the bells of the grinning clown, that the door opened and some one came in. No one heard, but the little dog! There was a rush and a bark; then Jinny cried sharply, 'Rickey!"

The toy dropped from Mary Lee's hand, and she stood in her grotesque costume as still as a statue, staring. For Virginia was in her brother's arms, and Rickey was saying over and over, "I had to come, Jinny. I had to come."

It was some time before he saw Mary Lee, but then he said, "By jinks, you're pretty. You make me think of a nice fat robin." He kissed her on the cheek in brotherly fashion—and the morning stars sang for Mary Lee!

Little Roger piped, "Have you come to supper?"

And Rickey said, "I've come to anything."

His hand was on his sister's shoulder. "I couldn't think of eating Christmas dinner with anyone but you, Jinny. I'm going back on the nine o'clock train. That will get me to Derekdale in time for the dance at the country club."

And when he said that, Mary Lee's stars were silent!

Yet it was something to have him here, even though she knew that his wild spirits came from his absorption in another woman. He set all of the mechanical toys going, he tied a bow of gold tinsel around the neck of the primrose cat, he put a foolscap on Weenie of red paper, and he whistled a tune and danced with Mary Lee.

And when they sat down at last to supper, he made Mary Lee sing the little Chinese song for him. And as the glasses tinkled out the last tragic note, he said, "You're by way of being a great artist, Mary Lee. Only an artist can do a little thing like that with such perfection. It's like a carving in old ivory, or a painting on a fine old fan."

Mary Lee glowed under his praise. She was sitting beside him, and presently she said, very low, "Why go back to-night?"

'I must go."

'But we want you here."

'It's my destiny to go. I feel it, Mary Lee. I'm being swept on and on by something stronger than myself."

Mary Lee suddenly saw red. 'Are you being swept on by—your Marty?"

'She isn't mine—yet—"

She stared at him in amazement. 'You don't think for a moment she will ever be yours?"

"Why not?"

'But, Rickey, the nerve of you, asking her to share your attic!"

'Who's asking her to share an attic? And you needn't think you can irri ate me by saying things like that. I'm to sure of Marty. It's the first time any man has dared fling a challenge at her." Rickey paused, then went on fervently, "I'm trying to show her that money doesn't make a world."

Mary Lee was scornful. "Money does make a world, Rickey, and you know it. You wouldn't look at Marty Van Duyne if she didn't have everything to set off her beauty."

"You're right in a way," he admitted after a moment, "but what I am telling her is that she needs some things money can't buy. I can give them to her, and Tony Bleecker can't."

"Shall you write when you are on the high seas?"

"There won't be any high seas."

"You haven't answered my question."

"Well, I shall work a bit. But I expect to absorb ideas and get atmosphere."

"Has Virginia told you that she is moving upstairs?"

'Yes."

"And are you willing?"

He spoke with some heat, "My dear girl, what else can I be? Jinny has a mind of her own."

Mary Lee gave him a long look, 'I'd hate to tell you what I think of you."

He shrugged his shoulders, "nothing pleasant, I fancy."

"You're a selfish pig.'

'Genius is always selfish."

"Genius!" she threw up her hands. "Oh, I thought that once, but I'm learning a lot. And one thing I have learned is that there's a difference between talent and genius. I thought I had a voice. But what I have is just a little pipe."

This was a tragic Mary Lee, the Mary Lee of the Chinese song. Rickey found himself suddenly sympathetic, 'You're better than you think. I told you that a minute ago."

"I know—but I don't want fame—I want—happiness—Rickey."

'All of us want happiness. I want it—not the little satisfactions—but the big things. And I intend to have it—. Something transcendent—being lifted above—everything."

He was gazing into space, his eyes lighted. Mary Lee laid her hand on his arm, "Rickey—if your wings are ever broken, come back—to me."

He looked down at her, 'My wings broken? What do you mean?"

"Only that when you cannot fly in the upper air, you can flap along beside me." She laughed a bit ruefully. 'I wonder if you catch my idea?"

"I'm not sure," doubtfully, and she let it go at that.

Rickey had only a moment alone with his sister before he left, "I shan't see you again, Jinny, before I go. And you mustn't think me a selfish pig. It's only that things are too strong for me—"

"You mean your feeling for Miss Van Duyne?"

NEW YORK LIST CONTINUES DROP

Continued Selling of Government Issues in Bond Department is Dispiriting Influence.

SOME LIGHT RALLIES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (C.P.).—The latest decline in share values began a mere drop in to-day's stock market.

Continued selling of Government issues in the bond department, together with the impending Bethlehem Steel earnings report, due after the close of the market, were dispiriting influences.

Strength of the mail order shares, together with short covering in some of the professional trading favorites by bears, tended to rally the list at times. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck sold up about 2 points, and Auburn, Worthington and General Railway Signal gained about as much. Electric Power and Light firmed. Wabash lost 2 points in response to preferred dividend, and Chesapeake Corporation, St. Louis South-Western and Lambert lost about 2. Shares off a point or so included the American Tobacco Shares, American Telephone, Air Reduction, McKeesport, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Paramount and Westinghouse. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem held barely steady.

BRITAIN CONTINUES AVIATION RESEARCH

Development of Oil-Consuming Aeroplane Engines Being Vigorously Carried Out.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Steadily research in British laboratories is leading to an event which will revolutionize aviation, the production of a successful "compression-ignition" engine running on heavy oil instead of on volatile and inflammable spirit.

Power units of this type possess great advantages in aircraft operation, apart from the vastly diminished risk of fire. They consume less weight of fuel than a petrol engine and are far less complicated. Further, the successful engine of this type is certain to be more durable and to require less attention than even the best gasoline units.

The explosive mixtures in the cylinders is fired simply by high compression without the intervention of spark plugs connected to a magneto or accumulator. Fuel economy in any kind of internal combustion engine depends to a large extent on the pressure at which the mixture is fired and the "compression-ignition" unit is accordingly less voracious of fuel than a petrol motor. The result is that, although the oil engine is inevitably heavier than the petrol-consuming engine, it is much more economical on long flights. It is generally estimated that, employing "compression-ignition" motors of weights which could be used in the present state of knowledge, an aeroplane would become more economical than a petrol-burning craft of equivalent horsepower after the first 10 hours of flight.

In this way the effective range of aircraft may be considerably increased without adding to the laden weight of the machine at the moment of ascent.

Within the last few days details have been revealed of work done under Air Ministry instructions in the conversion of certain types of Rolls-Royce aero engines to "compression-ignition" working. Experts at the Royal Aircraft Establishment Farnborough, have designed special component parts for a "Condor" 650 horse-power unit, and, in its new guise, the engine has maintained steady and economical output of power. A second engine, in form a converted "F" type unit (developing in its moral petrol-burning shape about 500 horse-power) is being fitted with special parts for oil-burning and has just begun test running.

PREMIER ACTS IN WEAVERS' STRIKE.

LONDON, Jan. 29 (C.P.).—Premier Ramsay MacDonald to-day conferred with representatives of Lancashire mill-owners, whose industry is at a standstill because of a lockout against 260,000 weavers who refused to accept the so-called more looms per weaver system. Afterward he talked with representatives of the workers, and this evening there was to be a further conference.

BENNETT AND MACNIDER TRAVEL TOGETHER.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 29.—(C.P.)—Conversations on the proposed St. Lawrence waterway project are likely to take place in the course of the journey to Washington of Premier R. B. Bennett. Col. Handford MacNider, United States' Minister, is planning to depart for the American Capitol this afternoon on the same train with the Prime Minister and it is understood the subject will be discussed on the trip.

CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRIES ARE BRIGHTEST FACTOR IN CANADIAN BUSINESS SITUATION AT PRESENT

gas-filled shaft in the hope that still others might be found alive.

Triumphant shouts went up from the crowd lingering about the shaft in the almost vain hope that some would be rescued alive.

Earlier in the night the rescue workers and Albert C. Dalley, State mine inspector, had expressed the belief that all those in the shaft at the time of the explosion were dead.

The cause of the blast could not be determined immediately. Veteran miners expressed belief it was a gas explosion. First reports were that powder being carried into the mine for firing shots had exploded. The rescue crews, however, said ten boxes of powder were found intact.

Dalley said there would be no investigation of the blast until all bodies had been recovered. Dalley arrived from Indianapolis a few hours after the catastrophe and aided in organizing the rescue work.

Some of the bodies brought to the surface were badly mangled. Others were badly charred. Still others bore no marks, indicating poisonous gas, following the explosion, had taken toll.

Identification of the victims proceeded slowly this morning. Many of the bodies were so badly burned and disfigured, a check of the dead was made difficult.

The men who were rescued this morning had barricaded themselves in an entry off one of the main corridors.

MINISTER HOLDS BRIGHT PROSPECT FOR THE FUTURE

Senator Robertson Addresses Members of the Toronto Empire Club.

OPTIMISM JUSTIFIED.

TORONTO, Ont., January 29 (C.P.). — "Winter is passing, and we are coming into the spring better off, in the main, than a year ago," stated Senator the Hon. Gideon D. Robertson, Dominion Minister of Labor, in an address to the Empire Club here to-day.

Coupled with his summary of outstanding factors which he considered justified optimism as to the employment outlook in the Dominion, Senator Robertson had much to say about the expression in many parts of the Dominion of a feeling of uneasiness.

"During the past year and a half there has been a growing unrest in the minds of many people who are unemployed or are in fear of losing their employment," he said. "This is inevitable.

"I assure you there is no reason to be unduly concerned about this unrest," Senator Robertson said. "The common sense of the Canadian people continues to exist. The large proportion of Canadians have a substantial interest in either property or investment. They are not going to follow the phantom. They will not be misled by those who have no stake in the country."

He quoted a letter from an "economic freedom league" and declared the organization existed only on paper. "I think the Canadian people are too sane to pay any attention to this sort of agitation," he said.

CURB LEADERS HOLD STEADY

No Attempt Made So Far to Depress Prices on Toronto Exchange.

FRACTIONAL GAINS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29.—Toronto Stock Exchange market, after declining day by day the first half of the week, firmed somewhat this morning. Such firmness was rather in the nature of a fall off in sales and deliverance from further general fractional recessions than in active buying leading to advances.

Leaders were holding better to-day, at or slightly above where they had left off last night. Locally there has been no attempt to depress prices, nor on the other hand to thrust stock upward, other than the odd individual issue in which peculiar developments favor bullis operators.

Nickel, Brazilian, C.P.R., Dominion Stores, Massey Harris were all selling approximately ¼ point higher this morning Canadian Dredge, the oils, Walkers held about the same as last night. Atlantic Sugar eased from yesterday's high of 25. Ford was priced at 23 and Steel of Canada at 38½.

General Trade on Stock Markets Improving Slowly Over Week Jan. 12-17.

GOODERHAM ADDRESS.

Such new figures and business trends as came to light last week reveal little that might tend to change the general course of business in the immediate future. It may also be added that nothing is anticipated in the next few weeks which would be likely to make this statement inapplicable a fortnight from now. Everyone seems to be waiting for the next man to make the first move; hence business pursues a course of hesitation that is variable only as seasonal influences happen to exercise their natural effect. The stock markets are certainly waiting for business to supply encouraging signs and business is waiting for the public to offer a greater demand for its goods and services. The one factor which has remained more or less constant, in contrast to nearly all previous depressions, is the level of wages. These have never been reduced to an extent even approximating the fall in the prices of raw materials or finished goods, security values or, to a lesser extent, rents. This fact was especially noted during the week by Mr. Gooderham, President of the Bank of Toronto, in his annual speech to shareholders.

Mr. Gooderham pointed out that business costs must be reduced consistent with the general level of prices. This would fall mainly on wages as the chief source of savings which industry could make and therefore it was stated that, "It may call for temporary concessions on the part of labor, as well as reduced profits to owners and investors, but there is reason to believe that the necessary adjustment can be worked out without lasting detriment to any class of the community." If a reduction in general wages must be faced before recovery can be assured in business it is definitely disquieting. The business conditions of the past year accompanied by great unemployment have been regarded as severe but the ability of the mass of the public to pay for such goods and services as it has has prevented the situation on this continent from being actually critical. If this steady demand is greatly reduced by wide wage reductions it can only be said that the worst in business is certainly yet to come. The thought is most unpalatable to anyone who is hopeful of a distinct economic improvement in 1931. Avoidance of it can only result from strenuous regulation of production and the successful liquidation of inventories and stocks of basic commodities and finished goods.

Probably the most encouraging factor in the Canadian business situation is the record of building permits issued by 61 cities in Canada which showed an increase in value of 30.9 per cent in December as compared with November and an increase of 5.1 per cent compared with, 1929. December's permits were valued at $15,439,964 against $11,791,478 in November and $14,688,682 in December 1929. The total for December 1930 was only once exceeded since 1920, which was in 1928 when they amounted to $16,095,160. The sluggishness of general trade is revealed in the Bureau of Statistics figures for the trade of Canada for the calendar year 1930 when the visible balance was unfavorable to the extent of $103,109,126. Imports totalled $1,008,479,479 as against exports of Canadian goods valued at $885,906,366 and foreign goods at $19,463,987.

Railway earnings are still down although car loadings have been showingan increasing trend since the beginning of the year. C.P.R. earnings in the week ending January 21, amounted to $2,701,000 compared with $3,179,000 in 1930, a decrease of $478,000. C.N.R. receipts totalled $3,120,037 against $3,995,004 in 1930, a fall of $874,967. Car loadings have increased each week since January 1, in the eastern division, week ended January 17, loadings totalled 31,434, up 2,655 cars from preceding week but down 6,130 from 1930. Western division showed 15,681 cars loaded, up 494 and down 2,728 cars from 1930. Bank clearings are still down, totalling $112,100,097 to January 22, in Montreal against $130,743,423 in 1930. Toronto clearings amounted to $104,015,633 in the week ended January 22, against $124,906 108 last year.—Phelan's.

Relatively Light Trading To-day Holds Changes Within Minor Limits.

FAVORITE GOLDS QUIET.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29. (CP)—Majority of movements showed an easier tendency on the mining market in the forenoon, though relatively light trade held changes within minor limits.

Higher-priced golds were quiet with Dome off 5 and Wright Hargreaves, Vipond and Lake Shore displaying firmness.

Sudbury Basin eased a couple to 63 and Ventures was somewhat lower at 52. International Nickel and Noranda were holding. Oils were dull, Nordon showing the only significant change at 28, off a point.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of R. J. Hawil Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

There was a good class of buying of both May and July wheat during the first fifteen minutes yesterday morning that was credited to export and seaboard houses, but after this first period the market turned dull and featureless, with a small local trade passing only. However, the market held steady and fairly firm giving consideration to the weakness in outside markets and the news generally. The price range was again narrow, being 1-8 higher to 5-8 lower. Export sales overnight are estimated at 750,000 bushels, which followed one million bushels taken Tuesday. Part of yesterday's business was understood to be for shipment at opening of navigation. Liverpool was weak, closing 5-8 to 7-8 lower, and cables stated that Russia was offering large quantities for shipment, while Australia and Argentina were also pressing wheat for sale. The Chicago market was also weak, July wheat breaking 1 1-8 cents, while May corn broke fully two cents, with only light reactions. Buenos Aires was 5-8 to 1⅝ lower yesterday afternoon. The local demand for cash wheat continued quiet. Offerings were light with spreads practically unchanged. Flour trade, both domestic and foreign, continues very quiet with just a small volume of new business being worked occasionally. The German official quota of new native wheat formillers grists during February and March has been fixed at 75 per cent, April and May at 65 per cent and June and July at 50 per cent. The present quota is 80 per cent. A private cable from Moscow stated that the Soviet Government had exported 3,500,000 tons of grains, of which about 2,250,000 tons was wheat. There are about 33 bushels to a ton. The message also stated that another 2,500,000 tons of grain are awaiting shipment. Winnipeg futures closed around the bottom, showing losses of ⅛ to 3-8 cent.

Coarse Grains.—

These markets were very dull and prices all lower, although there was not much selling pressure evident. The weakness in corn had its effect. Little local trade in oats and barley out of Eastern stocks, the cash markets generally quiet. Oats closed ¾ to 3-8 lower. Barley 5-8 to½ lower and rye 5-8 to 1¼ lower. Flax continued dull and featureless. Little or no demand from any quarter. Closing prices ⅛ lower.

Liver pool due ⅛ to ⅛ lower based on Winnipeg.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29. (CP)—Some readjustment of prices was evident on the mining market to-day. Trend was easier among the higher priced stocks, particularly interlisted issues, and irregular to slightly lower in the cheaper stocks. Volume of trade was light when compared to that enjoyed during the advance, indicating present action is merely the result of a breathing spell on the part of buyers rather than any important selling.

Ritchie was the feature of early trade, and many rumors were circulated to explain increased activity and strength. It was learned from sources close to the company that an option agreement on a large block of treasury stock was signed yesterday, but details of the arrangement and future plans are unknown as yet. The Ritchie property in Eastern Kirkland Lake, located about five miles east of Bidgood, has been opened up to a depth of 500 feet, at which level cross cutting was proceeding towards the ore-body when operations were suspended some time ago due to lack of funds.

Attention is being directed to the possibilities of the Sapawe lake gold section, 127 miles west of Fort William on the south branch of the C.N.R. Geological conditions are said to be favorable and have been reported on by leading geologists who recommend extensive development. Veins are numerous and many of the shear zones are reported to be considerably over the average width. The formation is Keewatin Greenstone with quartz porphyry intrusions, plentiful. Among the outstanding properties are the Alfreds, International Minerals, Hill Group, Jacksons, Central Canada and the Scott group. Some of these have been trenched on for over 1,000 feet with high assay results.

Abana Report.

The Abana report will be released to shareholders in the course of the next few days, and the annual general meeting called for some time next month in Montreal. The present board, elected last year, has been making every effort to clear the decks of an accumulation of problems, but has been greatly hampered by lack of co-operation among shareholders.

It is understood Dr. Graton is not yet in a position to make a definite report on his findings and recommendations regarding the Hollinger mine. So far he and his staff have been engaged in going over, almost minutely, a considerable portion of 140 miles of underground workings in the property. The present contract with Dr. Graton, it is believed, expires next June, after being in force 2 years but may be renewed for further investigation.

A special section covering Northern Manitoba mining operations has been issued by the Northern Miner. History, developments and plants of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting and Sherritt Gordon mines are surveyed, and many new photographs from the district reproduced

FRENDSHIPS FORSAKEN IN HOCKEY MASSACRE

Sticks and Fists Fly as Wholesalers and Retailers Battle For Ice Supremacy.

ENDS IN DRAW?

An alleged hockey game was perpetrated last night at the Brock right after the O.H.A. fixture. A good number of fans remained to see the Wholesalers and Retailers fight it out, and no doubt they still shudder when they think of it. It was decided to call it a 2-all draw, although there is some doubt as to whether the referee is permitted to kick in the tying goal.

Percy Harrison handled the bell—when he thought of it. However, there was no excuse for him to go up in the stand and talk to a girl for ten minutes while the slaughter was going on. And many thought his sentence of thirty days to Jack Steinkrauss for tripping him was a little stiff, still, as most of the penalties for boarding, slashing and mayhem were fifteen seconds, less five for good behaviour, it was fair enough.

To save time in alternating players, it was decided to start with both full teams on the ice. Wholesalers began with eleven men, while Retailers had ten men and a boy. In the further interests of time-saving, the three periods were run together with no waste time in between. This is a departure from the usual rules of organized hockey, but as this atrocity was neither organized nor hockey, it went over big.

"I'll give you something to remember me by," sings out Larmer, as he hands Willie LeSurf about six inches of butt end.

Beginning the spasm, Jack Spence stickhandled beautifully through the entire team only to discover the puck was at the other end of the rink. Not at all disheartened, he calmly tripped Ed Pethic and skated back, dumping the Allen brothers on the way. Gord Hill came tearing down the centre, but fortunately missed the net, as it was his own goal he was shooting at. At this time, some slight confusion was in evidence owing to there being three pucks on the ice at once. On a beautiful bit of combination—and using the hidden puck trick—Wholesalers shoved in two of the discs together, which gave them the lead, 2 to 0. As the game Retailers began to threaten, the referee decided one puck was enough for the affair. Rough play cropped up again and again, but Perce, being at heart a kindly chap, refused to prosecute—and so the massacre went on. A loud gasp went up when Gord Hill fell in a heap and a gory patch of red stained the ice around him. But it was nothing more serious than a bottle of red ink that came uncorked. Lorne Pullyblank kicked the puck near the Retailers' goal, and when it was faced off in front of the Wholesalers net, the former batter in their first.

Ted Larmer, the Millbrook professional who was imported for the occasion, was going great at this period, hitting at least three shins to any other player's one. And then came little "Willie" LeSurf. The boys treated him rough. Several times his opponents shot mean glances at him, and down he went. But he kept trying all the time—to stay on his feet!

Every once in a while, Harrison bethought himself of the bell, and then he'd ring it. Sometimes, the players heeded it, too. His cock-eyed proclivities at the face-off kept the goalies on their toes, while his inherent sense of fairness was amply proved when he personally helped the Retailers to even the score. The Foster boys, who were assistant wingmen, never quit trying, although what they were trying to do is still a mystery. Cy. Hill went like a house afire, but he could never remember just what team he was playing for. And Dormer and Grady at wing and cover-point, were dangerous at all times. In fact, it would be hard to pick out any one star on either team—indeed it would be impossible. But much might be said of the referee, Perce Harrison. However, it is over, and there is no use in being profane.

The boys hope to repeat the agony at some future date, and this is mentioned as a warning to sane spectators.

Among the players recognized were:—

Retailers: Runt Dormer, Shorty Grady, Red Allen, Beef Spence, Hank Davidson, the Foster Bros., Bull Lunn, Ad Nauseam.

Referee—Mogul Harrison.

JOSEPHINE K IS MATCHED IN RACE

quiry was informed, had been put in shape for the race. Her steering gear was damaged by one of the direct hits scored by Boatswain Karl Schmidt in Saturday's battle.

The board heard testimony before the race from C. G. Birkett executive officer of the Coast Guard cutter Sebado, who drew up alongside the Josephine K. a few hours after the shelling. He had been summoned by a radio message from the CG-145.

Birkett testified he checked the position of the rum ship by gyro compass and by radio compass, and determined that she was 11.7 miles offshore.

Suspect Ship Drifted Back

E. Gerald Shepherd, representing the British Consul questioned Birkett in an effort to establish that the Josephine K. had drifted back within the twelve mile limit before he reached the scene. The Coast Guard officer didn't think she had.

Birkett told the investigators that shortly after he boarded the rum ship he talked withA lfred Cluett whose brother, Captain William P. Cluett, was killed. The officer said he inspected Alfred Cluett's bankbook and was surprised to see a balance of only $50.

"I told him he must be a newcomer to this business" Birkett testified," and he said, 'This is my first—and last—trip'."

While Birkett was on the stand it was brought out that the CG-16 which came to the aid of the CG-145 had tied up to the Josephine K. The latter had no anchor, and the two boats drifted with the tide from 8.20 p.m. until 9.50 p.m. Saturday.

The questioning by the representative of the British Consul was designed to ascertain whether during that time the boats had drifted toward the shore. This would make an important difference in the case as, it has been indicated, the Sebago fixed the position of the Josephine K. at the time of her capture at 11.7 miles from land.

Hijackers Board Barge.

Captain Mario Landi of the barge Brooklyn, which was seized at the same time as the Josephine K, explained to the board of inquiry that 140 cases of liquor found aboard the Brooklyn were there through no fault of his. A band of twenty-five men, many of whom held their hands in apparent readiness to draw revolvers, forced him to accept the cargo when he was on his way back from an innocent trip to the ocean dumping grounds, where he had deposited a load of refuse, he testified.

The captain declared that the boarding party, coming from a speed boat, ordered him below, with his crew of two, and began loading burlap-wrapping packages from the Josephine K, on his scow. Shots interrupted that activity, he said, and straightaway the interlopers got furiously busy dropping the packages over the side into the water.

Later the hijackers on board the scow boarded the speed boat and disappeared in the darkness. Shortly thereafter, Landi said, a cutter appeared, and he and his crew of two were arrested.

TONIGHT at 8.00

Good evening, Buckingham Boosters. With the March of the Wooden Soldiers and the tramp of marching feet, another Buckingham Boosters Program swings into action with its scintillating dance hits of 1929.

Before we go any further, the sponsors of this program heartily thank the participants in our last week's contest. The response was simply amazing. Telegrams, phone calls and letters kept up a crescendo of congratulations. Thousands of Buckingham smokers from all parts of Ontario and Quebec sent in their entries. Day after day mail bags crammed to bursting point came to our headquarters until our frazzy locked like the sorting rooms of the Central Post Office. Nothing like it was ever anticipated by us. Indeed the contest proved so popular and the entries so numerous we have decided to give not one set of prizes as announced last week but three sets of prizes—one for Western Ontario, one for Central Ontario and one for Montreal District—a total of 180 prizes. This will entail much work and unfortunately prevents us from announcing the prize winners tonight. An extra staff has been engaged, however, and the winners in last week's contest will be informed of their success and received their prizes by mail.

Now for this week's contest. Tonight Buckingham Boosters have another chance to 'test their memory. As the orchestra swings into gays and gay hits of 1929 you will again be invited to guess the titles of the selections. For the benefit of those who missed the Buckingham Boosters Program last week we'll repeat the idea of the contest. Meanwhile get your pencils and paper ready.

Just before the orchestra plays each selection tonight we will read out the initial letters of each word in the title of the selection to be played. All you have to do is to listen carefully as the orchestra plays and then write down what you think is the title of the selection you have heard. For instance. Suppose the orchestra plays "I'm Sitting on Top of the World." We would read out the initial letters of each word in the title in this way: I.S.O.T.O.T.W. That's clear enough, isn't it?

Prizes of Buckingham Cigarettes, the famous sun-treated blended cigarette—will be sent to the winners of this contest. Remember three sets of prizes will be awarded—one set to Western Ontario, one to Central Ontario and one to Montreal district. Each set of prizes will consist of 500 Buckinghams to the writer of the first correct list of titles received; 300 Buckinghams to the writer of the second list; 200 Buckinghams to the next best; 100 Buckinghams each to the next five; 50 Buckinghams each to the next ten and a pouch package of 20 Buckinghams each to the next fifty. These prizes total 180 in all.

If no absolutely correct lists are sent in, prizes will be awarded to those who come nearest the correct guesses. Send your answers in to Contest Department, The Tuckett Tobacco Company Limited, Montreal or Hamilton. You must mention the station to which you are listening.

Now get your pencils and paper ready. Remember the selections played tonight will all be musical hits of 1929. The initial letters in each word of the title of the first selection are these: G.D. Listen carefully.

(Orchestra)

We'll repeat those initials—G.D. Now write down what you think is the title of the selection just played.

The next selection is a number that will appeal to every movie fan. Initials: I.I.H.A.T.P.O.Y.

(Orchestra)

Did you get those initials? Listen: I.I.H.A.T.P.O.Y. People went crazy over it in 1929.

If you've met your soul—not cell—mate you'll guess the title of this 1929 hit. Initials: L.A.S.

(Orchestra)

Initials of that selection: L.A.S. You have probably written it down by this time.

Next we have one of those twittering numbers. Initials: I.L.U.M.F.

(Orchestra)

Surely you got that one. Here are the initials again: I.L.U.M.F.

No 1929 album would be complete without this next selection. Initials: D.N.

(Orchestra)

The boys certainly sparkled in that selection. Here are the initials again: D.N. We hope you'll get the low down on this number. Initials: L.D.R. Listen!

(Orchestra)

Thank you boys. Initials of that selection: L.D.R.

Here is a number which describes every smoker of Buckingham Cigarettes. Only one initial—S.

(Orchestra)

The initial in that title is a stickler—S. Nobody can possibly miss it.

Now we have an indigo number. Initials: I.G.T.B.W.I.R. Sound the Dirge, boys.

(Orchestra)

Here are the initials once more: I.G.T.-B.W.I.R.

A touching ballad, expressing every lover's belief, is our next number. Initials: Y.W.M.F.M. Here it is:

(Orchestra)

For those who missed the initials, here they are again: Y.W.M.F.M.

1929 was an open season for hits. Here's another one. Initials: I.G.B.

(Orchestra)

Thank you, boys. Initials of that selection—I.G.B.

You can't miss the next number—a tuneful survival from 1929. Initials are L.T.

(Orchestra)

Good boys, you're all troubadours. Initials of that selection I. T.

The title of the next and last number has been often heard in the ring. Only one initial—B. Let her go, boys and no clinching.

(Orchestra)

Here is the initial again—B.

This selection, ladies and gentlemen, brings to a close another half hour of happy music provided by the Buckingham Boosters. Don't forget to send in your list of titles to Contest Department, The Tuckett Tobacco Company, Montreal or Hamilton. Please mention the name of the station to which you are listening. Next Thursday night, February 5th, from 8 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. the Buckingham Boosters will be with you again and you will have another opportunity to test your skill and memory, this time with the popular dance hits of 1928.

Before signing off let me remind you that Buckingham Boosters are happy smokers. We pack sunshine with each and every Buckingham by our exclusive violet-ray sun treatment. Let's all be filled with sunshine and smiles and always smoke Buckinghams.

24 MEMBERS OF 1929 COUNCIL DISPLACED WITHIN TWO YEARS

Many Changes in Personnel of Northumberland and Durham Council.

MEMBERSHIP NOW 41.

(By Staff Correspondent)

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—Of the thirty-nine members of the Counil of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham in 1929 only fifteen have survived the natural changes and municipal hazards of two years. They constitute the background of experience in the new council of 1931.

This is a turnover of more than 61 per cent. an obviously high percentage in the displacement of personnel within the brief span of two years.

Fifteen of the forty members of the 1930 council were missing at Tuesday night's organization meeting of this year's administration.

During the last two years the council has increased from 39 to 41 members. A year ago Manvers township regained the status that entitled it to a deputy-reeve, and Charles McNeill was elected as desk-mate of Reeve Bert Richardson. Prior to that temporary decline in the township's number of ratepayers, Fred Gray was Reeve and Bert Richardson was his deputy. Since then, they have been annual opponents for the reeveship, with Richardson the victor in the last two contests.

Cobourg Has Three

This year Cobourg has acquired a third representative in a second deputy-reeve, W. J. Corbett, who has been handsomely and conveniently accommodated by the filching of the anaemic press desk, and the press has been casually recognized and provided with a feeble table, crippled with a game leg that needs a set of splints.

Fifteen Veterans

The fifteen reeves who were members of the 1929 council and are still in office are: G. F. Annis (Darlington); W. H. Carruthers (Bowmanville); T. A. Davidson (Hamilton); W. A. Goodfellow (Brighton township); G. T. Hancock (Port Hope); N. R. Hartt (Murray); M. J. Holman (Clarke); G. H. Hooton (Cavan); R. Innis (Seymour); Gordon Parker (Alnwick); Charles Quinn (Cramahe); W. F. Rickard (Newcastle); James Smith (Haldimand); J. N. Stone (Campbellford); Dr. W. E. Wilson (Hastings).

The other members of the 1931 council are:—

Reeve W. J. Baker (Percy); W. J. Corbett (2nd deputy, Cobourg); P. R. Darling (deputy, Cramahe); W. Davey (deputy, Hamilton); J. H. Davidson (1st deputy, Cobourg); F. K. Denyes (deputy, Brighton township); W. J. Duncan (deputy, Seymour); Reeve Ira Edwards (Colborne); Reeve N. Green (Cartwright); W. T. Lightle (deputy, Hope); F. B. Lovekin (deputy, Clarke); N. A. MacColl (deputy, Campbellford); J. H. McGill (deputy, Cavan); Charles McNeill (deputy, Manvers); Reeve C. G. Mercer (Hope); A. Merrill (deputy, Percy); S. Milligan (deputy, Murray); A. L. Pascoe (deputy, Darlington); E. C. Rehder (deputy, Bowmanville); Reeve B. Richardson (Manvers); E. P. Sanders (deputy, Port Hope); Reeve Percy Stinson (Millbrook); James Walsh (deputy, Haldimand); Reeve F. R. Whitton (Brighton); Reeve W. C. Wood (South Monaghan).

The new members of the council, including Cobourg's second deputy-reeve are: Baker, Corbett, J. H. Davidson, Duncan, Edwards, Green, Lightle, Lovekin, MacColl, McGill, Mercer, Merrill, Milligan, Pascoe, Sanders and Whitton.

VICTORIA COUNTY COUNCIL PLANS RETRENCHMENT IN EXPENDITURE

Verulam Reeve Suggests Gov't Boost Gas Tax in Interests of Farmers.

RESOLUTION PASSED.

LINDSAY, January 29 (Examiner Correspondence).— Retrenchment in expenditure and slashing of grants will be the policy of the County Council of Victoria County in session this week in Lindsay. It was whispered in the corridors of the Court House that the annual grant of $1,500 to the Lindsay Central Fair would be trimmed, and this caused the directorate some concern. Yesterday a deputation in the interests of the Exhibition waited on the Council and urged that the usual grant b voted this year. The Finance Committee of the Council will convene on Friday and the action of the Council on this particular grant is awaited with interest.

Jasper Forman, Reeve of Verulam Township, introduced a resolution which was adopted asking the Government to place a higher tax on gasoline in the interests of farmers. He pointed out in his resolution that half the cost of roads was falling on property owners when the motor traffic was getting all the use from them. The Department of Public Highways, he claimed, should bear more of the cost of paving, the money to be raised by a higher gasoline tax. Copies of this resolution which was adopted, will be sent to other County Councils.

farm and are never shod. Live stock is not well cared for in that country in the winter as it is in Canada. A large number of sheep are raised, being driven to market on foot. Generally speaking farming conditions in England are similar to existing conditions in Ontario.

"Sell where you have a market," was the theme of J. R. Smith's remarks, when called upon to speak. Mr. Smith, who is the manager of the Bank of Montreal at Campbellford, advised the farmers not to hold their produce but to sell as soon as possible. He pointed out that this was the system employed by the western farmers who generally did better by following this method.

A. G. Thompson, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce confined his talk to the urging of the establishment of canning factories in the district, advising the farmers to grow peas, corn and tomatoes for that purpose. He thought that it would diversify farming besides adding to the revenue of the farmer, pointing out that in Prince Edward county more than $1,000,000 was paid to farmers last year by the canning factories.

Milk Contest

J. A. Murray, dairy instructor for the district, also spoke of the milk per acre contest, stressing the fact that an as experiment it was decidedly a success and stating that it would be continued next year, asking the farmers for any suggestions, which would be welcome.

H. N. Carr, manager of the Trent Valley Creamery, spoke on the price of dairy produce, reviewing the circumstances leading to the drop in butter prices. These causes had been removed by the emergency tariff bill placing a tax of eight cents a pound on imported butter. In spite of the fact that in January there was 10,000,000 pounds more butter in storage than last year, he thought that last year's large quantities came from the antipodes and that this year they will be out with the result that better prices should prevail.

Will You Need an Income of $100 a Month?

Some one has said that the sweetest words in the English language are "Enclosed please find cheque."

How would you like to have $100 a month mailed to you regularly after you reach age, say 50, 55 or 60, whichever you select? You would like to have it now, perhaps, and if you have the capital sum needed to buy such an income the Canada Life will guarantee it to you at once. But if you haven't the capital you can arrange now that you will have that income later on.

Suppose you are earning $160 a month—it may be $150, $200, or more. Whatever it is, there is a part of that income you want continued.

If you were not here, how much would continue? That is, how much of your income would go on, no matter if you earned a salary or drew pay or not? For many people the answer would have to be: "Not very much!"

It takes $20,000 capital well invested to bring in $100 a month. Under the Canada Life plan you do not need to save $20,000 in order to make sure of an income of $100 a month.

The Canada Life, with $175,000,000 of well-invested assets, will guarantee to continue that part of your income you must have later on for living expenses, say $100 a month. And the Canada Life may have to start the income going at any time to you or your family. There are no years of waiting if the need should come suddenly. That is, should you become totally disabled or should you die.

How you can provide such an income is told in our booklet, "Getting the Income You Want." Why not send for it now stitute for the Blind was made by William Gustor, of Toronto, representative of that Institute. He declared that last year the Institute had spent $412 on the blind of this county, who number 46. The province would give dollar for dollar with the county, he said. His request was left over to the June session.

A report of the activities of the Children'sAid Society was submitetd by John Edgar, superintendent. He asked for a continuation of the county's grant to the society and pointed that owing to present economic conditions the Society's expenses were increasing rather than diminishing.

Pension Board Re-Appointed.

Considerable discussion over the appointment of members to the Old Age Pension Board, but after nearly all members of the Council had expressed their views the old board was unanimously re-appointed.

Reeve Humphries opened the discussion when he requested that he be given the cost of administrating the board. Clerk Elliott began an audit of his accounts to secure the information, but before he had the audit completed Reeve Humphries declared that he would be satisfied to have the information later.

Warden Tanner moved that Reeves Breckenridge, Hawthorne, McIntosh, Fitzgerald and himself compose the Old Age Pension Board. This would leave of ex-Wardens H B. Rye and John Clark.

Reeve Leahy took the opposite view, maintaining that the old Board should be re-appointed. "We can't pick a better Board in the county." he said. "The only real reason anyone can find fault with the old Board is that perhaps it has done its work a little too well."

"There are a few members trying to gratify own desires," stated Reeve Parker, in affirming that the old Board should be re-appointed. "I don't believe in putting them out to gratify a little selfish greed."

"I am just as ready and willing to acknowledge the good work accomplished by the Board as anyone," said Warden Tanner. "I will be the last one to cast any reproach on the men who have been left home at election time, but give honor to whom honor is due. I believe the Board should be composed of present members of the Council."

Ex-Warden Hawthorne, himself a member of the board, reviewed the board's work and stated that it deserved the full confidence of the council. Reeve Coons also stated that in his opinion the board was conscientiously fulfilling its duties Clerk Elliott interjected that the big work of the board was all done, but that the experience of the board's members was invaluable. Reeve McIntyre stated his belief that those representing the people should compose the board, but that at the present time he was against any change in its membership.

Warden Tanner withdrew his motion and the old board is composed of H. B. Rye, John Clarke, Reeves Hawthorne, Breckenbridge,

The committees were struck as follows: County Property, all members, with Deputy-Reeve A. Huston, chairman.

Roads and Bridges—All members with Reeve Adam Humphries chairman.

Schools—All members with Reeve Austin Jackson chairman.

HORSE INJURED AS RESULT OF RUNAWAY

Team Owned By Millbrook Bakery Startled By Sliding Sleigh.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 29 (Examiner Correspondence)—A runaway team, belonging to the Millbrook Bakery, headed off on King street late Monday afternoon, plunged into the side plate glass window at the entrance to the Chevrolet showrooms, one horse being cut and requiring five stitches in its leg following the accident.

The team was startled by the sleigh running forward on the ice and touching their heels, just as the driver, George Sayless, had finished unhitching them, and had reached for their covering blankets, preparatory to leading them to the stable for the night. Had the horses rounded the corner onto Tupper street before being headed off, it is probable an accident might have been averted.

BROOKMIRE SAYS CANADIAN BUSINESS WILL FORGE AHEAD

Industrial Conditions in Dominion Not as Seriously Affected as United States.

YOUNGER COUNTRY.

"Looking back on the year 1930, we conclude" says the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., "that industrial conditions in Canada were not as severely affected by the present world-wide depression as they were in the United States. On first thought this appears surprising, since Canada depends more largely on outside sources for a market than does the United States. But Canada is younger country and the long-time rate of growth is fast. Comparisons of actual 1930 results with those of 1929 make a more favorable showing in Canada than in countries where developments have reached a higher state and the long-time rate of growth is slower.

"Mining activity in Canada during 1930 made a particularly encouraging showing. The Dominion is making the best of the natural advantages she possesses, particularly in the metallic mineral division of the mining industry. In spite of much lower prices for most mineral products, the output of all minerals in Canada for 1930 amounted to approximately $277,000,000, a decline of only 11 percent in value from 1929. The production of both copper and zinc on a quantity basis was greater than in any previous year and the output of gold, petroleum, and natural gas exceeded 1929 both on a volume and a value basis. Of the six important metallic minerals, for which the Dominion Bureau furnishes monthly production statistics, output in the late months was still running substantially ahead of the corresponding months of 1929. The minerals showing gains were gold, silver, nickel, copper and zinc. Production of lead in the latter months of the year was somewhat behind 1929. Substantial gains were still being shown in the output of petroleum and natural gas while recessions were shown in the minerals used for building, such as asbestos, cement, clay products and lime.

"Industrial employment conditions were more satisfactory in Canada at the end of 1930 than in the United States. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported manufacturing employment on December 1st as 10.8 per cent lower than a year earlier. The decline in the States as of December 15th amounted to 18.3 per cent. The recession in Canadian employment in all industries was even less than that in manufacturing, being reported at only 8.9 per cent, under 1929. There was an actual increase in employment for construction and maintenance owing to increased activity in railway and highway building. On the unfavorable side was a decline of 65.5 per cent in employment in the agricultural implement industry. This is a direct relection of distressed conditions in the farming section, owing largely to the prevailing low level of wheat prices.

"Some idea of the seriousness of the decline in wheat may be had by comparing the value of the crop with the value of minerals produced. In 1929 the wheat crop was valued at $320,000,000 and the output of minerals at $311,000,000. In 1930 the wheat crop was estimated to be worth $277,000,000. A similar comparison shows the 1929 wheat crop to have been 55 per cent. as great in value as total construction contracts awarded, while the 1930 crop was valued at only 38 per cent as much as the value of construction contracts awarded.

"Low prevailing prices for wheat and more than an adequate supply throughout the world, not to mention an expected large increase in acreage for Russia, becloud the outlook for Canadian farmers in 1931. But the situation is at least gaining some relief from outside sources. Operations of the Grain Stabilization Board in the United States have put wheat on a domestic basis, giving Canada the benefit of export markets in recent months. Stocks of wheat in Canada on December 26th amounted to approximately 218,000,000 bushels, a decline of 4.6 per cent from the previous year, in spite of a much larger crop.

"Canada must await revival in other countries before business can resume a sharp upward trend. But an early end to the depression would find the Dominion in shape to forge ahead. Complete absence of banking failures in 1930 is in sharp contrast with an all-time high record in the United States."

MEDICAL EXPERT DENIES COSMIC RAYS AFFECT CANCER GROWTH

Dr. Francis Carter Wood Dismisses Irish Scientist's Theory as "Purely Phantasy."

NO FOUNDATION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Cosmic rays do not seem to prevent cancer in human beings.

This is shown by Dr. Francis Carter Wood, one of the most eminent cancer research workers in this country, in a leading editorial in the first issue of the American Journal of Cancer, the organ of the American Society for Cancer Research and Cancer Control.

Paints Dark Picture

Dr. Woods discusses and makes reply to a dark situation pictured by Professor John Joly, of Trinity College, Dublin, a scientist, who startled the lay and the scientific world by a new concept. Joly said, the cosmic rays, being ultra-x-rays, might be presumed to act as inhibitors of cancer.

Dr. Joly intimates that in recent centuries this earth, together with the regular solar system, has moved into a region of the universe in which cosmic radiations are fewer than formerly. So, nature's check upon cancer through cosmic rays has diminished, and cancer is on the increase in this world, he holds.

No Evidence, Reply

New Dr. Wood refutes such an interpretation with consummate skill. He replies to Dr. Joly thus:

"There is not the slightest evidence that the cosmic rays were abundant in the past. There is not the slightest reason for holding that there is an alarming increase of cancer. And, every user of x-ray and radium knows many cancers cannot be cured by radiation.

"The assumed relation between cosmic rays and cancer can be gently dismissed as pure phantasy."

Four Blazes in Night Keep Firemen Busy

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29. — Four fires, believed to be of incendiary origin, last night gave firemen a merry battle, resulted in serious injuries to one of the fire fighters and set detectives on a search for fire bug. Three of the outbreaks were in vacant houses while the fourth was in a home used partly as an office. While fighting one of the first blazes Fireman Frank Reynolds fell from a signboard and suffered a fractured spine. Damage was estimated at $3,500.

Mountie Plays Hero Rescues Lady Skiiers

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 29. — Lady Clark, wife of the British High Commissioner, and Mrs. Gillies, wife of Col. A. B. Gillies, were rescued by Constable F. Stiff of the Royal Canadian Mounted police yesterday when ice in Mackay's Lake, Richcliffe, over which they were skiing, gave under their weight.

Mrs. Gillies was thrown into the water and her cries for help brought the constable, who, despite the cold weather, plunged into the lake up to his waist in rescuing her. Neither Lady Clark nor Mrs Gillies suffered any ill effects.

ROYAL WELCOME GIVEN PRINCES BY BERMUDANS

Two Brothers Guests of Honor at Reception in Hamilton.

PLAY 18 HOLES OF GOLF.

Visitors Break Police Lines to Take Pictures—Veterans Inspected.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, January 29 (C.P.). — The Prince of Wales and his brother George, already delayed by storms, sailed south-westward today over rough seas toward Havana, the next port of call on their trip to Latin America, after a day spent in golf and recreation.

Residents and the winter colony here crowded the dock just before twilight last night to bid the liner Oropesa, which brought them from Spain, farewell as it lifted anchor and rode out into the Gulf Stream with the British heir, grown to attractive mature manhood since Bermuda saw him last eleven years ago.

Some visitors broke through the police lines to take pictures of the Prince, who is adding to his cognomen, "the most eligible bachelor in the world," that of "Britain's greatest travelling salesman." The two brothers' trip to South America, which will culminate with the inauguration of the British Trade Exposition in Buenos Aires in March, generally is considered an attempt to sell British goodwill in undeveloped South American markets.

Enjoy Round of Golf.

The two Princes went directly from their boat yesterday for eighteen holes of golf on the Tuckerstown Links, the Prince of Wales' opponent being Eldon Trimingham, yachtsman and sportsman. In accordance with royal privilege no scores were announced, but Trimingham said they were evenly matched. Prince George played with one of the equerries.

After the golf the two brothers changed from flannels into blue pin stripe suits, and hurried, two hours late, to a reception at Government House, to which more than 900 guests had been invited. At the Hamilton waterfront they inspected war veterans. Wherever they went the crowds gave them an enthusiastic reception, particularly as they boarded a tender for the return to the Oropesa.

The Oropesa will arrive at Havana probably on Sunday, remain there only an hour or so—the shortness of time and other considerations preventing the Princes from going ashore—and proceed to Jamaica and the Canal Zone, from where they will go on down the west coast to Chile.

Canada's expenditures for new highways last year were $7,975,896 greater than in 1929.

The Chamber of Commerce appeals alike to the spirit of the altruistic service and enlightened self-interests.

BIG DECREASE IN ACCIDENTS

Sydney, N. S. Jan. 29.—Accidents in the Sydney steel plant have decreased from 592 ten years ago to 60 for the year just closed, according to a statement issued by the company which affirms that while the figures deal with frequency rate of accidents only, there has been a marked decrease in severity rate as well. The marked improvement is attributed jointly to physical safeguards and increased vigilance on the part of employees.

The 60 accidents occuring in 1930 represent the risk index for the year of slightly more than three quarters of a million man-days worked, and the 592 mishaps in 1920 punctuated an employment total of one million and a quarter man-days. In 1921 accidents dropped to 376, and in 1924, when fewer man-days were worked than in 1930, the accident rate was 351. This year's results, when accidents fell below the hundred mark for the first time, indicated a greater improvement than in any previous year.

The foundry performance with respect to accident prevention is especially noteworthy. Among the approximately 65 man employed in the hazardous foundry work, there has not been a single accident in the last four and one-half years.

BLAME OFFICERS IN SHIP TROUBLE

Captain and His Executives to be Retired on Half Pay Over Episode.

SENTENCES LIGHTENED.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—After a thorough investigation the Board of Admiralty found with regret that the content among the ship's company, and the usual sympathy between officers and men that exists on vessels of the Royal Navy, were far from being realised on the submarine depot ship Lucia, stated Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the House of Commons.

The trouble aboard the Lucia, which arose while she was in Devonport harbor, on Jan. 4, was due, the First Lord said, to want of tact and consideration on the part of the captain and executive officer, incapacity on the part of the divisional officer and the presence of certain individuals who fomented ill-will among the mess mates.

The Board of Admiralty has, therefore, decided to reduce the severity of the sentence imposed by court-martial upon four of the Lucia's seamen. The captain, executive officer and divisional officer concerned will have their appointments terminated and will be retired on half pay. They will also receive an expression of the Board's severe displeasure.

Aggressive Ad Campaign Is Promised By C.M.C.

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 29.—An aggressive advertising campaign, with newspaper display columns carrying the brunt of the attack, is promised for this year by H. M. Ireland, advertising manager of General Motors of Canada, Limited.

Long one of the Dominion's leading advertisers, the General Motors organization lent its endorsement to the pulling power of the newspaper by using 5520 dailies and weeklies to announce the new models of Chevrolet, Pontiac and Oldsmobile early this year. This was one of the largest schedules ever used by General Motors of Canada, and was adopted in spite of the oft-reiterated talk of subnormal business conditions and the generally slackened promotional activities of manufacturers in and out of the automobile industry.

"We made this move," Mr. Ireland explains, "Because we are believers in the view that the only way to make bad business good and good business better is to put greater effort into your activities when you face subnormal conditions."

"Not only did we carry the largest newspaper schedule we ever used, but we enlisted new forms of advertising to put our new car message across. Both the radio and the motion picture screen are being added this year. Both are new media in our program, and both are being used because a manufacturer with a national market intensively cultivated cannot afford to overlook any new means of approach to that market. We are also using, of course, national magazines, outdoor boards, direct mail and other media, but the newspaper continues to form the backbone of our campaigns and for the present will continue to do so".

VETERAN PASSES

Opening trade was very slow with only 100 head weighed up to 11 o'clock. Prices on all classes of killers are 50 cents lower for the week. A few choice butcher steers and heifers made $6.50 to $6.75 a cwt. in the early sales and good cows brought $4.50 to $5.00 a cwt.

Bids for baby beef are $7.50 to $9.00 a cwt. according to quality. Milker and springer trade is dull at $85 each at the outside top price. Calves are selling steady at Tuesday's advance with choice vealers bringing $10.50 to $11 00 a cwt., and plain light calves downward to $7.00. The lamb market is dull with prices easier than Tuesday's at $9.00 a cwt., for good ewes and wethers, and $8.00 to $8.50 a cwt. for fairly good cows.

Cull lambs are selling downward to $6.00 a cwt. Sheep are steady at $2.00 to $6.00 a cwt., according to quality.

The hog market is unsettled with salesmen holding for an advance. The prospects are that prices will show a range of $9.00 to $9.25 f.o.b. and $10.00 to $10.25 a cwt. w.o.c. for bacon.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 29. — Weakness in outside markets, plus persistent buying throughout the session, almost equal to the offerings from scattered sources, induced a weakened note into wheat trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Closing prices registered net losses of ⅛c to ⅝c for the day.

Despite the weak market, wheat gave a good account of itself. It was estimated that 900,000 bushels had been worked for export business.

The cash wheat market was devoid of activity, and spreads were practically unchanged from Tuesday.

Coarse grains continued quiet in trading, and prices were inclined to ease a little in all commodities.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—The local butter market showed fair strength yesterday, with prices a little stronger at 31½c for No. 1 creamery solids and 30½c for No. 2. Dealers were not hard pressed to dispose of choice lots and some of these brought fractionally higher prices than the general market. It seemed an assured fact that quotations would be at least ½c to ⅝c better before the end of the week and reports from Montreal showed that market at the higher levels. There were all sorts of reports of trading, locally, at prices substantially higher than the market, but it was generally found that large sized lots, fresh made and high quality were concerned in the deals, which meant the market was stronger in spots.

Cheese

Cheese prices were steady at 14c to 14½c for new large, 14¼c to 14½c for twins, and 14½c to 14¾ for triplets, colored, paraffined, Government graded. The demand was fair and retailers were quoted firm prices at 15¼c for new large, 15¾c for twins and 16c for triplets.

Eggs

Egg quotations were unchanged and trade was fairly good as receipts were not burdensome. Brokers offered fresh supplies at 29c to 30c for extras, 25c for firsts and 20c to 22c for pullet extras, in free cases and graded. These prices were slightly higher than previously, but quotations to country shippers were steady at 23c for extras, 20c for firsts and 16c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were offered extras 32c to 33c in cartons, 30c to 31c for extras, loose, 23c for firsts, loose. 23c for pullet extras, loose, and 21c for seconds, loose.

Poultry

Poultry prices were lower 1c to 2c per pound.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 29. — Cheese prices advanced and eggs, butter and potatoes were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Colored winter cheese gained ½c to ¾c, being quoted at 13¾ to 14c a pound. Winter white was up ½c, a dozen for firsts and pullets. Storage cheese was unchanged at 15½ to 16c a pound. Receipts were 169 boxes.

Carlot prices of fresh eggs were quoted at 30c for extras and 26 cents a dozen for firsts and pleets. Storage eggs, in carlots, were 16 cents for firsts and 14 cents for seconds. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 719 cases.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter was quoted at 31¾ to 32¼c a pound and to retailers solids were 33c and prints 34c a pound. Receipts were 1,100 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, were 70 cents per 90 pounds, bulk, and to retailers 90 cents per 80-lb bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.— Under sudden fire from offerings to Chicago by other principal market centres, corn plunged down yesterday to the lowest prices reached here since 1922. Urgent orders to stop losses of holders of corn future delivery contracts brought about a maximum fall of 2 5-8 cents a bushel, with the final dealings at the day's bottom figures. Rye outdid low records unequalled as far back as 1894.

Corn closed steady, 2 cents to 2 5-8 down, rye 1 1-4 to 1 3-8 off, wheat unchanged to 1 1-4 lower, oats at 5-8 to 7-8 decline, and provisions showing 2 to 22 cents setback.

Pioneer Apsley Resident Had Much Interest in Affairs of Community.

78 YEARS OLD.

APSLEY, January 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The community has sustained a distinct loss in the passing of William Hales, whose death occurred at the home of his son Russell on Sunday morning, at the ripe age of 78, after a comparatively short illness. No man in the township, perhaps, commanded a greater respect and affection of his neighbors than did Mr. Hales, an evidence of which was seen when he was accorded a public reception on the occasion of his golden wedding sixteen months ago, which was attended by practically the whole of the township's people. He was a staunch Conservative, taking a great interest in municipal, provincial, and Federal Governments, and his genial disposition won him many friends, both from his own party and the Opposition.

Mr. Hales lived here all his life, and will be remembered by some old-timers of the County Council when he was a member by reason of being Reeve of Chandos. He was also postmaster at Apsley for some years, and held the position of Crown Lands Agent up to the time of his death. Besides his wife, he leaves three daughters and one son, namely Mrs. Bert Lean of Peterborough, Mrs. Wellington Lean of Apsley, Miss Mildred of Smith's Falls, and Russell, who is Reeve of Chandos, and from whose home the funeral was held on Tuesday. Service was held in the United Church at Apsley, the church being filled to capacity, a token of the great esteem in which the deceased was held. Rev. W. H. Taylor conducted the service, the choir attending and singing the hymns, a duet also being sung by Mrs. John Tucker and Mr. Taylor, Mrs. Roy Brown officiating at the organ. As the funeral cortege left the church, Mrs. Pashley played the Dead March in "Saul." Interment was made in the family plot in the cemetery, the pall-bearers being: Messrs. Albert Wilson, Harry Wilson, T. J. Wilson, Neil Whitmore, Frank McFadden, and W. R. Parks.

NO MORE PILES

How To End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation until you have tried HEM-ROID. McDermid & Jury Bond's Drug Store will supply you and guarantee money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

TRENT WATERWAY EXHIBIT DREW CROWDS AT MOTOR BOAT SHOW

Many Tourists Are Expected in the Summer as Result of Showing.

175,000 AT SHOW.

The Trent Waterway-Iroquois Trail Association exhibit at the 26th annual Motor Boat Show in Grand Central Palace, New York City, was visited by a more appreciable and interested number of people this year than in any previous years, so claimed Frank Stinson, manager of the Association, in an interview with The Examiner on his return from New York.

The admission prices brought in a more select and better class of visitors. Of the 175,000 people that came to the show, only about 5,000 owned boats, while all had automobiles. Thus, although the name of the show implied boating interests, mostly everyone was interested in tourist resorts which could be reached by car.

The local exhibit was placed in a prominent postion on the east side of the Palace, facing Depew Place. The booth was situated on the mezzanine floor in the Educational Department. In front was a large open court, and the exhibit attracted attention from every side of it. Two stairways and passenger and freight elevators were in close proximity. For this reason people were immediately arrested by the brightness of the exhibit, and the Association benefitted greatly.

The following is an extract from the New York Sun: "Ten organizations will have educational exhibits at the Motor Boat Show. These exhibits, located this year on the mezzanine floor, will be by the Sea Scouts, Trent Waterway, American Power Boat Association and United States Power Squadrons, Regatta Circuit Riders Club, Waterway League of America, Society of Automotive Engineers, National Outboard Association, Middle Athletic Outboard Association, Seaman's Church Institute, and Hudson River Reclamation Association."

Thus it may be seen that the Trent Waterway exhibit stands high amongst other important organizations of its class in America.

Results Opposite This Year

The Ontario Department of Highways held the exhibit jointly with the local association. Last year the Department despaired of the advisability of exhibiting, because it did not bring results. But it was just the opposite this year. Thousands of people were interested in the Province's highways, and in all about 25,000 newly compiled road maps were given out. A greatly enlarged map of the highway system formed the background of the Trent Waterway booth.

The reason for the popularity of road travel and boating along the Trent Canal this coming year is the present universal depression. People who are in the habit of spending their summer holidays in Europe are looking to Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes district for a recreation trip, and the exhibit showed that this part of the country had just as much to offer as Europe. The unrivalled beauty of the scenery was depicted in the several films which were shown continuously by Fred Roy. The historical old Trail of the Iroquois, the second oldest in America, was effectively depicted to the visitor. And finally the industrial and commercial attraction of Canada for the States was explained by Frank Stinson and Fred Roy.

Enquiries Already

Enquiries have already commenced to come in as a result of the Motor Boat Show exhibit. Alfred Albelli of the Fawcett Publications has asked for material to be used in the next publication of Modern Mechanics—a magazine with 100,000 circulation. The publisher desires data and all available photographs to illustrate the attraction of the region to the motor boat sportsman and hunters and fishermen, and this will provide an added "booster" to the Trent Waterway publicity campaign.

Several wealthy men have made detailed enquiries concerning the Peterborough - Kawartha Lakes district. B. A. Lundy, vice-president of the Signal Construction Company, Grand Central Terminal, New York, has written in asking for a set of charts covering road and water routes of the Trent Waterway and Lake Ontario.

The Cleveland Photographic Society had noticed in a copy of the Cine-Kodak News that 800 feet of film on this district was available for showing before clubs, and so made application for the use of the film. These pictures circulate all through the United States in the same manner.

The motor boat exhibits in the show were very interesting, and individual showings numbered 230. The show was sponsored by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, comprised of the leading boat and engine builders of the United States. On the first floor of the Palace were cruisers, heavy Diesel engines, and sail boats. Runabouts and accessories were shown on the second and third floors respectively. On the fourth floor were outboards, light Diesal engines, maine engines, and small boats.

People came from the Eastern States, from as far west as California, and south as far as Florida, from the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario. Thus visitors from all over the continent were given the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the Peterborough and Kawartha Lakes region of the province, of learning through first hand information of the tourist attractions of the district, and of ascertaining the wonderful opportunities the country offers for American speculation and business.

ANNUAL MEETING BELMONT SYSTEM

Commissioners Re-elected at Fairly Large Gathering Held in Havelock.

HAVELOCK, January 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual meeting of the Belmont Municipal Telephone System was held here in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon, when about fourteen subscribers were in attendance, and evinced a deep interest in the affairs of the system. The commissioners, Messrs. W. J. Peoples, Isaac Lawson, and James W. Russell, were re-elected as a reward for their splendid work of the past year, and as before, Mr. Peoples is the chairman and Mr. Russell the hard-working and efficient secretary-treasurer.

Following are the main financial features of the annual report: The Belmont Municipal Telephone System now has a total of 153 subscribers, 147 owners, and 6 renters, a net gain for the past year of 4. There are 45¼ miles of poles, and 136 miles of single wire in the system. The operating revenue last year was $2,609.59, while the operating expenses were $1,290.52, leaving a gross income of $1,318.07. From that amount, however, has to be deducted interest on notes of $29.78, and the principal and interest on debentures of $1,255.04, which leaves a surplus for the year of $33.25, and together with 1929's surplus of $219.79, makes the existing surplus $253.24. The total assets, including plant and equipment, tools, etc., and cash in the bank total $13,294.38, while the liabilities of unpaid debentures, cash payments in lieu of annual levy, loans and accounts payable, amount to $12,866.60, leaving assets over liabilities of $337.78.

U. F. A. CONVENTION DELEGATES NOT IN FAVOR OF SECESSION

Does Not Receive Same Support as Accorded Plan in Saskatchewan.

ENTHUSIASM VS. SAFETY.

(By Wilfrid Eggleston)

Calgary, Alta., Jan. 29. (Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1931.) — "Secession" was twice debated at the U.F.A. convention which concluded here to-night: a resolution urging it came to a vote, and was defeated by an overwhelming majority. Of over 400 delegates less than ten registered their willingness, should their demands of the federal government be not granted to form a separate 'commonwealth' or 'free economy' between the Head of the Lakes and Rocky Mountains.

The significance of this overwhelming repudiation of the idea lies in the accurate expression it gives of Albertan sentiment. That the United Farmers number 18,000 scattered from the Peace to Montana boundary is worth noting, but far more assuring is the fact that it reflects the reaction of the Farmers' party at Edmonton, holding 40 out of the 60 provincial seats, and of the U.F.A. in federal politics, representing nine of the 16 constituencies at Ottawa. It may be said, in sharp contrast with the situation in Saskatchewan, that not one of the members, U.F.A. executives or important leaders of agrarian thought in Alberta has much patience with "secession" talk. They sympathize keenly with the individuals whose desperate circumstances have driven them to such an expression but they see vividly the usefulness of such a step even were it generally desired.

The U.F.A. has a vigorous left wing which present adversity is fostering. Carl Axelson of Bingville is its leader, and despite the comic opera flavor of his name and home town, and even of his platform manner, the shrewder leaders of the Centre and Right wings gave him credit for intelligence and eloquence and logical thinking quite out of the common. With a more thorough academic education, greater freedom from Sweedish accent, and a smoother delivery he might easily become a popular leader. His views on most issues are extreme, and his conclusions are not far removed from Communism, but it is a point in his favor that he did not whip his followers into line behind the cries of "secession" which were raised here this week. His strength may be gauged somewhat by the fact that when nominated for vice-president he captured forty odd votes out of 400 cast. The election, however, took place at the beginning of the convention, and though some impatience with his repeated orations on the several subjects debated was manifest, on the whole he gained converts rather than lost them as the convention proceeded.

One human comet flared up, had his day, and died off into comparative obscurity during the secession debate. The packed hall of the convention were electrified when a tall strong-featured stranger with a red face and a penetrating voice began with a flourish of manuscript to urge the formation of "free economy" for Western Canada. In two minutes he had the close attention of every delegate; in five minutes he had the convention in an uproar.

"Pussyfooting is the peculiar vice of politics" was his first thrust, and in an entertaining mixture of axioms, aphorisms, balanced phrases and sarcastic illusions he went on in this vein:

"Let us resolve that currency shall be publicly owned and government operated, that all values not be result of individual effort shall accrue to the people, and that all indirect taxation shall be constiutional."

After referring to 'the whining of the tariff pauper for the duty dole" he observed: "We cannot dig in and become a self-contained people overnight, or in ten years; to beg we are ashamed. Our only hope is to trade direct on a free market, so many dollars' worth of wheat for so many dollars' worth of goods. We have to face the stark fact that our customers can get along without us far better than we can get along without our customers."

"Despite the Hon. H. H. Stevens and his 'Little Children I Say Unto You' Epistles to the Canadians—in which our Minister of Trade and Commerce—Ye gods and little fishes—reveals himself as explosion of laughter which followed drowned out the rest of the sentence.

"All that is needed" he said a moment later, referring to his scheme of 'free economy' "is a proportionate population that knows its economic onions."

Then with a touch of sarcasm: "This is an age of efficient government! We are able to produce so much that a good share of us lives in perpetual fear of having nothing. And all of us periodically, as at present, stop producing because we can find nobody who is able to buy the things everybody wants!"

"Secession" he shouted with fine scorn, "vile word! anathema to every pussy cat patriot of the Dominion doormat! Screams of laughter). The very word secession, having no clear connotation, merely serves to evoke the black bats of atavistic prejudice from memory's cave."

"Freely the Motherland accepts Canadian goods and for this crime must she brook the Bedford Blast! Now either you low-wage Englishers will cripple our vast world commerce by a toll of 10% on all your imports, or you shall never bask in the beneficence of an additional preference of 3% for British runners of the Confederate blockade. "This 'blast' mimicked by the speaker in deep sonorous tones fairly imitative of Mr. Bennett, left the crowd gasping.

The wit and eloquence of the unknown—he turned out to be George Rowe of Wheatsheaf, a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin and a pioneer of 21 years' residence in Alberta—carried away the crowd and after tunultuous rounds of applause they insisted on having his name announced: "We want to know who made that magnificent speech" the crowd shouted.

Had a vote been taken then it might have received larger support. But calmer counsels prevailed. William Irvine of Wetaskiwin said the speech was 'Great in eloquence, great in wit, great in nonsense! The matter was shelved for a day. In the meantime, Premier Brownlee made his sane appeal, and Alfred Speakman, another federal member, in masterly style showed how fallacious the "secession" cry was. "You say you wish to give us, the 'shock' troops at Ottawa, some ammunition to strengthen us obtaining your demands. But secession is only a bluff. Nothing is so foolish as a 'dud' shell. If we have won respect at Ottawa it is because we have known what we meant and meant what we said. A 'Secession' cry would give us not a shell but a boomerang which would come back and knock our hands off."

The vote was taken, and the overwhelming rejection of Rowe's motion revealed the level-headed farmer again marching forward under sane leadership.

China will place a tax on matches.

I know a number of housewives, residing in Peterborough and in the surrounding district, who simply detest washing pots and pans.

• • • • • • •

I don't think you could name a task they object to more than this; it is due in some measure, perhaps, to the style of equipment the housewives use.

• • • • • • •

The woman who would make the task of washing pots and kettles easy, must be mindful of the styles she buys. Avoid fancy shapes in kettles.

• • • • • • •

Yes, they do look attractive with their grooves and geometric indentations but don't let them tempt you.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you are so fortunate as to have a maid, but she, too, dislikes the job of keeping these indentations as spotless and speckless as the smooth surfaces.

• • • • • • •

Any pattern on the outside of a kettle that makes indentations on the inside of it, increases the labor of washing.

• • • • • • •

Round bottom kettles are easier to wash than those with flat bottoms. In olden times round bottom pots were usual and would rest inside the rim made by taking out a stove lid, thus getting closer to the fire.

• • • • • • •

To-day the heating units most common are gas and electricity, especially in the city, and the best heat comes close to the bottom of a pot or kettle always.

• • • • • • •

Since this is the case, the purchaser should be careful to note whether the sides of the utensil curve smoothly where they join the bottom.

• • • • • • •

If there is a good curve the washing will be simplified. There will be no cracks and crevices to catch ingredients.

• • • • • • •

The difference between a pot and a kettle may be interesting to note. A pot is a round vessel in which food is boiled, simmered, stewed, etc. It does not necessarily have to be of metal.

• • • • • • •

A kettle, on the other hand, is a metal vessel used for the same purpose. In designating the material as metal from which a kettle is made, it may be said that this can be overlaid with porcelain as in enamel ware.

GREAT DANCER IS LAID TO REST

Impressive Funeral Ceremony is Held in Russian Church in London.

MAGNIFICENT WREATHS.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 29. (CP)—In the Russian church where her body had lain in state since it was brought from Holland, the funeral service was held to-day for Anna Pavlova, the greatest dancer of her age.

There were magnificent wreaths, but there were also many unpretentious nosegays contributed by poor Russians who knew Anna Pavlova in their better days.

The rites of the Russian church occupied two and a half hours beginning with the impressive holy liturgy. In the great congregation were the Russian consul-general, many other figures of international prominence and several of the dancer's pupils.

The body was cremated at the Golder's Green this afternoon.

A great treat is in store for those who can avail themselves of the opportunity of attending an open meeting of the Caledonian Club on Friday night in the Woodmen of the World Hall. An illustrated lecture, entitled "Treasures of Britain," will be delivered. The views will be moving pictures, and it is through the courtesy of the Canadian Pacific and the Cunard Steamship Lines that these views will be seen on the screen for the first time in this city. Members of the Club and their friends are anticipating a splendid evening's entertainment, and of seeing again many scenes which were familiar to them in the Old Land.

Every effort is being made by the Cunard Steamship Company to have the views as advantageous as possible, so it is hoped that the members bring along their friends to enjoy this unusual entertainment.

The proceeds will go towards the relief fund.

BRILLIANT DEFENCE.

Petes Need Win at Lakefield on Friday to Get Into Play-offs.

Flashing an attack that Jimmy McMartin's Hockey Club ice warriors could not stem, St. John's red-shirted speedsters raced their way at the Brock Street arena last night to an 11-5 victory over their city rivals for the district Junior O.H.A. honors. By reason of the win St. John's erased the sting of the 6 to 0 defeat handed them by the Hockey Club two weeks ago and eased their way into the calm waters of first place in the group. St. John's can not be dragged from the top perch because they have completed their schedule. But the Hockey Club still have Lakefield to conquer, with "Doc" Kennedy's hearties as hosts, in order to slip into second place, one point ahead of Havelock Combines, and secure the right to clash with St. John's in the championship series.

There was no question of the superior team in last night's game. For once the score may safely be taken as a fair picture of the play. St. John's showed everything that a smart hockey team should have ready for use. They had speed, broke fast, and swept up the ice with a short-passing attack that carried them through the defence. Along with their brilliant offensive, the forwards back-checked all the way and their defence proved next to impregnable.

Stick To Guns

None of this detracts from the courageous and steadfast work of their speedy blue-shirted opponents. The Hockey Club stood to their guns, spurred to the attack at every opportunity, and battled every inch of the way. But St. John's smashed their combination with relentless back-checking and it was seldom that the blues crashed the defence. Meanwhile St. John's encountered little difficulty in swerving through the Hockey Club's defensive pair and boring in on Foley.

It was the most open game fans here have witnessed this season and the biggest house of the year went away tickled with the way the youngsters had carried on the fray. There was just enough bumping to make it anything but a pink tea affair, which is proven by the list of 18 penalties. Referee Max Board gave each team nine tickets. The same Mr. Board displayed much courage when he went out to bell these two clubs. He was pinch-hitting for "Snorts" Coombs of Lindsay, and he handled a pretty fair game.

Open Game Fast

The fans had just nicely got settled down when things began to happen. Right from the time that the rubber was dropped in their midst the teams opened up and play speeded from end to end. Four minutes had elapsed when Calladine stretched the twine behind Foley for St. John's first marker. Before that first stanza had closed nine goals had been countered and the red-shirts were out in front 6 to 3. In the second St. John's collected four more while the Hockey Club added one. In the final flurry penalties reduced St. John's punch, as they had weakened Jimmy McMartin's crew in the first, and they notched but one. In the final minute with Goalie Miller with but two defenders out in front of him, the Hockey Club besieged St. John's citadel and counted their fifth goal.

Norm Calladine, the St. John's centre flash, led the red-shirts throughout. And how that boy rowed the ice. He unloosed his whole bag of tricks; stickhandled the Hockey Club dizzy to bag six goals and give one assist and went great guns in checking. His last effort was a standout. He stickhandled from his own goal posts through the whole blue team to poke the rubber gently in behind Foley.

Along with the elusive Calladine, Gardner, who teamed with him on many rushes, starred although he only gained the score sheet once. Howe and Ellis gave a great defensive display. Ellis took the ice so ill he should have been tucked home between the sheets, and the big boy did little rushing having to content himself with letting others carry the rubber. At that he had two assists. Wilshaw earned four assists and Milliken and Merrett combined for a goal. Cuthbertson plugged the twine on the only two soft ones that Foley let by.

First Line Stars

Epps, Dallin and Thirnbeck were the best for the Hockey Club. The Blues rangy centre was particularly useful in the early part; later he depended on long range gunning. Dallin turned in his customary steady game and Thirnbeck was a tireless checker. Jones toiled hard. Wood and McCullough did considerable puck-carrying but failed to carry though and defensively they had many faults.

Both goalies gave a smart display and on the night's work are on a par. Except for Cuthbertson's pair of goals, Foley did not have a chance. The others came from right in front of him and were aimed for the corner. Miller let one soft one in, Dallin's goal, which he deflected in with his pad.

The teams:

St. John's—Goal, Miller; defence, Ellis and Howe; centre, Calladine; wings, Cuthbertson and Gardner; alternates, Milliken, Wilshaw and Merrett.

Hockey Club—Goal, Foley; defence, Wood and McCullough; centre, Epps; wings, Meagher and Dallin; alternates, Tuck, Thirnbeck and Jones.

Referee—Max Board.

The Hockey Club opened the first chances. Epps went down, split the defence and missed the yawning nets. The Hockey Club pressure was relieved by Ellis, who had the first shot at Foley. Calladine began to shine at this stage for St. John's with Epps carrying the attack for the Hockey Club. Gardner was going through on Foley when tripped and Wood drew a penalty. Calladine stickhandled his way through to score. Meagher drew a penalty, putting Hockey Club two short. Wilshaw was benched for tripping Thirnbeck and he went through. Epps gave Dallin a pass to beat the defence and the red-head richotted a shot off Miller into the nets to even the score.

The Hockey Club were masters at this stage, Epps and Dallin combining nicely. Cuthbertson heaved a shot from the blue line that found the nest and three minutes later he circled from behind the Hockey Club to raise one past Foley for St. John's third goal.

Counters came fast from then on. Dallin went up. His shot was stopped but Jones was camped at the nets and rammed in the rebound. Woods drew a penalty and Calladine immediately took a pass from Wilshaw for St. John's fourth goal. Little more than a minute later Gardner gave Wilshaw a pass to beat the defence. Calladine netted Wilshaw's rebound. Epps went up alone and winged a shot from near centre that stretched the St. John's hemp. The teams battled, along with St. John's having the best of it. Just as the timers' gong sounded Calladine took a pass from Wilshaw and before Referee Board rang his bell to cease hostilities he scored for St. John's sixth goal.

Checking was close at the start of the second period and several penalties were drawn down. With both teams one short Calladine breezed through alone and countered. Calladine was stickhandling his way repeatedly to Foley's doormat with the Hockey Club apparently disorganized by the speedy going and close checking. Ellis was in but Foley made a brilliant save. With both sub lines on Hockey Club took a bigger share of the play. Milliken and Merrett combined and Milliken smared Merrett's rebound. Two minutes later with St. John's still much in the driver's seat, Ellis gave Wilshaw a pass for a goal.

Calladine gave Gardner a pass out from the corner for St. John's 10th. Foley stopped the shot but McCullough knocked the puck into the net. P.H.C. were flinging long shots at Miller, and later Thirnbeck gave Jones a pass to go in close and score. Both teams drew two penalties apiece and with four-man hockey Ellis, Gardner and Calladine were carrying the play to the Hockey Club.

The Blues had more of an even part in the play in the third period. Tuck sent a pass out in front of the empty nets but there was no one there to get it. The period was eleven minutes old when Calladine staged his solo stunt to traverse the length of the ice and score. The Hockey Club shot everyone but Foley up on the offensive and they succeeded in hemming St. John's in, but failed to gain any real openings. Howe, Calladine and Cuthbertson were benched in quick succession with a minute to go and St. John's sorely put to it to withstand the Hockey Club's efforts. McCullough lifted the rubber in for the last score of the game, just before the final bell tolled.

NORWOOD SQUAD BEATS VISITORS FOR 9-3 COUNT

HOMESTERS LEAD PLAY.

Combines Now Have Four Wins and One Tie Game to Their Credit.

NORWOOD, January 29th—By virtue of their 9—3 victory over Lakefield coupled with the fact that Hockey Club went down to defeat at Peterborough last night, the Norwood-Havelock Combines now hold second place in the Junior O. H. A. loop with four wins and one tie to their credit and but three lost games. Lakefield with six defeats, have yet to play two home fixtures with Campbellford and Hockey Club.

Taking complete control of the play from the moment they stepped into the ice, the home team had matters fairly well their own way, until towards the end of the second period, when the visitors registered the first of their three goals. The tempo throughout was one of very lively character; neither team lacked anything in the nature of sustained pep and dash, although the Northerners were weak in combination effort, on the forward line.

The ice was fast, the play clean and well handled by Referee L. Wright of Havelock, and the interest of the gallery fully maintained.

McLaughlin Opens Count

Soon after the "bell handler" threw the puck between the opposed center forwards, Thompsons green and white sweater was seen standing out conspicuously, as he flashed between the surprised red, white and blue forward and defence lines and made two drives in succession in an effort to score for the hometowners. Lakefield's net minder Webster, kept a level head and held his ground, but thirteen minutes from the opening gong was beaten by the Combines speed merchant, McLaughlin whose skillful play all through the game was one of the outstanding features. In all he sent the puck past the goal keeper's guard on three different occasions. Rathwell netted the rubber five minutes later and Shannon put in a third for luck, one minute from the end of the first period.

For the visitors Stewart on the wing, played a remarkably good game showing speed and strategem, most consistently. In the opening stanza the Wingett-Kennedy-Elmsley combination gave some good exhibitions of effective checking tactics.

Norwood opened the second installment with a fierce onslaught. Thompson went to the box for tripping. Following some nice cooperative effort on the part of Beavis, Kempt and McLaughlin, Norwood was again rewarded when the twine bulged for the fourth time in their favour. The goal came after a bold lone dash by McLaughlin who went clean through the whole team. A little later McLaughlin made a nice pass to Goden and Rathwell, and the latter missed an almost certain chance of scoring.

Lakefield Takes Offensive

Stewart trying hard to score for the visitors made a couple of ineffective long shots, while Wingett also made a determined dash, which was to prove fruitless. Controlling the play again, the home team made another assault on the opposition goal, and McLaughlin again stared unrelated. Play see-sawed back again and Wannamaker put in the first tally for Lakefield to be avenged 50 seconds afterwards by Rathwell. Norwood scored this goal, just after the puck had been placed in play, after a short pause, near the Lakefield net, and owed it a great deal to luck.

Odds piled up in the opposite direction subsequently for Kennedy who was neatly robbed of a well deserved goal just before the bell announced the end of the second.

One minute from the commencement of the final struggle, Thompson scored off Kempt registering Norwood's eighth goal. Lakefield playing gamely showed evidence of a reserve of speed and tenacity, that earned admiration from their opponents and spectators. The Combines still continued to press and their little or none at all under the pressforward and defence lines wavered sure of the visitors. Webster, after making a great save off Kempt succumbed to a shot from Shannon. This goal, Norwood's ninth came as the result of an unexpected manoeuvre on the part of Shannon who went as if to pass, but who instead sent the rubber to its mark in the net with unerring aim.

Wingett taking a long shot from away back of the centre line, sent the puck soaring through the air to be caught by Beavis, Elmslie, the visitors diminutive left winger, who at this period of the game eclipsed all his previous efforts of the evening, worked closely with Wannamaker and Kennedy and worked his way, with the puck right within a foot or so of the goal mouth. He should have scored, but it was not to be. He came back again to the attack, and again was he repulsed when it seemed certain that the goalie was caught at disadvantage.

Three minutes gone, and Shannon again found the mark, Stewart and Northey counter attacked with success, Stewart netting the second goal in his teams favour. Lakefield still continued to press, Stewart and Northey in the lead harrassed the Combines custodian took a shot from close range at his net. Beavis fell full length on top of the puck, flung it for the safety zone, but Stewart and Northey intercepted it and the latter scored the final goal of the game off Stewart's pass.

The final seconds of the game were marked by two nice saves by Webster off Voyer and McLaughlin, who successively stickhandled right through the Lakefield team and took drives at close quarters.

STIRLING BLANKS TWEED CREW 3—0

Some 700 Hockey Fans See Trent Valley League Teams in Spectacular Tangle.

(Examiner Correspondence)

STIRLING, Jan. 29.—One of the best hockey tilts ever staged here was witnessed on the Stirling arena last night when about 700 fans were treated to a sensational game, coming from Madoc, Tweed, Campbellford and Frankford, besides many from the surrounding community.

The first period, while scoreless on both sides did not lack action and speed. The locals played the offensive right from the moment the bell rang. Several shots were made on goal by Ingram, "Dit" Little, Davis and Beatty. The Tweed goalie, McGee however with his usual effectiveness was a match for them.

The Tweed defence were at their best in this period and in spite of repeated rushes were able to protect the net. Stirling suffered two penalties, Davis and Ackers having a short recess for tripping.

Spectacular Hockey

The second session opened with a rush from centre ice by M. Geraldi, but he failed to score. Ty Little received the puck but was checked before he could reach the net. Here Ingram had a shot on the goal and was stopped by McGee. M. Geraldi immediately came down with the rubber, but in turn was stopped by Morton. Ingram got another shot on goal here with the same result. M. Geraldi was penalized for tripping. In a rush forward G. Geraldi collided with Davis with the result that Geraldi was injured so he had to leave the ice. Ingram here, got another shot on goal only to be repulsed by McGee. Jack Ackers again took a rest for tripping.

Ingram again attempted to coax the disc past the Tweed goalie but in vain. Morton was called upon about this time to do a little guarding and was found quite capable.

Just as this period was nearing completion the locals were treated to a spectacular bit of fancy work. On a pass from Ty Little, Davis was able to notch a marker. The cheering had scarcely faded away when Davis returned the compliment to Ty Little, and he in turn popped the rubber past McGee. Just two minutes elapsed between these thrills, so the fans were kept on their toes with excitement.

The last period opened with the visitors determined to break the goose egg. The Tweed forward line were successful in glazing a few shots on goal, only to be repulsed.

Davis got a rest for tripping. Morton was called on to dodge some long shots from the visitors. Ingram, Davis, Beatty and T. Little made several ineffective rushes. Davis received another short penalty for tripping. While the locals played one man short, Dit Little made a solo rush, and was successful in raising the score one more.

With five minutes to go, Tweed attempted desperately to tally, but with Morton at his post and the defence up to form, they found it impossible.

Referee Smith of Kingston handled the bell and meted out the penalties.

The teams:

Tweed — Goal, McGee; defence, Marchen and M. Geraldi; centre, Campbell; wings, Cripps, A. Geraldi; subs, E. Geraldi, G. Geraldi and M. Clark.

Stirling—Goal Doc Morton; defence Hank Ingram and Les Beatty; centre, Davis; wings, Ty Little and Bud Little; sub., Jack Ackers.

BULLDOGS IN SECOND PLACE

Windsorites Give Syracuse Stars a Thorough Trouncing, Win Easily 8-3.

RE-ARRANGED LINE-UP.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 29. — (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer.)—Coach Herbie Mitchell apparently struck the key to scoring records when he sent forth a pre-arranged Bulldog line-up to do battle against the Syracuse Stars in the solitary International Hockey League match played last night. With the former Montreal amateur, Paul Haynes, at centre, flanked by the League's leading marksman, Earl Robinson and Lorne Duguid, the Windsorites gave the cellar occupants a thorough hockey lesson, winning by 8 to 3. The victory placed the Border City championship hopefuls in second position, two points in the van of London Tecumsehs and five behind the leading Buffalo Bisons.

Duguid started the season's high scoring splurge by helping himself to a brace of tallies during the first 12 minutes of the opening period. Robinson then notched two of the quickest goals of the season to give the Bulldogs a commanding lead.

Continuing to fatten their scoring averages in the middle frame the winners added three more markers to their total. Andy Bellemer got the fifth counter on Robinson's pass while Desy Roche, another former member of last season's Allan Cup champions, got the sixth and seventh. Holmes got the Stars' first counter in between Roche's brace of tallies.

Jack Aboud teamed up with Duncan to net the final Windsor score in the last period. After that the Bulldogs eased up and the Stars through Paddon and Klein reduced the margin by two.

The Bulldogs meet their "cross-river" rivals, Detroit Olympics, tonight and a tight struggle is assured. Becoming desperate since their disastrous slump of the last few weeks the Olympic management have secured several players from New York Rangers of the National League to strengthen the weak spots.

In the other scheduled fixture the Bisons travel to Pittsburgh and it is well within the realm of possibility that the Yellow Jackets will emerge from the fray victorious and in fourth place, one point ahead of the Cleveland Indians who are idle.

ADMIRALTY MOVE LAUDED IN PRESS

That Ratings Not Entirely to Blame Gives Satisfaction, Daily Mail Claims.

SHIP'S OFFICERS RETIRED.

LONDON, Jan. 29.— (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent.) — The Admiralty's action in terminating the appointments of the officers concerned in the incidents aboard the submarine depot ship Lucia, and reducing the sentences imposed on four seamen by courts' martial, is commended by the British press to-day.

The officers who are retired on half-pay are Commander O. F. Allifax; Lt. Commander J. W. Hoskyns, and Commissioned Boatswain P. A. Wright.

The Telegraph to-day said the statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty yesterday "confirms the suspicions aroused in the public mind by the evidence at the courts' martial. The disclosure that the Lucia was not a happy ship is obviously a state of things for which the officers must almost always be held primarily accountable. Nevertheless should the officers affected demand courtmartial in their turn, it is difficult to see on what principle it could be refused."

The Manchester Guardian said practically the same.

The Daily Mail declared the nation would have have some satisfaction that the responsibility for the unhappy incident, when the body of seamen on the ship refused to obey an order, is not to be borne wholly by the ratings. "The Admiralty decision undoubtedly means that substantial justice will be done," the Mail added.

E.P.L. Doubleheader On Friday Evening

Tomorrow night, at the Brock Street Rink, an East Peterborough League double-header will be run off. Cogs oppose Norwood in the first game at 7.30, and at 9 o'clock Lakefield and C.G.E. go to the mat.

Norwood have been icing an improved team lately, and are expected to keep the Cogs on the jump throughout. C.G.E. have been coming along nicely, too, and should give Lakefield a mansized battle. With fast ice predicted, spectators are bound to get their money's worth between the two games.

"Y" SENIORS MEET BLUE PETES FRIDAY

City Basketball Champions Face No Easy Opponents in Newcomers.

Tomorrow evening, on the Y.W.C.A. floor, the "Y" Seniors, basketball champions of the city, will take on the "Blue Petes." This game will get under way at 8 p.m., and the Seniors will be out to keep their winning streak intact. The "Petes" on the other hand, lost their first start of the year last week to the St. Paul's entry, and will be battling hard to break into the win column.

At 8.15 the Westclox squad meet the Senior School Girls, and the undefeated Clockmakers need the win to keep in first place with St. Paul's and the "Y" Seniors. The Senior School team, however, are a task for the strongest team in the league and it would occasion little surprise if they hand the Westclox their first set-back of the season.

Both contests are bound to be interesting and should provide plenty of fine basketball.

THEATRES

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The gay old lady from Brazil, "where the nuts come from," is with us again. "Charley's Aunt" is a hardy perennial that has been blooming for nearly half a century and is still going strong. Whenever she appears, gales of laughter follow her passing. She is a mirth tonic that evokes peals of laughter at every turn.

The Regent Theatre is showing "Charley's Aunt" up to and including to-morrow night. Every day, throngs of people laugh themselves tired over the galumphing adventures of o'd Donna Lucia d'Alvadores and her insistent suitors. Old Mr. Spettigue, intent on those lovely millions of dollars, pursues her with ardor and avid interest. When she goes "haywire" under the strain and does her mad antics on top of the garden wall, the house reels. It can't help itself.

Charles Ruggles as the masquerading old lady, is a scream. And he has a fine supporting cast in a couple of lovelorn youths with Oxford accents, and a duo of pretty maidens. But the old dame with the side curls and the fichu and the flowing black dress, takes the centre of the stage and carries the part hilariously through to a roaring conclusion.

"Charley's Aunt" is always good entertainment and the talkie version is as good as it can be. Donna Lucia can make you forget the stock market crash and the prevailing depression and the vagaries of the courts of justice. All you want to do is to laugh until you are tired.

—Jeanette.
